

UPCOMING: SEPTEMBER 11 MEETING AT PPD

Our next meeting will be on September 11. This is our once-a-quarter discussion of current and new PPD policies where we have an opportunity to provide input that impacts the policies that are finally implemented. Please plan to join us at 6pm in the PPD training room

RECAP: AUGUST 14 TRAINING AT PPD

Sgt. Greg Epp gave a presentation on how and why “Table-top” exercises are used. Table-top exercises help first responders around the country plan for unexpected events and anticipate the “what ifs”.

Many of the guidelines and processes used in these exercises are developed and taught by FEMA. It is important to have a set of standard language and organizational structures that all first responders are familiar with. In the case of larger events, first responders may come from many different city, state and national agencies. As a result, people who have never worked together are thrown into a situation where they need to make sure they are all “speaking the same language” and do not waste precious time misunderstanding terminology or instructions.

The program was very helpful in understanding how agencies prepare for unexpected events. It was reassuring to know that the country’s first responders are always in the process of preparing for a surprise event that might affect our community.
