

TheEduProject

"History will be kind to me, because I will write it."

Program Overview

TheEduProject is a nonprofit education organization that supports schools, teachers, and students through professional development and personalized curriculum. As we work to end educational inequality, our primary goal is to create engaging personalized learning classrooms, focused schools, and strategic school systems to address educational gaps in learning specifically for students of color.

Our mission is to help students achieve more with an authentic curriculum that stretches them, that supports teachers with high quality training, and guides districts with stronger leadership, and improved systems.

Solving the most pressing issue in education requires collaboration between educators, the community, and the workforce. Our hope is to overcome the challenges by delivering equitable training for teachers and learning experiences for students.

DESIGN & LAUNCH INNOVATIVE SCHOOL MODELS

DESIGN Innovative Practices

New designs for learning are not static, cookie-cutter, off-the-shelf recipes. They must be responsive to the ongoing, accelerating change in social, economic, and technology conditions. They must reflect an ever-deepening understanding about learning and learners. And they must draw upon the assets, strengths, and needs of your community.

- 6-9 month consulting engagement helps district administrators redesign and align key functions.
- 9-month coaching relationship with school-site leads and teachers, including remote consultation, observation visits, and targeted workshops

Curriculum Design

Culturally Responsive Curriculum

Bringing real-life context and technology to the curriculum provides an educational environment that creates meaningful contexts to apply both academic and success skills. It promotes student learning and the development of critical thinking skills, problem-solving abilities, and communication skills. Each project/unit guide tells its own story. theEduProject consultant team will focus on] specific elements within your existing curriculum purposefully flips the classroom and puts responsibility for learning in the hands of students.
