

You're a Gift

As you wake and greet the new day open the blinds and feel the sun's rays dance across your skin. From your soft delicate cheek down your seething chest to below your navel as the warmth makes you close your eyes and gasp slightly with knees weak, watch the birds play in the trees that rock in a gentle breeze careless as they too enjoy the new day and watch your body sway like the trees in which they play.

See the roses of crimson red, sun fire yellow, and most brilliant blue all bursting forth with fragrant beautiful life as do you

The flashes of the sun bouncing off the droplets of dew are reminiscent of your deep sparkling eyes so brilliant as they capture the minds of so many passersby.

In the eyes of God above, nature around, and me admiring from afar you truly are a precious and beautiful gift to this world.

Please bring your beauty to me and the lives of those around you today and have a day filled with Love, Joy, and Happiness!

-Child of Caleb