REYNOLDS' HACK LINE CHANGES HANDS.

George Schlenk, of the Firm of Schlenk & Lonergan, Takes Possession.

The Deal Completed Yesterday—Mr. Schlenk Now Owns One of the Finest Equipped Hack and Omnibus Lines in the City—He Has Severed His Connection With the Old Livery Business Which Will Be Conducted By Mr. Lonergan.

W. B. Reynolds has been quietly making arrangements during the past few days to close out his hack and transfer business and yesterday the deal was completed whereby George Schlenk takes possession of the stand. The new proprietor was a member of the firm of Schlenk & Lonergan, liverymen. The two latter gentlemen have dissolved partnership and hereafter Mr. Schlenk will be numbered among the West Side business men.

The new proprietor under the terms of the deal buys all the paraphernalia of the establishment and rents the barn of Mr. Reynolds. In addition he will move his share of the stock in the North Church street barn to his new place of business.

By this departure Mr. Schlenk comes into possession of one of the finest hack lines in the city. It is the oldest established, having been started by Mr. Reynold's father in 1850. W. B. has controlled the business for the past eight years and moved to the present location six years ago.

Mr. Reynold's future intentions are well known and there are not a few people who dislike to see him go out of business in Rockford. In his transactions with the public he has always been courteous and obliging and he has never been known to refuse a helping hand to those in need.
