About Me

Originally from England, I've been lucky to call Australia home for the past six years. I spent three and a half years in Adelaide, followed by three years up in Cairns, and I'm now happily back in Adelaide. I really enjoy the warm weather and love taking long walks along the beach – it's one of my favourite ways to relax.

When I'm indoors, I'm a keen gamer and enjoy playing on both my PlayStation and PC. I'm also passionate about food and love trying out new dishes and exploring different cuisines. My background as a chef and bartender helped me develop strong communication and people skills, which I carry into everything I do.

These varied experiences and interests have helped me build strong connections with others, and I'm genuinely committed to supporting people in reaching their goals and leading meaningful, fulfilling lives.
