IMMUNIZATION RECOMMENDATIONS FOR MISSION TRIP PREPARATION

Required vaccinations

- Yellow Fever: All travelers aged 9 months or older must show proof of Yellow Fever vaccination to enter Nigeria. It is highly recommended to get this shot at least 10 days before your trip.
- Routine Vaccines: You must be up to date on all routine vaccinations normally received in the USA, including:
  - Measles-Mumps-Rubella (MMR): Rising measles cases globally make this especially important.
  - Diphtheria-Tetanus-Pertussis (Tdap): Recommended
  - Polio: The CDC recommends all adult travelers to Nigeria receive a single, lifetime booster dose of inactivated polio vaccine.

Recommended vaccinations and medicines

For a medical mission, close contact with the local population and longer stays increase the risk of exposure. The CDC recommends the following for most travelers:

- Hepatitis A: Transmitted through contaminated food and water.
- Typhoid: Also transmitted through contaminated food and water.

Vaccinations for higher-risk travelers

Given the nature of a medical mission, you have an increased risk of exposure to various pathogens. The following vaccinations are highly recommended:

- Hepatitis B: Transmitted via infected blood and body fluids. Medical professionals are at a higher risk of exposure.
- Meningococcal Meningitis: This vaccination is recommended, especially for travel during the dry season (December–June).
- Rabies: This is spread through the saliva of infected animals.
- Cholera: This vaccination is recommended for aid workers and others with a high risk of exposure.

Other important health considerations

- Malaria
  - Malaria is present throughout Nigeria. You must speak with a travel health specialist to get a prescription for preventative antimalarial medication.
- COVID-19: The CDC recommends all eligible travelers be up-to-date on their COVID-19 vaccinations.
- Consult with your doctor at least 4–6 weeks before your trip to discuss your health needs and concerns

Proof of immunization: Keep your International Certificate of Vaccination or Prophylaxis (ICVP) and other vaccination records easily accessible, as proof may be required for entry and exit.
