Sweet Toof recently took the opportunity to escape the stress of East London and moved to the tranquility of the Swedish countryside. He began painting graffiti in 1986. Saving a little of his lunch money so he could buy cheap spray cans and then paint at night. After many years painting along Regent's Canal and while living in his art studio, he began studying art at the Royal Academy of Arts in London. When his studies were completed he continued to paint graffiti and is known as a "graffoholic".

Sweet Toof has exhibited in New York, Los Angeles, London, Amsterdam, Argentina and Sweden. The exhibition at Norra Station will show a selection of oil paintings, hand-painted ceramics and woodcut prints.
