

Panda presentation to the San Diego Zoo as an idea for posters. Back in the 90's when they got a panda. The Chinese characters mean "Panda", and the 4 dots on the bottom are the 4 feet.

a bit fragile and wrinkled— but still a work of art.

It is actually stenciled on the rice paper.

This airbrush watercolor was the back cover of my first edition of a coloring book I made for the San Diego Zoo in about 1980. I always thought of her as my "Gorilla Madonna and Child." The Zoo had a gorilla named Dolly back then who they were trying to breed. Gorillas need to be taught how to mother, so this was a project. I think I was helping along with this painting in my mind.

On heavy watercolor paper.
