

The ADORE guide to installing smaller Ribbons yourself... from NancyCHenderson.com

There are two ways to hang the Ribbons yourself:

1~ Use a template of plastic sheeting like I do here to get exact placement of the art on the wall~ and where to put in the nails.

2~ Guess about placement! (The method used by my main Art gallery that repped me for years.) Best for 3 people ~2 sets of hands, and one to stand back and check.

Template method:

Note in the photo I have just hung the upper art using the template~ and am pulling it away from underneath. Art gets installed OVER the template and then it is pulled or cut away. Templates are EASY to create yourself using plastic sheeting.

1. Just put the sheeting down on a clean floor, and lay the art over the top—arranging till you get what you want. Mark the outline of the art with a sharpie. Mark on the sheeting where there are drilled holes in the back of the art for nail placement.

2. Put the plastic up on the wall with painter's tape and check position.

3. Hang the top nails first. Put drywall nails in so top and bottom nails are opposing. Give a bit of tension on the Ribbons so they are snugly "springloaded" on the wall. Voila! Instant Art. Enjoy.

Here is a photo of the artist ~Nancy C Henderson~quickly and easily hanging the display of 3 sets of Ribbons at the Adore Gallery in late November 2022. These Ribbons are like LEGOs for the wall— you can change the configuration to fit your space! Each of these Ribbons are individually mounted using just 2 drywall nails. If you like the exact configuration of any of the sets displayed at ADORE, I have a template available for you to use. (Or you can use the 2 choices above.) Another option is for me to come to your home and help you install. This is a complementary service, and may be your best choice if you are looking for a larger configuration, as I can bring more matching ribbons. (2 story works which I cannot hang myself do require a fee.) Please see my site: Nancy CHenderson.com > MORE> ADORE for additional hanging instructions. Be creative!
