Covering Camden County throughout

For more than 125 years, the Tribune & Georgian has been Camden County residents' go-to spot for local news and sports coverage.

The names leading and working at the newspaper might change – I'm the relatively new editor and publisher – but the commitment to our readers remains the same.

That same commitment can be viewed in the Guide to Camden magazine you hold in your hands today. This magazine would not be possible without the efforts of past and present employees, as well as the excellent Camden County Chamber of Commerce.

Camden County is a community on the rise. Steeped with tradition and history, this community boasts award-winning schools, thriving industry and incredible history. There are festivals galore and more than enough restaurants to satisfy any appetite.

What makes Camden County so special are its people. While we might disagree politically or on how to make this community better, the objective remains the same: helping Camden County thrive.

We hope this Guide to Camden will help you remember why we cherish this community so dearly. And we hope newcomers will view this special publication as a vital resource in adapting to our community.

Camden County's best days are yet to come. We can't wait to chronicle them in the Tribune & Georgian.

Welcome to Camden County

A great place to drop your anchor and stay a while

Like many of those who live in Camden County, longtime resident Kevin Van Horn says being near the ocean not only feeds his family, but also his soul.

“As a local fisherman for over 30 years, I’ve been fortunate enough to fish the coastal and offshore waters of southeast Georgia. We are blessed with some of the most fertile fishing grounds in the entire country,” Van Horn says.

Some of his favorite times as a family have been spent boating and fishing under the hot Georgia sun.

“I’m proud and excited to introduce this resource to my 12-year-old son as well,” he added. “Whether you are looking for some sea trout, red bass and flounder in close or mahi, king mackerel and sea bass offshore, coastal Camden has it all.”

When he is not on the water, Van Horn is an active community volunteer and can often be seen working with the St. Marys Kiwanis Club on one of their many community projects.

One of Georgia’s eight original counties, Camden is now home to a population of more than 54,000 people with 8,000-plus military and civilian employees at Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base and 613 square miles of pine and hardwood forest, rivers and marshes.

The area’s mild climate, scenic views, high-quality school system and small-town atmosphere despite its commercial growth make the county an exceptional place to raise a family.

Add that to the area’s mild climate and scenic environment and it’s easy to see why so many choose to call Camden County home. There is plenty to do in Camden — family activities, day trips and events are all in abundance here. Active drama, music and art groups engage audiences and participants in the arts and regional culture. The Guale Historical Society, the Bryan-Lang Archives and two regional libraries offer abundant research potential and programs about local history.

On the natural side, there’s Crooked River State Park, with a nature center, hiking trails, a campground and riverfront cabins plus a bird blind for watchers and camera buffs. Numerous parks throughout the county offer places to fish, hike and picnic.

Guided trips with docents and interpreters bring history to the forefront at Cumberland Island National Seashore. The island is reached by ferry that travels between St. Marys’ historic district and the island’s south end. The island museum in St. Marys offers a preview to Cumberland’s 300-year history.

The county also is a welcoming military community and home to Kings Bay. Retired Navy men and women help run the St. Marys Submarine Museum in downtown St. Marys. And the county’s proximity to other Navy bases in Jacksonville, Florida, adds even more incentive for active duty and retired personnel who choose to make Camden County home.

Golf courses and golf communities offer challenging links. A county recreation complex with a heated pool and fitness center offers many classes, from water aerobics to spinning.

The local hospital, Southeast Georgia Health System, Camden Campus, provides treatment options close to home and a health care network that’s affiliated with a larger hospital in Brunswick.

There are many shopping and dining venues throughout the county and plenty of opportunities to buy locally caught seafood, either fresh from the fishermen or in restaurants.

All the comforts, stellar weather, outdoor life, plenty of elbow room and the friendliness of a small, Southern community steeped in history make the county a destination for keeps. All that, and no traffic jams.

CAMDEN COUNTY Chamber of Commerce

Businesses collaborate to promote community pride

The Camden County Chamber of Commerce is much more than an alliance of businesses. It promotes its members, but in doing so also showcases the many benefits our community has to offer.

The Chamber office is often the first contact people make when they are looking to vacation or relocate to an area.

“Our friendly staff can help answer questions about what is available here and provide referrals to members who have what they need,” said Alison Shores, president of the Camden County Chamber of Commerce. “We also provide valuable networking and development opportunities to our members, which add to our collective strength as a business community.”

Members can connect with their Chamber office to learn more about the local marketplace and develop their leadership and management skills with seminars and classes that are offered throughout the year.

The Chamber office is located at 531 N. Lee St., Kingsland, in the O.F. Edwards Center for Industry and Commerce and can be reached by calling (912) 729-5840.

John Minor, a market executive for St. Marys and Kingsland branches of Pineland Bank, is chairman of the Chamber’s board of directors for 2021-2022. The board oversees several working committees that handle various aspects of the organization’s mission, from special events to advocacy.

Promoting members

In addition to offering ways to market local businesses, the Chamber hosts a variety of events throughout the year to highlight its members.

Business After Hours, a social gathering on the third Thursday of every month, offers opportunities to meet and network with other local professionals. Taste of Camden, the Chamber’s annual business expo, is its signature event.

In addition to business exhibits and door prizes, the expo features a food competition to showcase our regional fare. Awards are given to local restaurants for Tastiest Appetizer, Tastiest Entrée, Tastiest Dessert and People’s Choice.

The Chamber also hosts an annual gavel-to-gavel dinner, as well as other special events throughout the year. Chamber members can host or sponsor any of the Chamber's many events to maximize their exposure to other business people.

"Many of our members who joined the chamber to raise their profile in the community are surprised to find out how much new business can be generated through other Chamber members," Shores said.

People often like to do business with people they know and trust, so those business connections are often vital in a smaller community like Camden County.

Chamber members are also listed on the Chamber website at www.camdenchamber.com in the business directory and are promoted on the Chamber's social media platforms.

The Tribune & Georgian and the Camden County Chamber work together to publish the annual Guide to Camden County, a publication geared toward visitors and newcomers. Chamber members are also featured in the business directory of this publication.

Advocating for shared interests

Because local, state and federal governments influence what happens in Camden, the Chamber and its committees often advocate for their members by offering opinions on public policies and laws. They alert members when they need to speak on a key issue. The Chamber's stance on certain issues, such as support for Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base and its missions, are perennial in nature. However, board members and staff are always in touch with their business members so they can be responsive when new issues surface. Chamber members collaborate every year with The Camden Partnership and the Joint Development Authority to visit the county's elected representatives in Atlanta and Washington, D.C. Both fly-ins include local government, education and business leaders — all speaking with one voice on behalf of Camden County.

Key issues are identified and researched within chamber committees and then white papers are prepared for each and assembled into booklet form to leave behind as a reminder of what was discussed.

CHAMBER COMMITTEES

Ambassador Committee

The ambassadors are a prestigious group of Chamber members who represent the Chamber and support the economic growth and development of the Camden community. Ambassadors serve as key liaisons between the Chamber and the business community by being the organization's "eyes and ears." They work to increase membership, improve member retention, strengthen awareness of chamber benefits and assist with Chamber events. Being an Ambassador not only helps the organization, but helps each ambassador get to know area business leaders and better understand their community.

Leadership Development

The Chamber's Leadership Development Committee is charged with providing leadership development opportunities to business professionals and elected officials in Camden County.

Programs under this committee include Leadership Camden Alumni Association, Leadership Camden and annual Leadercast symposium event.

Government and Legislative Affairs

The Government and Legislative Affairs Committee is the voice of advocacy for all Camden County's businesses. It focuses on gathering knowledge and educating government and elected officials on issues that will affect small businesses at the local, state and federal levels. Committee members often attend City Council, County Commission, Board of Education and Georgia Chamber of Commerce meetings and events to advance that mission.

Additionally, various methods, such as gathering member concerns, are used to find information relevant to issues affecting or impacting the local community.

Military Community Affairs

The Military Community Affairs Committee focuses on bridging the gap between the business community and its leaders and the military personnel of Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base.

This committee works closely with the Camden Partnership, Navy League and other community organizations that advocate for the local military population and encourage additional missions for Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base.

Small Business Development

The purpose of the Small Business Development Committee is to plan and implement initiatives to help promote, support and grow the Camden County business community. Through the Small Business Institute, the committee coordinates workshops and seminars relevant to business growth and development. Programs range from Lunch 'N' Learn seminars on a variety of special topics to webinars that members access as part of their Chamber membership.

Medical services

There's nothing small town about your health care options in Camden

Southeast Georgia Health System, which runs the medical center in St. Marys, has served the Golden Isles since 1888. Over the last decade, major renovations and expansions have brought a new level of comfort and medical care to Camden County.

"Our Camden Campus is unique among smaller community hospitals throughout the country," says Glenn Gann, vice president and administrator, Camden Campus. "A modern facility, it is supported with the latest diagnostic and treatment technology that is difficult to find in a hospital of this size."

"This is due to the ongoing strong support of the Camden Campus Advisory Committee and the health system's board of directors. With their support, we are able to provide many services to our community that you would not typically find in a hospital of this size. In addition, our medical staff and team members provide excellent and compassionate care to the patients we serve, something for which we are very proud."

Anchored by a 40-bed, acute care hospital, the Camden Campus provides a variety of services, including a 24-hour emergency care center, a medical-surgical unit with private rooms, an intensive care unit, a maternity care center with integrated rooms, orthopaedic and joint replacement surgery, a senior care center, an outpatient rehab center offering aquatic therapy and a brand new wound care center.

A radiology suite offers open MRIs, nuclear medicine capabilities and a PET/CT scanner, while a dedicated women's area handles mammography, ultrasound and bone densitometry.

The cancer care center provides patients with an array of diagnostic capabilities and treatment therapies.

"The health system offers cancer care centers on the Brunswick and Camden Campus, ensuring patients have access to exceptional cancer care close to home," said Dr. Timothy A. Jamieson, radiation oncologist and medical director of the cancer care centers. "We have the resources, technology and specialists, including physicians representing all facets of oncology, for early disease detection and effective treatment."

The Camden hospital is located at 2000 Dan Proctor Drive in St. Marys. The not-for-profit health system includes multiple locations, such as a hospital on the Brunswick campus. To learn more, visit www.sghs.org.

The health system also has strategic affiliates in Camden County who provide a variety of care including general surgery, pediatrics, gastroenterology, hematology and oncology, primary care, pulmonary medicine, obstetrics and gynecology, radiation oncology and ear, nose and throat.

Camden also has a Veterans Affairs outpatient clinic that provides primary and mental health care. The clinic situated at 2603 Osborne Road, Suite E, in the Kings Bay Village Shopping Center in St. Marys. The phone number is (912) 510-3420. To learn more, visit www.northflorida.va.gov.

Kingsland

For more than a century, the City of Kingsland has been extending its Southern hospitality fit for kings to visitors and residents alike through a variety of recreational opportunities — and offering a beautiful, convenient place to call home.

“Kingsland has all the small town charm people find endearing, yet we are poised for great economic growth and prosperity,” Kingsland Mayor Grayson Day said.

From its location near Interstate 95, Kingsland is a hub for those looking to experience the coastal area’s attractions, such as Cumberland Island National Seashore or an excursion through the Okefenokee National Wildlife Refuge.

“Kingsland is one of the most beautiful places to live along the Georgia coast,” Day said. “We are geographically positioned along the I-95 corridor just inside the Georgia/Florida line. This makes us an advantageous location for new business and industry while still offering the benefits and comforts of a hometown feel. Kingsland is an amazing place to live and work.”

Kingsland’s air of Southern hospitality has grown in recent years as new businesses move into downtown and into buildings from the city’s past.

“We really do have a community of nice people, and visitors feel that all the time. People get a sense of Southern hospitality,” Kingsland tourism director Tonya Harvey said. “There’s an abundance of that natural attraction here. It’s also what the visitors coming here are looking for. They’re looking to relax, to get back in touch with nature and the outdoors.”

Incorporated in 1908, Kingsland’s history can be found inside the restored train depot, located at the corner of East King Avenue and South Satilla Street.

The city also has a veterans’ memorial park located just west of downtown at Orange Edwards Boulevard on the south side of Georgia Highway 40. The park features monuments for each branch of the armed forces, statues and a brick walk honoring those that have served.

“Our people make Kingsland special,” Day said. “We are a proud community of caring folks and we have the blessing of being a part of a naval community. The people of our community come from diverse backgrounds, locations, and beliefs. The men and women who serve our country strengthen the fabric of our community and make this a special place to live.”

Some of the best examples of Kingsland employees, volunteers and citizens coming together are the city's annual community gatherings and festivals.

The Catfish Festival in November attracts droves of people each year. It has been listed as one of the Top 20 Events in the Southeast, bringing local music, crafts and cuisine to area residents and tourists. The festival parade is one of the event's main attractions in addition to the fried catfish dinners. Booths line the streets selling an array of arts and crafts.

Other festivities include the annual Kingsland Lions Club Oyster Roast in late January, the annual Mardi Gras festival, a tree lighting ceremony in early December, the annual Martin Luther King Jr. Day march and a Veterans Day parade.

Downtown Kingsland features buildings from the 19th century, and its brick sidewalks lined with quaint streetlights justify its position on the National Register of Historic Places.

The city has a welcome center off Interstate 95 Exit 3 that serves thousands of visitors each year. The center houses information about the city and Camden County, attractions throughout the region as well as local art and produce, such as jams and honey. To learn more, visit www.visitkingsland.com.

Kingsland is also home to a scenic golf course community, Laurel Island Country Club located east of Exit 6. The golf course, Laurel Island Links, has been praised in several golf magazines for its scenic appeal and challenging layout.

The Camden Community Recreation Center and Camden County High School are both in Kingsland too.

Kingsland City Hall is located at 107 S. Lee St. City hall can be reached at (912) 729-5613. To learn more, visit www.kingslandgeorgia.com.

Experience the charm of a coastal community with a unique story to tell about America's history that spans centuries

St. Marys is a place some visitors just can't forget — and they find themselves becoming residents years later.

St. Marys grabbed Joe Antao on his first visit. He wanted to retire in an affordable town by the ocean after living in the Dallas area for more than 30 years. His now wife suggested St. Marys, a place she had visited years ago.

"Initially, it was the downtown area," he said. "The beautiful Gilman park overlooking the St. Marys River, the historic Oak Grove Cemetery, the rustic look of an old-time fishing village and the maritime heritage of the town was a big draw."

Leslie Mary Wells and her late husband, Richard, took refuge in St. Marys about 30 years ago when a storm threatened their sailing trip. They ended up retiring in St. Marys.

"When Richard and I arrived, I told everyone up North that the people are so kind and polite," Wells said. "I actually said that I didn't know if I was nice enough to live in St. Marys. My husband, in his inimitable humor, said, 'Leslie Mary, we know they are polite. We don't know if they are kind.' We soon discovered the kindness of the community exceeded their manners."

Joyce and David St. Clair visited St. Marys years before they moved here. Now, it's the place that "feels the most like home," according to Joyce St. Clair.

"We love the people in our neighborhood and our town," St. Clair said. "Everybody is so friendly. ... It's so nice to go to the grocery store and run into several neighbors. One reason that I'm in the grocery store a lot is that we're always having dinner with friends or one of our groups is having a potluck. It's just a friendly place to live."

Antao has found St. Marys to be a friendly place, too, with a true sense of community and a diverse geographical location. To the north, Jekyll Island, St. Simons Island and Savannah are within a two-hour drive. To the south, Fernandina Beach, Fla., Jacksonville, Fla., and St. Augustine, Fla., are also within a two-hour drive and the Jacksonville International Airport is 30 minutes away.

"There is never a lack of things to do from summer concerts, beach time, festivals, parades, deep sea and intracoastal fishing, a ferry trip over to Cumberland Island and a visit to Crooked River State Park," Antao said. "Our children and grandkids love to visit."

Antao has also immersed himself in the community, participating in a visioning group, the nonpartisan Camden Roundtable, the Get Out the Vote Team, the cycling club, playing in the Camden Community Band and volunteering with MAP International in Brunswick.

"One of the very cool benefits of living in a small town is the closeness one feels with the community," Antao said. "It has inspired me to get involved and perhaps give back to the community."

In addition to a welcoming populace, St. Marys offers the charm of a small town enriched by a history dating back to the mid-1500s and proximity to rivers, marsh, the ocean and other natural wonders.

Part of St. Marys' history can be seen through Orange Hall. Situated on Osborne Street in downtown, Orange Hall is a three-story Greek Revival mansion built in about 1838 that has been owned by the City of St. Marys since 1965.

Orange Hall has been the setting for weddings and club socials. The white house is also a focal point for the live nativity in December. For more information, call the St. Marys Welcome Center at (912) 882-4000.

St. Marys also has a historic cemetery, library, senior citizens center and two other museums. The St. Marys Submarine Museum has been open since 1996 and has one of the largest collections of World War II submarine patrol reports in the United States and a functional periscope. It shows the strong influence that the nearby Navy base has had on the community. The museum honors active duty and veteran submariners with artifact displays, a ballast panel, an honor roll and reference materials.

The rich history of Cumberland Island is visible at the Cumberland Island National Seashore Museum. The museum houses historical artifacts from the island, including an American Indian dug-out canoe, baskets similar to the ones woven by African-American slaves and several objects, including a restored carriage, from the island's gilded Carnegie era.

For additional information, visit the welcome center in downtown St. Marys at 400 Osborne St. near city hall or www.visitstmarys.com.

There are two big annual festivals in downtown St. Marys. The Independence Day celebration on July Fourth and the Rock Shrimp Festival in October draw thousands of people to downtown for fun and festivities. Local business owners also host Rustapalooza, a popular curated vintage market, once or twice a year, drawing thousands to one of the nation's oldest cities. Woodbine, Georgia

We all long for the lifestyle we knew as children. A time when neighbor helped neighbor, when children could run and play without a care in the world. This lifestyle still thrives in Woodbine, Georgia. Close to schools, Jacksonville International Airport, I-95 and outstanding recreational amenities, Woodbine is the best of both worlds.

Woodbine

The Woodbine Riverwalk is a vibrant pedestrian artery through the city's most scenic vantage points. It is always a popular spot for those enjoying special events like the Woodbine Crawfish Festival or just an afternoon stroll.

Camden's smallest city offers a relaxed lifestyle, quick access to the outdoors

Woodbine is such a quaint and quiet town that you might overlook what a prominent role it plays from the heart of Camden County.

As the county seat, accessible by both Interstate 95 and U.S. 17, it hosts the county's administrative offices, its courts and its jail. Yet it still maintains its laid-back and friendly appeal for those who enjoy a more rural atmosphere.

Residents and visitors alike bask in the serenity of life on the scenic southern banks of the beautiful Satilla. About 1,500 citizens enjoy the peaceful life of a rural small town, a low crime rate and remain on a first-name basis with most of their neighbors, local business owners and elected officials.

Woodbine is smallest of the three Camden municipalities and its city government works closely with a handful of citizens clubs and groups to hold special events in town. The five-member council is led by mayor Kizziler "Kizzi" Knight and city administrator Samantha Young leads the city staff.

As the county seat, the city houses government entities such as the Camden County Board of Commissioners, sheriff's office and the Camden County courthouse complex, but still maintains its charming atmosphere, appealing to residents and visitors alike.

Location is a major advantage for Woodbine. It is located at Exit 14 on Interstate 95, the city also sits at the crossroads of U.S. Highway 17 and Georgia Highway 110. It is situated for easy driving to the Kingsland-St. Marys area to the south, the Brunswick-Golden Isles area to the north and the Waycross-Blackshear area to the west.

The city is just 45 minutes from Jacksonville International Airport and has several shopping centers, beaches and entertainment venues just to the north and south of it.

Residents can wind down and recharge close to home without the bustle of a bigger city. Some families take a bike ride through town. Some people walk or run along the Riverwalk, others fish and boat along the Satilla River.

Various housing options are available for families who wish to make the city their home, including historic homes, existing homes within established neighborhoods as well as available building lots inside open and gated communities.

As home to the Bryan-Lang Archives, Woodbine serves as the keeper of the county's history. Genealogists and historians come to the city to research family trees or county history, admire the historic buildings or enjoy a quiet afternoon's reading.

The Old Woodbine School serves as the Camden Community Center. The community center offers cultural events, such as the Woodbine Opry. The opry features traditional bluegrass and gospel music being performed every Friday night and country music for dancing on Saturday night. Live musicians, singers and performers from Georgia, Florida, and other neighboring states, entertain audiences each week.

Nestled along the beautiful Satilla River, the flower-lined pathway of the Woodbine Riverwalk twists and turns as it meanders along the banks of the river beginning at the Satilla River Waterfront Park and ending at Liza Rudolph road to the south. The city, in partnership with the Path Foundation and Georgia Coast Rails to Trails Inc., has completed the final leg of the trail to the south, adding benches and a mountain bike course adjacent to the existing walkway south of West 11th Street.

The biggest community event is the Woodbine Crawfish Festival, one of the biggest festivals in the region. Usually held on the last Saturday of April and Friday prior, the annual festival, organized by the Woodbine Citizens Steering Committee, draws approximately 20,000 festival-goers for family-oriented entertainment and crawfish-centered cuisine.

Kings Bay

Naval

Submarine Base

The men and women of Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base in Camden County carry out a unique mission. Together, they keep the only ballistic missile submarines on the East Coast patrolling the coastline and deploying around the world to provide strategic deterrence.

“In the Atlantic, only here at Kings Bay do we have both ballistic missile and guided missile submarines, their only homeport on the East Coast. When I stop and consider the significance of this one-two punch, the SSGNs and SSBNs, what they are capable of, what they represent, and what is at stake, I’m awed by the strategic and global significance of little ole Kings Bay,” former Sub Group 10 commander Rear Adm. Mike Holland said.

The six ballistic-missile submarines — plus two guided missile submarines — stationed at Kings Bay have made more than 4,000 strategic deterrence in the decades since the base opened.

“The world depends on us to do this,” then-commander of U.S. Navy Submarine Forces Vice Adm. Michael Connor said upon the 4,000th patrol.

Supporting that mission are nearly 9,000 personnel — active-duty service members, Department of Defense employees and civilian contractors — with an annual payroll of $500 million, making the Navy base the main economic engine of Camden County.

Trident Training Facility provides a state-of-the-art school with instructional sections that can simulate a working submarine. Trident Refit Facility has been repairing and refitting submarines since 1985, keeping America’s submarine force in top fighting condition.

Kings Bay and Camden County is also home to a Marine Corps security battalion and two Coast Guard units: the Maritime Force Protection Unit and the Maritime Safety and Security Team.

Those who work at Kings Bay do more than just clock in and out each day. They also perform regular acts of community service, such as cleaning roadways, and partner with the schools and neighborhoods, turning Camden County into their home away from home.

The community advocates for Kings Bay via the Camden County Chamber of Commerce’s military affairs committee;

The Camden Partnership, which promotes the base-community relationship; and the Camden-Kings Bay Council of the Navy League, which supports all sea services. There is also a local Submarine League, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars chapters.

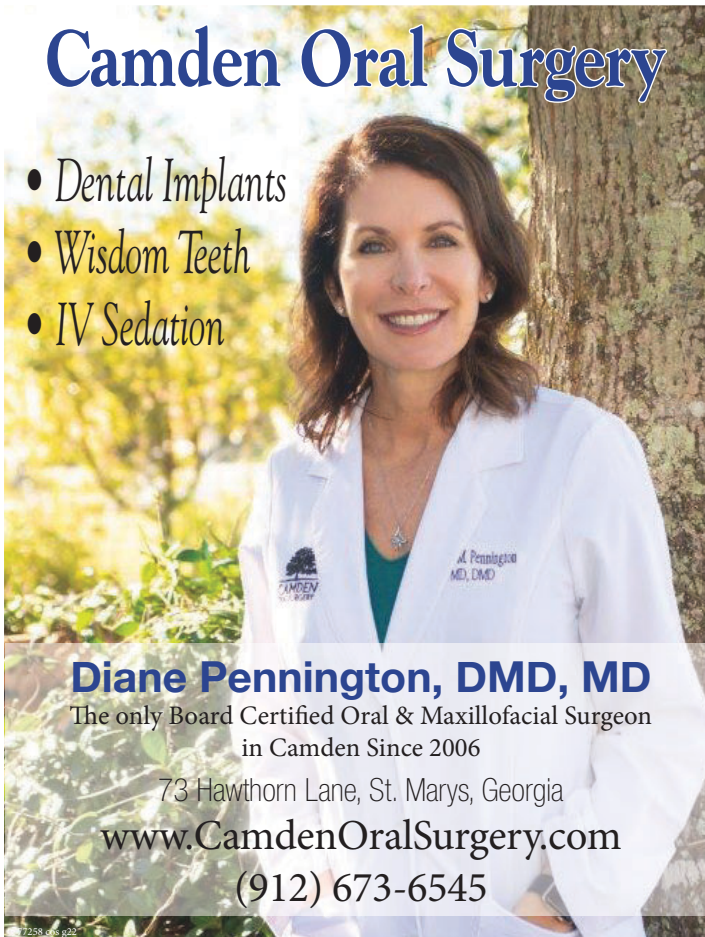

Many active-duty military personnel consider Kings Bay a favorite posting because of the approximately 16,000-acre base, the mild climate, affordable housing, abundant recreation on the area’s waterways and in natural areas and the friendly reception in the community. Camden County also offers military personnel a rural place to live with close access to bigger cities.

Retired military personnel often choose to stay in Camden County and are operating businesses, taking leadership roles in civic and church affairs and volunteering in the community.

Cumberland Island

A national seashore packed with history and natural beauty

People call Cumberland Island National Seashore a magical place. The largest of Georgia's barrier islands, Cumberland is an 18-mile-long wonder of maritime forest, tidal creeks, beach and saltwater marshes off the coast of Camden County.

Decades ago, Cumberland Island could have been lost to progress. It's wilderness turned into civilization with houses, more residents and a bridge to the mainland. But heirs of the Carnegies, who owned much of the island, started talking about a national park to thwart development and maintain the natural beauty.

"Cumberland has a mystique about it," said Lary Dilsaver, who wrote the park's administrative history. "It infected the Carnegies. It infected the park service people who have been there. Nobody ever forgets that."

Former U.S. Rep. Bill Stuckey, who played an integral role in creating the seashore, credits Cumberland's magic with its preservation.

"Preserving Cumberland is the simplest thing in the world," Stuckey said. "All one has to do is visit Cumberland, set foot on that island and that's all you have to do."

It's totally the most enchanting, mystical, beautiful (place) and it hasn't been spoiled."

This magic draws tens of thousands of visitors each year. Reached only by boat, the island became a national seashore in 1972 and the National Park Service owns much of the island, including Plum Orchard, a 22,000-square-foot house built by the Carnegies at the turn of the 20th century, and protects the land, wildlife and resources. Motorized traffic is limited to park service personnel and a few resident who have retained rights.

How to see the island

The park service ferries visitors to the island twice a day from downtown St. Marys and offers guided and self-guided tours, including the Land and Legacies tour, which shows visitors the island's natural and cultural history with stops at Stafford cemetery, Plum Orchard, the remnants of Cumberland Island wharf and the settlement.

The tour concludes at the settlement where former slaves purchased land, built houses and, in 1937, built the First African Baptist Church where John F. Kennedy Jr. married in 1996.

"It truly was the heart and soul of the African American community here on the island," said Maggie Tyler, former chief of interpretation and education for the island.

“Births, deaths, baptisms and everything in between occurred here at the church.”

Visitors can also become immersed in the island experience by staying overnight in campgrounds from primitive to convenient with bathhouses and picnic tables by the beach.

A snapshot of history

Scientists, including anthropologists and archaeologists, and university students and instructors periodically come to Cumberland to study its first residents or the plants and animals. Early in 2013, a National Park Service archaeologist examined a shipwreck, likely from the 1800s, that had been found on the beach.

Among Cumberland’s earliest inhabitants were the Mocama Indians — a subset of the Timucuas — that had several villages on the island and the mainland more than 4,000 years ago. In 1566, Spanish explorers arrived on Cumberland, setting up a garrison and Catholic mission and seeking to convert the Indians to Christianity.

The late Camden County historian Rodney Sheffield said in 2009 that a lot of the island’s history has yet to be told.

There were hundreds of Mocama Indians on the island when the mission was active, Sheffield said. Those Indians who became Catholics were allowed to be buried beneath the floor of the mission house as a place of honor, he said. There also would have been a friary and a large council house of the Indians in a compound with the mission.

Following the American Revolutionary War, grants of land to war heroes brought on the plantation era in the island and the importation of slaves to work the land. The Civil War ended the plantation era, and in the late 1800s and early 1900s, Thomas and Lucy Coleman Carnegie bought most of Cumberland as a winter playground and home for their family.

Crooked River State Park

Explore the natural wonders of southeast Georgia — both by land and water — whether you're a visitor or a local

Perched on the edge of a bluff along the Crooked River in St. Marys, the state park bearing the river's name offers scenic marsh views as well as endless activities for nature enthusiasts young and old.

Visitors to Crooked River State Park can fish off a floating dock, hike several nature trails, get a peek at native wildlife and try their hand at the park's miniature golf course.

Located about seven miles north of St. Marys off of Charlie Smith Sr. Highway, the park offers 500 acres shaded by palmetto and Spanish moss-draped oaks along salt marsh. Bike rentals, RV and tent sites for camping, rental cottages and picnic shelters are just some of the options for park visitors.

A boat ramp, guided kayak trips and nature programs are also available. Peak visitation months are September through May and daily park hours are 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Activities

The park features a nature center with animals, displays and special programs throughout the year. There is also a Junior Ranger program for children, a variety of ranger-guided nature walks that are designed for people of all ages, boat cruises, kayak trips, birding hikes, campfires, survival skills classes and scavenger hunts.

The popularity of weekend nocturnal wildlife walks has also been on the rise. Walks begin at dusk when wildlife is most active. Both children and adults are welcome to join this entertaining and educational experience.

Crooked River State Park also has themed events for seasons and holidays and a variety of day camps and events throughout the summer months, when most children are out of school.

In the fall, the park offers Creepy Crooked River in celebration of Halloween with haunted hayrides and haunted nature center tours.

Thanksgiving is a busy time for visitors at the park, and the staff hosts a variety of programs for all ages. In December and January, there are holiday-themed programs and the first day of the year hike. During the winter, Camden County school children enjoy educational field trips to the park.

Other annual events held at the park include the Audubon Society's annual backyard bird count in February. Those visiting the park by vehicle must pay a $5 parking fee. Free parking passes can be checked out from local libraries. Annual parking passes are also available.

For more information, call the park at (912) 882-5256 or visit www.gastateparks.org/CrookedRiver.

Education

Preparing Camden's youngest citizens to succeed in the classroom and beyond

When it comes to education, Camden County Schools works to provide engaging classroom environments and innovative opportunities that prepare its students to succeed in the world beyond graduation.

The approximately 9,000-student school system strives to excel in five focus areas it deems critical to providing quality education programs: high academic achievement, quality instructors, administrators and staff, supportive learning environments, effective operations, and strong parental and community support.

"The belief 'it is all about the students' will continue to drive our decisions as we work to support the very important work being done in our classrooms to help every student reach their full potential," school superintendent John Tucker said upon taking the helm in early 2020.

"With much preparation and plans in place leading to student and staff success, I am looking forward to serving and supporting this endeavor."

Proof of Camden County Schools' commitment to the success of every student can be found in its numerous awards and recognitions. In 2017, St. Marys Middle School became the state's first traditional middle school to achieve STEM certification for the entire school. Camden Middle is the only middle school in the state to offer pre-AP English.

Early education

Camden County offers other early education options for children younger than kindergarten age. The county has a Head Start program in Woodbine.

Pre-kindergarten is available to 4-year-olds on a space-available basis that is determined by a lottery system. Each of the nine elementary schools in the system has one pre-kindergarten class. Students are required to register for the lottery at the elementary school for which they are districted. Pre-kindergarten classes also are available through local private day care centers.

New families are asked to register their children in the school system as soon as possible. Parents of a child receiving special education services from a previous school should bring a copy of a psychological evaluation, current individual education plan, current testing results other than psychological, current permission to place, placement minutes and permission to evaluate.

For more information, visit www.camden.k12.ga.us.

Higher education

Residents can also pursue a college education close to home. The College of Coastal Georgia, Camden Center, in Kingsland offers a variety of classes within the college's degree programs.

A new Coastal Pines Technical College campus in Kingsland opened in 2020 with 63,000-square-feet of classrooms and labs for welding, industrial systems, electronics, engineering and other programs.

Camden's history

Founded in 1777, Camden has been a part of many major moments in America's past History is alive and well in Camden County, despite the area's major growth over the last three decades.

From the county's role in the War of 1812 to its involvement in the paper industry to its possible future as a commercial spaceport site, it's difficult to imagine that Native Americans once dominated the landscape.

The area has significant ties to the past, having been touched by most of the major events in American history.

Camden County

Named for Charles Pratt, Earl of Camden, the county was one of the eight original counties in Georgia and is regarded as one of the earliest Georgia settlements. It was formed in 1777 by the combining of two royal parishes, St. Thomas and St. Marys.

But the earliest record of Camden County was penned by the French explorer Jean Ribault, who came to the New World in the 1550s. The Spanish are credited with settling the area after migrating from St. Augustine, Fla., in 1566 to establish missions along the Atlantic coast.

When the Civil War erupted, Camden

County residents were called upon to serve the Confederacy, and many young men left home to become soldiers. Their absence, however, left the coast vulnerable to attack.

Camden's coast was attacked in both the War of 1812 and the Civil War. A recent archaeological dig confirmed that the last battle of the War of 1812 occurred at a fort on Point Peter in St. Marys. British soldiers took the fort and occupied it beginning in January 1815, just a month after the war had officially concluded. However, it took months before word of the peace treaty between the United States and Great Britain reached troops on the other side of the Atlantic.

The county produced one of the illustrious generals of the Civil War in William Joseph Hardee, who taught at West Point and wrote the book on infantry tactics later used by both armies.

After the Civil War, the Great Depression hit Camden as it did every American community. The opening of Gilman Paper Co. in the 1940s helped the area recover, as did the build-up of Kings Bay Naval Submarine Base in the 1970s and 1980s. In 2002, the paper mill closed for good.

Much evidence of St. Marys' rich history can be found in its downtown historic district, which has been on the National Register of Historic Places since 1976.

The city was founded in 1787 by Jacob Weed, who made his home on 1,620 acres along Buttermilk Bluff. By 1848, the city boasted a courthouse, five churches, three ministers, three lawyers, nine dry goods stores and three schools.

The railroad came in 1906, and this launched the St. Marys shrimping industry, a pogy plant, a canning plant and several sawmills.

Orange Hall, a tourism destination today, was built in 1838 by the Rev. Horace Pratt. Other historical sites include the Washington Pump and Oak, Oak Grove Cemetery, established in 1780, and the Riverview Hotel, constructed in 1916 along the waterfront and still operating today.

Kingsland

While Kingsland is known as "The City of Royal Treatment," it is not named for a monarch, but for the King family, who were early settlers. The city was founded by William Henry King in 1894 with State archives include this aerial photo of downtown St. Marys in 1940.

The St. Marys History Walk offers a self-guided tour at the corner of St. Marys and Bartlett streets in downtown next to the historic Oak Grove Cemetery.

Built in 1916, the Riverview Hotel still operates today and is a landmark in downtown St. Marys.

Kingsland's Main Street in 1920

Shown in the 1920s, Thomas and Lucy Carnegie built Dungeness (above) in 1884 on Cumberland Island. Dungeness burned in 1959 but visitors can see the ruins. Lucy also built Plum Orchard (left) in 1898 for her son George. Plum Orchard is open for tours as staffing permits.

the coming of the railroad. Since the railroad went through his property, it used "King's Land" as the name for the new stop. The city incorporated in 1908.

The nation's first Maine to Miami road, known in Georgia as the Dixie Highway, opened in 1912, the same year Kingsland's streets were graded and kerosene lights were installed in the business district. Today, the Dixie Highway is officially called U.S. Highway 17. Where it runs through Kingsland, it is also known as Lee Street.

Today, Kingsland is a regular stop for travelers along Interstate 95, as exits 1, 3 and 6 boast a plethora of convenience stores, hotels and eateries. The city is also home to the award-winning Camden County High School as well as the countywide recreation center and campuses for the College of Coastal Georgia and Coastal Pines Technical College.

Woodbine

Woodbine's earliest history revolved around a plantation along the banks of the Satilla River, which was granted by the state in 1808.

The town was formed in 1894 when J.K. Bedell granted the railroad land easements through his plantation in exchange for the right to name the new community. Bedell chose the name Woodbine for a flowering vine that grew abundantly in the area. The town incorporated in 1908, and George W. Brandon, an ancestor of former St. Marys mayor Jerry Brandon, was its first mayor. Woodbine became the county seat in 1923.

Today, it welcomes tens of thousands of residents and visitors each year for the city's annual crawfish festival. The event features crawfish étouffée and a crawfish boil as well as other food vendors, live entertainment and crafts vendors, all set along the banks of the scenic Satilla River and Woodbine Riverwalk.
