

Wild Country A-Town Sangha & Jikoji Zen Center An Invitation to Explore (v.5)

Join us for a 7-week intensive practice period, an exploration, offered in virtual collaboration (on Zoom) by the Wild Country A-Town Sangha and Jikoji Zen Center, and open to all practitioners and those interested in learning more about Zen.

Our topic will explore the fundamental and mysterious core concept of Zen Buddhism called (in Sanskrit) "shunyata," but often translated to English as "emptiness," and summed up famously in the Heart Sutra as,

"...Form is emptiness, emptiness is form, the same is true of feelings, perceptions, formations, and consciousness."

Presenters and Moderators: Taizan Gendo, Gerow Reece, Kishor Forson, Eli Cohen, Chōbun Nenzen, and Cliff Isberg will be presenting on Tuesday nights; Taizan Gendo will be moderating a special book reading group on Thursdays. Estimate about 10 hours per week for this opportunity to go deep for 7 weeks with commitment to wholehearted practice—or for however much time you can devote. You are welcome always!

On Tuesday evenings... Together, with each of us contributing, we will explore Buddhism's "flow in history," seeing and feeling our way into penetrating shunyata with a different lens week—story, art, nature, reason, relationship, language, science, and ritual. We will be emphasizing feeling, not just words and texts. We'll see how our historical lineage of Siddhartha, Nagarjuna, Bodhidharma, and Dogen expressed shunyata, as well as more recent prophets, perhaps Alan Watts, Dali Lama, Thich Nhat Hahn, Ken Wilber—and your favorite contributors?). We will explore this mystery from these myriad lenses hoping to gain a glimpse, a taste, a feel of shunyata. And then sit with it in our heart and mind.

On Thursdays evenings... We will read and discuss "A Light in the Mind" by Eiko Joshin (Carolyn Atkinson), a Dharma heir of Kobun Chino Otagawa Roshi. The subtitle of this remarkably clear treaty is "Living Your Life Exactly As It Is." Writing from a Vipassana and Zen perspective, she encourages us to cultivate both mindfulness and stillness, to discover, as Kobun called it, "a light in the mind." This is a steadying read for troubling times, a healing read, and a wonderful accompaniment to our exploration of shunyata. You may order the book "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson on Amazon.

Here is a link to an mp.3 recording of me reading the Introduction to her book:

<https://soundcloud.com/taizangendo/introduction-a-basic-perspective-from-a-light-in-the-mind-by-carolyn-atkinson>

Both Tuesday and Thursday meetings will start at 6:30pm (Pacific) on Zoom. We begin on Tuesday, Oct. 6th and end on Tuesday, Nov. 24th.

Our practice period is bookended by the Denko-e sesshin which started Monday, Sept. 28, and the Rohatsu sesshin starting Nov. 30th. These are rare opportunities for concentrated practice before and after our exploration of shunyata—please join!

The link to join our Autumn practice period zoom is:

<https://us02web.zoom.us/j/9494877033>

Meeting ID: 949 487 7033 Mobile # 669.900.6833

More info on our Wild Country Zen website pages “Practice Period Info Page” & “Lens of Shunyata” on <https://wildcountryzen.com> ; files with additional resources from presenters will be posted there as well. Check back periodically for new materials or changes.

Dates and topics on our journey:

Tuesday, October 6

The Lens of Story. Laying the foundation and context of this central doctrine of Buddhism with stories and alternate versions/visions of what IS shunyata, told by central figures of our practice.

Presenter: Taizan Gendo

Thursday October 8

READ: "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson

Introduction: A Basic Perspective, Chp. 1 The Winds of Impermanence, Chp. 2 Inhabiting Our Lives.

pps. 1-19.

Tuesday, October 13

The Lens of Art. Where could Shunyata be "functioning" in Western art, in East Asian art? Can we peer through the lens in both directions--from art and from Shunyata?

Presenter: Gerow Reece

Thursday, October 15

READ: "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson

Chp. 3 Are We Safe Yet, Chp. 4 Whose Cookies Are These?

pps. 23-35.

Tuesday, October 20

The Lens of Reason. Our Zen practice incorporates Nagarjuna's reasoning on ultimate emptiness of everything, the "Middle Way" and absolute and relative truths; Vasubandhu's Yogacarīn (Mind Only) reasoning; and of course the pesky Tathagata-garba's proposition of a "really existing" Buddha-nature" in the midst of shunyata...

Presenter: Kishor Forson and Taizan Gendo

Thursday, October 22

READ: "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson

Chp. 5 Life Isn't Personal, Chp. 6 Creating the Self.
pps. 39-56.

Tuesday, October 27

The Lens of Language. "Inter-faith dialogue" attempts to reconcile some pretty significant differences--starting with the belief in God, an eternal soul, or words like "the One," words not used in Buddhism. Rabbi Eli will help explore the problems with language, from a Jewish faith perspective.

Presenter: Rabbi Eli Cohen, Chadeish Yameinu

Thursday, October 29

READ: "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson

Chp. 7 The Water of Our Lives, Chp. 8 With Our Thoughts We Make the World.
pps. 59-73

Tuesday, November 3

The Lens of Relationship. What does "relationship" mean in Zen Buddhism? How can we love what is empty of self and has no "inherent existence?" And what does it mean to follow a Bodhisattva path in an ultimately non-existent world?"

Presenter: Chōbun Nenzen Pamela Brown

Thursday, November 5

READ: "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson

Chp. 9 Open to the Outcome, Chp. 10 When the Heart Closes Down
pps. 77-90

Tuesday, November 10

The Lens of Nature. Investigating emptiness through nature is a well travelled path we will explore, with short readings of Kobun, Gary Snyder, Henry David Thoreau, Alan Watts, Timothy Leary, and others.

Presenter: Taizan Gendo

Thursday, November 12

READ: "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson

Chp. 11 Have I Done Enough?, Chp. 12 A Light in the Mind
pps. 93-99

Tuesday, November 17

The Lens of Science. Science and Buddhism: both are dedicated to the pursuit of truth; both face paradoxes, incompleteness, inconsistencies, and the unknowable. Emptiness (Shunyata) provides the background of potential.

Presenter: Cliff Isberg

Thursday, November 19

READ: "A Light in the Mind" by Carolyn Atkinson

Concluding Teaching from Kobun Chino Otagawa Roshi
p. 113

Tuesday, November 24

The Lens of Ritual. Ritual and ceremony help us connect to things words alone cannot express. On our last evening of the practice period, all participants are invited to contribute to a "Shunyata Show and Tell," a minute of two of sharing something, a ritual, a poem, an image, a song--whatever you feel from sharing the lens of our explorations .Presenters: Taizan Gendo, Gerow Reece, Kishor Forson, Eli Cohen, Chōbun Nenzen Pamela Brown, Cliff Isberg

COST: By donation; all dana (for teaching) proceeds should go directly to Jikoji Zen Center, to support our jewel in these challenging times. On every page of the Jikoji Zen Center website are "Donate" buttons; please indicate in the note you are signing up for Autumn 2020 Wild Country A-Town /Jikoji Practice Period on Zoom.

Limited to 50 participants, with lottery for possible late openings.

Please contact Taizan Gendo at TaizanGendo@gmail.com for further questions about the practice period content.