DAS Threesome Retains Travelling Trophy

The weather was fantastic this weekend in Manistee. The milder temperatures and sunny skies took their toll on most of the river and much of lake ice. Thursday the river was frozen where it passes under M-55 near Manistee Lake. By Friday the river ice had cleared. Thursday Bill and Mark fished plugs between Rainbow Bend and the Farm without a bump. I joined them on Friday. We launched at Rainbow Bend and started fishing spawn and trout beads under bobbers. We weren't having any luck and eventually switched over to plugs in the afternoon. Shortly after making the switch we picked up our only fish for the day near the Farm. It came on a green and silver Wiggle Wart with a red mark under the bill.

On Saturday Morning were able to use the launch in town and decided to stick with a plug program. Word must have gotten out that the town ramp was clear because there were a lot of guys using the ramp. The lower section of the river was busy.

There were a lot of fisherman out Saturday and finding open holes was tough. It looked like our luck was about to change when we got to the Farm. The hole we pulled our only fish from on Friday was open. After three unsuccessful passes we headed back towards the ramp to see if we could find a fresh run fish transitioning from the lake. Shortly after 3:00 we hooked into a nice fish at the M55 bridge. After a ten minute battle we managed to get her in the boat. Saturday's fish came on the same lure that caught one the previous day. That was our only fish, but it proved to be a little bigger than the Steelieø the Metro West guys brought to the weigh-in. Metro West had about a dozen guys staying at the Northwoods Cabins in Wellston. We met them there for the weigh in, and a BBQ they prepared. Unfortunately we were the only DAS members that made it up for the fish off. The good news is we managed to retain the traveling trophy.

Bill Stanley, Tom Gorguze and Mark Stosiak with the winning fish from the Manistee River Fish-Off vs. Metro-West

Wild Game Dinner --- One for the Record Books

The best one yet!!! First off a big thanks to all who attended this year's event. Without our guests, it would not be possible for us to keep up all the donations we make throughout the year.

This event seems to go smoother each year we put it on. That is in a big part to all of the board members and volunteers that lend a hand.

This year we had a few changes, one being the new caterer Country Smoke House who took the food to a new level. We also had to bring in taxidermy to give the event that special touch. Well, John Lombardo from Lombardo's Taxidermy stepped up and did a fantastic job with his quality work. The hall did an amazing job as usual providing us with wait staff and helping set up throughout the day. This year we did 27 card raffles -- 22 guns, 3 meat packages, 2 Silver Addiction fishing Charters, a quilt raffle and 8 50/50's. WOW!

As usual our ticket ladies did a great job and helped us pull that off. I would like to give a special thanks to Chuck Walters for selling 120 tickets for us. All that said, we had almost 600 people in the hall that night. That's a big crowd to please and we pulled it off with very little going wrong. A couple more thanks go out to Blaise Pewinski and Mark Williams. The three of us put in countless hours and many miles throughout the year to make this event a success. If you haven't been to the dinner before come check it out next year I'm sure you will enjoy it.

Carl Ventimiglia
Wild Game Dinner Chairman

First Stop on the Tournament Trail

Lexington, April 18, 2015

Lexington Harbor (810-359-5600)

Captains meeting at 5:30 drop lines at 6:30

(These times may change to coincide with Spring Fling Tournament)

Must be in harbor by 2:00pm

Weigh-In 2:30 in the Park behind the marina

Keep in mind since the Lexington harbor will not officially open until May 1. That makes all utilities and personal conveniences weather dependent. We may not have operating restrooms or fish cleaning station. Gas, water, and electricity may or may not be available depending upon how early the weather breaks and allows the State to get the harbor fully functioning. Ample parking is available right at the launch and annual or daily stickers are required.

It is not necessary to reserve the boat slips since it is so early in the season but keep in mind the Lake Huron Spring Fling two day tournament is running April 18 and 19. That's a popular $200 money tournament operated by Anderson Pro Bait so that could make things pretty crowded. The tournament committee will be adjusting our times and rules so that DAS members may fish both tournaments simultaneously. For information on the Spring Fling call Anderson's Pro Bait (810-987-7722) or visit <http://lakehuronsspringfling.wix.com/lakehuronsspringfling>

Visit the DAS web site & message board for the latest tournament information. Port handout, tournament rules, food and lodging information are all there for you to use. Two additional local area web sites you can use:

<https://www.cros-lex-chamber.com/> www.lexingtonmichigan.org

Channing and crew will be in Lakeport State Park (810-327-6224) 11 miles south of Lexington. The State Park will be open and you can register online for a campsite or boat slip reservation (<http://www.midnrreservations.com>) or call (800)447-2757.

Get your boats ready, strip your lines, sharpen your hooks and get ready for the first tournament of the year in Lexington. Use the DAS web site to find crews or captains and get ready to break the winter grip.

Some information you can use to fish the Lexington area:

Fish are scattered so work until you find them. When you find them stay on them. A box with some big Lake Trout will outweigh a larger number of Steelhead. (However, if you fish the Spring Fling Tournament also, you can weigh-in up to 10 fish per day but only 1 of those 10 can be a Lake Trout). Some Salmon and Steelhead can be taken in 70 to 100 foot of water, North of the harbor with spoons off the downriggers and also on some 2,3, 5, and 10 color lead lines off the Offshore boards. The bright orange and black, black and white, silver and blue, and green colors will work. Lake Trout can be taken North, and straight out of the harbor in the 80 to 100 foot of water areas, using dodgers with the spin and glows, or clean spoons down 90 to 120 feet.

See you in Lexington on April 18, Dan Chisholm

Lake Huron Regional Fisheries Workshops

You are invited to join and participate this spring in the upcoming 2015 Lake Huron Regional Fisheries Workshops offering current research and information relating to the status of our Lake Huron fishery.

The Michigan Sea Grant and Michigan State University Extension, in partnership with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Division, the USGS Great Lakes Science Center and local fishery organizations will host three regional workshops locally along Lake Huron's coastline. These annual spring Lake Huron fisheries workshops bring communities together with fisheries research and management partners to discuss research findings, management updates, and fishing trends.

Three evening workshops, hosted across the state, are open to the public and will offer valuable information for anglers, charter captains, resource professionals and other community members interested in the Lake Huron fishery. Workshops are open to the public at no cost; however, pre-registration is requested. Workshop dates and locations include:

Killer Shrimp may be Next Invasive Species to hit Great Lakes

(Reprinted from March 2015 Great Lakes Basin Report)

A species of shrimp native to Eastern Europe is now a cause for concern for the Great Lakes. Its scientific name is Dikerogammarus villosus, but experts know this voracious crustacean simply as the killer shrimp. The shrimp itself is only about an inch long, but its large mandibles make it an aggressive predator and it is notable for its tendency to kill even when not hungry. Already a nuisance in Western European waters, researchers at McGill U. said that the killer shrimp could pose a problem for the Great Lakes before 2063.

In 50 years, the Great Lakes would be populated with many new invaders, most of which may come from waterways where Europe and Asia meet—the region around the Black Sea, stated the university. This region is the source of some of the most disruptive invaders in the Great Lakes today, such as the zebra mussel, and still has many species at a high risk of invading the North American lakes and rivers, such as the killer shrimp or the monkey goby. Researchers said that the danger these invasive species pose to North American waterways depends upon what kind of legislation is in place to protect against them. More than 180 non-native species moved into the Great Lakes over the past 200 years, but recent safeguards—such as rules on how ships can use ballast water—have dramatically lowered the chance for new species to get in.

No new species have been recorded since 2006. We may have closed the door on ballast water-mediated invasions. That remains to be seen. But other doors are still open.

They have a really big mouth and claws, and they literally shred their prey. They are very aggressive in any of the systems that they get into.

Killer shrimp are highly adaptable and are known to establish colonies in a number of environments, pushing native species—some vital to local food chains—out. ☐

Summary of 2014 Chinook Tagging

This was the fourth year that all Chinook salmon stocked into Lake Michigan and the U.S. waters of Lake Huron received a coded wire tag and an adipose fin clip (ADCWT). Using two automated trailers, the lab tagged and clipped about 2.5 million Chinook salmon. Additionally, about 400,000 fish were adipose fin clipped only (AD only) and stocked into Lake Superior. These efforts required coordination and cooperation with seven state-administered hatcheries in Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois.

Chinook Salmon Tagging Comparison 2010-14

This year had continued high performance in efficiency and throughput that is attributable to consistent operator experience, and hardware and software improvements. Average throughput has remained constant at over 8,700 fish/hour for the last two years and has risen from 6,800 fish/hour in 2010.

Table 2- Total Chinook salmon processed and average throughput for 2010 - 2014 tagging at all hatcheries
