Medal (Stroke Play) – This format is the most common in professional and amateur golf tournaments. Each player records the number of strokes taken on each hole and these scores are tallied to determine the overall winner. The winner is the player who completes the course with the fewest total strokes across the round.

There are usually 3 Gross and Net winners per flight. Net scores use 95% of the players "course handicap", which is a calculation of the individual player's handicap index on the individual course's slope and rating.
