ADDITIONAL EXPLANATIONS (If needed):

Section 1(d): The house is in a historical neighborhood. We believe there is an approval process for major exterior renovations, but we have not used the process and are not familiar with the details.

Section 4(b): When we purchased the house in 2005 we intended the floors in parts of the first floor to support a heavy music collection. For this reason we added joists and a new support beam in the basement. At the time of the purchase, the support beam showed signs of old, not current, insect damage. We completed this project not because it was required, but because of our concerns about additional weight-bearing capacity. In 2018 a film production company indicated an interest in using the home for a film project. In order to accommodate heavy camera equipment, the company may have installed additional floor joists.

Section 5(e): The house contains three exposed coal-burning fireplaces. We have never used them and assume they would need repair or updating.

Section 7(b): We repaired the roof approximately four years ago with new shingles.

Section 8(b): When we purchased the house in 2005 we intended to store some books and records in the back part of the basement. There appears to be an old garage door in that part of the basement and, in an abundance of caution, we blocked the bottom of that door to prevent rain from leaking or splattering under the door—primarily to reduce the gap between the door and the floor. Also, in order to ensure the basement remains weatherproofed, we installed a sump pump and reinforced the concrete in areas nearby; the warranty for that work is transferable.

Section 10(a): The house is more than 100 years old and there are scattered signs of historical insect presence, but we have to the best of our knowledge and ability addressed any potential current insect presence and replaced a support beam that caused us some concerns because we needed additional weight-bearing capacity (see above).

Section 13(a): We have answered "no" because we have successfully lived in the house 14 years without any concerns. But this house is more than 100 years old and it has its quirks. We do not fully understand the electrical system (two switchboards) and plumbing system (two water heaters). We have not tested every outlet and there are light switches that we do not use or even understand. When we purchased the home in 2005, there was a sound system with wiring and speakers installed throughout the house and even outside, but we have never used it or understand how it works. While we regularly used the two claw-foot bathtubs when our children were infants and toddlers, we have not used them regularly in many years.

Directions on HOW TO USE: It is often unclear what constitutes a fixture which remains with the Property versus personal property which does not remain with the Property. To avoid disputes, Seller shall have the right to remove all items on the checklist below that are left blank. THE ITEMS ON THE CHECKLIST BELOW THAT ARE CHECKED OR MARKED SHALL REMAIN WITH THE PROPERTY. All items remaining with Property shall include remotes and/or all accessories necessary for use. Unless otherwise indicated, if an item is left blank, the Seller may remove all of that item from the Property. For example, if "Refrigerator" is left blank, Seller may remove all Refrigerators on the Property. This checklist is intended to supersede the common law of fixtures with regard to the items below. The common law of fixtures shall apply to all items not on this checklist. Seller shall remove all items left blank below prior to closing or the transfer of possession, whichever is later. Seller shall lose the right to remove those items not timely removed but shall remain liable for the cost of Buyer having to dispose of such items provided that Buyer disposes of them within 30 days after Closing. In removing items, Seller shall use reasonable care to prevent and repair damage to the area where the item was removed.

Items identified as remaining with the Property shall mean those specific items as they existed in the Property as of the Offer Date. No such item shall be removed from the Property unless it is broken or destroyed. In the event such item is removed, it shall be replaced with a substantially identical item, if reasonably available. If not reasonably available, it shall be replaced with a substantially similar item of equal quality and value, or better. The same or newer model of the item being replaced in the same color and size and with the same functions or better shall be considered substantially identical. This section entitled "Fixtures Checklist" shall survive Closing
