Here's What Goes into Creating Each Magnetic Geode

MAGNETIC GEODES By Rochonda Ferrelli

- It all starts at Lowe's where I hand-select ¼ inch premium plywood checking it for flaws and evenness.
- Next, the wood is cut, edges are sanded, the canvas is primed and the back is taped off.
- I then sketch the vision that drops in of the geode shape, style, and colors. This is then transferred onto the canvas.
- High-quality pigment pastes from Australia, powders and glitters are blended with the highest quality of resin available on the market.
- Crystals sourced from all around the world are used in each geode. Clear crystal points, amethyst, rose quartz, and citrine are some of the most frequently used stones. These are imported from Madagascar and Brazil. The stones are charged with Universal energy and set with an intention for each client.
- The resin pouring process takes several days and depending on the size, several weeks. Many layers are poured until the piece is a beautiful geode that speaks to me.
- Crystals, crushed glass, glitter lines, geode lines and a final glossy flood coat gives the geode a final touch that makes the piece unique and one of a kind.
- Each geode is named after an inspirational woman. The intention is energetically placed in the crystals and a quote is added to the back.
- If being shipped, geodes are hand-wrapped for the utmost protection using certified shipping materials via UPS. The geode is insured and I send Angels to accommodate the piece on its journey to you.
