Kuklok's Corner

Hello TRM families. I hope this newsletter finds you well. Though this was a short week, the lack of sun had us all feeling a little bit of the winter weather blues. The students kept our spirits up by sharing their energy and passion for their learning this week! This week also marked the official recognition of our school support staff. We took time each day to honor our paraprofessionals and Montessori educational assistants. They work tirelessly behind the scenes to ensure every single student has what they need to be successful each day. Outside of the school day they also spend time taking Montessori training and preparing materials for our teaching staff.

None of what we do each day would be possible without our amazing paras and EAs. I encourage you to give them a big thank you as you see them while you visit the building, are picking up in the car line, or on social media if you use those platforms.

A reminder that next week is a short week with only three days of school due to parent-teacher conferences. We are looking forward to sharing all of the amazing growth your children have experienced this year! Have a wonderful long weekend.

My best,

Antonio Kuklok
