Warm greetings, Three Rivers Montessori families!

This has been an exciting week at TRM, as the anticipation for Halloween is in full swing. We are looking forward to a fun and energetic time celebrating our learning next week with various dress-up days. As your students prepare their costumes for our book character parade on Monday, please remember that TRM has a policy against weapons and that this includes toy weapons of any kind. I know classrooms also have their own requirements around accessories, so please be sure to check in with your child's teacher if you are unsure about any part of a costume on Monday. We planned pajama day for Tuesday as we know many of the kids have a big night out in their neighborhoods on Monday, we can't wait to hear all about their costumes and adventures, trick or treating. If Halloween is not something you celebrate, we certainly hope you find some Fall fun in your upcoming weekend, and we will ensure the celebration of learning is another layer of fun for your children next week.

One of the focuses this week with our staff has been on the implementation of Professional Learning Communities, or PLCs. PLCs are a dedicated time throughout each month for our academic staff to analyze and interpret data, make predictions about the cause of the data they are seeing, and create actionable plans to address the data they are working with. PLCs will be implemented in a very systematic way at TRM going forward. This will ensure that each and every individual student has exactly what they need to be successful in their own personal learning journey. I have worked with a few schools in the past to create and implement sustainable PLC models and am excited for the opportunity to create a program that is unique to TRM and meets all of our learners' needs.

As I close I want to leave you with warm wishes for the upcoming cold days ahead. As I continue to learn about all of your children through my daily interactions in classrooms, on the playground, in the lunch line, or through providing academic support services, I am finding each of their unique gifts and talents. We truly have an amazing group of students here at TRM and they will undoubtedly move mountains as they continue to go forth in life.

My best,
Antonio Kuklok
