A Michael McKendrick Billionaire Novel

By Kiernan Shaye McKay

All women ever want from Michael McKendrick is his money, which is why he's avoided serious relationships like the plague. But when Kasey Morgan, a recent resident of Brooklyn, attends a business dinner with him in Washington D.C., mocks his work ethic, and questions his business tactics, he finds her beautiful and intriguing. She finds him alluring but with a bad reputation for being only interested in shallow relationships. Michael, a billionaire from Manhattan's Upper East Side, cannot resist this opportunity to finally get to know a woman whom he cannot stop thinking about.

The same night Michael meets Kasey, she finds Jeffery Jonsson, M.D., her first love, who has been gone for over two years. Michael witnesses Kasey and Jeffery's reunion while attending the opera. He thought all was lost. Michael sets up a wager to win a date with her. She accepts the challenge. Who wins the wager? If she loses the bet, will she fall in love with Michael? Or will she want to run back to Washington to be with Jeffery?
