La Loica, visual artist from Melipilla, Chile.

She began painting murals in bars since 2007. Where she met the artist José Santos Guerra, who motivated her to continue in the office of the mural. Over the years the street began to intervene and turned art into not only a trade, but also a way of life. She studied at the University of Chile and the UNA (National University of the Arts. Buenos Aires), she is awarded a scholarship by the chrome arts center in Buenos Aires, during 2015 to carry out a modern sculpture clinic with Edgardo Madanes. On her return to Chile, she holds a Diplomat in Art and social construction, tools for citizenship at the USACH (University of Santiago de Chile) and a sculpture painting workshop with the artist Norton Maza, in the workshops and itinerant Santiago Visual IV. School of Arts of the University of Chile.

The materials with which it performs best are water enamel, acrylic, brush, roller and brush. Four years ago he began using aerosols, a technique that opened the possibility of faster and more dynamic work. Over time he has done collective and social work. In addition to participating in various meetings and festivals of urban art throughout Chile and in countries such as Argentina, Peru and Uruguay.
