SMU men's golf played to a sixth-place finish at the NCAA Bryan Regional, bringing its 2021-22 campaign to a close

Noah Goodwin, in the hunt for the single individual qualifier awarded to the low individual on a non-qualifying team at each regional, opened the round tied for fourth place, and was tied for first coming out of the turn with eventual medalist Joe Highsmith of Pepperdine. Goodwin ended the day at two-over and tied for fifth at three-under overall. Goodwin, along with Canon Claycomb (Alabama), Carson Berry (Oregon State), and Aymeric Tassot (TCU), entered a playoff to determine the individual qualifier. Goodwin and Berry advanced to a second hole, where Berry ultimately prevailed. Goodwin's one-under (3.97 avg.) on par fours was the third-best of the 75player field. The senior's 38 pars were the second most of the field, with 39 being the high mark.

Texas Rangers News and Notes

Rangers move into third place in the A.L West at 17-20

BY DIC HUMPHREY DHUMPHREY24@GMAIL.COM MEMBER: USBWA

Week six of the Texas Rangers' season came to an end Thursday night in Houston with 5-1 loss to the Astros. Texas ran into a very hot Astros' pitcher – Framber Valdez, who gave up a run over seven innings. He was followed by a couple of relievers that struck out the final six Ranger batters to secure the win. Glenn Otto, who grew up in the Houston area and played at Rice University, gave up two runs in six innings. The Ranger bullpen however was depleted from having played 12 straight days, allowed Houston to blow the game open late.

Despite Thursday's disappointing loss, it was another good week for the Rangers. They finished 4-3 to improve to 17-20, which is good enough to jump over the Seattle Mariners into third place in the American League West.

Week six did not get off to a good start. The Red Sox limped into Arlington in last place in the American League East. It was unthinkable that they would actually trail the Baltimore Orioles in the standings, but that was true.

Surprisingly then, the Rangers quickly lost the series with almost non-competitive games on Friday and Saturday. The Red Sox blew Friday's game open in the seventh inning to win 8-1 and blew Saturday's game open early to win 11-3.

The Rangers avoided getting swept in a series for the first time this season with a 7-1 win on Sunday. All seven runs were driven in by four Ranger home runs – two each from Kole Calhoun and Adolis Garcia. Calhoun's were solo shots, while Garcia's pair drove in five runs. It was the first time in five years that two Rangers hit multi-home runs in the same game. When it last happened in 2017, Joey Gallo and Robinson Chirinos were the two hitting two home runs each.

Martin Perez again was outstanding. He completed six innings allowing a run on five hits. In his last five starts covering 32-1/3rd innings, he has allowed three earned runs, an ERA of 0.84. He has not allowed a home run so far this season.

On Monday, the Rangers began another schedule trip through the American League West with a three game series against the Los Angeles Angels. Texas swept the Angels to complete a 6-3 home stand. It was the first three game sweep for Texas this year.

The first two games were decided by one explosive inning. On Monday, that explosive inning came in the first. Jon Gray started for Texas allowing the first three batters of the game to score. Texas answered that 3-0 start by batting around in their half of the inning. After scrambling to take a 4-3 lead, Eli White batting for the second time in the inning, made it a big inning with a soft line drive to left field scoring two runs to put the Rangers in front 6-3.

Both teams scored once more in the game making the final score 7-4. Gray completed five innings to win for the first time this season.

On Tuesday, the explosive inning came in the eighth. Mike Trout homered in the seventh inning to put the Angels in front 4-3, with all seven runs having been driven in with home runs. The Rangers loaded the bases in their half of the seventh inning with one out only to watch White and Marcus Semien strike out on six pitches, all sliders, to quell the threat.

Texas finally cracked the scoreboard with seven runs in the eighth inning, the most they have scored in an inning this year. With the Rangers ahead 7-4, White again struck a hard hit ball to left field that scooted past left fielder Brandon Marsh and went all the way to the outfield fence such that the speedy White circled the bases to score. It had all the excitement of an inside the park home run; but alas, it was scored (and correctly so) a single and an error.

The Angels tagged Josh Sborz for a home run in the ninth inning to make the final score 10-5.

On Wednesday, the Rangers completed the sweep with perhaps the most exciting game of the series. Texas took a 4-2 lead to the ninth inning, but Brandon Marsh tagged Matt Bush for a two run home run to send the game into extra innings.

Los Angeles scored the ghost runner in the top of the tenth inning to take a 5-4 lead, but that left just one pitch remaining in the game. On that pitch, Nathaniel Lowe hit a line shot down the right field line for a home run and walk-off 6-5 win, the first of the season for Texas.

Of note in this game was three hits from Jonah Heim off Angels' starter Shohei Ohtani. In the earlier series between these two teams, Heim hit a grand slam home run, the first Ohtani allowed in his career. Heim is 5-5 against Ohtani this season with six RBIs.

This weekend, the series in Houston continues. Game times (all CDT) are 7:10 PM on Friday, 6:10 PM on Saturday and 1:10 PM on Sunday. The announced starting pitchers for Texas are Martin Perez (2-2) on Friday, Jon Gray (1-1) on Saturday and Taylor Hearn (2-2) on Sunday.

The Astros have been going with a six man rotation, but with the injury to Jake Odorizzi earlier this week, they have decided to drop to a five man rotation as they have a number of off days coming including five in June. The announced Astros pitchers this weekend are Christian Javier (2-1) on Friday, Justin Verlander (5-1) on Saturday and Jose Urquidy (3-1) on Sunday.

ROSTER DECISIONS:

- Mitch Garver was activated from the injured list prior to Thursdays' game, after playing two games on minor league rehab assignment. However, he is still not able to throw such that he will only be a designated hitter for some undefined period of time. The Rangers thus kept Sam Huff on the roster, and Nick Solak was optioned to AAA Round Rock to make room for Garver.
- The roster will need to be tweaked again by May 30 when the limit for pitchers drops from 14 to 13. The Rangers are currently carrying 14 pitchers.

NOTABLE:

- * Attendance for the Boston series was 90,393, including Saturday's crowd of 34,462, the fifth largest crowd of the season. Attendance for the Angels' series was 53,203 which brings the Rangers' total home attendance this year to 521,792, a per game average of 23,718. The largest crowd in the Angels' series was 20,766 on Wednesday night, which was Dollar Hot Dog night. Almost 16,000 hot dogs were sold at that game.
- * Mike Trout hit two home runs in the series bringing his total to 43 against Texas. That ties Reggie Jackson for the most home runs by a Ranger opponent. Jackson still holds the record against the franchise, as he hit 12 more home runs against the Washington Senators before the move to Arlington.
- * Adolis Garcia leads the Rangers in hits (12), RBIs (14) and runs scored (8) in day games.
- * In warmups prior to Sunday's game, Taylor Hearn wore a Luka Doncic jersey.

Getting out of the bunkers with ease

TOM WARD TOMPWARD@SBCGLOBAL.NET

This weekend at the PGA Championship in Tulsa, Oklahoma the best players in the world will be battling it out to win the prestigious Wanamaker Trophy.

I've played Southern Hills a number of times over the years and it's a great track and quite challenging. Well positioned bunkers surrounding the course in the landing areas off the tees and around the greens make it imperative to exercise caution getting out or their championship dreams will turn into nightmares quickly. That's why this week's tip is a wonderful opportunity to talk about how to extract your golf ball from the bunker.

The key to being successful out of the sand is to eliminate excessive hand and wrist action. Your hands are the only contact with the club, and this is an area when we get nervous and overuse when attempting to get the ball up and out of the trap.

In the top left photo, the golfer is in the bunker on a slight upslope, close to the lip of the bunker. This drill is to drive the clubface into the base of the lip. This will help firm up the hands at impact resulting in great extension with the arms. Hitting the clubface into the base of the sand trap will do wonders for your swing.

I've drawn two lines down his arms to highlight this move. When doing this properly the clubface is coming into the impact area at a shallower angle of attack with is

I've drawn an arrow down his right leg to showcase the importance of using the lower body properly driving through the ball, not to the ball. Because of this great action on the swing his right shoulder is working down and under staying back. This helps the golfer remain down on his shot instead of coming up and out of pos-

Words can't adequately describe what a few moments of doing this drill will help to accomplish.

Next, in the top right photo I had him hit a shot to the green that was only a few yards away. Utilizing the technique, I had him practice by staying down and visualizing himself driving the clubface towards the lip of the bunker and he made a great swing. His right shoulder (for right-handed golfers) is working under like he's making an uppercut punch.

I've drawn an arrow to pinpoint the importance of keeping your shoulders working under instead of around or across on these types of shots.

His right knee is driving towards the intended target instead of remaining stag-

The bottom two photos are from directly behind the golfer. Checkout how well the golfers knees have remained flexed. When the legs are flexed it translates into tremendous foot action whereby your lower body is pulling your upper body back into the impact area.

His head has remained down well past impact in all the photos which is a must.

The bottom left photo is a shot where he was trying to hit a longer bunker shot, around 100 yards. The bottom right photo is shot where he is attempting to hit his ball only about 10 yards. Compare both photos and look at the clubfaces. In the bottom left longer shot he released his arms and the clubface has turned over naturally. The toe of his club is facing upwards which I've circled. In the bottom right photo the golfer's clubface is slightly open at impact. This motion will put more spin on the ball and help the ball stop on the green quicker like a butterfly with sore

Take a closer look at the amount of sand taken in both photos. Less sand for longer shots and more sand for shorter

So whether you're in a fairway bunker or greenside bunker it's essential that you stay down on your shot.

PGA Championship May 19 - May 22, 2022 Southern Hills Country Club Tulsa, Oklahoma Purse - $12,000,000 Winners share: $2,200,000 Defending Champ - Phil Mickelson

FedExCup leader and world No.1 Scottie Scheffler leads the field as he looks for his second major championship victory of the season.

FIELD NOTES: Tiger Woods is set to return to action. Just 14 months after a horrific car accident Woods teed it up at the Masters in April and made the cut. The PGA Championship will mark Woods' second start of the season. Woods has won the Wanamaker Trophy four times (including the last time the PGA was hosted at Southern Hills) and has finished runner-up three times – as recently as 2018... FedExCup leader Scottie Scheffler will look to win his second major championship of the year. Scheffler, who won the Masters by three shots, has won four times on TOUR already this season. He also has won a Big 12 Conference title at Southern Hills while playing for the University of Texas... Brooks Koepka, a two-time PGA Champion, withdrew from last week's AT&T Byron Nelson but is set to compete at Southern Hills. Koepka has never missed the cut at the PGA in nine starts... Rory McIlroy is looking to keep some major momentum going at Southern Hills. McIlroy shot an 8-under 64 in the final round of the Masters - tied for the lowest final-round score in tournament history... The reigning FedExCup champion, Patrick Cantlay, is looking to win his maiden major championship... Fifteen PGA Champions are teeing it up... Bryson DeChambeau is set to return to action. He missed the cut at the Masters in his last start on TOUR as he recovers from injury.. ... Twenty PGA of America club pros earned their way into the event via qualifiers... Talor Gooch, who won his first PGA TOUR title at this season's RSM Classic, is teeing it up in his own backyard. Gooch is from Midwest City, Oklahoma less than 90 minutes from Tulsa. Other Oklahoma State alums in the field include Viktor Hovland and Rickie Fowler. Abraham Ancer is representing the University of Oklahoma in the field. FEDEXCUP: Winner receives 600 FedExCup points.

COURSE: Southern Hills Country Club, par 70, 7,556 yards. Southern Hills, an established major championship venue, was not the original host club of the 2022 PGA Championship but was more than ready to welcome some of the world's best when it was called upon. The redesigned Southern Hills hosted last year's Kitchen-Aid Senior PGA Championship (won by Alex Cejka who finished at 8 under). Originally a Perry Maxwell layout that opened in the late 1930s, the course was re-worked by Gil Hanse and Jim Wagner in 2018 and re-opened in 2019. They removed trees, added bunkers, restored fairway widths, and removed rough near the edges of greens. There will be only two par-5s in use for the PGA Championship, both measuring more than 630 yards. The course is set to play more than 300 yards longer than it did in 2007. All seven of the previous men's major championships hosted at Southern Hills all came in the serious heat of July or August (in 2007 the temperature reached triple digits every day) but that's not set to be a factor this year with the PGA taking place in May.

Tiger Woods and Raymond Floyd have the Southern Hills Country Club course record. Floyd shot 63 at the 1982 PGA, while Woods matched the score in 2007. STORYLINES: Phil Mickelson will not defend his title, the PGA of America announced. Mickelson, who has won 45 times on TOUR and has four PGA TOUR Champions victories, has not played competitively since stepping away from the game in late February. He is the third PGA Champion not to defend his title in the last 75 years (Tiger Woods, 2008 and Ben Hogan, 1949)... Will this year's PGA Championship be won by someone looking for their second major title like Scheffler (two top-10s in a row at the PGA), Jon Rahm, or Justin Thomas (on the five-year anniversary of his first major win)? Or will one of the game's top golfers break through for his first like Cantlay, Viktor Hovland, or Xander Schauffele?... RBC Heritage winner Jordan Spieth is again looking to capture the career Grand Slam. He is coming off a runner-up finish at his hometown AT&T Byron Nelson... Collin Morikawa has played only two PGA Championships in his young career, but so far, so good. He won his debut and finished T8 at Kiawah Island... McIlroy is looking to break a major championship drought that spans eight years. He's a two-time winner of the Wanamaker Trophy... Woods, Adam Scott, and Justin Rose are the trio of golfers who finished inside the top 15 at Southern Hills in 2007 who are returning in 2022... Americans have won the last six PGA Championships. 72-HOLE RECORD: 264, Brooks Koepka (2018 at Bellerive CC) 18-HOLE RECORD: 63, Bruce Crampton (2nd round, 1975 at Firestone

LAST TIME: Phil Mickelson became the oldest major winner in TOUR history as well as becoming the first major champion after age 50 when he lifted the Wanamaker Trophy at Kiawah Island. His 45th TOUR title moved him to T8 on the all-time TOUR wins list, and he became just the fourth player to win TOUR events in four different decades. Mickelson came into the 2021 PGA Championship having not notched a top-10 result in 16 TOUR starts and not contending in a major in about four years. Mickelson, who was paired with two-time PGA Championship winner Brooks Koepka for the final round, started with a struggle. He three-putted for bogey on the first hole while Koepka birdied, giving Koepka a one-shot lead. But Koepka made double bogey on No.2 and Mickelson birdied - jumping back ahead again. On the long par-3 fifth, Koepka landed safely on the green while Mickelson landed in a waste bunker. But Mickelson's short-game magic returned again - as it so often does and he pitched in for a birdie. Despite shooting a 1-over 73 in his final round, Mickelson won by two shots and claimed his sixth major title. Koepka and Louis Oosthuzien finished second at 4 under, while Shane Lowry, Harry Higgs, Paul Casey, and 49-year-old Padraig Harrington finished T4.

Nine Things to know: Southern Hills C.C

Club will host the 104th PGA Championship, (Keyur Khamar/PGA TOUR)

By Jim McCabe PGATOUR.COM

His invincibility was shattered there with a tinge of shock in 2001.

His aura was rekindled there with pulsating precision in 2007.

The man: Tiger Woods. The place: Southern Hills Country Club in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Anticipation is ripe for a return to Southern Hills and the 104th PGA Championship. Gil Hanse has restored this Perry Maxwell gem, and now Woods at 46 returns to the site of disappointment (2001 U.S. Open) and triumph ('07 PGA Championship) in the prime of his career.

Here are Nine Things to Know about Southern Hills:

1. Woods has looked both mortal and unbeatable

At the 2001 U.S. Open, Woods was 26 and the winner of four consecutive major championships.

That run ended at Southern Hills. He double-bogeyed his ninth and what turned out to be his final hole Thursday, thanks to torrential rain. Although he had not played a PGA TOUR event in an over-par score for 72 holes since July of 1999, he was 3-over for nine holes.

"If he wins this time," one adversary quipped, "he'll be my idol."

It didn't get much better. A whisper of a rally (69-69) left Woods at 3 over and T12. He accepted defeat, seemingly convinced he would do better should he get another chance at Southern Hills.

Six years later, that chance arrived at the 2007 PGA Championship, where Woods opened with a modest 1-over 71. He was now 12 over in nine competitive rounds at Southern Hills, dating back to the 1996 TOUR Championship, but a second-round 63 changed everything. It could have been better, but his 18-foot birdie putt at the last ringed the cup. Woods called the round a "62 1/2."

His two-stroke lead might as well have been a 22-stroke lead. Ernie Els, who had watched his rival bounce back from the '01 U.S. Open by winning six of the next 25 majors, said he would bet his house on another Woods victory at this PGA. Sure enough, Woods shot 69-69 (the same weekend scores he'd shot in '01) for an 8-under 272 to beat Woody Austin by two. Woods had hit 37 of 56 fairways, and 50 greens, and one-putted 25 times.

"It's pretty much what he's been doing since 1997," Trevor Immelman said with a sigh.

Immelman would win the next major, the 2008 Masters, eight months later. Runner-up: Woods.

2. Perry Maxwell put his stamp on it

Perry Maxwell started as a bank vice president who decided he could design a golf course on his dairy farm. He became the awe-inspiring, incredibly prolific "Father of Oklahoma Golf."

Maxwell did the bulk of his work in that state – by the time he got to Southern Hills in 1935-36, during the Great Depression, he had already designed more than 40 golf courses – but, oh, how he shared his work beyond the borders of Oklahoma. Golf writer Mac Bentley once said of Maxwell that "his genius came from recognizing Mother Nature's design."

Others agreed. Dr. Alister MacKenzie partnered with Maxwell to create Crystal Downs in Michigan, Melrose CC in Philadelphia, Oklahoma City Golf & CC, and Augusta National.

Maxwell also helped renovate Pine Valley, Merion and the National Golf Links of America. He joined Marvin Leonard to build Colonial in Fort Worth, Texas; Maxwell and his son, J. Press Maxwell, gave life to Prairie Dunes in Kansas; and premier courses on the campuses of Oklahoma, Ohio State, Michigan, and Iowa State have Maxwell's fingerprints all of them

Maxwell cited a trip to Scotland after his first wife, Ray, died in 1919 of appendicitis, as having inspired his design philosophies. He used the topography, embracing contours in fairways, undulated greens, and swells around and on the greens, so-called "Maxwell rolls."

When he took on Southern Hills, workers stood in line to earn 25 cents an hour, and the job was completed for $100,000. Every hole had twists and bends, bunkers were deep and well placed in prime spots where doglegs began, and a stream snaked through the property. But the most dynamic aspect to Southern Hills were the greens, and Gil Hanse, trusted to the restoration project in 2018, some 66 years after Maxwell's death, said that hasn't changed.

3. Gil Hanse restored the luster

When they took on the task of restoring Southern Hills in 2018, Gil Hanse, Jim Wagner and crew had a skeptic eying them from afar: Legendary Oklahoma head pro Jerry Cozby, whose workplace for 41 years had been another Perry Maxwell gem, Hillcrest CC, 45 miles away.

Cozby had his doubts until his oldest son, Cary Cozby, the Director of Golf at Southern Hills, invited him out to see the restoration work being completed. Jerry Cozby loved it.

"This guy (Hanse) gets it," Jerry Cozby said to his son.

Hanse said he didn't really get the whole topography thing that Maxwell had going for him until he opened the place up. Too many trees had thickened, too much grass hid the stream, too many fairways had become narrow. Once Hanse's crew got to trimming back trees and giving more prominence to the stream, they focused on shorter grass and sharper edges along the greens and return the slope and contours to the fairways.

"The classic character of Southern Hills was preserved," Jerry Cozby told reporters.

4. Three holes stand above the rest

Give him a chair and time and Gil Hanse knows where he's headed. "No. 10 is a cool hole. It's probably where I'd camp out," he told Andy Johnson on The Fried Egg podcast.

It's 441 yards but will play shorter thanks to a downhill tee shot. A bold tee shot will leave only a short iron into the severely sloped green, but players who get too aggressive off the tee will find the diabolical Southern Hills stream that cuts across the fairway.

Ben Hogan sang the praises of the picturesque par-4 12th, Southern Hills' signature hole. A 456-yard dogleg left, its fairway slopes right-to-left, pushing balls toward the stream that runs all the way to the green, which is also protected by three daunting bunkers.

Give a guy a one-shot lead in a major on Sunday and the choice of which 18th hole he'd play to protect it, chances are no one would pick Southern Hills' par-4 18th.

"Killer finish," said Hanse. "Quintessential finishing hole."

In seven men's majors here, only two winners have managed to par the closing hole – Tommy Bolt at the 1958 U.S. Open and Tiger Woods at the 2007 PGA. The 18th will play up to 491 yards, with the second shot uphill to a green that slopes treacherously from back to front. Put it on the wrong spot on the green and good luck two-putting.

In the fourth round of the 2001 U.S. Open, the top three finishers – Retief Goosen, Mark Brooks, and Stewart Cink – all three-putted 18 with victory in their grasp.

5. Hubert Green played under a death threat

Hubert Green was leading the 1977 U.S. Open at Southern Hills by one stroke with four holes remaining when he pulled his tee shot left of the 15th fairway. He tried his best to keep his distance from his caddie, Shayne Grier. The caddie knew why.

Told of a death threat on his life called into the Oklahoma City FBI – an anonymous woman said gunmen would shoot Green at the 15th hole – Green had been given options by USGA President Sandy Tatum and police officers. Green said there was only one option. He'd play on.

In an interview with the Boston Globe in 2007, Grier said Green was keeping his distance so if there was a shooting, the player would be the only target. The gregarious Grier, still a volunteer official with Mass Golf, said he caught up with Green on the 15th and said, "Let's give them two targets to shoot at." The levity might have helped. Green recovered from the left rough and made par at 15, then birdied 16 to increase his lead to two. He negotiated a par at 17 and could afford the safe bogey at 18 to win by one over Lou Graham.

6. Frontrunners have held their position

Of the seven men's majors here – three U.S. Opens, four PGAs – the winner has had at least a share of the lead in each round on five occasions. The exceptions: Dave Stockton at the 1970 PGA opened with 70 and was T-5, two behind Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller; and in 2007, Woods had a first-round 71 and was T-23, six behind unheralded Englishman Graeme Storm.

With rare collapses by Nicklaus (76) and Miller (77), Stockton's second-round 70 got him into a share of first after Round 2, and he led the rest of the way. Woods' second-round "62-and-a-half" (detailed above) put him in the 36-hole lead and he cruised from there.

Beyond Stockton's PGA win in '70 and Woods' PGA triumph in '07, these SHCC major winners found the top spot to be quite comfortable start to finish:

- * Tommy Bolt at the 1958 U.S. Open, the year he birdied the first and reportedly said, "Who's going to finish second?"
- * Green at the 1977 U.S. Open when he was part of a seven-way tie for first after Round 1, then was all alone the rest of the way.
- * Raymond Floyd, owner of arguably the greatest stare in golf history, led by three after opening with 63 and pretty much had it in his pocket all the way at the 1982 PGA.
- * Nick Price was tied with Colin Montgomerie after an opening-round 67, but followed it up with a 65 to seize command and eventually won by six at the 1994 PGA.
- * Retief Goosen opened with 66 for the solo lead, then shared it after the second, third and fourth rounds he three-putted from 12 feet at the last Sunday but won a playoff.

Of the seven SHCC winners above, only Stockton is not in the World Golf Hall of Fame.

7. The Babe was in all her glory

When golf returned from the World War

II break in 1946, Tusla fans got a treat as the U.S. Women's Amateur came to Southern Hills. So did "Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Denver, Colo., nonpareil of America's women athletes," as the AP called her.

You could quibble with the reporter not using her real name, Mildred, but not with the "nonpareil" description. Then 35, The Babe was still a national hero for those two golds and one silver she won in track and field at the 1932 Los Angeles Summer Olympics.

At Southern Hills, her score of 156 in stroke play was four off the medalist's score, but in five matches Didrikson steamrolled Peggy Kirk (4 and 3), Betty Rucker (4 and 3), Maureen Orcutt (5 and 4), Helen Siegel (3 and 2), and Clara Sherman (11 and 9 in the final) without ever once trailing. It remains the third-largest margin of victory in a U.S. Women's Amateur final.

It was win No. 5 on a 1946-47 stretch that saw The Babe win 17 consecutive tournaments.

8. The Cozby name is big

If there is a little extra heat at Southern Hills next week, it might be Jerry Cozby's smile beaming down. For 41 years he was the head pro at Hillcrest CC in Bartlesville, approximately 45 miles north of Tulsa. Beyond morphing into the dean of Oklahoma club professionals, Cozby – who died in 2020 at 79 – and his wife, Karole, raised three boys who are passionate about golf, played at Oklahoma University, and are fully involved in the game.

Chance, the youngest, is Executive Director of the Thunderbirds, host organization to the WM Phoenix Open on the PGA TOUR. Craig, the middle son, is a sales rep for PING in Missouri. And the oldest, Cary, has been at Southern Hills since 1995, going from head professional to Director of Golf. (Jerry Cozby, in 1985, and Cary, in 2016, are the only father-son winners of the PGA Professional of the Year.) Cary gained some fame a few weeks ago when he caddied for Tiger Woods in the latter's pre-PGA reconnaissance round.

9. Bill Coore and Ben Crenshaw built a nine-hole course

Perry Maxwell built the original tournament course that was later renovated by Gil Hanse.

Bill Coore and Ben Crenshaw built a nine-hole course there in 1990.

How's that for a world-class lineup? Land for the nine-hole course had been there since a fire destroyed the club's horse stables in 1976. With the skeet range and polo field not drawing much interest, the club opted to double down on golf. Leaning on Coore and Crenshaw's vision, the club built a nine-hole gem with two par 3s, two par 5s, four par 4s – and a whole lot of membership love for these 3,094 yards (3,301 from the tips) where the rating is 71.8 and the slope 126.

Southern Hills Country Club hole by hole

By pgatour.com

HOLE #1 PAR 4, 464 Yards

An inspiring tee shot starts from an elevated tee to a slight dogleg left with the ideal landing area being in the middle to left side of the fairway, avoiding the two traps that hug the left side and rough. This position will allow an open second shot with a medium to long iron to a green which slopes from front to back and is guarded by three bunkers. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #2 PAR 4, 486 Yards

This is perhaps the most demanding driving hole on the golf course with a 225-yard carry over the bunkers and a winding creek that turns and parallels the fairway. A long-iron second shot is required to reach this well-bunkered green. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #3 PAR 4, 451 Yards

A sharp dogleg left requires a long tee shot to the right-center of the fairway. Bunkering and pin positions will demand skillful short-iron second shots on this very deceiving hole. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #4 PAR 4, 372 Yards

This picturesque short par 4 features a rolling fairway leading to a heavily bunkered, elevated green. The absence of level lies makes for difficult second shots. The severe back-to-front sloping green will prevent many aggressive putts. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #5 PAR 5, 655 Yards

This par 5 doglegs slightly to the left. It is the longest and one of the toughest holes on the course. Due to the fairway bunkers, a narrow landing area on the tee shot will cause problems; the hole does present a birdie opportunity to the straight hitters. There are plenty of trees and heavy rough awaiting the errant shot. Many players will play an iron second shot to avoid trouble both left and right and then a short-iron third to the well-bunkered undulating green. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #6 PAR 3, 200 Yards

Although this is a short par 3, shifting winds create uncertainty with club selection. A creek on the left side of the green will penalize hooked tee shots and out-ofbounds is close behind the green. The fast green is also heavily bunkered in front. The ideal tee shot is short of the pin for an uphill putt. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #7 PAR 4, 384 Yards

A blind tee shot to the crest of a hill reveals a narrow, beautifully situated green bunkered front and left. A steep bank and winding creek guard the right, posing a difficult uphill pitch from tough conditions. Most players will drive to the top of the hill in the left center of the fairway and use a mid to long iron second shot to green. Certain pin positions will make this hole very difficult. (Source: Southern Hills C.C)

HOLE #8 PAR 3, 245 Yards

This is a very demanding par 3 with some tough pin placements. Long irons or possibly a fairway wood will be used here, but it is better to be short than over the embankment at the back and into the creek. Very few birdies and many bogeys will be made on this hole. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #9 PAR 4, 374 Yards

A dogleg right with two fairway bunkers guarding the corner requires a well-positioned tee shot. The prevailing wind and an elevated green make this hole play longer than its yardage. A severe slope from the back to the front of the green makes this one of the most difficult greens on which to putt. (Source: Southern Hills C.C)

Hole #9 is a 457 Yard par 4. The big decision you have to make is with your layup

HOLE #10 PAR 4, 366 Yards

This hole normally plays downwind. Trouble on the right of this dogleg right will require a tee shot to the left side of the fairway. Most players will use a 3-wood or long-iron from the tee. The short approach shot to the elevated two-level green must be kept below the hole to have a reasonable birdie chance on one of the trickier greens on the course. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #11 PAR 3, 173 Yards

The shortest hole on the course requires a pin-point accuracy because the small green is surrounded by four bunkers. The combination of an elevated tee and the prevailing right-to-left wind will test players' skills. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #12 PAR 4, 458 Yards

Singled out by Ben Hogan and Arnold Palmer as one of America's greatest par 4 holes, this slight dogleg left calls for a precise long drive to a blind landing area to take full advantage of the right-to-left slope of the fairway. The second shot, a long- to middle-iron, must be equally adroit to carry water and bunkers to the well-bunkered green. Bogeys and worse will abound on this hole. (Source: Southern Hills C.C)

HOLE #13 PAR 5, 537 Yards

The last good birdie opportunity on the course will provide plenty of excitement. A big drive on the slight dogleg left hole will leave an opportunity to reach the green in two, but not without risk. To reach the green in two the player faces a blind shot to a small green well protected by sand and water. With a tough finish ahead, the opportunity to make eagle or birdie might be well worth the risk, although laying up in front of the two ponds will still provide a good chance for a birdie. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #14 PAR 3, 223 Yards

A picturesque par 3 that has length, six bunkers and out-of-bounds on the left. It will require a fairway wood or long iron that is firmly struck to negate the prevailing right-to-left wind. A three here will be well earned. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #15 PAR 4, 413 Yards

A dogleg left with a bunker guarding the corner requires a well-positioned drive to a very narrow landing area. The second shot, a medium- to short-iron, must avoid bunkers surrounding the green. The undulating surface of the putting green may result in some three putts. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #16 PAR 4. 560 Yards

The final par 5 on the course requires both length and accuracy off the tee. The drive must carry a gentle slope 245 yards off the tee to provide a good view of the green. A long- to middle-iron will be necessary to reach the small, well-bunkered green. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #17 PAR 4, 358 Yards

The course's shortest par 4, this dogleg right is a real teaser. A pushed tee shot into the trees (or the creek) will mean real trouble. Most players will endeavor to place the tee shot on the left side of the fairway with a wood or long-iron. An accurate short-iron second shot is needed to reach the shallow, two-level, elevated green with some mean pin positions. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

HOLE #18 PAR 4, 465 Yards

A truly great finishing hole, this dogleg right requires a drive to a plateau on the left side of the fairway 200 yards from the elevated green. A long-iron or fairwaywood second shot must carry to the green. The green severely slopes from back to front and may result in some three putts with the masses looking on. It is the most difficult par to card on the golf course. (Source: Southern Hills Country Club)

Big weekend at Texas Motor Speedway

CAR All-Star Race returns to Texas Motor Speedway this weekend for the second consecutive year

'Fast five' storylines to follw at the 2022 NASCAR All-Star Race

Hendrick Motorsports chasing its third win in a row, Ross Chastain pacing the first-time all stars and William Byron-Joey Logano spat among the storylines heading into Sunday's NASCAR All-Star Race.

WHAT: 38th annual NASCAR All-Star

WHERE: Texas Motor Speedway, a 1.5mile oval located in Fort Worth, Texas. WHEN: Sunday, 7 p.m. CT.

TV AND RADIO: TV: FS1 | Radio: MRN,

RACE LENGTH: 125 laps | 187.5 miles. The 38th edition of the NASCAR All-Star Race returns to Texas Motor Speedway for the second consecutive year Sunday evening and storylines abound on who could have the edge to snatch the $1 million winner-take-all payday.

Can Hendrick Motorsports win a third consecutive NASCAR All-Star Race? Will Trackhouse Racing's Ross Chastain continue to impress in his breakout season? Does William Byron offer a million reasons for a payback to Joey Logano in the all-star format? Those questions and more will be answered when the NASCAR All-Star Race begins at 7 p.m. CT (TV: FS1, Radio: PRN, SiriusXM Radio).

The NASCAR All-Star Race action begins Saturday with two practices followed by a pair of qualifying sessions. The Cup Series drivers who have not qualified for the NASCAR All-Star Race will run in The Open practice from 6-6:15 p.m. and then take part in single-lap qualifying beginning at 6:40 p.m. The all-star drivers will practice from 6:20-6:35 p.m. and then qualify beginning at 7:20 p.m. That enhanced format will be three-lap qualifying with a mandatory pit

The Open will precede the NASCAR All-Star Race on Sunday beginning at 5 p.m. with the three stage winners earning berths in the all-star field. A fourth driver will be added to the field via fan vote.

Sunday's NASCAR All-Star Race has attracted fans from 45 states as well as Canada, England, Australia and New

Let's take a look at the "Fast Five" NASCAR All-Star Race storylines:

1. There are two new faces, including a rookie, in the NASCAR All-Star Race field as a result of winning their first career Cup races earlier the season.

Those wins, which came along with an automatic berth in the all-star event, occurred in the first four races of the NASCAR Cup Series season and each was significant in

Team Penske rookie Austin Cindric won the season-opening Daytona 500 to gain his inaugural berth in the all-star race. Stewart-Haas Racing driver Chase Briscoe became the 200th different driver to win a Cup race when he was victorious at Phoenix to secure his spot in the all-star field.

2. Hendrick Motorsports owns a record 10 NASCAR All-Star Race victories, including the last two, and arrives at Texas Motor Speedway with some early-season momentum.

The Chevy-powered organization has won five of the first 12 races and all four drivers -Kyle Larson, Chase Elliott (right), William Byron and Alex Bowman - have at least one win. Byron leads the way with a pair.

Hendrick Motorsports also swept Texas Motor Speedway last year with Larson not only winning the NASCAR All-Star Race but also the AutoTrader EchoPark Automotive 500 NASCAR Playoff race in the fall. New car, same results?

3. Should Hendrick Motorsports win another NASCAR All-Star title, the historical odds are long that it will come from Larson, the defending all-star winner and reigning NASCAR Cup Series champion.

In the 37-year-history of the event, only two drivers have won the all-star race in consecutive years and none after 2013. Dayey Allison was the first to accomplish the feat in 1991 and '92 and Jimmie Johnson matched it in 2012 and '13.

Should Larson (left) become the third driver to repeat, he would tie Dale Earnhardt and Jeff Gordon for second on the all-time victories. His other all-star win came in 2019 with Chip Ganassi Racing. Johnson holds the all-star record with four

4. Three drivers, including a rookie, will be making their NASCAR All-Star Race debuts as a result of winning their first career Cup races earlier the season.

Those wins, which came along with an automatic berth in the all-star event, occurred in the first six races of the NASCAR Cup Series season and each was significant in Team Penske rookie Austin Cindric (right) won the season-opening Daytona 500 to gain his berth in the all-star race. Stewart-Haas Racing driver Chase Briscoe became the 200th different driver to win a Cup race when he was victorious at Phoenix. Chastain got the first of his two wins at Circuit of The Americas, which was the inaugural Cup victory for the Trackhouse Racing organization. 5. Will the war of words possibly escalate between Byron and Team Penske's Joey Logano (left) with no points on the line and a chance at a $1 million payday?

Byron took offense to how Logano forcible moved him out of the way when leading on the white-flag lap at Darlington. Logano's bump-and-run gave him the victory and the contact sent Byron spiraling to a 13th-place finish.

"He's just an idiot," Byron said in the postrace interview. "He does this stuff all the Logano, who broke a 40-race winless drought, made it clear that it was retribution for an earlier move that Byron put on him.

"You're not going to put me in the wall and not get anything back," Logano said. "That's how that works."

Stay tuned. Fans may not have to wait until postrace to see fireworks.

Edward Waters (NAIA) and Kentucky State (NCAA DII) played for the title and were joined in the field by Florida Memorial, Talladega College, Rust College, defending champion Bluefield State, Miles College, and Albany State.
