RECENT PROJECTS

- National Institutes of Health | Bethesda/Rockville, MD
- U.S. Department of Health and Human Services | Washington, D.C.

Conducted on-site and remote acquisition and procurement management reviews, assessing the quality of the acquisitions executed and administered by the various Offices of Acquisition. Tasks included the review of over 1,000 government-selected acquisition files, over 100 internal controls, and each assigned office's workforce development. Analysts also assessed the information management and stewardship practices and policies of government client-owned or -operated systems and modules. Finance and budget management practices were also reviewed, and key members of management, staff, vendors, and program officials were interviewed to further identify areas of risk. Analysts developed corrective action plans to assist with controlling and mitigating risks identified during the assessment. Formal findings and recommendations were provided in a Report of Findings and shared with executive management and staff. NSI's President or other senior management personally acted as Program or Project Manager, ensuring that services were timely provided and within budget.
