"Love at youth has its consequences"

INT. HUFF HOME - MORNING

MILES

I just think we need to talk. We need to stop this silent shit and speak to one another.

CASSIE

We do talk, but every single time talk turns into argument.

MILES

It turns into an argument because the little conversation that you do provide is filled with deflection.

CASSIE

Its no deflection, but I honestly don't have the heart to engage in a heated conversation with you right now.

MILES

Then when? Our marriage has been going down the tube for weeks. When are you going to have the heart to face your infidelity?

CASSIE

See that is the reason I refuse to engage with you. Because I know you are going to try and pin all of our marriage problems on me.

MILES

I've never said 'all'. But you stepping outside of our marriage is certainly a big part.

CASSIE

Our marriage was on a course of crash and burn long before I met Timothy.

MILES

Oh is that so? Well I don't see it that way. Lets examine it. Before Timothy all I did was leave the house, go to work and bring you a hefty paycheck to put in the bank. Where was my part in these marriage problems that you claim occurred prior to your affair?

CASSIE

Like you said...'all you did'. You barely gave me any attention.

MILES

I was working...like every other responsible man in the western hemisphere and beyond. I was providing us with a foundation for our future. How in the hell does that translate to me being a part of our marriage before Timothy?
