Transition et animation

- Transition : se fait entre deux diapositives.
- Animation : se fait entre deux éléments d'une diapositive.

Pour créer une transition (à noter que la première diapositive n'exige pas de transition) :

1. Cliquer sur « Transitions ».

2. Cliquer sur « Autres styles ».

The screenshot shows the Microsoft PowerPoint interface. The 'Transitions' ribbon is active, and the 'Autres styles' dropdown menu is open, with a red circle highlighting the 'Autres styles' option. The main slide area is currently a solid red rectangle. The left-hand pane shows a slide thumbnail grid with three slides: the first is yellow with cartoon characters, the second is blue with a cartoon animal, and the third is red. The status bar at the bottom indicates 'Diapositive 3 sur 3' and 'Français (Canada)'.

3. Choisir le modèle de transition voulu.

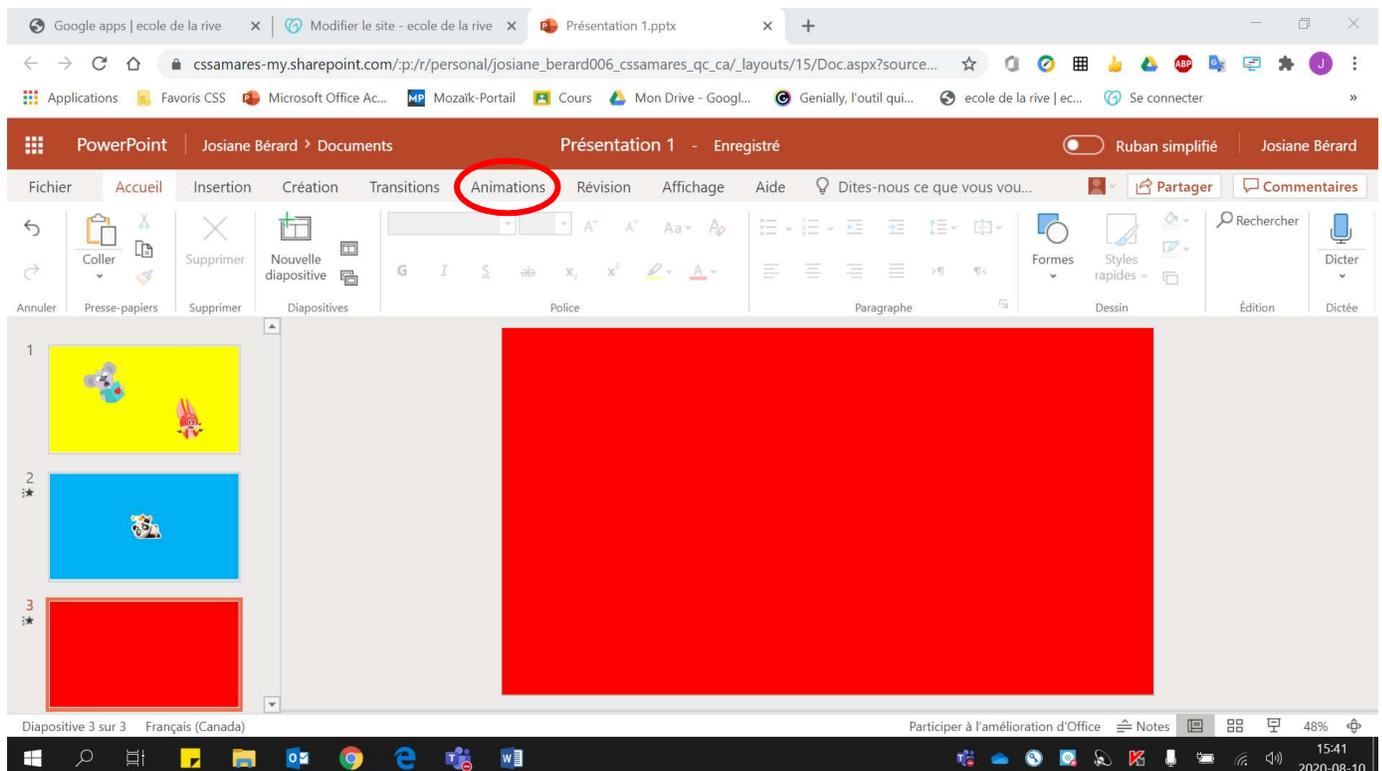

The screenshot shows the 'Transitions' task pane in Microsoft PowerPoint. The 'Avion' transition model is selected and highlighted with a red circle. The task pane is divided into two sections: 'Discret' and 'Captivant'. The 'Avion' model is located in the 'Captivant' section. The main slide area is still a solid red rectangle. The status bar at the bottom indicates 'Diapositive 3 sur 3' and 'Français (Canada)'.

4. Si le décal de transition entre les deux diapositives est trop long ou trop rapide, modifier la durée.

Pour créer une animation :

1. Cliquer sur « Animations ».

2. Sélectionner l'élément à animer.

The screenshot shows the PowerPoint interface with the 'Animations' tab selected. The 'Entrée brusque' (Entrée br...) animation style is highlighted with a red circle. The main slide area shows a yellow background with a koala character and a rabbit character. A red circle highlights the koala, which is also enclosed in a white selection box. The 'Concepteur' pane on the right displays two alternative layout suggestions for the slide content. The taskbar at the bottom shows the system clock at 15:55 on 2020-08-10.

3. Cliquer sur « Autres styles ».
