

The Wondrous Story of Bobby and Billy

Ouch it seems that I have crash-landed in a different universe! It looks like it's raining with water instead of grass. There is a boy standing right in front of me "Who are you? Or better question, what are you?" the boy asked.

"I am alien 1,0234 but, in your language, I believe I am called Bobby," said Bobby. The boy said his name was Billy.

Billy said, "come to my house if you say you went through a dimensional portal." After we got to Billy's house, we saw a furry assassin meowing at Billy. I said, "Billy take cover!!" but Billy said it was his pet cat. I replied, "A what now?"

Billy said, "You keep it as an animal."

I said "OK, I guess. Then what's that scraplet?"

Billy replied, "It's a car."

I said, "What people use to run over with?"

"Let's go inside," said Billy. We opened the door and the first thing I saw was a glazing rectangle. I said, "We're under attack by lasers!!! I don't want to be downstairs!" and I rapidly went upstairs and saw a chair that didn't smell nice, so I shut the door. Then Billy came up and I said, "Where on Earth have you been?"

Billy replied, "Watching the so-called lasers of yours."

I said, "Billy have you lost your mind! It will make your eyes go square! Anyway, let's go outside and dodge the rectangle."

We finally made it outside and right next to me was a snake squirting water. I screamed and ran for dear life. Billy said it was a hose but all I did was run like a headless chicken. Then I noticed a gigantic pair of scissors next to me and then felt an ooze in the grass. I thought the snake had dropped venom in the grass. Then I saw two more scraplets, one in the air and the other in the grass. One was destroying all the grass.

Now to conclude, Earth is exciting, scary and smelly so now I shall stay here.
