

The Desert

The desert is a menacing, vast, barren wasteland. The never-ending heat and sand are like a goblin full of trepidation. Malicious, monotonous heaps of fiery red sand dunes create a majestic, but evil, look. This murderous desert is not only uninhabitable, it is bone dry. Speckles of sand are floating around the desert like a flock of birds. The rare drop of water gets sucked up as quick as a flash before any human inhabitants can even touch it. This desert is bleak.

The rattling of the big, long carpet-patterned snake can be heard hissing from a mile away. The intense heat radiates around the desert like a long never ending 'BEEP.' Sometimes the occasional water dripping could be heard.

The thick, smoky heat was so hot that you could smell the golden sand which smelled like a rotten banana swimming all around your nose. You could taste the fresh juicy pizza which was all a hallucination. If you go there you will feel like a needle in a haystack. You will also feel desolated.

The desert is only for the brave.....

