OFFICE: WOODBRIDGE AVE. AND BOULEVARD BOROUGHS OF ROOSEVELT.

The borough of Roosevelt is entering upon a new era of political history. The past is dark and discouraging but the future is filled with promise. For many years past the borough has been the prey of a degraded political ring whose methods and motives have been borrowed from Tammany Hall. Under the Tammany system representative government is impossible. The people have no more say in the government of the borough than if it were ruled by an absolute monarch. As everybody knows Tammany always has money and with a particular stamp of voters "money talks" especially near election time. Politics is always a business with Tammany and the money spent to keep the gang in office is considered as capital invested. Tammany always pays generous dividends and this is only one of the reasons why they are hard to down. For a concrete example of how Tammany plays politics you can take the following incident: The names presented as candidates for the nomination for council and mayor were filed Monday evening and the meeting to name those candidates did not take place until Tuesday evening. Now, the question is how were those men selected and who did the selecting? The so called democratic party had no more to say with it than they have to do with what is going on in the moon. Those men were chosen by the machine and the party must do as the machine dictates, otherwise there would be no money to run the campaign. If the choice was left to the party they might put somebody forward who would not "go along" with the machine and if there is any one thing above another that Tammany dreads it is the fellow who refuses to "go along." Fortunately the people are beginning to tire of this sort of rule. Many independent democrats are disgusted with the high-handed methods of the gang and the coming election bids fair to be at least a temporary wipe-out for the present regime. The Democratic Party is weak through apathy and revolt and besides it staggers under the handicap of a weak ticket. The Republican party, on the other hand, is backed by a strong moral sentiment and the ticket is undoubtedly the best that has ever been presented to the borough. We predict therefore that in the coming election party lines will be eliminated and that the election will turn largely on the fitness of the candidates. The nomination of Dr. J. J. Reason for Mayor was a particularly happy move for the Republican Party. As a man Dr. Reason holds the respect and esteem of the people generally. His work has brought him into close contact with all classes and nationalities and we doubt whether there is any other man who knows more of the needs of the Borough than he does. By electing Dr. Reason to the office of Mayor the Borough would be assured of a fearless and efficient administration. He is a man of education, therefore he could write his own speeches and deliver them too. It is well known throughout the Borough that for the past three years Dr. Reason has been the "insurgent" of the Borough Council and whatever has been done in the way of reform is due largely to his efforts. He is not the stamp of man that you can lead by the nose. He is independent, and if elected will be a real Mayor.

Had All His Nerve With Him.
In a downtown stand up lunch place, where the chief source of the waiters' revenue is in the form of tips and where the patrons are supposed to step lively so that those who wait may be accommodated, a man has been coming of late who brings a newspaper with him and reads it leisurely, sometimes for half an hour, while he takes his modest luncheon. The waiter at whose station he planted himself one day recently was prepared for the emergency, and when the man had finished reading his paper the servant handed him two others with the remark: "Maybe you'd like to see these?" The other waiters, knowing of the plot, looked to see the man wilt, but were disappointed. He took the papers with thanks, continued reading, and finally, when he asked for his check, asked also whether he might keep the papers.—New York Tribune.

One of Falb's Predictions.
In 1874 Professor Rudolf Falb predicted an eruption of Etna on Aug. 27. He offered a Vienna editor to write an account of it if the editor would send him to Sicily. Falb was commissioned. When he reached Etna there was not the slightest sign of disturbance. As the 27th approached Falb was tortured with anxiety and spent sleepless nights watching the volcano. Nothing happened on the 27th and 28th. The following morning the servant rushed into the professor's room shouting, "An eruption, a terrible eruption!" Falb saw the spectacle and sent off his dispatch.

"One" as a Pronoun.
I have never been smitten with the use of the word "one" as a pronoun. It takes a word juggler to attempt it and get away with it. Unless one feels that one has won one's spurs in this respect and can extricate oneself from the mess one gets oneself and one's readers into one should avoid the use of the word one in referring to oneself as one would a plague.—London Idler.

"Was it really murder?"
"Judge for yourself. My man came down for supplies, and they got him drunk—he was a drinking man—then they stabbed him. They said a Chinaman did it in a brawl, but Willis Marsh was to blame. They brought the poor fellow here and laid him on my steps, as if I had been the cause of it. Oh, it was horrible, horrible!"
"And you still stuck to your post?" said Emerson curiously.

"Certainly! This adventure means a great deal to me, and, besides, I will not be beaten—the stem of the glass with which she had been toying snapped suddenly—at anything."

The unsuspected luxury of the dining room and the excellence of the dinner itself had in a measure prepared Emerson for what he found in the living room. One thing staggered him—a piano. The bearskins on the floor, the big sleepy chairs, the reading table littered with magazines, the shelves of books, even the basket of fancy work—all these he could accept without further parleying, but a piano—in Kalvik!

Again Boyd withdrew into that silent mood from which no effort on the part of his hostess could arouse him, and it soon became apparent from the listless hang of his hands and the distant light in his eyes that he had even become unconscious of her presence in the room.

After an hour, during which she had barely made a move, she tired of anecdotes, which had long ago become uninteresting, and, going to play, she tucked the sheet music idly, inquiring:

"Do you care for music?" Her remark was aimed at Emerson, but the other answered: "My favorite hymn is the 'Maple Leaf Rag.' Let her go, professor."

Cherry settled herself obligingly and played ragtime. She was in the midst of some syncopated measure when Boyd spoke abruptly, "Please play something."

She understood what he meant and began really to play, realizing very soon that at least one of her guests knew and loved music. Under her deft fingers the instrument became a medium for musical speech. Gay roundelays, swift, passionate Hungarian dances, bold Wagnerian strains followed in quick succession, and the more her utter abandon the more certainly she felt the younger man respond. Then her dream filled eyes widened as she listened to his voice breathing life into the words. He sang with the ease and flexibility of an artist, his powerful baritone blending perfectly with her contralto.

For the first time she felt the man's personality, his magnetism, as if he had dropped his cloak and stood at her side in his true semblance.

"Oh, thank you," she breathed.
"Thank you," he said. "I—I—that's the first time in ages that I've had the heart to sing. I was hungry for music; I was starving for it. I've sat in my cabin at night longing for it until my soul fairly ached with the silence."

He took a seat near the girl and continued to talk feverishly, unable to give voice to his thoughts rapidly enough.

Fraser ambled clumsily into the conversation. Emerson listened tolerantly, idly running through the magazines at his hand, his hostess watching him covertly. Suddenly the smile of amusement that lurked about his lip corners and gave him a pleasing look hardened in a queer fashion. He started, then stared at one of the pages, while the color died out of his brown cheeks. Cherry saw the hand that held the magazine tremble. He looked up at her and, disregarding Fraser, broke in harshly:

"Have you read this magazine?"

"Not a line."

"I'd like to take one page of it."

"Why, certainly," she replied.

He produced a knife and with a quick stroke cut a single leaf out of the magazine, which he folded and thrust into the breast of his coat.

"Thank you," he muttered, then fell to staring ahead of him, again heedless of his surroundings. This abrupt relapse into his former state of sullen and defiant silence tantalized the girl. He offered no explanation and took no further part in the conversation until, noting the lateness of the hour, he rose and thanked her for her hospitality in the same deadly, indifferent manner.

"The music was a great treat," he said, looking beyond her and holding aloof, "a very great treat. I enjoyed it immensely. Good night."

Cherry Malotte had experienced a new sensation, and she didn't like it. She vowed angrily that she disliked men who looked past her. Indeed, she could not recall any other who had ever done so. Her chief concern had always been to check their ardor. She resolved viciously that before she was through with this young man he would make her a less listless adieu. She assured herself that he was a selfish, sullen boor, who needed to be taught a lesson in manners for his own good if for nothing else. She darted to the table, snatched up the magazine and skimmed through it feverishly. Ah, here was the place!

A woman's face with some meaningless name beneath filled each page. Along the top ran the heading, "Famous American Beauties." So it was a woman! She skipped backward and forward among the pages for further possible enlightenment, but there was no article accompanying the pictures. It was merely an illustrated section devoted to the photographs of prominent actresses and society women, most of whom she had never heard of, though here and there she saw a name that was familiar. In the center was that tantalizingly clean cut edge which had subtracted a face from the gallery—a face which she wanted very much to see.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT
OUR NATIONAL EFFICIENCY
In Address Before the Conservation Congress
at St. Paul He Says New Methods of Developing and Using Natural Resources of Country Are Needed.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—Speaking on "National Efficiency" before the conservation congress today, former President Roosevelt impressed on his hearers the fact that conservation has become a national duty and must be looked at from a new point of view and accomplished by new methods of developing and using the natural resources of the country.

America's reputation for efficiency stands deservedly high throughout the world. We are efficient probably to the full limit that any nation can attain by the methods hitherto used. There is great reason to be proud of our achievements, and yet no reason to believe that we cannot excel our past. Through a practically untried individualism, we have reached a plateau of literary unexampled material prosperity.

The method of reckless and uncontrolled private use and waste has done for us all the good it ever can, and it is time to put an end to it before it does all the evil it easily may. We have passed the time when heedless waste and destruction, and arrogant monopoly, are any longer permissible.

Waterways Development. One of the greatest of our conservation problems is the wise and prompt development and use of the waterways of this Nation. The Twin Cities, lying as they do at the headwaters of the Mississippi, are not upon the direct line of the proposed lakes to the gulf deep waterway.

Nearly every river city from St. Paul to the gulf the water-front is controlled by the railways. Nearly every artificial waterway in the United States, either directly or indirectly, is under the same control. It goes without saying that (unless the people prevent it in advance) the railways will attempt to take control of our waterways as fast as they are improved and completed; nor would I blame them, if we, the people, are supine in the matter.

Adequate terminals properly controlled and open through lines by rail and boat are two absolutely essential conditions to the usefulness of inland waterway development. I believe furthermore that the railways should be prohibited from owning, controlling, or carrying any interest in the boat lines on our rivers, unless under the strictest regulation and control of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, so that the shippers' interests may be fully protected.

The National Forests. If any proof were needed that forest protection is a National duty, the recent destruction of forests in the west by fire would supply it. Even with the aid of the army added to that of the forest service the loss has been severe.

But the forest service does more than protect the National forests against fire. It makes them practically and increasingly useful as well. During the last year for which I have the figures the National forests were used by 22,000 cattlemen with their herds, 5,000 sheepmen with their flocks, 5,000 timbermen with their crews, and 45,000 miners. More than 5,000 persons used them for other special industries. Nearly 24,000 settlers had the free use of wood.

The investigations of the Country Life Commission have led the farmers of this country to realize that they have not been getting their fair share of progress and all that it brings. Some of our farming communities in the Mississippi valley and in the middle west have made marvelous progress, yet even the best of them, like communities of every other kind, are not beyond improvement, while much needs to be done in some other sections to improve country life. As yet we know comparatively little of the basic facts of rural civilization. The means for better farming we have studied with care, but to better living on the farm and to better business on the farm the farmers themselves have given scant attention.

As a people we have not yet learned to economize. One of the virtues we Americans most need is thrift. It is a more truism to say that luxury and extravagance are not good for a Nation. So far as they affect character, the loss they cause may be beyond computation. But in the material sense there is a loss greater than is caused by both extravagance and luxury put together.

National Conservation Commission. One of the most important meetings in our recent history was that of the governors in the white house in May, 1908, to consider the conservation question. By the advice of the governors the meeting was followed by the appointment of a National conservation commission. The meeting of the governors directed the attention of the country to conservation as nothing else could have done, while the work of the commission gave the movement definiteness and supplied it with a practical program.

The National conservation commission thereupon became dormant. "The suspension of its work came at a most unfortunate time, and there was serious danger that the progress already made would be lost. At this critical moment the National conservation association was organized. It took up the work which otherwise would not have been done, and exercised a most useful influence in preventing bad legislation, in securing the introduction of better conservation measures at the next session of congress and in promoting the passage of wise laws.

Pan-American Construction. When the government of the United States awoke to the idea of conservation and to the fact that it was good, it lost no time in communicating the advantages of the new point of view to its immediate neighbors among the nations. A North American conservation conference was held in Washington, and the co-operation of Canada and Mexico in the great problem of developing the resources of the continent for the benefit of its people was asked and promised.

Unless the governments of all the American republics, including our own, enact in time such laws as will both protect their natural wealth and promote their legitimate and reasonable development, future generations will owe their misfortunes to us of today. A great obtriotic duty calls upon us. We owe it to ourselves and to them to give the American republics all the help we can. The cases in which we have failed should be no less instructive than the cases in which we have succeeded.

State and Federal Control. But while we of the United States are anxious, as I believe we are able, to be of assistance to others, there are problems of our own which we must not overlook.

The essential question is not one of half-splitting legal technicalities. It is simply this: Who can best regulate the special interests for the public good? Most of the predatory corporations are interstate or have interstate affiliations. Therefore they are largely out of reach of effective state control, and fall of necessity within the federal jurisdiction.

The Conservation Fight.

On of the difficulties in putting into practice the conservation idea is that the field to which it applies is constantly growing in the public mind. It has been no slight task to bring before 100,000 people a great conception like that of conservation, and convince them that it is right. This much we have accomplished. But there remains much to be cleared up, and many misunderstandings are due in part at least to direct misrepresentation on the part of those interested.

Abuses committed in the name of a just cause are familiar to all of us. Many unwise things are done and many unwise measures are advocated in the name of conservation, either through ignorance, or by those whose interest lies not in promoting the movement, but in retarding it. For example, to stop water power development by needless refusal to issue permits for water power or private irrigation works on the public lands inevitably leads many men, friendly to conservation and believers in its general principles, to assume that its practical application is necessarily a check upon progress.

But in spite of these difficulties, most of which are doubtless inevitable in any movement of this kind, conservation has made marvelous progress. I have been astounded and delighted on my return from abroad to find the progress made while I was away. We have a right to congratulate ourselves on this marvelous progress; but there is no reason for believing that the fight is won. In the beginning the special interests, who are our chief opponents in the conservation fight, paid little heed to the movement, because they neither understood it, nor saw that if it won they must lose.

This congress is a direct appeal to the patriotism of our whole people. The nation wisely looks to such gatherings for counsel and leadership. Let that leadership be sound and definite, practical, and in the side of all the people. It would be no small misfortune if a meeting such as this should ever fall into the hands of the open enemies or false friends of the great movement which it represents.

What this country needs is what every free country must set before it as the great goal toward which it works—an equal opportunity for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for every one of its citizens. To achieve this end we must put a stop to the improper political domination, no less than to the improper economic domination, of the great special interests. This country, its natural resources, its natural advantages, its opportunities and its institutions, belong in all its citizens. They cannot be enjoyed fully and freely by any government in which the special interests are not given a voice.

CHEERFUL WORDS FOR SUFFERING WOMEN.

No woman can be healthy with sick kidneys. They are often the true cause of bearing-down pains, headaches, dizziness, nervousness, languor, etc. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Doan's Kidney Pills make strong, healthy kidneys.

Mrs. Della E. Chapman, 5 Winthrop St., Hartford, Conn., says: "I was a wreck from kidney trouble. I spent over $700.00 doctoring but to no avail. I was in despair when I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills but soon felt better. For seven years I have been free from kidney trouble."

WHERE HE SAVED MONEY.

"You say it costs less to run this automobile than that trotting horse you owned?" "Yes; I used to bet on the trotting horse."

A Shipping Error. The young duchess of Westminster, wife of the richest peer in England, recently gave birth to her third child, a daughter. Thus there is no heir to the immense Grosvenor fortune, Earl Grosvenor, the duchess' second child, having died at the age of four.

Apreros of all this, a rather cruel story is being told in Newport about Lady Ursula Grosvenor, the eight-year-old daughter of the young duchess.

"Oh, good afternoon," she said, gravely. "Mamma can't see any one today. She's upstairs with the new baby. They sent her, you know, a girl when she'd ordered a boy, and she's so upset that she's quite ill."

Where Size Counts.

Edna thoughtfully considered a cow that was calmly grazing in a meadow across the way. "Mamma, how old is that cow?" she finally inquired. "She is four years old," answered Edna's mother. Edna considered the answer and from time to time appeared to be comparing herself with the cow.

Something Dreadful.

Wee Anita was listening to a story of the Johnstown flood. "What made it?" she asked. "Oh, the dam broke," replied grandma.

The next morning she ran into her brother's room and, climbing up on the bed, inquired anxiously: "Buvver, wasn't it just dreadful 'bout that swear breaking and killing all dose people?"

Electric Shovel the Better.

The advantages of an electrical shovel over a steam shovel have recently been portrayed, showing that wherever electricity is available at moderate rates, the electric shovel is much to be preferred. One of the great objections to the steam shovel, says the Scientific American, is the fact that the expense of a fireman must be paid, and the fuel, as well as the water, have frequently to be carted for a very long distance.

All She Wanted.

Six-year-old Anna was going to have a birthday party to which Wilbur, her little playmate, was invited. Meeting her on the street a few hours before the appointed time for the party, he confided to her that he could not come because he had been unable to get her a present. Anna smoothed it over by saying: "Oh, that's all right, Wilbur. Come any way, and just bring the money."

Phonographic Clocks.

In Switzerland clocks are now being made which do not require hands and faces. The timepiece merely stands in the hall, and you press a button, when, by means of the phonographic internal arrangements, it calls out "Half-past five," or "Five minutes to nine," as the case may be.

Useful New Substance.

"Resinite" is the name of a new substance invented in Germany, useful as a substitute for celluloid and ivory. It renders wood, paper and pasteboard impenetrable and makes pine, for example, so hard that it rapidly drills a planer.

Beetroot in Ton of Sugar.

It takes 16 tons of beetroot to make one ton of sugar.

YELLOW JOURNALISM.

In a recent issue of the "New York Evening Post," there appeared an editorial in which a man named Theodore Roosevelt is charged with being not only a selfish demagogue but an insincere wire-puller of the very worst type. Such an indictment is bad enough, but the "Post" does not stop there. The editorial goes on to show how T. R. used the office of the Presidency to collect funds to be used in the buying of votes, and how he betrayed the people's trust and plundered the homes of widows and orphans. It is not that there is anything new in these charges, for it all harks back to the Roosevelt-Harriman controversy, when Mr. Roosevelt landed Mr. Harriman in the Ananias Club, nor is it the sensational nature of the charges that takes one's breath away, it is the amazing amount of malice and brutal insinuations with which the story fairly bristles. Seldom indeed does yellow journalism sink so low. The editor hisses like a poisonous reptile and bites with the viciousness of a panther. Here are some of the things he has to say:

"Does he (Roosevelt), think that nobody has a memory which goes back to the life insurance investigation and that everybody has forgotten the $50,000 taken from widows and orphans and added to Theodore Roosevelt's political corruption fund? Did he not take a big check from the Beef Trust, and glad to get it? One can have respect for a sincere radical, for an honest fanatic, for an agitator or leveller who believes that he is doing God's will; but it is hard to be patient with a man who talks big but acts mean, who lets no friendship, no generosity, no principle, no moral scruple, stand for a moment between himself and the goal upon which he has set his overmastering ambition. It was Roosevelt who asked Harriman to come to the White House secretly and who took Harriman's money to buy votes in New York."

It is interesting to note how Mr. Roosevelt meets the slander. He issues no threats, he swears out no libel warrant, he asks for no sympathy, he crawls behind no shelter. All he does is make a statement and that statement is so clear, so convincing, so wholesome, so honest, so overwhelming in its courage and manliness that the whole matter collapses like a house of cards.

It is true that Mr. Roosevelt has made many mistakes, it is true that he sometimes cuts too wide a swath, it is true that he used to keep bad company politically, but the "Evening Post" or any other wall street chirper will have a hard time making the American people believe that he ever had his hand in the graft bag, or that he ever tried to pollute the politics of New York State, or any other State. Theodore Roosevelt's entire life has been a continuous fight for clean politics and civic righteousness. He has done more to popularize the doctrine of the square deal and the golden rule than any other man that America has produced.

ECHOES OF THE STREET.

If every resident of the Borough were asked the following question: "Is it your present intention and desire to make Roosevelt your permanent home," the answer would probably be a revelation to many people. We venture to say that almost half of our English-speaking population have the feeling that they are only here temporarily and that they will move on directly. It is not to be supposed that these people belong to the worthless class, on the contrary, many of our very best citizens are among those who say that they are simply waiting for a favorable opportunity to move out. Nor can it be denied that the majority of those who hold the better class jobs in the factories do not care to settle here, but would rather put up with the expense and inconvenience of a long railroad trip every day.

Now, since every effect must have a cause, it might be profitable for us to look the situation over and try to locate the cause of this state of affairs. The task is not as difficult as it seems. You have only to interview some of these people to find out where the shoe pinches. Some will tell you that the town is too near the swamps, that the climate is unhealthy, others say the railroad facilities are wretchedly poor. Some say they do not like the ragged, unkempt appearance of the place. Others say the cost of living is unusually high and that there are no markets where you may purchase the things you want. Some say that in a social way the Borough is cold and selfish. Many have a grievance over what they call the "inflated prices" of real estate in the Borough. Some will tell you that they have a son or daughter ready to go to high school and they don't like the idea of having them hauled to Woodbridge on cold winter days.

Many are dissatisfied with the long and irregular hours, the night shift and the Sunday work at the factories. These are some of the louder echoes of the street and there is no better way of gauging public sentiment than by listening to the conversation of the people as they come and go. The "News" will discuss some of these problems later, but in the meantime we invite our readers to let us know what they think of the situation. There surely must be a good many reasons why Roosevelt is a good place to build a home and we will be pleased to print short letters dealing with the advantages or disadvantages of building a home and settling here for keeps. If you are too busy to write a letter, write your opinion on a postal card and drop it in the "News" office.

All we have to say in the matter at present is that the Borough will never make any real progress until there is more of a "community of interest," more "village pride," more of the feeling that an injury to one is an injury to all. What do you think about it?

Royal Mistakes.

Sovereigns and princes are strangely given to making astonishing mistakes while dealing with dates. The inscription on King Edward VII's coffin that he died in the ninth year of his reign instead of the tenth is only an example of many similar errors. In November, 1858, Queen Victoria wrote to the late king to inform him that he might consider himself emancipated from parental authority and control, as he was now eighteen years old and therefore of age. Her majesty's letter, which was very long, was a quasi sermon, and it ended by informing the then Prince of Wales that he would be forthwith made a knight of the Garter and a colonel in the army. How Queen Victoria and Prince Albert fell into so extraordinary a mistake it is impossible to understand, for the prince had only then completed his seventeenth year. Dean Wellesley, to whom the young prince showed the letter, at once detected the serious error into which the queen had fallen, but he thought it best to say nothing.—London Truth.

Mutual.

"Do you remember the evening you proposed to me?" asks the gentle wife.
"Not exactly," replies the brutal husband.
"But you remember you told me that you were not good enough for me, that you had no right to aspire to such a height, that you felt your unworthiness and that you knew and realized that you never could make me as happy as I deserved to be?"
"I probably got off something like that."
"Well, I wish I had believed you then."
"So do I."
But she did not throw a flirtation at him or do anything unbecomingly. She simply smiled a wan, sad smile, put on her things and spent the day shopping and charging goods to him.—Chicago Evening Post.

HIS COMEBACK.

Mr. Henpeck—I don't want you to put "Requiescat in pace" on my wife's tombstone. Make it "Requiesco in pace."

Stonecutter—But that means "I rest in peace."

Mr. Henpeck—I know, and I want you to sign it "Husband."

Talking to the Child.

"Mrs. X—talks to little Madge just as Mr. X—talks to their dog," said a little girl of a neighboring family. And it was indeed true. Mrs. X— is a very well-meaning woman and would be greatly surprised if she should hear the foregoing statement. She has simply unconsciously acquired a harsh tone of voice in dealing with her children. This is altogether unnecessary, and is not, as many mothers seem to think, a mark of good discipline. The mother whose manner is quiet but firm is generally a much more successful disciplinarian than the harsh-voiced mother who issues her commands in a dictatorial manner. Kindness never spoils children. It is flabby indecision, sometimes mistaken for kindness, which spoils them.

Try to Come Back.

Not long ago Lord Kinnaird, who is always actively interested in religious work, paid a surprise visit to a mission school in the east end of London and told a class of boys the story of Samson. Introducing his narrative, his lordship added:

"He was strong, became weak, and then regained his strength, enabling him to destroy his enemies. Now, boys, if I had an enemy, what would you advise me to do?"

A little boy, after meditating on the secret of that great giant's strength, shot up his hand and exclaimed: "Get a bottle of 'air restorer'."

Globular Lightning.

Yesterday the inhabitants of Lewisham were provided with a specimen of that curious phenomenon known as "globular lightning." It is what is commonly called the "fire ball," and as it persists for several seconds it is obviously of a totally different character from any other form of lightning. It is much less brilliant than ordinary lightning, and its brightness appears to be that of iron at the "red hot" stage.

It is not, as some accounts might lead one to infer, a solid missile, but it is always spherical and appears to fall from a thunder cloud by its own gravity, sometimes rebounding after striking the ground.—London Globe.

Matches Not By-Products.

It is not to be assumed that, by reason of the smallness of matches, the makers thereof ever utilize scraps or bits of wood left over. The contrary is the case. Matches are not by-products. Any wood rejected by the match machine goes to the by-product establishment, and of these by-products of the match business may be mentioned some, such as doors and sashes, that in some instances form an industry as important as the match industry itself.

Decay of Stone Monuments.

The decay of stone monuments is a more complex effect than has been supposed, and Dr. T. Anderson of York, England, finds that the crumbling of some stonework is due to the growth of bacilli. This cause seems to be responsible for much destruction commonly attributed to the weather. The organisms evidently thrive on the chemical substances of smoke and soot, but the extent of their influence is not yet determined.

Truly Wonderful Alarm Clock.

A few years ago the French government acquired by purchase from a private collection a wonderful alarm clock which was once the property of the great Napoleon and which not only tells the time of day, but, as well, the day, the month, the year, the mean solar time, the phases of the moon, and indicates, in addition, the quarter-hour. Its attachments also include a thermometer.

ON MAKING A FROCK

THE WAY TO KEEP QUALITY OF FRESHNESS.

Somewhat Worn Garments Can Generally Be Renovated by a Few Deft Touches—Good Example in Illustration Shown.

The woman who wishes to keep up a smart appearance must be interested eternally in dressmaking affairs whether she makes her own gowns or not. This is because freshness is the first quality that is considered by fashion, and so if there is no new of changing the style of a dress, the models of the moment would cut over last summer's frocks and leave a surplus, so much wider were skirts, sleeves and everything else than now. In fact, the very narrowest of the Empire styles offers chances for remodeling, for since skirts are so scant and the belt line still above the normal these short waisted frocks may be used as foundations for the prettiest tunic effects.

When contemplating a change of style in a dress, the sewer must first pick her old gown to pieces, brush it free of threads and dust, and clean and press the breadths that are to be changed. A black goods, either wool or soft silk, will respond well to a good wash with soap bark, which is an inexpensive cleanser to be found in any drug store. Silks and wools still good enough to use when faded may be dipped in a dye of the same color, or have the tint entirely changed, and where the dress goods is not good enough for the outside there is always the possibility of using it for a foundation for a thinner material. One mistake the inexperienced sewer is likely to make when remodeling an old garment is to use a new material in a color so bright or delicate as to show off more plainly the faded or otherwise used appearance of the old stuff. So, whenever possible, it is best to combine old with old—that is, put two frocks together, or else make use of trimmings that have been employed before. If this is not done have the new stuff black or in some color too deep for the contrast with the old goods to be too striking.

This dainty and very feminine little frock offers a way to draw a wide skirt in after the present close manner, while almost any jumper bodice from last season might be arranged to advantage as here. As pictured the little frock is of sprigged muslin in pale blue and white, with a simple white lace used on the bodice and for the hobbling skirt band. The tucked vest, and neck and sleeve ruffles are of plain white muslin.

A plain goods would be as effective in this style as a flowered one, and if velveting were employed a matching or contrasting silk could be used for the trimming. The model also allows for a round or slightly trained skirt.

From 8 to 10 yards of new material would be required for the design—this in the average single width.

Mary Dean

Use Large Mirror.

Perhaps one trouble with the rank and file of persons whom one sees wearing unbecoming styles in the streets is that they dress before small mirrors instead of taking in their own figures before long glasses. A woman who had been traveling and had been confined to the usual hotel dressing table mirror said the other day: "I had no idea how unbecoming this gown was to me until I happened to look at myself in a mirror in the corridor of the hotel. I was simply horrified. Think of my walking in the street in a skirt that kicks out at the back at every step."

Showing the Way a Jumper Bodice and Wide Skirt May Be Made Over.

garment on hand there is always an old one which can be improved with some change or other and little freshening touches. There is an astounding mixture of materials, which is a point for making over even a rather scant dress: so with the wide skirt bands used, the tunics with bibs, the pretty collars and cuffs, all of which may be in a different color and texture from the frock itself, almost any frock may be picked to pieces for remaking. When it is only a matter

BED COVERINGS VERY GAY

Printed Dimity or French Stamped Damask Are Among Those Liked the Best.

Among the smartest of the new bed-covers are those of printed dimity or French stamped damask. These are made with a border in gay colors to match the wall decoration and on top of bed have a large, wreath or oval of flowers.

The covers are made long enough to hang over the bed, almost to the floor, all around, and are drawn up over the bolster-roll.

Another good looking cover is in cream colored embroidered net over a figured damask in all-over pattern. The toning is a soft ecru. This, too, is brought over the roll that is used by day.

Many women who have cotton spreads patched by their grandmothers are bringing them out in this day of printed covers. This is only possible when the coloring is harmonious, as many of the old quilts show wonderful stitchery and little taste. Those quilted in all white in intricate designs are artistic even to modern notions.

Improved Bandings.

Now that bandings are used as trimmings so much many women who have the leisure time and prefer individual styles make the strips themselves, taking net for the foundation and braid, silk and applique for the decoration. Net by the yard is usually bought for the purpose, but if the net known as fishing is asked for it will be found much more convenient for working on, because the worn edges prevent stretching of the material. This being so, the trimming is smoother and flatter than if made from the wider net cut into strips. Footing can be had in widths from one inch to six or seven.

CHILD'S MUSLIN DRESS.

Muslin is always dainty for children's dresses, made up like this they are comfortable to wear, and easy to wash and iron. The bodice has a small yoke of lace with several small tucks made in the muslin below the lace.

The skirt is gathered, and both are attached to a waist band that is covered with Insertlog; the wristbands of the bishop sleeves are made to match.

Materials required: Five yards 27 inches wide, three-eighths-yard lace 18 inches wide, 1 1/4 yards Insertlog.

ENDING THE QUARREL

How the Woman Flagged the Man's Train of Thought.

HE dared not say it, but he thought it. Of all the jealous, foolish, unreasonable girls in this girl-infested world she was the limit! How he ever could have imagined that he loved this bunch of perversity was beyond comprehension.

He closed his teeth and began to plan a dignified and impressive exit. Then she kicked him on the shin.

This is a story of quite well bred folk. If you think it improbable that well bred people should kick each other on the shins I advise you to read the evidence in the next society divorce case. In these causes celebres, however, it is generally the man who kicks the woman, while in the present instance it was Kate who kicked Johnnie. But this is not a divorce case.

Pretty soon she repeated this device was that he had not noticed it the first time; it was too well done, too accidental. Besides, his mind was occupied with the wrongs that she had previously inflicted upon him. Thus it happened that he had failed to observe when she casually crossed one knee over the other and glanced down to calculate the range. Then she leaned forward, her foot swung around, and the sharp edge of her narrow shoe came in contact with the tender crest of his tibia.

"I beg your pardon."

"Don't mention it," he grunted and went on summing up her cruelty and injustice. Appearances were against him, it was true, but she had no right to doubt his word and to jeer at his explanation. What if she had seen him riding with another girl? This one really was an out of town cousin to whom he was showing the electric signs. And Kate had scoffed at his plain statement of the facts and had taunted him with lack of invention. She must think him a fool; no man would dream of using such a wornout story unless it was true. Well, goodness knows there were plenty other girls; he would go where he could get fair treatment at least.

Kate saw that her first hint had not penetrated—I mean had not penetrated his consciousness. The set jaw and narrowed eyes were as easy to read as a poster, and she meant to break up those rebellious notions of his, even if she had to break— Oh, no, of course she had no intention of going that far—that is absurd; but then, you understand, she was just bound to flag that train of thought. That was why she gave him the second hint, just as before, only the least bit stronger.—Puck.

Got Full Measure.
All yesterday James had played truant from school, and when the frate master raised his cane threateningly James burst into a flood of tears.
"Please don't lick me, sir," he sobbed.

And why should I not lick you, pray?" thundered the schoolmaster.
"Why, sir, 'cos I think I've 'ad enough!" gasped James. "Yesterday the boy as I played truant with and I fell out and he licked me, and a man we threw stones at caught me and licked me, the driver of a cart we hung on to licked me, the owner of a cat we chased licked me. Then when I got home mother licked me, and after that father licked me, and then mother licked me again for calling her a sneak for telling father."
"Well," responded the master grimly, "by this time one licking more or less won't make much difference, and it seems hard I shouldn't have my whack. Come here, sir!"—London Answers.

"Can't tell you, sir," replied the pert lad, "but I'm the one who gets all the blame."

Three Men.
When H. H. Rogers was in the prime of his power, says a New York writer, he formed a "friendship partnership" with Mark Twain and Thomas Brackett Reed and took personal charge of their affairs, looking after them as he would a couple of children. It was great fun for all three, and especially Rogers. Neither Clemens nor Reed had any sense for business. The big ex-speaker came to New York a poor man. Five years later he died suddenly, and his estate assayed over $600,000. He probably had no idea what he was worth at any stage. Rogers made as much or more money for Clemens.

"I'm discovering Mars," he said, looking down at her to rest his neck. "I wonder if it has any inhabitants." From which we learn that Adam already knew about as much concerning Mars as the modern astronomers do.—Chicago Tribune.

BENJ. HOWELL PUT UP FOR NINTH TERM

Champion Vote Getter Nominated Again by the Third Congressional District at Perth Amboy—Not at the Convention last Thursday.

When the delegates from the third Congressional District met at Perth Amboy last Thursday afternoon, there was not the slightest ripple on the harmonious surface, and the program of renominating Benj. F. Howell for a ninth term in the House of Representatives was proceeded with without a hitch.

Mr. George H. Smith, of Ocean county, chairman of the Congressional committee, called the convention to order at 1.50, and called for nominations for temporary offices.

For chairman, former Sheriff C. Asa Francis, of Long Branch, was unanimously chosen. Walter D. Van Sickle, candidate for Alderman-at-large, was made secretary. The officers were escorted to the platform Joseph McDermott, of Monmouth county, John F. Ten Broeck, of Middlesex, and Henry Applegate, of Ocean.

At three p. m. when the committee had reported, nominations were called for. Prosecutor Theodore B. Booram of Middlesex, made the speech placing Mr. Howell's name before the convention. Monmouth seconded the nomination and Ocean county made it unanimous.

Mr. Howell had expected to attend the convention, but a telegram was received from him that he had been taken suddenly ill and his physician advised against his leaving his home.

Following is the platform adopted: "We, the Republicans of the Third Congressional District, in convention assembled, believe there is danger in getting too far away from the principles of the party as advocated by such eminent statesmen as Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft. We are heartily in favor of progress, but believe it should be along conservative lines, and that the party should not be carried away with too much radicalism.

"Constant changing of the tariff disturbs business conditions in all lines of mercantile pursuit and industrial manufactures. Continued agitation of a matter which is far-reaching in its effects destroys confidence, and of such a condition continues for any length of time, a panic ensues, and the withdrawal of currency produces a crisis which is always the forerunner of a period of depression which is felt by everybody. Therefore, since the tariff as revised a year ago by Congress has hardly had a fair trial to show what may be expected under its provisions, we urge that no radical changes be made without the most careful considerations to determine whether or not they will be for the best, and that the interests of the whole people will be for the best, and that the interests of the whole people will be conserved thereby.

"The administration of President Taft has already been distinguished by wise statesmanship. Following in the path of his predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt, that eminent American who is regarded throughout the world as a man of exceptional ability, and a statesman of high attainments, William H. Taft has found it advisable to continue many of the same policies, and in all things pertaining to the administration of his office he has exercised the good judgment that marks him as a statesman of high rank, and a President whose administration is for the best interests of the people.

"The term of another Governor will end next January, and at the next election in November his successor will be chosen. The State has prospered ever since the Republican party resumed control of affairs, and steady progress has been made along all lines. Much has been accomplished in the administration of John Franklin Fort in the way of legislation that has been progressive, without being too radical in its purpose, and which will prove beneficial to the taxpayers.

"Too much stress cannot be laid upon the importance of the election this fall. The selection of a Governor means much to the State. The selection of members of the State Senate and Assembly mean much to the people. The election of a United States Senator next winter is a matter of grave importance, and wide reaching in its effect. Because of what is involved, what it means to the State and to the people as well, the Republican party should be continued in control of the affairs of the commonwealth by the election of a Governor, a majority in the State Legislature, and election of a Republican to the United States Senate.

"We heartily commend the record of Hon. John Kean and Hon. Frank O. Briggs as United States Senators. Both of these men have always done their best to take care of their constituents, and in all matters affecting the welfare of New Jersey they have been found working for the advantage of her citizens. It is a matter of gratification that the two Senators from New Jersey have a splendid record for accomplishing results for their constituents, and that both men stand high in the councils of the upper body of Congress.

"Few men have a finer record as a Representative in congress than Benjamin F. Howell, the present Congressman from the Third District. As Chairman of the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization for eight years Mr. Howell has been identified with legislation that has been far-reaching in its effect, and of great benefit to the whole country. He aided in the passage of the bill which has broken up the notorious white slave traffic and he was the author of the excellent naturalization bill which put a stop to the wholesale naturalization frauds which had become prevalent in New York and other large cities.

"Working energetically for the welfare of the old soldiers and their widows and orphans, Mr. Howell is able to appreciate their needs, having served three years in the Civil War. His record for obtaining pensions for aged and idiom soldiers has been maintained in the past two years. As a member of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, Mr. Howell secured an appropriation of $125,000 for a post office and site at Long Branch, and $25,000 for a site at Red Bank. Looking after the needs of the district in the way of river and harbor improvements. Mr. Howell obtained about $175,000 for work of this character, embracing the Shrewsbury river, Matawan creek, Shoal Harbor and Comptons creek Toms river, the Raritan river and Raritan bay, South river, and some surveys which will ultimately mean appropriations for deepening the channels. Mr. Howell has an enviable record for conscientious work, and because of his long and faithful service, he is exceptionally well qualified to represent the people and to take care of their wants.

"This convention pledges its earnest support to the nominee of this convention. We believe that the Republican party should be continued in control of the Nation and State. Farmers throughout the State have enjoyed a splendid season with good crops. Business is making slow and substantial improvement that indicates progress of the right sort. There is danger in a change in the control of Congress, and the voters in the three counties represented in this convention can do good work by working hard for the election of the entire ticket, so that the Republican Governor, a Republican majority in the Legislature, a Republican United States Senator and a Republican Congressman may all be elected."

Nothing Succeeds Like Success

"Nothing Succeeds Like Success." That is what occurred at the opening of Fred Nordstrom's gala night, last Saturday, at Kish's Hall.

The "old crowd" stood by as in days of old, when Mr. Nordstrom presented to large audiences, his complete entertainment, consisting of illustrated songs, as they should be sung, and motion pictures, as they should be run.

The opening night proved that the ever popular Fred Nordstrom has retained his old standing among his enthusiastic friends. The songs were well rendered by Prof. Whitrell, of the New York Conservatory of Music.

The pictures were a great success, according to the hearty applause given.

The lecture, begun somewhat dragged out, owing to the lengthy verses with each slide, will be discontinued next Saturday—an extra illustrated song taking the place of same.

The special feature for next Saturday will be "Old Glory," which was difficult to obtain, owing to its continued popularity. It is hardly necessary to linger with details, as this magnificent picture is world renown, and speaks for itself. Prof. C. B. Purdy will lecture on this great picture, bringing forth the many qualities contained therein. It takes one back to the time of Benj. Franklin, assembling the stars and stripes and presenting same to Washington and Betsy Ross.

The songs, Saturday night, will be popularized by "one of the favorites," and two and a half hours of drama, comedy and interesting subjects is positively guaranteed. Everything will be presented as advertised—no fakes or misleading ideas.

A Turkish Custom.

Upon the graves of the dead in the Turkish cemeteries little vessels of water are placed for the benefit of the birds, and some of the marble tombs have basins chiseled out for the same purpose, the superstition being that birds carry messages about the living to the dead and, like everything else in Turkey, are suspected of being spiteful unless something is done to curry their favor.

PLANS MATURING FOR THE NEW STATE ROAD

To Run From Elizabeth to This Borough, Thence To Perth Amboy. Is A Much Needed Highway. Freeholders Now Interested.

Within a week or two the First street merchants of Elizabeth, [without the aid of the mayor of Roosevelt] will be given a hearing in the matter of making the proposed road from Elizabeth to this borough a State road. For a long time the First street merchants have felt that they ought to have better connection with Roosevelt borough, but it has been a difficult proposition, owing to there being no help given from the Roosevelt end, which goes to show how little interest the mayor has for the improvement of the town.

To make the road a success the co-operation of the Middlesex County Freeholders will have to be secured. Those interested have been working quietly and now things seem to be shaping themselves for the making of preliminary plans for the improvement of the long desired State road.

BOROUGH COUNCIL Business done of Much Importance

The Regular Meeting of the Borough Council was held Monday evening September 19th. Councilman Harris, absent.

The Contract for laying the sewers in side streets south of Rahway Avenue, was signed by the Contractor J. H. Nevill, after the necessary bonds were furnished. Mr. Nevill said that he would like to have an inspector appointed, as he intended to start work Wednesday or Thursday. Also that at some points where flush tanks were called for, the water was not laid. The Street Committee was authorized to see that this was taken care of.

A petition from the various property owners on Blazing Star Road, asking to have cement walks laid, five feet wide, from Woodbridge Avenue, west to Noes Creek Bridge, was received and referred to Street Committee to have necessary ordinance drafted. The following bills were ordered paid: Austin Western Co. $200 Green and Co. 40.75, Perth Amboy News 18.27, Universal Auditing Co. $250 S. Brewster (feed) 44.89, N. Kukecac $10.50, J. Grover 81.00, F. Simons, 20.00 Otto Worth 6.00, C. Frohman 31.50, Riverside Press $18.00, M. Brady 10.00. Borough Engineer reported that 90 per cent of the side-walks had been laid and found correct, the bill of DeBow and Glendening for same work, amounting to $3,978.11 was presented. On motion, improvement certificates were ordered drawn, for one year at Roosevelt National Bank, with interest at 5 per cent.

The question of Madison Street was taken up but as the attorney for the Church people was not present the matter after some little discussion was laid over until next meeting October 3rd.

The Mayor and Clerk were authorized to draw a three months note for $400 on Roosevelt National Bank to pay bills, the Collector having reported a shortage of this amount. Meeting adjourned until October 3rd.

WISE WILLIE.

The Nurse—The doctor brought the baby yesterday morning.

Willie (aged 6)—Better not forget where the doctor lives.

The Nurse—Why?

Willie—Cause if the baby needs a hand or a leg, you'll have to get new parts for him, won't you.

Confusing.

Craig Biddle, at a dinner in Newport, was describing the changing odds on the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno.

"Eight to four and a half on Jeffries—nine to six the other way about—three to one and a quarter—it's rather confusing, isn't it?" he said. "In fact, it's almost as confusing as the two girls' talk about a secret."

"Mary," said the first girl, "told me that you had told her that secret I told you not to tell her."

"The nasty thing," said the other girl, "I told her not to tell you I told her."

"Well," said the first girl, "I told her I wouldn't tell you she told me—so don't tell her I did."

She Took No Chances.

A happily wedded matron is the principal of an odd incident, which one of her "dear" friends relates.

Before the matron's engagement to her present husband was announced, she met her "dear" friend on the street. The new matron was hurrying toward one of the large jewelry stores of the city.

"John gave me an engagement ring," she explained, without a shadow of embarrassment, "and I am going down to see how much it cost. You see, I got the jeweler's name off the box," and she hurried on.

The same friend said that another bit of information the matron got was the commercial standing of the prospective husband, which she secured by paying for a special report from a commercial agency.

A Chinese Wedding.

A Chinese marriage is all ceremony—no talk, no levity, and much crying. The solemnity of a funeral prevails. After the exchange of presents the bride is dressed with much care. A feast is spread upon a table, to which the blushing bride is led by five of her best female friends. They are seated at the table, but no one eats. The utmost silence prevails, when finally the mother leads off in a cry, the maids follow and the bride echoes in the chorus. Then all the bridesmaids leave the table, and the disconsolate mother takes a seat beside the chair of state, where the bride sits. The bridegroom now enters, with four of his best men. The men pick up the throne on which the bride sits and, preceded by the bridegroom, form in procession and walk around the room or into an adjoining parlor, signifying that he is carrying her away to his own home. The guests then throw rice at the happy couple.

Fortune-Telling Fakes.

The only strong people are those who work, and it is only work that gives courage and faith.

Oyster Farming in Normandy

Oyster cultivation is carried out on a very large scale in France, more especially in the Arcachon basin, at Marennes, at Cancale, and along the coasts of Normandy. In the breeding season, from June to September, the oysters lay eggs or spawn, which the cultivator collects by means of hives (large open cases composed of boards set widely apart and covered with lime to facilitate the removal of the oysters). After emptying the hives the young oysters are taken off the slabs, an operation which must be most carefully performed in order not to crush their fragile shells. In spite of all precautions, about 25 per cent are destroyed. The young oysters are placed in cases called ambulances for two or three months, where they are subjected to a special treatment. The oysters are finally gathered in by hand or by rake, cleaned, and allowed to remain in the basins of the depot, where their flavor is improved.

CHURCH BELLS OF GUATEMALA WILLS A FARM TO MONKEYS

Guatemala is a land of earthquakes, and throughout the country wherever the churches have suffered from quakes and the crumbling towers are no longer strong enough to bear the weight of the heavy bells, these are hung out of doors under a pointed thatched roof held up by bamboo poles. These add greatly to the picturesque quality of the landscape.

Two pet monkeys are the sole heirs of Dr. J. B. Zudzenze, who died at Sparta, Mich. To them the doctor leaves his farm, valued at $3,000, as a home for the remainder of their lives. According to the will Mrs. Sellers, the doctor's housekeeper, may have a home at the farm if she takes proper care of the monkeys. When Dr. Zudzenze's wife died two years ago the monkeys were gloomy for weeks. They had been in the family for 10 years. About five years ago, when the doctor was living here, he kept the monkeys in a cage in the front yard. A neighbor's boy was in the habit of teasing them. One day the boy woke up the neighborhood with his terrible screaming, and his grandmother ran into the room to find the two monkeys on his chest biting and scratching him.

TURTLE THAT CAME BACK

While Hillard Throckmorton was bathing in Green Pond, in Upper Montville, N. J., a snapping turtle that he had lost twenty-two years ago returned to him. He long had mourned his loss, but he mourned its return still more. Throckmorton was having his daily swim when suddenly a toe of his left foot was caught and held. He tried to shake off his new attachment, but it refused to let go. He swam to the shore, almost fainting from pain and exertion. A cold chisel and a poker were necessary to make the snapper let go. Then the following inscription was found carved on the shell: "H. T., 1888." "Why," gasped Throckmorton, "I made that on a pet turtle when I was fifteen years old."

Atlantic City Sand Sculpture

A detail of heavy-footed policemen recently marched along the sands at Atlantic City. In their wake they left wreckage and ruin, for they had ruthlessly walked, wearing their heaviest shoes, over the creations of the sand-artists, stamping the soulful sand figures into the dust from whence they came. Only three of the artists were exempt from the decree of destruction; and this trio will in future be known as the official sand-artists of Atlantic City. The trouble was that some of the artists became too artistic. In some instances they imitated their betters in the great world of art in selecting the human form divine as the foundation for some of their creations. Notwithstanding the fact that nowhere is there more evidence than at the seashore, the authorities decided that the sand-artists had gone too far in portraying partially draped figures, and the censor sent forth the stamping squad to rid the beach of the odd designs originated by some of the sand-sculptors. One of the most remarkable set of figures seen on the beach has been built up of sand mixed with some ingredient to make it stable. The artist has fashioned his mixture into a series of heroic poses, and these he has painted white, so that they glisten like genuine marble statues.

MEMORIAL OF A MAN? ER

Located near the margin of a beautiful and romantic little lake, in the Golden Gate park, San Francisco, Cal., stands a handsome marble monument. In a way it is a memorial "monument," being an enduring souvenir of the fearful disaster that visited San Francisco in April, 1906—earthquake and fire. These beautiful and graceful Italian marble columns—the base, and surmounting entablature and frieze, have interesting associations. Formerly they constituted the ornamental front entrance to the palatial residence of the late A. N. Towne railway magnate, who for many years, made his home in San Francisco. His mansion stood on California street on the very summit of the fashionable and aristocratic "Nob Hill." At the time of the great disaster, the building was reduced to a vast heap of wreckage by the flames. Singular to say the front entrance entirely escaped both the violent earth shock, and the consuming flames. The quake did not crack or shatter the marble work, nor did the fire blacken the highly polished stone.

For several years the facade stood untouched. Recently, work was commenced in removing the mass of debris preparatory to rebuilding. Mrs. Towne presented to the city of San Francisco the front portal of the once splendid residence, with the proviso that it should be placed somewhere in Golden Gate park as an enduring souvenir of the great disaster.

ORPHANED HUMMING BIRD

In a small tree in the lawn of the residence of E. C. Gallagher, in Pullman, Wash., a humming bird made her nest and hatched two birds. The parent bird died and one of the little birds was dead when the peeps of the survivor attracted attention. The little bird, no larger than a good-sized bumblebee, was crying for food when found. A consultation of the neighbors was held. It was decided to make an effort to feed the little orphan and works on humming birds were consulted. It was decided to try honey and this seemed to fill the wants of the little bird, now thriving on four drops of honey, slightly diluted, given every two hours. The bird has been fed in this manner and is thriving.

GOLF LINKS AT TIENSIN

The popular Scottish pastime of golf now seems to have its advocates in every civilized corner of the globe, and in most cases the associations are governed by the rules laid down by the Royal and Ancient Golf club of St. Andrews. The above illustration shows a golfer in the act of putting on the eighteenth green of the Tientsin golf links in China. The tallest figure on the right is presumably his opponent with two native caddies behind him, while on the left is another native holding the flag which marks the green until the player has holed out.

GRIM FAMILY DINNER PARTY

A remarkable reason for divorce has come before the court in Chicago. It was the plea of a man who said that he wanted divorce because his wife set plates on the table at each meal for the deceased members of her family, and not satisfied with this, she held imaginary conversations with the deceased during each meal, and conversation generally relating to the quality of the menu, or to striking incidents in the lives of these relatives. The man averred that these uncanny proceedings got on his nerves—he had peculiar chilly and creepy feelings—and that his life had become a veritable burden, and he prayed the relief a divorce assures. The court took the matter under consideration.

AN ODD MURDER CLUE.

Examining the body of a murdered woman at Arras, in France, the other day, a doctor noticed finger prints of blood on the right elbow. He removed the piece of skin on which the marks appeared, and as a result of comparing them with the finger prints of several persons suspected of the crime, the woman's husband has now been arrested.

BOY IS REAL "CHANTECLER."

By grafting a chicken bone into his leg, Lloyd Hixon, a fourteen-year-old lad from Vermillion, S. D., is expected to be as good as new. Hixon has been for several months past suffering from tuberculosis of the small bone in the leg until it wasted away. He went to Hot Springs, where Dr. Walker removed the bone and substituted one from a chicken and the new bone is now believed to be knitting satisfactorily.

OFFICE: WOODBRIDGE AVE. AND BOULEVARD BOROUGH OF ROOSEVELT.

THE coming political battle in this Borough bids fair to be a hard struggle between the "Insurgents" and those who "stand pat" for the perpetuation of the Herman policy. Many new issues will be forced into the campaign and many questions will be asked regarding the record of the past and the hope of the future.

These are days when party ties do not hold so tightly as they did in days gone by and it is well that this is so. A "dyed in the wool" democrat might vote for Theodore Roosevelt without doing any violence to his democratic principles and a "rock-ribbed" republican might vote for a man like Mayor Gaynor, of New York, without injuring in the slightest degree the principles of the republican party. We are not so much concerned about whether the election goes republican or democratic, but we are very much concerned about whether it goes for stagnation or reform. We know for a certainty that many republicans who deserted the party on former occasions will be back in the ranks this fall and we are equally certain that many democrats will prefer the republican ticket and some will vote republican ballots for the first time this year.

There is no way of judging the future but by the past. What has been is about the only index we have as to what is to be. Fortunately both candidates for Mayor have a political "past" and judging by their records it is comparatively easy to determine what we could expect of them in the future. Those who have followed the tiresome trend of Borough politics for the past three or four years know very well what Mayor Hermann would NOT do if returned to office and those who are familiar with the fight Dr. Reason has been making to bring the Borough government up to date can be equally sure of what he would DO if elected. The present administration is so far behind the procession that most of the time it is out of sight. No one would ever dream of it heading the way in any movement to give the Borough the standing that a town of 6000 people ought to have. That we are in need of a change of government no fair minded citizen will deny.

With Dr. Reason in the office of Mayor we would be assured of a vigorous and progressive administration. He is familiar with all the problems with which as Mayor he would have to deal. He knows the needs of the people perhaps better than any other man in the Borough and he could handle the thing intelligently and satisfactorily.

During the past three years Dr. Reason has fought unceasingly for progress and efficiency in the Borough Council and though his hands have been practically tied, the people have much to thank him for in the way of regulating the abuses of the Borough. His record will stand the "acid test" of public investigation. He has done his duty and there is no higher recommendation that we could give him than that he has kept his pledges to the people.

We predict, therefore, that Dr. Reason will be elected by a surprising majority and that his election will mean a shake-up in local politics that will astonish some people. We predict, moreover, that he will show the people that a REAL Mayor can get results. Dr.

Reason go into office without any strings on him, absolutely free to administer the affairs of his office for the best interests of the people as a whole. He is too independent to be the catspaw of any creed, or clique, or class, and you could never associate him with anything that was dull, dead or stagnant.

We cannot see how the morals of the prohibitionists will allow them to vote this year for Governor, as their platform is positively against "Lewis" "66" and "Wilson" whiskey. That's all!

It's a wonderful thing how some people can sit in their windows and stare and criticise folks as they go along from their shoes up to their hair.

Yes, it's wonderful quite wonderful to stand and watch these folks but when YOU start to criticise they don't think it quite so funny a joke. So people in glass houses should never throw a stone.

For fear it might hit some related to their own.

So take advise dear gaper and when you read this call, no matter how high up you are you have got a chance to fall.

TO BE LARGEST IN THE WORLD
Copper Smelter that Orford Company Will Erect at Roosevelt.

The Orford Copper Company, of Bayonne, will, in the near future, erect a new plant in the borough which will be the largest plant of its kind in the world. Records were filed last week with the county clerk which show that the company has acquired about 110 acres of land adjoining the site of the Armour Beef Company, which company, as previously stated in the NEWS, is about to build a plant for the purpose of disposing of waste products from its business. In addition to the refining of copper, the Orford Company is engaged in recovering nickel as a by-product, in which undertaking the Orford company controls the markets.

A new electric massage machine has been added to Charles Ohlott's tansorial parlor. Gentlemen can have face massage for 25 cents. Ladies will be waited on Sunday afternoon, from 2 to 4 o'clock. Are we due for another comet scare?

The story of an alligator in Paw Paw lake gives us pause.

"The police mobilized their reserves in autos." Automobilized them, as it were.

The son of a British peer is washing dishes in Texas. His job ought to pan out.

This year's peach crop is one of the largest and prettiest that ever failed in the spring.

Events in Latin America indicate that there is something revolutionary in a banana diet.

A small prison sentence looks a great deal worse than a big fine to the confirmed joy rider.

The times seem prolific of accidents. And the worst of it is that the great majority need never happen.

Now is a good time for some Don't Worry club to offer an honorary membership to King Alfonso.

Austrians are demanding cheap meat. Here is one more chance for the Belgian hare promoter.

A California family went crazy contemplating the comet. All that some people are looking for is an excuse.

Halibut measuring two inches in diameter fell at Sault Ste. Marie, but the local fishermen are not discouraged.

A Boston scientist says that sauerkraut is superior to beans as a diet. This ought to be good news in Milwaukee.

A Washington umpire will call strikes and balls in Esperanto. Will some kind friend tell us what they usually talk?

Professor Watkins says old-fashioned dyes have disappeared. Old-fashioned death, however, continues business as usual.

There is a dispute as to the ownership of the Spitzbergen islands. They will make a cold collation for some country or other.

One thing that marks the mikado as a distinct and peculiar statesman is his success in keeping his picture out of the magazines.

The prince consort of Holland has broken his collar bone by a fall from a bicycle. The royal advisers should make him keep to golf.

King Alfonso's boat was in collision at Southampton the other day and nearly sunk. That King after his name is certainly a hoodoo.

The washing of paper money is a good thing, but it should not encourage the gold manipulators to keep our coinage bright by "sweating" it.

In getting a dog a muzzle it is not necessary to irritate the animal by a load of scrap-iron. Dog muzzling may be humane as well as effective.

Someone has seen a flock of geese flying southward. They were doubtless hastening away from the terrible heat which Medicine Hat occasionally reports.

Some fault-finding is being done on the score that the paper on which the new $1,000 bills were printed is of inferior quality. Probably everybody noticed it.

A Chinese delegate to the deaf mute convention of deaf mutes at Denver is looking for an interpreter. Can any one here make 6,000 letters with their fingers?

An unlettered man with Dr. Elliot's five feet of books at his bedside might feel no compunction about throwing one of them at the neighbor's cat on the back fence.

Prof. Wilczynski of the University of Chicago thinks mathematics and poetry much alike. At least you frequently meet with examples of each which you do not scan.

The new football rules are being prepared. Let us hope there will be nothing in them to alter the form of the conventional magazine story about Thanksgiving game.

An Ohio judge has decided that it is not illegal for a woman to go through her husband's pockets. It wouldn't have made the slightest difference if he had decided the other way.

A European duke, visiting this country, declares he wants to go in business here. His family may be shocked by this decision, but it is far more manly than coming as a fortune hunter in the hope of gaining another man's work to live on.

The fashionable bobbed woman may belong to the class who rush in where angels fear to tread, only she draws the line—or the hobble—at rushing. Lately she has been falling out of boats when she tries to stand up in them, but she doesn't drown.

COUNTRY ALL RIGHT

A STRIKINGLY STRONG ARTICLE BY COL. HARVEY.

THE WRITER SEES NO CLOUD

"A Plea for the Conservation of Common Sense" That is Meeting With Cordial Approval.

A strikingly strong article by Colonel George Harvey in the North American Review, for September, is written in a view of such hopefulness for the American future that it has attracted wide attention.

Capital and Labor Not Antagonistic.

"The Link that connects labor with capital is not broken but we may not deny that it is less cohesive than it should be or than conditions warrant.

Conserve Common Sense.

"Is not the present, as we have seen, exceptionally secure? What, then, of preparations for the future? Patriotism is the basis of our institutions.

Spiritualization.

Religion should be native. It should be concrete and applicable. Religion is the natural expression of living, not a set of actions or of habits, or a posture of the mind added to the daily life.

Where Size Counts.

Edna thoughtfully considered a cow that was calmly grazing in a meadow across the way. "Mamma, how old is that cow?" she finally inquired.

BOYS' FUN WITH BROOMSTICK

It is a long time since brooms came into use. Their invention was of great benefit to the world in aiding to keep it clean—but have you ever considered another phase of their usefulness?

ILLUSION WITH SPINNING PIN

With Little Practice One May Successfully Imitate Very Many Objects.

Take a piece of rubber or elastic and run a pin through it as the figure shows. Twirling the ends of the elastic vertically between your thumbs and forefingers, and separating the hands in order to tighten it, you give the object a sufficiently swift rotation to enable it to produce the image of a drinking goblet, says Magical Experiments. The illusion is the more complete in proportion to the brightness of the pin and the light it shines in and the darkness of the background. In the picture, we suppose the operator placed in a dark room, through a hole in the shutter of which a ray of sunlight creeps in and illuminates the pin.

With a little practice you may succeed in imitating very many objects. Try for yourselves and see what you can make.

A Conditional Situation.

If little girls were not so stupid And little boys were not such fools, And no one needed any teaching, There'd be no public grammar schools.

THE AIRY GIRAFFE

Sold a pert little dog to a tall giraffe, "It isn't that any one cares, But you look so stuck up that the neighbors laugh And say you are putting on airs."

The giraffe was annoyed, as you could plainly see, And snorted as he made reply: "If you had a nice long neck like me, You would do the same as I."

PRINCESS MARY NOW TYPIST

King George's Only Daughter Learns How to Operate Typewriter—To Learn Stenography.

Princess Mary, King George's only daughter, has recently learned to use a typewriter.

There are two women typists attached to the secretarial staff of Marlborough House, which is the king's residence, one of whom, at the princess' request, taught her how to operate the machine.

During the reigning family's recreation at Balmoral, Scotland, her royal highness will assist in typing some of her father's more private correspondence.

The princess intends to learn stenography also and is keenly looking forward to helping her mother, Queen Mary, regularly with her correspondence when the royal family is settled in Buckingham palace.

This princess was the first royal personage to open an account in the postoffice savings bank, which she did three years ago on her tenth birthday.

VISITING.

"My little girl, I hope you tried Your very best to be, Quite ladylike and well-behaved, When you were out to tea?"

"And that you said: 'Yes, if you please, When things were offered you; Or, 'No, I thank you,' quietly, 'Just as I told you to?'"

"Yes, mamma, dear, I smiled and said: 'Yes, thank you,' so politely; And 'if you please,' and sat up straight And always acted right."

"I didn't say, 'No, thank you,' though, Because, mamma, you see, I wanted all they helped me to 'When I went out to tea.'"

TELLING AGES OF ANIMALS

Not Yet Possible to Determine Age at Which Many Sea and Land Creatures Die.

Some sea creatures and a few land creatures live so long that it has not yet been possible for man to determine the age at which it is natural for them to die. It is stated, for instance, that in 1497, in a European lake, a pike was caught which could not have been less than 270 years old.

The natives of India believe that elephants live to be 300 years old. One was kept in captivity 150 years, and the age of the animal at the time of his capture was not known.

Camels normally die between the ages of 40 and 50, horses from 20 to 30, oxen at 20, sheep at 8 or 9 and dogs at 12 or 14. Swans 100 years old and ravens older have been known, while pheasants and ordinary chickens live 12 or 15 years—provided they do not find their way to the frying pan many seasons earlier.

Pillow Climbing.

In the middle of the floor, some little distance apart, place sofa cushions, stools, umbrella stands, large vases, etc. From among the company choose some one who has never been "hoaxed" and ask him to first walk over the course around and between these articles, so as to fix in his mind their situation and distance apart. He is then blindfolded and told to find his way carefully among them again so as not to touch anything.

Very gingerly he will do so, and when triumphant over his success the bandage is taken from his eyes, to his surprise, not an article remains on the floor. All were quickly and quietly removed while he was being blindfolded.

His cautious movements and tacking here and there to avoid the obstacles that are not there, make fun for the onlookers.

The gym class boasts now of several stunt artists, Mr. Starkey is the veteran mat performer with something new his sleeve for each class night.

A different program of gymnastics athletic and games is arranged for each class night. The games of course are the popular features. There are all kinds of fun you know in Indian war dance, Relay races, Obstacle races, Basket ball, Volley ball, Ball tag, Dodge ball and many other lively ones.

LADIES' MEETING

A meeting of the ladies of the Auxiliary and others who desire to unite with them, is called for Wednesday September 28, at 2 p. m. Officers will be elected for the coming year and former members are urged to be present. Bowling and refreshments will follow the meeting.

Motor Cars Sold.

The cars of the Suburban Motor Transit Company which have been in service between Perth Amboy and Roosevelt for the past few months, were sold last week by Sergeant-at-Arms William Hoffner, of the District Court to satisfy two judgements that were rendered against the company by Judge Beekman, one being for the Perth Amboy Garage, and the other one for Albert Leon.

The machines were bought by the Queensboro Motor Transit Company, who originally owned the cars. They were taken to Long Island, where they will be repaired and put into use.

Roosevelt is now without any means of transportation to Perth Amboy.

Large crowds traveled to and from this borough by this route and the discontinuation of the cars will be a disappointment to a great many.

At the Methodist Episcopal Church

At the Methodist Episcopal church the pastor preached both morning and evening. The subject for the sermon of the morning was, "The Dreamer" and the text was, Gen. 37: 19; "Behold this dreamer cometh" the dreamers are the men who control the world, they are the men who see what ought to be and what will be exalted above what is. Joseph was such a dreamer. In every crisis of his fate. Our dreams likewise determined our fates for we all exist in dreams. Our very day-dreams and our meditations move our lives. We pass our life like a great troubled dream. As every dream has its awaking we likewise must wake. "I shall be satisfied when I wake in thy likeness" such is the awaking of the good man. But the evil man must awaken to an endless reality of punishment. Every man weaves his own dreams and this determines their own awakening.

On next Sunday at 5 p. m. Dr. Randolph will conduct the second Quarterly Conference and at evening service he will preach. Dr. Randolph is a man well worth hearing and everybody is invited to attend.

Junior Epworth League services will be held on Friday afternoon at 3.30 All children are invited to attend and secure Christian teaching.
