FIRE DESTROYS CHURCH SUNDAY

Damage of Over $35,000 Follows
Stubborn Blaze Which Breaks
Out at St. Elizabeth's Roman Catholic Church Sunday Night.

BUILDINGS NEAR- BY THREATENED

Firemen Battle Flames As Strong Wind Carries Embers On Adjoining Roofs—The Church Rectory Saved By Hard Work.

One of the most stubborn fires in the history of the borough threatened to wipe out many buildings on Sunday afternoon, when St. Elizabeth's Roman Catholic Church on Washington avenue was razed by flames. The damage is estimated at more than $35,000.

The fire was discovered shortly after 2 o'clock, when one of the big windows of the church broke from the intense heat of the flames inside. A passerby attracted by the crash of the glass sent in an alarm and the two local fire companies responded. The Woodbridge fire company also came to the aid of the local firemen.

The wind fanned the flames and in a short time the fire had made considerable headway. The battle with the flames kept the firemen on the job for nearly three hours. The firemen played their streams on the church and the brick rectory adjacent.

Sparks from the blaze caused the fire to break out at the home of William D. Casey several times and also the home of Officer O'Rourke. At 3 o'clock when the flames were at their height and the wind was greatly hampering the work of the firemen, the large belfry fell to the ground. The bell weighing more than a ton fell through to the cellar of the church.

Father Hudetz, rector of the church, was not at home when the fire broke out. Sunday was Souls Day and he was spending the afternoon in the cemetery at Woodbridge. He left for the cemetery shortly after the morning services.

Local Men Victims of Turkish Bath Theft

Cash totaling in the neighborhood of $300, three watches, three chains, a pen and some checks were taken from the check room at the Turkish bath on Division street, Perth Amboy, Sunday morning. The theft was reported by Peter Rull, the owner of the establishment, and a screw driver found by the proprietor in the check room, was turned over to the Perth Amboy police. Rull said one of his sons, who has been missing from home for several days, had the screw driver a few days ago. The valuables were put in the check room for safe keeping.

The victims were Harry Feinberg, Joseph Howlasky, Alex Wawerzszak, William Marrow, William Peterson and Leo Buskin, of Perth Amboy, Mike Holowchuck and Joseph Pelikan of this borough and Steve Lucko of Matawan.

Legion To Celebrate Next Monday Evening

The Roosevelt Post, No. 236, American Legion, will hold an armistice eve celebration for the benefit of a Christmas tree fund for the poor of Carteret, at St. Joseph's school auditorium in Monday evening, November 10. An old-fashioned pre-war dance and entertainment is scheduled. The Chelsea orchestra will furnish the dance music. General indications point to a big success of the affair.

GETS SIX MONTHS

Joseph Kohlik was sentenced to six months in the workhouse by Recorder Thomas L. Slugg in the local police court Wednesday night. It appears that when Alex Pavlik refused to give him free food, Kohlik threw a brick into his window. The police say that Kohlik has been a nuisance in the town, begging for food, etc.

HEALTH CLINIC YESTERDAY

The regular weekly baby clinic of the Board of Health was held yesterday. Approximately 35 patients were attended. There were three nurses in charge supervised by Health Inspector Frank Born.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank all the district leaders of the Democratic Organization, together with all the citizens of the Borough of Carteret, who gave me their support on Election Day, and I also wish to congratulate the successful candidates.

JOSEPH C. CHILD.

Card of Thanks

I wish to extend my thanks to all those who voted for me or in any way helped to make my election possible last Tuesday. I assure those people I will fulfill the trust they have shown me to the best of my ability.

RADICH PLACE IS DEMOLISHED

Early Morning Blaze Routs Many Boarders in Scant Attire To the Street—Flames Anihilate Valuables and Clothing.

GLARE CAUSES MUCH FURORE

Dwelling and Store Is Demolished Causing Damage Estimated at Over $10,000—Origin of the Fire Is Unknown.

Fire of undetermined origin broke out at 4.30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the frame boarding house dwelling occupied by Nicholas Radich at 43 Warren street and spread to the store, destroying both, as fire companies battled the flames and watched that nearby buildings should not be razed by the flames. Sparks from the Radich house fell on nearby roofs, but the firefighters kept their hose well directed.

The boarders and the Radich family fled to the street at the sight of fire. Dashing out the occupants of the house left everything behind in the house, the clothing, furniture and other valuables. Most of it was eaten up by the flames. The fire which started at dawn upset the entire section of Chrome. Men, women and children from all parts rushed to the scene. The huge flames, fanned by a light wind made it appear as all of Chrome was on fire.

Firemen estimated the damage at over $10,000. While the real cause of the fire is unknown, it is believed that it started in the cellar of the boarding house. The fire then spread quickly to the store.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Nemeth, of John street announced this week the engagement of their daughter, Rose, to Russel J. Monaghan, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Monaghan, of South Amboy. The date for the wedding has not been set.

The engagement was announced at a birthday party given last Friday night in honor of Miss Nemeth's birthday.

Thanks

To the people of the borough of Carteret:

I wish to publicly express my sincere gratitude to all the district leaders, all lieutenants and to all voters, men and women considered who so loyally and so zealously worked for my election on Tuesday, November 4, 1924.

JOS. A. HERMANN.

Nov. 7, 1924.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank my friends and co-workers for their assistance during the recent campaign. The propaganda that was spread throughout the borough reflecting upon me was false. I am proud to be connected with the Democratic party and though defeated, I feel our cause was just.

BILL MISDOM.

JOHN OMEARA IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

After Two Days of Illness, Died at Eight o'clock This Morning—Funeral to be Held on Monday Morning.

The borough mourns the loss of one of its oldest citizens in the death, after an illness of only two days, of John J. Omeara of 767 Roosevelt avenue, at 8 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Omeara was born in Ireland 77 years ago and came to this country when a young man in his teens, settled in Carteret and has always been prominent in social and business life. He is survived by his widow, Bryde Omeara.

Funeral services and interment will take place Monday morning at 9.30 o'clock at St. James cemetery, Woodbridge.

Carteret Members Help Elks Plan for a Dinner

Rahway Lodge, No. 1075, B. P. O. E., last night made plans for a social session, dinner and dance for which a committee will be named by Exalted Ruler William F. Weber. District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler B. Drummond Woolley, of Long Branch, is expected to be present at the next meeting, November 17. President A. Harry Moore, of the State Association, will be present at the meeting of the lodge of December 3. The annual memorial service will be held Sunday night, December 7, at Empire Theatre, that place. William Martin, of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, New York city, will deliver the address. There will be the customary musical features and lodge parts in connection with the service.

Church Officers Installed

MISS LAURA MORRIS WED TO H. YETMAN

Honeymoon Trip to Boston.

A pretty wedding took place Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morris, of 15 Washington avenue, when their daughter, Laura, became the bride of Harry Yetman, of Freehold. Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of the First Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony in the presence of a close family circle.

The bride was dressed in a combination gown of tan and brown bengaline and wore a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid, Miss Esther Morris, a sister of the bride, was dressed in a black satin-locked canton crepe. She carried a large bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. Claude Irons was the best man. The bride was given away by her father.

A delightful luncheon was served after the wedding ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Yetman then left for Boston on a week's wedding trip. On their return they will live on Washington avenue.

BOY SCOUT ITEMS

To Take Part In Parade at Perth Amboy Next Tuesday.

The Carteret Troop of the Boy Scouts of America will take part in the big night parade next Tuesday evening at Perth Amboy in commemoration of the sixth anniversary of the World War Armistice. The suggestion of a monster night parade was made by the Scout Executive of the Perth Amboy District Scout Council adopted by the Armistice Day Committee representing the patriotic and civic organizations that have been working on the celebration. Scoutmasters Charles Rapp and J. D. Robinson of the Carteret troops will be in charge of the scouts that go from this community. This part of the Perth Amboy Scout District will be represented on the Executive Committee of the Boy Scout Council by H. W. Thorne, who was recently elected to membership on that body.

year term. He received a total of 1446 votes as against 1264 cast in favor of William Misdom.

The Republicans also carried the offices of justices of the peace, Peter Goderstad and Clayton Young winning these offices over Dennis Fitzgerald and Steve Szymborski.

There was a Republican landslide throughout the nation.

PRETTY WEDDING AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

Miss Ruth O'Connor, Becomes Bride of Louis F. Kasha Last Wednesday—Ceremony Performed by Rev. O'Connor.

A beautiful wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. Father J. O'Connor at St. Joseph's Church on Wednesday of last week when Miss Ruth O'Connor became the bride of Louis F. Kasha.

The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Kasha of Westfield and the best man was William J. Burke of Brooklyns, brother of the bride. The bridesmaids were Madeline Kasha and Julia Kasha. Attendants were John Wilhelm and Anthony Wilhelm. James P. Burke acted as usher.

The bride wore a beautiful white canton crepe dress, white kid slippers and veil and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids gave a rainbow effect of blue, peach and gold. They wore silver wreaths and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums to match their gowns.

The flower girls, Jennie Pavlick and Ethel Pribula, were dressed in peach and white and carried corsage bouquets.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the parochial school auditorium where a supper was served. The newly married couple left to spend their honeymoon at Washington, D. C.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. P. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kasha, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Minas of White Plains, Mr. and Mrs. Pribula of Perth Amboy, Mayor and Mrs. T. J. Mulvihill, Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Nevil, Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. J. Greene of Jersey City, Mr. and Mrs. Larson of Plainfield, Mrs. Fenning, Miss Barbara Selmezy of Elizabeth, Mrs. Bodner and family, Rev. Father O'Connor, Miss Helen and Margaret Fleming, Miss Horvath of Trenton, Daniel Kasha, Mrs. Skimons, Fred Kimback, Miss Josephine Enright of New York, Miss Helen Kasha of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Pavlick, Mrs. Hasek and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jensen of Perth Amboy.

Card of Thanks

I, the undersigned, wish to thank the people of Carteret who voted and worked for me in this campaign and election. I will do my utmost to justify the faith and goodwill the voters have shown toward me.

DRY WOODS ARE IN IMMINENT DANGER

Many Forest Fires Throughout the Country Cause of Action—
Governor Silzer's Power Is Limited.

The hunting season in this state will not open on Monday. All hunting licenses in the State were temporarily suspended late yesterday afternoon by order of the Fish and Game Commission.

A few hours previously the State Department of Conservation and Development had issued an order closing all State forests to recreational purposes.

This action was taken as the result of continued drouth and forest fires, which have caused a serious situation to develop throughout the State. The forests are in such an inflammable condition that there is imminent danger of holocaust unless rain falls or drastic action is taken.

More than a week ago the chief executives of New York and Pennsylvania suspended the hunting season entirely, but Governor Silzer is without power to take similar action. He, therefore,

LA FOLLETTE VOTE FAR BELOW THE TOTAL EXPECTED

President's Plurality in New York State Little Below Harding's—Democrats Losing Kentucky; Wiped Out in Northwest—Poll Only One-Tenth Total Minnesota Vote for President—Doubtful States of the Far West Lean to the President.

Coolidge and Dawes have swept the country. Their electoral vote is not less than 374, counting only those states in which on Wednesday morning the lead for Coolidge seems absolutely secure.

Kentucky, swinging to Coolidge by what now seems to be a huge plurality, thus surprising all of the Democrats and most of the Republicans, follows Missouri aboard the Coolidge band wagon.

The latest figures from Missouri are: Coolidge, 235,342; Davis, 228,561, and La Follette, 17,147.

The Missouri figures show what happened to La Follette's expectations about the German vote.

Overcoming a Republican Presidential sweep that reached nearly a million plurality, Alfred E. Smith was re-elected Governor of New York, defeating his Republican opponent, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, by an estimated plurality of 165,000.

As a vote getter the Governor surpassed his performance of four years ago when, in the Harding landslide, he went down to defeat, although running more than a million votes ahead of his ticket.

By an enormous city vote the Governor overcame a heavy handicap, for Colonel Roosevelt captured the rock-ribbed Republican counties up-state. The Colonel, reversing the record of Nathan L. Miller, also carried Democratic city strongholds above the Bronx which Governor Smith easily carried two and four years ago.

Coolidge's popular vote is of landslide proportions. Complete returns will show it to be stupendous. The President has carried every state in the North and East, except Wisconsin, and every state in the West except New Mexico, which on Wednesday morning apparently Davis had carried by a small plurality. North Dakota, which is excluded from the above generalization, is showing a big lead for Coolidge, but the radical part of the state has not been heard from.

States Coolidge Carries

The electoral vote of 374 includes the following states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York,

THE CHOICE OF THE NATION

CALVIN COOLIDGE

CHARLES G. DAWES

Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Iowa, South Dakota, Kansas, Utah, Colorado, Nebraska, California, Minnesota, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, Wyoming, Arizona, Missouri and Nevada.

Latest figures from Minnesota are: Coolidge, 62,160; La Follette, 44,506; Davis, 9,765. Kentucky late returns show: Coolidge, 337,838; Davis, 331,233; La Follette, 29,800.

Early returns gave Nevada to La Follette, but the latest figures showed Coolidge 4,882, La Follette 4,269 and Davis 2,796.

In the state of Washington Coolidge is leading La Follette 14,083 to 6,745, while Davis is trailing with 2,029.

Missouri seems very close, late figures showing Coolidge 205,644, Davis 205,104 and La Follette 13,459.

Davis seems to have surely carried the Solid South, including Oklahoma and Tennessee. He also may have carried New Mexico. Arizona, while not counted in the list above, seems likely to go for Coolidge.

California seems to have gone for the President by 100,000, while Coolidge is beating La Follette by two to one in Iowa, where Senator Brookhart tried his best to wreck the Republican chances, although himself running on the Republican ticket.

Coolidge Leads in Montana
The latest figures from Montana give Coolidge 3,020 as against 1,530 for La Follette and 887 for Davis.

Washington has sent in most meager reports, but Coolidge is leading La Follette by more than two to one, while the vote of Davis is inconsequential.

I Idaho is giving the President a safe lead, approximately equal to the combined vote of Davis and La Follette.

Even Wisconsin is not going for "Battling Bob" by the landslide he so confidently expected. His plurality there may reach 50,000, but the latest figures show 65,540 for La Follette to 52,840 for Coolidge and 10,600 for Davis.

Coolidge carried Iowa, on the early returns, by a plurality which may reach more than 100,000.

Maryland on early returns gave Coolidge and Dawes 49,646 to 44,547 for Davis and 20,589 for La Follette. Nebraska, another state regarded for a time as having been in danger, gave 4,626 for Coolidge on early figures, to 3,534 for Davis and 868 for La Follette. Coolidge is running tremendously all over the country, even in the solid South, where he is piling up a big vote despite the hopelessness of carrying the states.

His leads in Maryland, Iowa and West Virginia are safe, it is figured, on returns so far received.

Ohio, which elected Wilson in 1916, when it was the East against the West and South, is going for the President by an overwhelming majority. Reports from 264 precincts give Coolidge 47,056 to 14,987 for Davis and only 6,130 for La Follette.

Illinois reported, from her first 273 precincts: Coolidge, 81,979; Davis, 23,241; La Follette, 17,888.

Iowa Falls La Follette
Even Iowa, considered by the La Follette backers one of their sure states, in her first seven precincts gave Coolidge 968, Davis 423 and La Follette the same number as Davis. La Follette's friends had expected to beat Coolidge here, and that Davis would run an insignificant third.

Furthermore, this is one of the states in which the La Follette people had counted tremendously on throwing the Democratic vote to La Follette, thus preventing Coolidge from winning the electoral vote and deadlocking the Electoral College.

West Virginia, Davis' own state, in her first 150 precincts to report, gave Coolidge 15,934; Davis, 14,720, and La Follette 1,043.

Coolidge has carried through Republican candidates for the Senate whom the Democrats had been confident of beating in such states as Rhode Island and Illinois.

His majorities in all the New England states will be stupendous. His majority in New York may exceed 1,000,000.

In Kansas, the early returns show him leading Davis by three to one. Cook county, which includes Chicago, the home of Brennan's famous Democratic machine, seems to be going for the President by a huge majority. The first half hundred precincts to report showed Coolidge leading Davis by three to one and leading La Follette about four to one.

In the biggest vote ever cast by this country in any election Coolidge seems likely to have pluralities over Davis in the East which will rival those of Harding over Cox four years ago.

The big surprise in some of the industrial states, notably Rhode Island, in Cook county, Ill., in up-state New York towns and cities and New England mill towns, is the failure of La Follette to win the labor vote which his friends had so confidently expected.

The fact that Rhode Island is going for the President by landslide figures also smashes at one of the frequently expressed hopes of the Democrats.

The tremendously important factor is that the states which were surveyed politically in the East are going for Coolidge on the early returns even heavier than almost any one expected. Which can be taken to indicate, pending receipt of returns from the West, that the same surveys in those states were probably as accurate as those in the East.

THIRD PARTY POLLS 4,000,000 VOTES IN WHOLE COUNTRY

Showing in Electoral College Far Behind Strength in Popular Support.

Returns from the Eastern and Southern States, and a few States in the West, showed that the Progressive Party movement, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, fell far short of the expectations of its leaders. Senator La Follette, apparently, has run a poor third in all States east of the Mississippi River, except his own State of Wisconsin, which he carried and Minnesota. He is running second in Montana, Nevada, California and the two Dakotas. Apparently his total vote in the country is about 4,000,000.

La Follette's greatest collapse was in California, where, so far from his carrying the State, the Republicans have it by a great majority. The following table shows the estimated La Follette vote in various States.

California	350,000
Illinois	350,000

His vote in other States varied from 1,000 or less in Arizona to about 45,000 in Maryland.

The forecasts by the Progressive Party leaders that La Follette and Wheeler would carry Illinois, Ohio and probably a few Eastern States were not made good. In both Illinois and Ohio Senator La Follette was many thousand votes behind John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, and the Wisconsin Senator received only a fraction of the total vote given to President Coolidge.

In New York State, where the backers of La Follette had predicted that the Progressive ticket would carry New York City, La Follette was a bad third. La Follette received fewer than half the votes recorded for Mr. Davis, and President Coolidge beat the Third Party candidate in New York the five of six to one. Most of the La Follette strength in New York, as in other Eastern States, was concentrated in few industrial centers.

In Massachusetts, where President Coolidge beat Mr. Davis six or seven to one, Mr. Davis beat La Follette more than two to one. Even in Boston, a city which La Follette leaders had professed confidence of carrying, Senator La Follette received but a negligible vote.

In Connecticut, another State where the Progressive Party leaders claimed great strength, early returns showed that President Coolidge was getting more than six votes for each given La Follette and that Mr. Davis was leading La Follette about two to one.

Poor Showing in South and West. The Progressive Party had expected to run first or second in New Hampshire, according to the predictions made, but the returns indicated that President Coolidge would beat Senator La Follette by fifteen to one or better, and that Davis was running ahead of La Follette at the rate of eight votes to one.

Another example of the collapse of the La Follette movement was supplied by Indiana, where President Coolidge was running about twelve to one ahead of the Third Party candidate in the early returns, and John W. Davis was running ten to one ahead of La Follette.

In Michigan, another State swept by President Coolidge, the La Follette-Wheeler vote was an unimportant factor, and La Follette was third. Indications were that President Coolidge was beating the Third Party candidate about eight to one and that John W. Davis had a two-and-one-half to one lead.

The same story was repeated in Ohio, where President Coolidge obtained an overwhelming plurality. President Coolidge was leading John W. Davis by about two to one and La Follette by better than five to one. Ohio was one of the States where the La Follette movement expected to show great strength, as it is the stronghold of the railroad brotherhoods. But the result showed that Senator La Follette was scarcely a factor in the contest.

The result in the Southern States was just as discouraging from the Third Party viewpoint. In Kentucky President Coolidge led La Follette in the returns by about four to one, and in Tennessee the Wisconsin Senator was third, with but a small fraction of the number of votes received by John W. Davis. In Oklahoma Senator La Follette received less than 1,000 out of 16,000 votes recorded in the early returns.

In the Middle West Iowa, a State which the La Follette leaders expected to carry by a big majority, President Coolidge early obtained a commanding lead and there was every indication that the President would get a heavy plurality in the final returns.

The Way of an Eagle

Surgeons Take Glass

From Lungs of Boy

St. Louis, Mo.—A cylindrical fragment of a glass bracelet, more than a quarter of an inch thick and a half-inch long, broken off to a point at one end, was removed at Missouri Baptist sanitarium from the right lung of Vernon Schuler, seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schuler.

This was the third operation the boy had undergone in two weeks. The shape of the fragment and the depth to which it was imbedded required the making of a special instrument and numerous experiments which sacrificed three dogs.

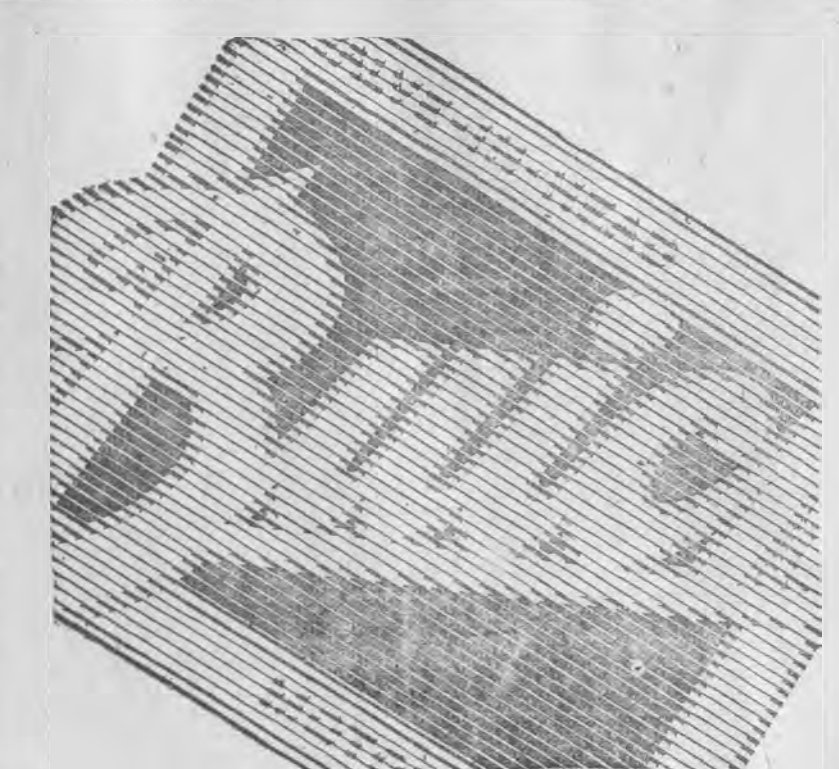

The boy will remain at the hospital only for treatment to clear up an abscess which formed while the glass remained in his lung.

Origin of Familiar Words

Some of our words owe their present form to the mistakes of our forefathers. A belfry, which originally had nothing to do with a bell, is correctly a belfry, i. e., a watch tower. A certain kind of apple used to be known as a costard, and a dealer in this fruit as a costardmonger, and later on as a costermonger. Similarly, a grocer was originally an engrosser, or a dealer in gross, while a butcher was a bocher or killer of goats.—London Mail.

Good Word for Birds

Many birds believed pests are actually of help to the farmer, according to a recent survey, which claims that thousands are ruthlessly slaughtered in belief that they are grain or fruit eaters when they really live on insects. English sparrows feed upon the seventeen-year locust, and other insects, and should be protected. Contrary to belief, the crow's good traits outnumber his bad habits, and all shore birds are beneficial.—Exchange.

Chestnut and Cedar Forests Furnish Poles for Electric Transmission Wires

Cedar Poles Being Subjected to the Treating Process. They Are Standing in a Creosote Solution Which Is a Preventive Against Rotting.

UPWARDS of 211,000 poles are now in use by the electric department of Public Service Electric and Gas Company in maintaining its distribution system. These poles are of two kinds—chestnut and cedar. The chestnut poles are obtained in Virginia and North Carolina and the cedar poles come from eastern Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia.

Because of blights, the chestnut tree area has been greatly reduced and this scarcity of chestnut has increased the use of cedar, which is more costly because the transportation distance is greater. Whereas once the chestnut tree flourished in New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, its growth now is practically limited to the South, principally to Virginia and North Carolina.

Chestnut comes under the hard wood classification and is very durable, especially in contact with the ground. Cedar is of the soft wood variety and has also been found durable. The chestnut trees used for poles are second growth; they are sprouts which grow from the butt of a fallen tree. The cedar tree does not sprout in this manner. Both chestnut and cedar poles are taken from trees in dense forests. Trees, naturally, seek light, and in a dense forest with no room to spread out and with a comparatively small degree of light the trees grow to considerable height, reaching up for the light necessary to existence.

The cedar poles of the West are subjected to a puncturing process which the chestnuts of the East and South do not get. The cedars are sent from the forest camp to treating plants at Spokane, Minneapolis or one of the other large cities in the Northwest. At these plants the cedars are punctured, that is, they are slightly perforated at the base to enable the creosote solution into which they are dipped to penetrate more thoroughly. This solution is a preventive against rotting. For four hours the butt of the pole stands in a hot solution; then it is placed in a cold solution. The resulting expansion and contraction force the preservative into the wood.

After being felled in the forest the trees are cut into various lengths and are steam-barked to remove the triangular-shaped wooden channels filled with water, down which the poles float to the nearest river. Some of the fumes are six miles long. At the river the poles are assorted and rafted, to be towed to the shipping point and loaded on railroad cars.

All poles are bought subject to specifications and are inspected thoroughly upon their arrival at the treating plants in New Jersey. The life of a pole is usually ten years, and after the pole has been in the ground five years it is inspected every year. Special attention is paid to the ground line where the fungous growth would be most likely to attack the pole. Moisture and warmth are two factors which aid this fungous disease.

Most of the poles in use are of thirty-five-foot length. There are in use, however, some seventy-five-foot poles, these being used to bridge rivers, brooks and other bodies of water. There are two ninety-foot poles in active service, probably the only ones that height in use east of the Mississippi River.

The two ninety-foot giants are on the Burlington-Riverside transmission line and enable the line, which bears three circuits, to clear an oak tree, reputed to be 500 years old, which towers along the roadside on a farm on the Camden Turnpike near Beverly. These poles were shipped from the State of Washington on a special order when it was found that seventy-five-foot poles would not permit the wires to clear the top foliage of the tree.

ROBIN HOOD IS KILLED BY NEW YORK POLICEMAN

Bullet Ends Life of Picturesque Gotham Underworld Character.

New York.—Yap, "the cannon with a heart," is dead. Sculptor, thief and humanitarian—a many-sided individual, a distinctive personality, perhaps a potential Leonardo da Vinci, but with an underworld character, who died by a policeman's bullet. That was "Yap," the "racket guy" whom the "mob," as his colleagues refer to themselves, dubbed "the cannon with a heart."

Little Italy now mourns Yap's passing. His diversity made him a frequenter of every art shop, every antique shop, every store where church statuettes and ecclesiastical vestments are sold, as well as every poolroom, gaming house and restaurant in the vicinity of his home.

Known as "Good Boy," the "mob" will tell you there never was a tinkerer ("cannon") who was more tenderly disposed toward his fellow men than Yap—when he wasn't pursuing his racket. The artists, sculptors and shopkeepers of the neighborhood will tell you that Yap was a "very good boy," who was always carving little things out of wood, clay or vegetables.

He'd whittle a broomstick until it looked like a candle or a large spike, then present it to some kid playing in the street. Or he'd walk over to a vegetable stand, pick up a carrot or a radish and begin whittling it until it lost its vegetable aspect and became a monkey or a bird or something. This he'd present to the standman or the standman's wife, and walk away to continue his visits to his various haunts.

"Loaded" in Studio. His favorite neighborhood hangout rainy afternoons was the studio of Andrew Maggi, sculptor, Pleasant avenue, near One Hundred and Seventeenth street. There was a time when Yap earned an honest dollar in Maggi's studio by assisting the sculptor in the modeling of commercial objects of art. But Yap wouldn't stay put. He must needs haunt the crowded spaces—subway stations, public events, etc., in pursuit of his light-fingered avocation. So he'd come to Maggi's studio and pass all afternoon there modeling a clay amoretto or something, which would be presented to a friend, or even an acquaintance.

Those deft fingers of Yap's might have carved a high niche for himself. He could have easily earned an honest living with high pay as a stonecutter or a statuette maker. But he preferred to play with the artistic talent that was part of him, and then go out and jeopardize his liberty by casting his fingers about promiscuously. Bringing them into soft and stealthy contact with the various "prats" (pockets) in which men kept their money.

Deep Sea Swimmer Uses Head to Carry Compass

Husum, Germany.—Otto Kemmerich, Germany's best-known "deep-sea" swimmer, completed a swim recently from Husum to Wik Island, forty miles out in the North sea, being in the water a little more than twelve hours.

Kemmerich made the voyage without companions in boats, as is the custom of most long-distance swimmers, and carried a watch and a compass in a waterproof pocket affair which fitted to the back of his head.

Dryden, Wash.—The leak in the dike story was re-enacted near here when Edward Pitcher, ditch walker, held back what might have been a serious flood by throwing his body in the vent to keep water from breaking through a new-found hole in the irrigation canal wall. J. Craswell, another workman, found the man and went for help to divert the irrigation waters through other channels. Pitcher suffered from colds resulting from the exposure and is recovering.

$375,000 Left to Boy Making $25 a Week

Atlantic City.—Henry Roelofs, of Margate park, near here, who is twenty years old, works for $25 a week in Burt's radio repair shop and has a wife and a month-old daughter, will receive about $375,000 on October 11 left to him by his great-grandfather, John B. Stetson, hat manufacturer. He explained that he had just told his wife about his good fortune.

"I thought I'd better tell her," he said, "she may be able to use the money. Anyway, I figured it would be hard to explain, if I didn't tell her what was going to happen, why I was bringing home so much cash on that day."

Young Roelofs' fortune was originally $100,000. That sum was bequeathed to him by Mr. Stetson nineteen years ago, and ever since then it has been drawing compound interest, waiting for the boy to reach the age of twenty-one. He said he had not yet decided what he would do, and would not until he had had further conferences with Mrs. Roelofs. He thinks it likely that he will go in business for himself.

BEEES SEIZE FARM AND STOP WORK

Grab Load of Hay and Then Assume Charge of Barn.

Coatesville, Pa.—A swarm of bees played havoc with harvesting operations at the farm of C. K. Paxson, three miles west of here, near Sadsburyville. The other day Paxson and his farmhands started to haul in hay.

Two wagons were loaded when a swarm of bees suddenly appeared, about half of the bees alighting on the one load and the other half on the other. Taxson and his helpers gave way before the onslaught and devoted their energies to a neighboring wheat field.

A few nights later Paxson decided to take one load of hay to the barn. In the morning, when he opened the barn, he found the honey-makers had taken possession of that structure and resisted all efforts to make them vacate.

Every man and woman on the place has felt the stings of the bees, and at noon operations on the farm were at a complete standstill while efforts were being made to hive the swarm.

SAFETY

Milk shares with all other foods habitually consumed raw, the possibility of transmission of disease germs. Pasteurization constitutes at once a cheap and effective protection against germs both human and animal origin. The most resistant of these germs is killed by exposure to 143 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit for thirty minutes—in fact this actually allows a satisfactory margin of safety.

The process of pasturization is easily supervised, substituting as it does one process for all the other multitudinous precautions otherwise essential for production of a truly safe milk.

It seems too good to be true that an expenditure of a comparatively small amount per gallon enables us to secure an absolutely safe milk, but such is the fact.

Pasteurization of all milk except certified, is now compulsory in larger cities and common in medium-sized cities. The practice of pasturization has been in operation for sufficient time demonstrate diminution in tuberculosis and the epidemic diseases in those cities where these diseases were formerly spread at times by milk.

Prisoners Are Made to Sing and Talk

Berlin.—One of the most interesting by-products of the World war has been the founding in Berlin of an "anthropophonic" library as a part of the Prussian state library. It is an aggregation of human sounds perpetuated upon phonograph plates and was founded by Prof. Wilhelm Doegen.

Struck by the idea that the presence of the prisoners of war from every quarter of the globe in German internment camps afforded a unique opportunity for assembling a collection of sounds and songs and pronunciations of words, he undertook the task.

Professor Doegen spent months in visiting the prison camps as head of a commission of scientists, and asked the prisoners to sing folk songs and pronounce words and utter various characteristic music on native instruments of various countries.

The collection of sounds now numbers some 3,000, and includes those from most nations of the earth, as Professor Doegen's researches were greatly extended after the war. Of each reproduction three original plates are made with an estimated life of 9,000 or 10,000 years. These are carefully stored in the vaults of the library, while ordinary hard-rubber plates are used for the demonstrations.

More lately the collection has been extended to include noises in nature, such as the rustling of leaves, the whistling of the wind, the roar of the ocean and the roll of thunder.

Disrobe Man in Park and Steal His Clothes

New York.—Everybody in the neighborhood seemed to be in Yorkville court when George Preston told his tale. What with the crimson damask hangings of the bench and the rosy blushes of the court attendants, spectators and police gave the courtroom the air of a garden of red, red roses in June; only it didn't smell so good.

Mr. Preston informed the court that while strolling in Central park near the duck pond two men set upon him and made him disrobe. Horrified, Mr. Preston demurred. Insistent, the men forced him to remove his garments, divided them and put them on, leaving enough of their own tatters to save Mr. Preston the necessity of creeping homeward in a barrel.

Shoves Babe in Window to Reserve Train Seat

New York.—Police of the Long Island railroad are looking for a young man, seemingly too young to be a father, who reserved his seat in a passenger coach at a platform in Jamaica by thrusting a baby through the window, then sauntered leisurely behind the crowd clamoring for admission by way of the door.

Boy Shoots Brother in Mistake for Panther

Hagerstown, Md.—Mistaken for the panther which has been roaming the mountains above Clear Spring, west of here, Morris Weaver, seventeen years old, was shot and instantly killed by his brother, Kenneth Weaver.

The boys were hunting squirrels, but neither knew the other was in that section of the woods. When a head protruded over a rock, Kenneth, fearing it was the panther they had seen on several occasions in the last few weeks, fired. Seeing a movement in the bushes, he fired again, and then ran home and told his mother he had killed the panther.

A few moments later the father, who had just come out of the woods, heard a scream, and believing they also had been attacked by the beast, hurried into the woods, only to find his wife and son bearing the dead body of his other boy.

POSSIBLE TO WIN FAME IN PRISON

Convict Pianist Gains Reputation by Radio.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Many people regard a prison as the last place in which to achieve fame, but the case of Harry Snodgrass, convict in the Missouri State penitentiary here, is an exception. For Harry, although serving a term behind the stone walls of the state prison, has not only achieved renown, but he has acquired nationwide fame, as well—chiefly due to radio.

More than two years ago he was sentenced to serve three years on a charge of attempted robbery. He entered prison virtually unknown, but today his name is familiar to persons in almost every section of the country. Harry brought a gift of his fingers with him. He is a pianist of rare ability and can play with extraordinary skill and technique, several masters have declared. Soon he was playing once a week or more at the state broadcasting station WOS, one of the most powerful in the country.

People began to write asking who the "wonderful" pianist was. His name became known, and now Snodgrass' renditions both of popular and classical music are given to a wide radio audience.

THE NATIONAL ELECTION

In electing President Calvin Coolidge for President of the United States, the nation's citizens have made a good choice. The leadership of President Coolidge was concisely demonstrated with the landslide vote he has received in almost every state of the Union. Now there is no twinge of conscience that Mr. Coolidge is the choice of the people and not a particular few or class and they should be congratulated upon the wise selection they have made.

The President did not seek his re-election on radical or false promises. He sought the office upon a clear platform, a platform that called for honest and efficient government. The business world has laid much confidence on Mr. Coolidge. His re-election will no doubt stimulate enthusiastic business revival not only in America, but throughout the world. Pending the outcome of the election, most of the factories, plants and business houses kept things at a standstill. A boom, second none is very evident.

The success achieved at the polls by the President despite the many obstacles such as LaFollette and his destructive campaign pledges, is surely one worthy of note.

GET BEHIND THE OFFICIALS

With the election over, it is only fair and proper that we back up those that are in power and control of the borough in order that our Carteret will continue to grow and prosper.

The majority of the people chose Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill to continue to be their mayor and as such he should receive the support of every citizen here. There are many improvements we can stand and if we are to grow and become larger in population and business, we should fall in line and adopt policies that would tend to develop and construct our resources here in Carteret.

The platforms and policies which Mayor Mulvihill pledged will no doubt be carried out to the best interests of the people and with a council to back him up, we feel that the welfare of Carteret will be looked after to a very high degree. Faults can be found with an official, but we are sure that when the Mayor and Council get behind those projects which we all are in accord, then only success can come to those that serve.

ARMISTICE DAY

Next Tuesday, November 11th, will be six years since the signing of the armistice that ended the great world war, in which our country was involved. It seems only like yesterday that soldiers, sailors and marines were in action over there.

That day should not go unnoticed here in our borough, for all over the world, services will be held to commemorate the end of the war, which cost millions of lives and billions of dollars.

Suitable exercises should be held in the schools and we are sure that the American Legion will see to it that this day does not go by without due recognition of those that gave their lives that our great country should retain its freedom which our forefathers fought for in years gone by.

Armistice Day is the day that brought to a close the most tremendous and devastating trial of arms

REDDY FOX

OLD REDDY FOX was watching the moon; it was shining a little too bright for the work he had planned to do that night. He was hoping a big cloud would float along and cover it long enough for him to run over to a farm where some motherless turkeys were roosting in a tree.

The tree where the young turkeys were sleeping was close by a shed. Reddy dropped the feathers he carried in his mouth and listened. Everything was still. "Wake up, my dears," he called. "It is your old grandmother come to take care of you, my pretty dears."

All the little turkey chicks awoke with a start. "Where are you, grandmother?" one of them asked.

"Down here on the ground, under the tree, my dear," said Old Reddy.

"Oh, no; you can't be grandmother," said another chick; "your voice is too gruff."

"I'll fix that," thought Reddy, ruminating behind the barn, where he knew there was a pot of wagon grease.

"My, what dreadful stuff," he said, shaking his head after he had taken a swallow. "I guess that will smooth my voice and the breakfast I get will make up for the horrid taste of that grease."

"My dears, my dears," he called again. "I am your old grandmother come to take care of you."

"Your voice is softer, grandmother," said a chick, "but why are you out at night; why didn't you come in the daytime?"

"I am an old creature," my dear," replied Reddy Fox. "I thought you might be ashamed of my old-fashioned feathers, but can't you come down—one by one—and see me, and if you do not like your old granny, I can go away in the morning."

"Grandmother," said one wise chief "we have very sharp eyes and we can see your feathers even in the dim moonlight. Walk out from the bushes and let us see you."

Reddy Fox picked up the feather and waved his head as he cautiously crept from his hiding place.

"You walk very slowly, grandmother," said a chick. "Are you very old?"

Of course Reddy could not answer with the feathers in his mouth, so he went back under the bushes and dropped them. "Yes, very old indeed," he said, "and I want to see my grandchildren before I die."

The wagon grease was beginning to make his stomach feel very queer and old Reddy was quite truthful when he answered, "I don't know. I feel quite ill, oh, very ill indeed."

"Can't you come up, grandmother? There is a board by the side of the shed," said one chick.

Reddy for the moment forgot his queer feelings, thinking of all those tender turkeys over his head. He crept around to the board and began to walk up when suddenly his head felt as queer as his stomach.

He had just reached the top of the shed when around went his head and down tumbled Reddy to the ground!

"Oh, grandmother, grandmother!" cried all the young turkeys, flapping their wings. "Are you hurt?"

Mr. Gobbler was awake now with all the noise and he gobbled loudly. The ducks heard the noise, too, and began to quack and the hens, faking up the cry, began to cackle and Mr. Dog bounded out of his house with a loud bark.

Old Reddy Fox jumped up and bounded for home. He had lost his breakfast, but so sick was he, he cared little for that—indeed, he did not care at that moment if he never tasted turkey again as long as he lived.

AGAINST THE WALL

If I live till my fighting days are done I must fasten my armor on my eldest son.

I would give him better, but this is my last; I can not along without it—I'll be glad to have a rest.

And I'll sit mending armor with my back against the wall, because I have a young son if this one should fall.

So I'll make it very shiny, and I'll whittle very loud, and I'll slap him on the shoulder and I'll say, very proud:

"This is the lance I used to bear!" (But I mustn't tell what happened when I bore it.)

"This is the helmet I used to wear!" (But I won't say what befell me when I wore it.)

For you couldn't tell a youngster—it wouldn't be right—That you wish you had died in your very first fight.

And I mustn't say that victory is never worth the cost, That defeat may be bitter, but it's better to have lost.

And I mustn't say that glory is as barren as a stone—I'd better not say anything, but leave the fact alone.

So he'll fight very bravely and probably he'll fall, And I'll sit mending armor with my back against the wall.

Russians Make Museum of Famous Cathedral

The great St. Isaac's cathedral at Leningrad, a mecca for tourists, has been turned into a museum, Pathfinders Magazine reports. Dwindling church attendance and lack of money contributions toward its upkeep is said to be the reason. Admission will now be free. This great church was erected at a cost of $11,000,000. Its golden dome can be seen from a distance of many miles. The exterior columns are of red granite. Massive bronze doors lead into the edifice. In the days of the czar the interior was hung with rich paintings, and magnificent icons and vessels of gold and silver adorned the altars.

English Superstition

There are many English superstitions connected with babies, the most interesting of which being what is known as "the christening bit." On the way to the christening the nurse must take with her a small bag of biscuits, which she must offer to the first person she meets. If he refuses, the child will be unlucky, but if he accepts, then good fortune will smile upon the babe.

Somebody Forgot His Cue

It was a sleepy sort of day, the class was about half the usual size and the "prof." was calling the roll in a half-sleep manner. To each name some one had answered "Here" until the name of Smith was called. Silence reigned for a moment only to be broken by the instructor's voice: "My word! hasn't Mr. Smith any friends here?"—College Humor.

Plan to Make London City Built on Stilts

Much has been said and written recently regarding traffic problems in our great cities, particularly with regard to the congestion of the London streets.

Among the many remedies that have been suggested one of the most interesting, and perhaps the most drastic, is that advocated by Lord Montagu of Beaulieu and published in London Answers.

His scheme is that overhead roads, clear of all existing streets and houses, should be built in London. Such overhead roads might run from London docks to the neighborhood of Edgeware road, from the Surrey docks to Tottenham and from the Crystal Palace to Tottenham or Highgate. The roadways would be 60 feet wide, sufficient for six lanes of traffic, and would be supported on giant pillars, some of which would be fitted as lifts for taking vehicles up and down while others would be let as residential flats.

It is estimated that the cost of constructing these overhead roads would be less than that of widening existing streets or of building new tubes. So the idea may one day materialize. If it does other centers will doubtless follow London's example and the city on stilts may be a commonplace of the town-planning of the future.

Lost Ring Restored

Through Black Magic

Black magic recovered a lost ring in Natal, South Africa. The wife of a farmer living at Mooi River missed a very valuable diamond ring. A detective called in could discover no clues leading to its recovery. The farmer then went to see a well-known Zulu witch-doctor, or "Isangoma," as the natives called him. The witch-doctor said: "You have come about the ring. Sit down, and I will call the spirit." A short while later a scratching noise was heard in the roof of the kraal, and the witch-doctor spoke: "Listen," he said, "the spirit talks. He is saying that as you have already gone to the police he will not help you. However, you may rest assured the ring will come back." A month later the farmer and his wife were at the Theater Royal, Durban. They went out during the interval, and by some curious chance, the lady left her bag behind. When she returned and opened it, there lay the ring! The bag was quite new and had been purchased a few days previously.

Heroic Frenchwoman

A solitary woman passenger was traveling in the Paris-Constantinople air express when the machine caught fire. If the flames had reached the fuel tank the airplane would have been blown to pieces. The passenger, a Frenchwoman, prevented it. She rammed a hole in the tank and let the petrol out. The pilot stopped his engine and glided 1,200 feet down to an island in the Danube, near Budapest. The machine was burned to ashes, but the mails were saved, and neither pilot nor passenger was injured. The next day they went on in another plane.

Sandals Caused Scandals

Several amusing incidents have occurred since the recently discovered mosaics at the Clapham house, Westminster, England, were opened to the public. At first visitors had to remove their shoes and assume sandals. One absent-minded man walked into the street still wearing his sandals; while another visitor found a dilapidated pair of shoes left in place of his perfectly sound pair. Such mistakes are now obviated by the sandals being placed over the footwear.

MIRRORS

ONE day the professor began to notice how many mirrors there are in New York City, and how many people make use of them. There was a drug store round the corner from the professor's home where, up above the soda water fountain, hung a wide glass. As young America drew in orangeade through a straw, or consumed his raspberry crush, or her chocolate fudge sundae, he might observe the straight line of his part—she might see the most becoming angle at which to hold her spoon.

Again, walking down the avenue, the professor noticed that not all who gazed in the plate glass fronts were seeing merchandise. For furtively one stout dowager would glance at the long lines of her size-reducing draperies. Another little, fantastic, bob-haired shop-roamer would flick out her short skirts, peering back admiringly over her shoulder at her reflection. Or a mannish, superior lady would linger until no one was in sight, and then smile with approbation at herself. The more expert, indeed, might seem to look through white looking in, but eventually a hand would steal up to the hair, or a shoulder would move appraisingly.

The other night the professor was waiting for his train on a crowded subway platform. Halfway down was one of those conveniently placed chewing-gum slot machines, each of which had a twelve-by-eight-inch mirror set in above the push-buttons. Before it a very tall man was bending and bowing. Quite honestly and entirely unconsciously he was rearranging his collar and smoothing his hair. He had placed his packages on the shelf under which the chewing-gum is locked. His hat he had hung on one of the pushes. After taking off his tie, he readjusted the button at his neck, made a new bow, and then, his fingers and palm taking the place of comb and brush, he parted and smoothed his hair to his satisfaction, and put his hat on again at the right slant. Finally he pressed a penny in the slot and went off a saucer man.

On the whole, decided the professor, mirror-gazing is a disappointing habit. It leads to self-consciousness; and self-consciousness once fastened upon you, heaven help you—the doctor cannot. Look long and carefully and critically at yourself in your own glass before you go forth from your own room. Then forget what manner of man—or woman—you are—or would be—for the rest is upon the streets of the gods.

WHAT CAME FIRST

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

YOU do not need a lot of lore. Some book to read, or page to pore. To find how men have lost or won, Have faltered then, or got things done. For men have won or men have lost, Have faltered, son, or mountains crossed, Have failed the worst, or chasms passed, By what came first and what came last.

Our course we choose like ships at sea, And win or lose the victory According to our daily rule. In all we do in shop or school, Work, rest and play, we need them all; And yet some day we rise or fall— Have failed the worst, or wealth amassed, By what came first and what came last.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

THERE is only one good reason why a man "can't find the time to call on you"—and that reason is always either a blond or a brunette.

No matter how intellectual, noble or dignified a man may be, nothing so thrills him as to have a woman call him a "fascinating devil!"

Somehow, a man spends his whole life in crowning a woman with some title—either a halo, a new hat or a pair of horns.

Nothing wounds a man's vanity so deeply as to tell him that he would be "simply perfect, BUT—" or stabs a woman's vanity so cruelly as to tell her that she would be "perfectly beautiful, IF—" It is almost as fatal as sending the flowers with the bill attached.

BOY, 14, SLAYS GRANDMOTHER TO STEAL $108

Lay in Wait for Hours, Tells Police, and Shot Her Twice With Rifle.

Pottsville, Pa.—Calmly and without a sign of remorse William Cavalier, fourteen-year-old school boy, confessed to the state police here that he shot and killed his grandmother, who had reared him from babyhood.

"I did it to get her money," he said. The boy murdered Mrs. Catherine Cavalier, fifty-eight years old, hid her body in a room near her own bedroom and duped her husband into believing she had left suddenly for Florida.

Shot Twice to "Make Sure." The boy explained he had lain in wait for her with a small rifle for several hours. He shot her twice. The first bullet penetrated her heart, but to "make sure" her grandson fired again into the prostrate body. Then he searched her, the boy said, and took $108 from her pocketbook.

"Grandpa believed me when I told him she had gone away," the boy said. The body of the grandmother was found on the floor of the dining room of her small and modest home in Mechanicsville, a suburb of this city, by state troopers, who broke into the place at the instance of neighbors. The boy's parents are living, but he lived at his grandmother's home.

The murder, the boy confessed, was committed as Mrs. Cavalier entered her home after shopping in Pottsville.

Long Planned Deed.

The body had lain where the woman had fallen until its discovery.

"I killed her because I wanted the money," the youth calmly said when detectives broke down his original story of burglars having entered the house. The body was found when Mr. Cavalier, husband of the slain woman, became alarmed at her absence.

Long Planned Deed.

"For a long time I had been planning to do it, but did not have the chance," the boy went on. "Grandfather was out, so when grandmother came in I shot her with a rifle that was in the house. She fell to the floor, and then I shot her again.

"She kept on groaning, so to keep her quiet I stuffed some soft tissue paper in her mouth. In her pockets and in the bureau drawers I found $108, which I took.

"Then I locked her in a spare room and took the key of the door. When grandfather came home I told him that grandmother had gone away for a visit. He believed me.

The police at first were inclined to accept the new story of the young murderer to the effect that burglars had committed the crime. To substantiate his story he had hacked a window to give it the appearance of having been broken open from the outside, but the job was done so clumsily their suspicions were aroused and fastened on him. These were verified when the rifle was examined and disclosed finger marks which the boy had left on it.

After the murder, young Cavalier went to a motion picture show.

Odd Exploit of Man Who Goes Insane About Mars

Vienna.—His mind unbalanced by excessive ponder on the question whether Mars is inhabited, Franz Entenpferner, a mechanic at the Vienna observatory, walked into the street here recently without clothing and jumped aboard a street car, shouting for a ticket to Mars. He was persuaded that an automobile would get him to his destination in shorter time, and was removed to an insane asylum.

Rattler's Victim Saved

Gregory, S. D.—Struck by the fangs of a rattlesnake, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tuppig, living on the old Crilly ranch in this district, was taken to Gregory for medical attention. The parents applied first aid by killing a chicken and placing the warm flesh against the wound. This drew out enough of the poison to save the child's life.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN LOVES

SHE loves to be told once in a while that the older she gets the prettier she gets.

She likes to realize that her efforts to make one dollar do the work of two are thoroughly appreciated.

She adores being called "baby" or "lovey-dovey," even when she is over fifty.

She also adores being bossed occasionally and ordered to do things which she simply loves doing.

(For instance, making her husband apple-dumplings or kissing him behind his left ear.)

She loves to be told she is getting shabby, and that her husband is getting fed up with the sight of her best hat and would like to see her in another.

She likes to be told that none of her photos do her justice.

She adores having her husband refer to "My Wife" every time he commences a conversation.

She loves to know he carries her miniature in his watch and has a lock of her hair hidden amongst his private papers.

She likes to have a letter from him every day when he has to be away from home.

And she adores a good little cry now and again somewhere about the region of his shirt-front, and having him wipe away the crocodile tears with a tobacco-smelly handkerchief.

She likes to hear him say sometimes, "Oh, let's eat downtown," and she loves to powder her nose and dress up to go with him.

And above all, she adores to realize that if her husband had the chance to be someone else he would always choose to be her second husband.

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE average love affair begins with a kiss—of experiment, and ends with a sigh—of relief.

The attitude of a man toward a girl has changed from a plea to a dare—from "Let me kiss you!" to "Make me kiss you—if you can!"

Men, according to the modern girl's philosophy, are merely a side-line. Still, they are the only thing there is to flirt with, dance with, fall in love with or marry; and that's all they have to be, after all.

It is always blossom time in the heart of a woman who is loved—and always May time in the heart of a man who is in love.

Men have a funny code, all their own. A cowpuncher is ashamed to be seen in an evening coat; an ex-bar-tender blushes to be caught serving soda water; and a married man hates to be caught buying flowers for his own wife. Yet, all of these things are perfectly respectable.

Every man wants a woman to appeal to his higher nature and his finer instincts—and another woman to help him forget them.

When a man waits until five years after marriage to discover that his wife's cooking disagrees with him, or to pick flaws in her housekeeping, it is a sign that she should get some pretty new clothes, a new hairdresser, and a new beauty cream.

It was queer reasoning that induced Mr. Flower to change his name. He was a Portuguese—so Felix Weiss, immigration inspector, tells us—and appearing before the board of special inquiry, he gave his name willingly enough.

"What, Mr. Flower, was your name before you came to America?" inquired one of the board.

"Oh, no change him to make easy for American people. In San Miguel they call me Farina. You know Farina that's flour—that's me."—Youth's Companion.

QUIBS' OF SPORT

Eddie Ekroy

The New Jersey hunting season will not open Monday. All hunting licenses in the State were temporarily suspended late yesterday afternoon by order of the Fish and Game Commission.

A Fine Representation

The day of pugs is here. Carteret is being represented by the finest flock of scrappers who ever attempted to act as delegates in the ring before.

Morris is the only one of the three who has had a real chance to prove that he is one of this flock, but taking their past records into consideration and what they have done so far this season they are the real members of the finest representation Carteret has ever had.

Aided by Johnny Carrol, who expects to get in a busy campaign this winter, Morris, Lynch and Martin will probably put the borough on the list of fighting towns and a producer of good fighters.

Morris is the most active of the three and if he keeps up his present fast rate he will land in among the best lightweights of the country.

Dick Lynch showed that he means business by his earnest training and his good showing in Perth Amboy last week against Cy Stevens...

Sid Martin is a new comer from the Philippine Islands and has fought in these parts already. His bout last week with Gats Gargano was a jinx as he wrenched his arm and was not able to give a good account of himself.

Good Spirit Prevails

At present it looks as though basketball will suffer its worst season this coming winter since its inauguration in the borough. The lack of spirit by no means is the cause of this prediction, but the lack of courts.

It is astonishing how the athletes are taking an interest in the game when there are no local courts to play on. They are to be complimented for their good spirit.

A number of cage teams have organized already for their respective campaigns. The Spartans have not reorganized yet but are preparing to do so very shortly and the Carteret High School will play at least a dozen games, mostly all traveling.

One often hears the saying, "Boxers are born and not made." This expression fits with Dave Lynch, junior welterweight, like Sammy Mandell's sheik suit fits him.

Dick's brother, Dave, who is his manager, the shrewdest in town, said to me last night, "Dick was liked by the fans last winter because he was full of pep and kept going from gong to gong."

Lynch's continuous stepping around his opponent in any of his fights has earned a remarkable record for himself. He has never been knocked down, but he has knocked plenty of his opponents off of their supporters.

Dave Lynch is confident that Dick will be ready for a crack at the title. Dick will meet Roy O'Neil next Monday night at Perth Amboy in an eight rounder.

The colored boy is a fast worker and packs a punch that is capable of rocking a ferryboat. It will take a boy who is fast and who can hit hard to beat O'Neil in that bout and I am not the only one who thinks that Dick can turn the trick.

Before long he will be slated in a bout at Trenton, but his opponent is not known yet. Boxing shows are becoming a routine in Elizabeth and Lynch will also fight on a few cards there this season.

On taking a glance at his record you will notice that he has beaten a number of good boys, such as Joe Coolbaugh, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., Roy Reed of New Brunswick, Joe Pole, Al Bain and Jimmy Ramsey. He defeated Snapper Bartlett on three occasions at Elizabeth.

In his only mix-up here he sent Chick Woody, of Elizabeth, to the canvas for a two-round knockout, gaining much favor from the local fans.

Lynch's record of twenty-five bouts follows: Draw with Charley Leslie, Perth Amboy.

Won over Jim Ramsey, 4 rounds, Newark.

Won over Snapper Bartlett, 6 rounds, Elizabeth.

Draw, Kid Sid, 4 rounds, Perth Amboy.

Won over Tom Buck, 6 rounds, Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Won over Roy Reed, 6 rounds, Perth Amboy.

Won over Nat Marks, 6 rounds, New Brunswick.

Knockout over Fred Devito, 3 rounds, Perth Amboy.

Won over Johnny Palmer, 6 rounds, Perth Amboy.

Won over Snapper Bartlett, 6 rounds, Elizabeth.

Won over Bullet Harrison, 6 rounds, Elizabeth.

Knockout over Young Mayo, 4 rounds, Elizabeth.

Won over Joe Pole, 6 rounds, Hazleton, Pa.

STARTING WITH A CLEAN SLATE

By SELINA HIGGINS

"A CLEAN slate, Mr. Boyden," proclaimed Warren Bliss with a great sigh of satisfaction and relief. "I begin life all over again."

"You are a fool!" growled Samuel Boyden.

"I hope Cleora does not share in the same sentiment," observed Bliss, hopefully.

"She will when she knows the details!" stormed Boyden. "Why, what sense or reason was there in your shouldering the Evans claims. That $15,000 was charged as a debt due the company, not you. It's a shame, an outrage! That was your individual money, and it would have set you and Cleora up at housekeeping, it would have furnished capital to start up again, and now—"

Mr. Boyden choked up at a memory of the fearful blunder Bliss had committed in being honest and proving the true man.

"I did just what was right," replied Bliss very quietly, but with implacable conviction. "When I sold my best friend, Ross Evans, $15,000 worth of material to build the dam at Moreton, I knew it was a risk. I could not consent to charge the company for a line of credit that might not be met. I guaranteed the bill. The dam was a failure. The money is gone. I paid it. That ends it—paid dollar for dollar, and I'm glad I could do it!"

"Humbug!" snorted old Boyden.

"Sentiment!" spoke up a new voice, and Warren Bliss stood fairly electrified as the woman to whom he was engaged appeared at the door of the room. The mask was down now. It was the cruel contempt in that dark siren face that told Bliss that he had escaped a precipice.

"You will understand, I think," she said frigidly, extending their engagement ring. "Since you think more of others in divesting yourself of your means than of me, you show your shallow regard."

"Cleora! Cleora!" cried Bliss poignantly, hurt to the soul, but she turned from him. There was no sympathy in the malignant face of John Boyden. The young man sighed. Then with a bow he silently left the house.

It seemed as if amid that terrible blow to his pride, his hopes, his loyalty, he was crushed, blinded, stunned. He was sick at heart. He could not yet face the world. Bliss turned at the doorway and struck out, not for the public street, but to reach the quiet, shady lane at the side of the garden reach. He wished to be alone, to think, to recover from the rude shock that had revealed Cleora Boyden in her true colors.

A light form had crossed the garden a moment previous, but he was too absorbed to note its presence. Out in the deserted lane he chose a grassy spot beside the hedge and buried his face in his hands in painful thought.

In a single day he had seen the business of years go by the board. There had been the consolation, however, that the assets had paid off every dollar of debt—that is, with his own private inherited fortune thrown in. He believed in Cleora. He had anticipated that, like a true woman, she would sympathize with him in his affliction, comfort and encourage him. How cruelly was he disappointed!

Suddenly Bliss lifted his head in sharp surprise. Some one was sobbing on the other side of the hedge. Then came the words:

"And oh, Midget! How cold and cruel they were! After all his love for Cleora and his noble loyalty to his friend! They have thrown him out on the cold world just as Uncle John said I would have to go. Oh, cruel! cruel! And Mr. Bliss was so kind to us!"

Peering through the hedge Bliss made out a young girl caressing a pet kitten and confiding to the purring animal her heart's grief. He knew Dorothy Lane well—a poor relative of the haughty Cleora. He had pitted her life of drudgery, and once when Miss Boyden was away had thoughtfully strolled up to the place with a box of caramels for Dorothy and a pretty new ribbon for Midget's snowy neck. It had been a pleasant hour and he had not forgotten. Now vast sorrow and pity oppressed him as he realized that the hard-hearted selfishness of the Boydens was to be wreaked on this helpless, innocent orphan.

It was two weeks later when a new surprise came to Bliss. He had rented a vacant store in the village, and his clear business record enabled him to secure a limited stock of goods. Cleora was a dead issue with him now, but his business pride was left. He resolved to build anew among those who knew and respected him.

"It's only Dorothy and Midget, Mr. Bliss," announced a sweet, confiding voice, and, looking up from his desk, Bliss recognized Dorothy. In one arm she bore a bundle, in the other her pet kitten.

"They are going away to the seaside, Cleora and her father," she explained. "All the money my mother left me is gone, he says, so they turned me out. But I came straight to you!" cried the little waif brightly, as if that fact solved all troubles in her path.

"Oh, you want advice, little one?" said Bliss in a kindly tone.

"No, I don't," dissented Dorothy, strenuously. "I know what a great, grand man you are, and I want to work for you and help you. Oh, we need so little. Midget and I, and an old lady in the village will give us a free home for getting the meals and keeping the house in order. I've thought it all out. Daytimes I'll come here and be your clerk. You can teach me how to sell goods and keep your books, and I'll work like everything. Oh, please, don't say no!"

A humid blur came before the eyes of Bliss at an appreciation of the impetuous, unselfish devotion of this poor little wayfarer. He saw that he would fairly break her heart if he denied her.

It was wonderful how quickly Dorothy learned the business way. She was bright, joyous company all day long. Then, too, the business began to grow. At the end of six months she was proudly earning a salary. She wore neat-fitting clothes. She was "Miss Lane" now.

One afternoon, just as Dorothy left the store for the day, Bliss stood gazing after her raptly. Something new, something love-inspiring stirred within his soul.

"Hello!" uttered a sudden, jolly voice, and a glad hand slapped Bliss heartily on the shoulder.

"Why, Ross Evans!" exclaimed Bliss in surprise.

"That's who. Been East—among the big promoters. Your carrying that bill gave me a breathing spell. New company formed to carry on the project, your $15,000 in my pocket with interest, and—your noble fellow! You are one in a thousand. But the pretty little maid?"

"She has been my helper, my guide, my truest friend," pronounced Bliss fervently. "She has been my refuge, my inspiration through all my dark moments, but, tomorrow—"

"Thinking of something, aren't you?" railed the quick-thinking Evans.

"I am—and it is this: Dorothy shall become my wife—if she will have me."

And Miss Cleora Boyden returned bewildered from a fruitless quest for a husband at the seashore, found "that beggarly brat" and Warren Bliss settled down happily in a beautiful home, with the money and the growing business to maintain it.

Using Up the Whole Tree

Whenever Jack seemed to need a little threat to make him behave better, Mrs. Neal had a habit of saying that if he didn't behave she would have to go out to the peach tree, which stood in the back yard, and get a switch and use it.

Mother wished Jack to eat his dinner, but Jack seemed in no mood to comply. Finally mother appealed to the old standby.

"Jack, if you don't eat your dinner I'll have to get a switch off the peach tree."

"You better watch out, mother," the youngster replied, "pretty soon they won't be any limbs on that peach tree and when you won't have any peaches."

The King's Pipers

The king of England, when enjoying his shooting and stalking on his Highland holiday, wears the kilt, always; and for dinner, the full dress of the Stuart Tartan, with the silver ornaments bejeweled with cairngorms, which are as handsome as, they are valuable. A piper always plays under the king's windows every morning at eight o'clock, and at night, as soon as their majesties, with their guests, are seated at the dinner table, the pipers all enter the room and march round two or three times playing as they go.

Cat Alarm Clock

Charles E. L. Gray of Lynn, Mass., reports having a cat that, without training, became his alarm clock and has acted faithfully for years. Every morning the cat wakes up at 5:30 o'clock, washes in a bowl of water always placed for him, and then jumps upon the bed of his master, Mr. Gray, and wakes him up. Mr. Gray maintains the cat does this voluntarily, punctually and without any effort at training.

DRUDGERY

The weary tasks, the dreary tasks, the tasks of every day. The tasks without a glint of gold to gleam upon their gray; Dishpan and fatiron, tub and broom, till darkness falls—and then Dawn, and the dreary, weary round of leaden tasks again.

The common tasks, the simple tasks, my hands have learned by heart. The tasks wherein my busy brain no longer bears a part; Dreary indeed, if idle brain must lag on, loiter-wise. Forgotten wings a-dragging, and ashes in its eyes!

But happy tasks the daily tasks my hands can do for me. If I set them going at my work and let my soul fly free. I set them going at their work, and float in skies of flame, And sail on shining silver to shores without a name.

I climb my childhood's fairy hills and pluck the laurel flowers; I weave a web of purple thoughts across the dusty hours; I play with olden golden words that men have made before. And hang them for a lighted lamp above my kitchen door.

Ah, happy tasks, and blessed tasks, and tasks that set me free, When my hands are in the soapuds and my soul is on the sea! —Florence Crannell Means, in Grit.

Surveying the Seas

Plans for the most complete survey of the ocean ever attempted have been inaugurated by a conference representing scientific branches of the United States government and allied institutions.

One or more ships, says London Tit-Bits, will be fitted out with a complete laboratory and equipped with the latest scientific apparatus for the first cruise. The sea bottom will not only be mapped, but the composition of the water, its density, temperature and currents, which affect the distribution of marine plant and animal life, will be studied at all depths.

Five-sevenths of the surface of the earth is covered by water. This water area can produce more food than all the land can ever be made to yield, and one of the purposes of the expedition will be to take an inventory of such food possibilities.

Painful Beauty

Women of Tibet, like their western sisters, attain beauty through suffering. The fashionable Tibetan lady rubs her face, hands and neck with melted butter before going to bed, and next morning dusts her face with finely powdered ashes in order to whiten her complexion.

To Get Best Results in Life, Look Forward

By KEMAL STRAIGHT

Mrs. Van Loon was on her way to town to find a new maid. It is difficult to keep help in the suburbs at best, and Mrs. Van Loon's household was not of the best. Not that she didn't pay good wages—she did—she paid more than did many of her neighbors; but somehow or other things didn't run smoothly in the Van Loon menage.

The poor lady entered the train at the small suburban station, out of breath, red in the face. She had just made it, and that was all.

She plumped down in a seat and looked about her. She saw no one she knew. She fidgeted about. It was so tiresome to ride in alone.

The man sitting next her shrunk nearer the window, interposing his paper to shut out a disturbing element. She craned her neck, trying to glimpse the headlines in the sea of newspapers surrounding her.

Finally she settled down.

Could we have sensed her thoughts they would have registered something like this:

"I hope Dorothy will remember to wear her overshoes to school today—"

"I don't think Mrs. Jones' dress is very good looking even if she did pay $250 for it—"

"If it wasn't so hard to get a cook, I'd discharge Maggie; the toast this morning was simply awful."

"There," grabbing at her shopping bag convulsively, "I do believe I've forgotten my trip ticket. I must have left it on the bureau—I'll have to pay full fare."

"Here's the name of an agency Phyllis gave me. I really don't think it is a very good one. Agencies are such awful frauds anyway."

So on and so rambled her disconnected thoughts, blurring one into another exactly as if she had taken several pictures upon the same film.

Thus Mrs. Van Loon's troubles came. She managed her house, her affairs, her servants as she managed her thoughts—result chaos.

The train reached the terminal. Mrs. Van Loon gathered herself together and plunged into the rushing throng of commuters, to wander from agency to agency in a futile search for "help."

She had wasted those precious minutes in the morning train, when she should have directed her thoughts and kept them upon the business in hand.

She should have made a mental picture of just the sort of person she wished to employ, arranged every detail of the agreement to be made, and keeping her ideas firmly in mind, visited the agencies or chosen some other way of letting her wants be known.

She would surely have found the person for whom she was seeking.

If you want results, watch your thoughts and look forward to the thing you desire.

"Well, that overbearing daughter of theirs came to the lawn fete last night and was showered with attention," added her daughter. "What!" exclaimed her mother, with a surprised look. "Who showered her with attention?" "Why," her daughter answered with a pleased smile, "Grace Brown's little brother turned the hose on her."—Houston Post.

At the Newark Theatres

Miner's Empire

For the special entertainment of women patrons of Columbia burlesque Miner's Empire theatre will present unusual attractions at the daily matinees to be given by Harry "Hickey" LeVan, in "Town Scandals" next week, Sunday matinee Nov. 9. Lettie Bolles, the beautiful blonds ingenue, will wear her most gorgeous gowns—and she has a lot of 'em imported from Paris for her personal display. The chorus will be elaborately gowned in novel costumes for twelve musical numbers that have been set to Charlie Grau's music and directed in dance by Lawrence Deas, who staged "Shuffle Along" and "Plantation Days." Columbia burlesque means entertainment for the whole family and "Town Scandal" is a model offering in its class.

Week of Sunday matinee Nov. 16, Jimmy Cooper will be at the Empire.

Common Council At Busy Meeting Held Last Night Receives Monthly Reports—Mayor Mulvihill Hopes That Water Situation is Adjusted Shortly—Other Important Business Transacted.

A meeting of the borough council was held last night. Six resolutions by Councilman Frank Andres for improvement certificates were passed. They are: $1,525 as second payment to Burns, Lane & Richardson for heating and ventilating work on the new borough hall; $10,293.50 payment to Contractor Jorgen Jorgenson on borough hall work; $1,000 payment to Architect J. K. Jensen on borough hall job; $10,144.20 to pay for sidewalk improvement on Lincoln avenue; $3,323.86 to pay for sidewalks on Sharot street and $1,142.22 to pay for sidewalks on Roosevelt avenue.

The petition of Max Schwartz for a permit to erect a slaughter house was referred to the Board of Health. Raymond Wilson submitted a bill for $104 as damages to his automobile. Mr. Wilson stated that the car figured in a collision while engaged by the police department.

The monthly report of Recorder Thomas Slugg shows that $133 was collected in fines during October.

The monthly report of Chief of Police Harrington and Overseer of the Poor Emil Wilhelm were received and filed.

A group of citizens residing in Atlantic street in a petition complained that the busses obstruct the road, making noise and cause loss of sleep to the residents. The police committee was asked to look after the street obstruction complaint and the Board of Health was asked to look after the street obstruction complaint and the Board of Health was asked to look after the other complaints.

The New York Telephone Company was granted permission to open the street along Pershing avenue to lay new telephone cables.

Councilman Andres was authorized to replace the broken beacon sign on Roosevelt avenue with a new sign at the cost of the responsible party.

Considerable discussion was held pertaining to the sewer at Pershing avenue and Romanowski street. Street Commissioner Walling explained to the council that he is unable to locate the flow and outlet of the sewer.

Councilman Charles A. Phillips suggested that the present and new fire chief should get together and ascertain the requisitions for the fire companies.

Councilman Samuel Brown reported that he has ordered a number of new electric lights. Mr. Brown was empowered to place plain globe lights.

The question of opening of Sharot street at the railroad point was discussed. Borough Attorney read a letter from the Central Railroad which asks whether there is a real need for the opening. The company informed that it is not desirable to install new railroad crossings.

Mayor Mulvihill contended that the need of opening is evident as at present there is a fire hazard at that point. The counsel was asked to reply to the company and again ask for the opening of the street.

John H. Nevill requested the council to assign a police officer at the time the Roosevelt Building & Loan Association meets to safeguard the deposits made at that time.

Councilman Andres was authorized to take up with the Carteret Industrial Association the question of protecting the payrolls of the factory plants.

Card of Thanks

We, the undersigned, desire to express our sincere thanks to our relatives, neighbors and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown to us at the death of a beloved husband, John J. O'Meara. We wish to thank the Rev. Father O'Connor of St. Joseph's Church, the choir, the pallbearers, Undertaker Frank T. Burns and all who attended the funeral and sent floral tributes.

(Signed)
MRS. BRYDE O'MEARA.

MAN IS INJURED IN BUS ACCIDENT

Man Is Badly Hurt In Collision Wednesday Along Rahway Avenue—Other Bus Hits Beacon Sign at Rahway.

One man was severely injured, a motor bus partially wrecked and a machine totally demolished following a collision along Rahway avenue, near the fast line crossing, at 10 o'clock, Wednesday night.

Joseph Schultasz, of 200 Fifth street, Harrison, is in the Rahway hospital with a badly bruised face and lacerated shoulders. He was attended by Dr. B. M. Hoagland, of Woodbridge and Dr. H. L. Strandberg and later removed to the hospital. Schultasz was the driver of the Ford car which according to the police crashed into a bus of the Carteret Bus Service Company, operated by Samuel George. The driver of the bus, Jacob Berardi, of 25 Louis street, escaped unhurt. There were no passengers in the bus at the time. The force of the collision was so great that both vehicles were hurled toward the field.

Another bus of the Carteret Bus Service figured in a collision yesterday morning when it ramed into a beacon sign at Rahway in order to avoid striking an oncoming automobile. A few persons in the bus were shaken up but required no medical assistance.

ITALIAN FIRES AT COUNTRYMAN

Ralph Bonito, of Brooklyn, Shoots Friend When He Finds His Wife at Latter's Home—Charges Victim With Crime.

BULLET LANDS IN CHEST

Assailant Held for Grand Jury, While Victim Is Recuperating From Wound—Two Women Held at Material Witnesses.

Ralph Bonito, of 580 Clinton street, Brooklyn, walked into the home of Joseph Verlando, formerly of Brooklyn, but now a resident in the borough last week and fired a bullet at Verlando, in the presence of Mrs. Bonito and Mrs. Verlando, according to the police who investigated the case. The bullet from the .22 calibre gun landed in Verlando's chest.

According to the police, Bonito harbors serious charges against Verlando. When he came to the borough and found his wife there he fired at Bonito. There are many theories for the shooting. It is claimed that Bonito sought revenge on his Italian friend, because he alienated the affections of his wife.

After the shooting Bonito was arrested, while Verlando rushed to the Perth Amboy City Hospital. Mrs. Bonito and Mrs. Verlando were held as material witnesses. Bonito is held for the grand jury.

Victory Ball Date Is Set For Jan. 3rd

Final plans have been completed by the Republican Club for the Victory Ball which will be held at Dalton's auditorium on the night of Jan. 3.

Peter Goderstad is chairman of the committee, which includes Councilman Frank Andres, Hercules Ellis, Charles A. Phillips, George Leggett, Councilman Edward Wilgus and J. Green.

Two Carteret Autos In Port Reading Smash-up

Two automobiles were badly wrecked on Sunday night on the road between here and Port Reading. The first was driven by Natalino, Marroni, of Charles street, and the other by George Kurtz, of Lefferts street. At the time of the collision both machines overturned. Kurtz was slightly injured.

Jefferson Club Meets Tonight

Notices have been sent to members of the Jefferson Club of Carteret for a meeting to be held tonight at 7:30 P. M. in their clubrooms at 72 Roosevelt avenue, William J. Lawlor is chairman and Attorney Maxwell Sosin is secretary of the club. Activities for the winter will be discussed as well as voting on new applicants for membership.

Card of Thanks

I intended this card of thanks to be published last week but through an error it was made impossible. Therefore I desire to take this opportunity to thank those who supported me at the past election. I shall endeavor to serve to the best of my ability.

BRILLIANT EVENT FOR LEGIONAIRES

Armistice Eve Celebration Is Held Monday Night—Mayor Mulvihill and State Commander Are Among Speakers of Evening.

LEGION LAUNCH CHRISTMAS FUND

Fire Company No. 2 Starts off Fund With Donation of $25—Mrs. John H. Nevill Is Second With a $5 Contribution.

The Roosevelt Post, No. 263, celebrated Armistice this year in a most commendable manner. The armistice eve celebration held Monday night at St. Joseph's parochial school was not only to commemorate the boys who had passed away and celebrate the victory of six years ago, but marked the start of a splendid enterprise—in the form of a Christmas fund for the needy of this borough. All the proceeds of the Monday affair have gone to this fund, which was augmented by a contribution of $25 from the Carteret Fire Company, No. 2, and a contribution of $5 from Mrs. John H. Nevill.

The celebration in all was a complete success. Several talks of considerable interest were heard, Commander Clarence T. Slugg acted as chairman. In his introductory remarks the commander said that the boys are not resting on the laurels of the past but are still enlisted for the service in peace.

Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill spoke on the significance of Armistice Day and of the new memorial municipal building which is to honor the local men who served with the world war. He pledged full cooperation of his administration in the work that the legion is doing.

State Commander Gene Pattison spoke on the principals and ideas of the legion, efforts along the line of rehabilitation of disabled veterans. He praised the Red Cross for the assistance given in this work. He also touched on the child welfare community service, preparedness and the universal draft.

County Commander Joseph Edgar and former State Vice Commander Raymond White spoke on the Christmas fund which is being inaugurated by the local post.

A delightful entertainment followed the talks. The entertainers included Harto and Bark, Miss Evelyn Rodney, Howard Marcy and Joseph Fitzgerald.

BUILDING BOOM IS SEEN HERE

Local Building and Loan Associations Report Extensive Loans to Homeseekers With Many Applications on Waiting List.

The local building and loan associations are taxed to capacity for loans, according to reports of the treasurers. Despite the fact that the companies are making many loans, they are being besieged by applicants to a large extent. This is due to the big building boom that is now in progress in the borough. General indications point to higher prices and homeseekers are now taking the chance to build their homes.

The Carteret Building & Loan Association has loaned over $50,000 in the last few months. Applications for a similar amount are now in the hands of the society. The May statement of the society showed assets of $322,417.22.

The Roosevelt Building & Loan Association has also been active in loaning money for new homes. Despite the fact that large loans are constantly being made, the company is almost unable to fulfill all applications that are pouring in.

The Blazing Star Building & Loan Association has made many loans in the last few months and has many applications for new loans, which are being made as swiftly as possible.

The rush for loans, according to the heads of the associations, are due to the building boom. Never before in the history of the borough has there been such a demand for building loan money. "It is a health state," they declare with much optimism.

MISS DEVEREUX IS PRETTY BRIDE

Weds Daniel J. Sullivan of Norwich, Conn., at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church on Wednesday Morning.

Miss Anastasia Devereux, principal of the Cleveland school, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Devereux, of 52 Washington avenue, became the bride of Daniel J. Sullivan, of Norwich, Conn., at an impressive wedding ceremony held at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church on Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, Rev. J. R. O'Connor officiating.

The bride was gowned in a beautiful white beadedorgette. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses. Her bridesmaid, Miss Josephine Devereux, was dressed in a pretty orchid gown, which was adorned with orchids and chrysanthemums. H. Sullivan acted as the best man.

A reception and breakfast followed the ceremony at the Devereux home and was attended by many guests from here and other places. The couple then left for the south on their wedding trip. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will live in Connecticut.

Edward Dolan Heads Fire Company No. 2

At the meeting of Fire Company No. 2 held Monday night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Edward Dolan, president.
Alfred Bonner, vice-president.
John F. Coughlin, financial secretary.
John S. Oigrecht, recording secretary.
Ewald Grohman, treasurer.
James Mullan, warden.
Joseph P. Lloyd, fire chief.
John Wilhelm, second assistant fire chief.

Alfred Bonner, foreman.
William Nash, assistant foreman.
The company donated $25 to the Christmas fund of the American Legion here. Following the business session, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Dance Affairs During October Broke Records

Carteret had more dances, entertainments, parties, social sessions and affairs during the month of October than is held here for a period of four months according to a survey just made. Dalton's auditorium was practically occupied every night, Falcon's hall was taken up almost as much, while the smaller halls were also much in demand. The month of November offers but a small percentage of dances.

Banquet for Foresters At In December 10th

Final arrangements have been completed by the Carteret Court, Foresters of America, for the banquet which will be held at the Carteret Inn on the night of December 10. The arrangement committee is planning a splendid entertainment.

Whist Club Resumes Sessions

The Ladies' Whist Club has resumed its Friday night sessions, which are very popular and well attended. The club will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. E. Lefkowitz. Last Friday night the ladies met at the home of Mrs. J. Wantoch. Mrs. B. Kahn captured the first prize. Mrs. C. Jack, on second and Miss Clara Stern third.

Sinnott In Accident

Patrick Sinnott, of this borough going to East avenue, Bound Brook, in his machine, is alleged to have ramed into the machine of Salvatore Oliver, of South Bound Brook. Both cars were somewhat damaged, but the case was adjusted between the drivers.

Plan for Euchre

At the meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Mark's church which will be held tonight, final plans will be completed for a euchre and dance which the girls will hold at the parish house on the night of November 19. Various committees will also be appointed.

Card of Thanks

To the people of the Borough of Carteret:
I desire to publicly express, to the District Leaders and the citizens of the Borough of Carteret, my appreciation of the loyal support given me in my recent election.

(Signed)
WILLIAM D. CASEY.

CHARLES MOLNAR KILLS HIMSELF

Despondent, He Commits Suicide By Hanging From Rafters of Barn in Rear of Home in Larch Street On Wednesday.

BODY FOUND BY HIS NEIGHBORS

Despondent and apparently tired of living, Charles Molnar, sixty years old, of 57 Larch street, committed suicide by hanging himself from the rafters of a barn in the rear of his home some time between Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Molnar, according to the position of the body, had stood on a box and after fastening a piece of sash cord about his neck, kicked the box over so that his feet would not touch the floor. The body was found in this position.

The police were notified and the body was cut down. Coroner Hay viewed the body and gave permission for its burial.

Molnar, who resided in this borough for the past twenty years, is said to have a wife and several children in the old country.

Chief of Police Henry J. Harrington, who made the investigation into the suicide, is at a loss to know why the man took his own life.

Funeral services for Molnar were held yesterday afternoon in the Hungarian church. Interment took place in the Rosehill Cemetery, Linden.

Children's Week Popular At Free Public Library

The Carteret Free Public Library was open Monday and Wednesday from 3 to 9 P. M. this week in connection with the Children's week. The library is also open today until 9 o'clock. Many children visited the library and borrowed or read books. New books have been purchased for this occasion. Mrs. Charles A. Phillips, librarian, was aided this week by Mrs. George Leggett.

Board of Health Holds Busy Session Last Night

Considerable business was transacted by the Board of Health at its meeting last night, most of which was of routine nature. Inspector Frank Born submitted a detailed report of health activities. There were 10 marriages, 17 births and 7 deaths in the borough last month.

Euclid Lodge to Hold Card Party

The entertainment committee of Euclid Lodge, No. 153, Knights of Pythias, will hold a card party on Friday evening, November 21, at the Masonic Hall, Green street, Woodbridge. The committee has arranged to display the prizes all next week in the New York Candy Kitchen, Main street, Woodbridge. Watch the window for the prizes and don't forget the time and place of the affair.

Woodmen Dance Nov. 22

Camp No. 34 of the Woodmen's Circle will hold a ball at Falcon's hall on the night of Nov. 22. A good orchestra will furnish the dance music. A large attendance is expected.

Through the Glad Eyes of a Woman

By Jane Doe

SLAVES TO CLOTHES

A STATISTICIAN gives us very indigestible food for thought when he says women waste ten years of their life putting on and taking off their clothes.

Nobody but a woman knows what it is to be a slave to the truly awful tyranny of pretty clothes. The putting on and taking off of them is a plagues business enough, but the wearing of them, the mending of them, the forethought, foretalk, and time expended on them is worse.

They put at least another ten years on a woman's life.

These gentlemen who, about the year 1000 B. C. foresaw an overcrowded workaday world in which men would compete with women to the detriment of one or the other, knew a thing or two when they kidded their womenfolk to the tune of "Behold, you are more desirable in our eyes when you are clothed in purple and fine linen."

In other words, glad, uncomfortable, tyrannous rags.

Of course, the poor female simpletons fell for it as bears fall for honey.

And ever since, like the meek, uncomplaining deers that we are, we have followed their pernicious precepts.

Pretty clothes!

What indigestion, pasty complexions, irritable tempers, pneumonia, discomfort, premature wrinkles and actual misery are caused in their name.

We wear silk stockings which are cold in winter, an expense in summer, and ruck and get twisted and "ladder," just because men are addicted to calf and ankle love.

We wear hats of all sorts of absurd and uncomfortable shapes, which give us headaches, impede our vision, and overheat our scalp.

We wear fur coats that rest like lead on our shoulders and arms, and are so cut that we can't raise our hands above our shoulders, and in which we can't walk farther than a quarter of a mile without being fagged out.

And we spend hours and hours threading ribbons through our things-myths, mending laces, darning, sewing on buttons, polishing our shoes, and cleaning and dyeing and washing and ironing our pretty clothes.

Up to date the only sensible garments yet invented are the knitted frock and the sweater.

But women cannot dress by these alone.

So we have to go floundering away the best years of our life—years that otherwise might be devoted to the er—higher life, until someone arises who can plan really comfortable, durable, fashionable, pretty, simple, easy-going, outer, under and indoor outfits that will please the bishops, the judges, the men, and the shopkeepers.

Then, of course, we shall absolutely refuse to wear them.

SOME COMPANY DISHES

FOR those who enjoy egg plant the following will be another way of serving it:

Luncheon Egg Plant.

Boll a medium-sized egg plant until tender, drain well and cut into halves the long way, remove the pulp to which add three medium-sized tomatoes, peeled and chopped fine. Add six tablespoonfuls of fine bread crumbs, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper and one tablespoonful of minced sweet pepper. Lastly add one cupful of coarsely minced lobster or shrimp. With this mixture fill the shells, cover with fine crumbs, well buttered and bake in a hot oven.

Cutlets, Macedoine of Vegetables.

Prepare the cutlets, dip into egg and crumbs and saute until the veal is well cooked. Arrange on a hot platter and on each cutlet place half of a sweet pepper which has been simmered eight minutes, heap the pepper with finely diced cooked vegetables which have been well buttered and seasoned, bits of carrot, tiny onions, string beans, all moistened with tomato sauce. Serve all very hot.

Planked English Chops.

Allow one chop to each guest. Broil the chops on one side only on a hot well greased broiler, meantime heating the plank very hot. Rub it with butter and place the chops cooked side down on it, then arrange stuffed tomatoes or peppers with a bit of bacon on each vegetable and place in a hot oven to finish the cooking. Serve on the plank, seasoning the chops well. Garnish with a cube of bright tart jelly on each. With the chops serve potatoes au gratin in a separate dish.

Origin of Postal System

In olden times, before the days of postage stamps, it was the custom for the recipient of a letter to pay the postage. It is said that the origin of prepaid postage was due to an ardent lover. He sent epistles to the lady of his choice, who promptly sent them back, refusing to pay for them. The postman suggested to authorities that it would save trouble if the sender paid postage, and the idea was adopted.

The Scrap Book

Ordeal of "Trial by Touch" Long Popular

This was an ancient superstition, although not entirely confined to Scotland. Andrew Smeaton was charged in 1636 with the murder of a man found dead in Belnalow Moss. At the request of his mother, the laird of Abercrombie, he touched the corpse as the others assembled had done.

He even went further and "lifted him up and embraced him in his arms, and willingly offered to remain a space in grave with him." As no blood followed on this contact, he was held innocent, as no doubt he was.

In 1644, four men were drowned by the upsetting of their boat in a calm. Marion Peebles, a noted witch, was charged with having changed herself into a porpoise, and under this form to have wrecked the boat. Conclusive proof was obtained when at her touch "one died at the collar-bone, another in the hand and fingers; gushing out blood thereat to the great admiration of the beholders and revelation of the judgment of the Almighty."

Another noted witch, Christiane Wilson, quarreled with her brother. One day in 1661 he was found dead in his own house, naked, and with a "bloodless blow" on his face. Christiane was suspected. The bailie and ministers hailed her to the dead man's house. As she touched the corpse the blood gushed out, staining her fingers. She was condemned.

Arabians Can Have at Least One Good Laugh

A naturalist recently returned from Arabia has described to a learned society a plant called the "laughing cactus." The plant gets its name from the fact that anyone eating its seed gives way for some minutes afterward to immoderate laughter, frequently ending in nervous prostration.

The natives of the district in which the plant flourishes dry the seeds and grind them into powder, which they keep, and on suitable occasions administer to those against whom they have a real or fancied grievance.

An overdose may result in temporary loss of reason, following which the victim falls into a deep sleep, awakening with no memory of his curious conduct.

Fish's Deadly Tail

A fish which can emulate some of the feats at a rodeo has been captured in the English channel, and is now in the Brighton aquarium. The tail of the fish, which is known as the sting ray, is long and flexible and armed with a lengthy projecting spine, sharply pointed and furnished along both edges with razor-sharp, saw-like teeth. When attacked, the sting ray suddenly throws this whip-like tail, with unerring precision, around the offender, in lasso fashion, and holding the victim tightly against the barbed spine, wields this weapon with such ferocious strength and rapidity that it lacerates the flesh to a frightful extent.

Easy to Capture

In Afghanistan, all a man has to do to take a girl as his wife is to cut off a lock of her hair or throw a spear over her.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

YESTERDAY'S MISTAKES

THOSE horrible blunders which caused us so much humiliation and discomfort yesterday must not, if we desire to move among the victors, be repeated today.

We were blockheads yesterday, but as we march forth this cheery morning to shoulder our duties we are very wise and alert.

We learned something of value through our deplorable errors, and if we have within us the right spirit we shall see to it that we put our newly gained wisdom and vigilance to good account.

We shall do our best to avoid gruff words, the ugly explosives that made yesterday a woeful blank and set us back in the proper fulfillment of our lofty ideals.

To prefer comfort and happiness to everything else among the treasures of earth is the basic wish of every worthy human being, but how many of us succeed in accomplishing this exalted purpose?

We lose our grip when sorely tried in the twinkling of an eye and away we go with a loose tongue spitting out our venomous emotions to the discomfort of those around us and to ourselves as well.

We become slack and selfish when we should be firm and magnanimous. The friction we cause in an unguarded moment of excitement may take days and weeks to overcome. Indeed, we may never be quite sufficient to counteract an exhibition of spleen that revealed to others our frailties and our incapacity to assume leadership in the vital affairs of life.

If we cannot turn our mistakes to good account, we are deficient somewhere in our moral and mental fiber, and shall always so remain unless we conquer our impulses and by our own strength rise to higher ground.

All that is exalted in life, all that makes existence here a thing of beauty worthy of emulation comes from the turning of our daily mistakes to good account and using them for stepping stones to a loftier sphere.

It is only by error that we learn to distinguish the real from the false. Having once learned our lesson we should profit by it, otherwise we cannot hope to advance or take our place among those who so regulate their lives that they dwell in content while constantly achieving and keeping step day by day with the conscientiously brave and unconquerable, writing their deeds on the eternal skies.

What People Talk About

In order to find out what the favorite topics of conversation are, someone has listened to 500 bits of chatter and classified them. "Business" was the popular topic with men, with "sports" next and "other men" ranked third, but with the women the subject of "men" ranked far ahead of anything else with "dress" second and "other women" third.

Guerrilla Warfare

The word "guerrilla" is of Spanish origin and means a skirmish or little war. It is the diminutive of "guerra," meaning war. A guerrilla war is one carried on irregularly and by independent bands.

NOT DELICATE ENOUGH

"There's been a great drop in prices."
"So? None of the selsmographs have reported the shock, however, I'm sure."

White Blueberries

White strawberries, white currants and white raspberries are not uncommon, but it remains for the town of Whitneyville, Maine, to have the distinction of having white blueberries growing within its limits, says the Boston Globe. This freak of nature occurs on land owned by Newell Albee, who is very careful of his treasure and allows only a very few to be picked.

Garden Curiosities

The latest addition to this season's garden freaks was found by Arthur C. Miller of Auburn, N. Y., when in digging potatoes he found one spud affectionately wrapped around the end of a horse bit. Another unusual specimen in his garden is a squash vine which has produced two squashes, one of the green variety, the other yellow.

French Eat More Meat

Industrial and agricultural workers in France are eating more meat than ever before, while people in easy circumstances are following hygienists' advice to consume less flesh.

Five Calves Born to Cow

A mixed Jersey and Shorthorn cow owned by A. Kaldenberg at Colfax, Iowa, gave birth to five calves. However, the mother and all her offspring died.

Mail Clerk in Luck

A few weeks ago a registered letter containing $8,000, was sent from a firm in New York to a bank in Augusta, Maine. On failure to arrive in Augusta an inspector traced it to a point on a Maine railroad. The mail clerk to whom it must have been delivered was faced with the charge of theft. He asked permission to search his car on the mail train that he had worked on. Under observation he was allowed to do so. After a long search and just at the moment when he was about to give up in despair, the clerk happened to glance down behind some steam pipes and picked up the letter. The car in which it had rested had been used for weeks on different parts of the system.

MATRI-MONY

"No, sir! No more loans! I haven't a single dollar!"
"Well, if all your dollars have taken unto themselves mates, I wouldn't think of separating them—let's have a couple."

Here's Singing Rat

One of the families of Anderson are being regaled every night by a singing rat, says an Anderson (S. C.) dispatch to the New York World. Each night Archie McConnell and family, who live a short distance from the city, have heard this unusual sound and have finally traced it to a rat.

Mr. McConnell says the notes are not unlike those of a canary bird and they continue for hours at a time, often long after the family has retired. The rat is like an ordinary rat, except, Mr. McConnell says, it has a sort of proboscis which may account for its singing ability.

The Key to Success

Folks who don't take themselves too seriously, but who take their work very seriously, are bound to succeed.

Florida's Long Coast Line

Florida has a longer coast line than any other state. Its length is almost twelve hundred miles, more than half the distance between Chicago and San Francisco. California is second in this respect, with more than one thousand miles of coast line. Some authorities are inclined to give the preference to California, there being so little difference between the two lengths.

Knew Only One Eagle

The fathers of the American republic decided upon an eagle as an emblem, and unfortunately the species known to them was the sea or bald eagle, feathered only to the knees, and a "piratical parasite of the osprey." The golden eagle, to which a change has been made on the coins of the country, is feathered to the toes.

GET AUTO LICENSE EARLY

Carteret automobile owners will be wise to heed the warning issued by the commissioner of motor vehicles and various license agencies, to get their automobile licenses for next year early. As an extra accommodation the agencies in Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and Rahway will open today, which is fifteen days earlier than the schedule.

There is a considerable amount of work in connection with the issuance of these licenses and there is bound to be a rush during the last few days. Automobiles will not be allowed on the streets after January first with a 1924 license. You will feel much better if you will get yours EARLY.

The agencies expect to tighten up on the hours for securing licenses. There will be no burning of midnight oil for the benefit of the car owners, who procrastinated and put off until the last moment.

A feature this year of the driving license cards will be their flexibility. They have been made so as not to fray and can readily be folded without injury.

THE NEW SIGNALS HERE

It is creditable to note in the borough that the Central Railroad of New Jersey has installed a two-light electric flasher along the Roosevelt avenue crossing. The need of the lights is surely evident as many automobiles pass through that point, much of it bound for the Carteret ferry. Councilman Frank Andres, who time and again advocated protection for the crossing, as well as Borough Attorney Emil Stremlau deserve commendation for this improvement.

Railroad crossings are bad things. Many persons are being killed on railroad crossings. Some 2,800 were killed and 8,000 injured this year alone. Like most accidents, these could be avoided. A railroad train can only come on its tracks and in one of two directions. A stop and a look make accidents impossible. Mounting crossing accidents are a case where the remedy is plain, but the cure seemingly unattainable.

Since so many refuse to "cross crossing cautiously" there must be some reason. The reason is that man in his headlong haste to get somewhere prizes his time more highly than his life.

BLINDNESS IS BAD

You do not often see a blind person. But there are 110,000 of them in America. And about 15,000 lost their eyesight by industrial accidents. If you work around dangerous machinery in inflammable or explosive materials, it would be a good idea to cut this out and paste it where you will see it every hour. Caution is a very cheap price to pay for the privilege of remaining outside the City of Dreadful Night.

Y. P. H. A. Will Give Away Many Prizes

Mary Pickford Film At the Local Theatres

The management of the Crescent and Majestic Theatres in this borough announces as the next extra attraction for his houses, Mary Pickford's latest production, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall." This picture, now being released throughout the country by United Artists is based on the popular novel of the same name by Charles Major. The book was one of America's most sensational "best sellers," and the photoplay is one of the high spots in this year's dramatic offerings.

In support of Miss Pickford is a cast which reads like a Blue Book of Screenland, no expense having been spared in the selection of players best suited for their roles. Allan Forrest portrays Sir John Manners; Marc MacDermott is Sir Malcolm Vernon, cousin of Dorothy; Sir George Vernon, father of Dorothy, is ably handled by Andres Randolph, and Wilfred Lucas plays the Earl of Rutland.

Other celebrities in the cast include Clare Eames, Estelle Taylor, Courtney Foote, Mme. Carrie Daumery, Lottie Pickford Forrest, Malcolm Waite, Howard Gaye, Colin Kenny, Eric Mayne, Jack Fowler and Olaf Skavlan.

The picture will be shown at the Majestic Theatre on Wednesday, Nov. 19, matinee and night, and at the Crescent Theatre on Thursday, Nov. 20, matinee and night.

Large Increase In Trust Company Resources

Trust company resources in New Jersey, for the year ending June 30, were $827,799,511, an increase of $74,967,633, over 1923, according to "Trust Companies of the United States," just published by the United States Mortgage & Trust Company of New York. The Middle Atlantic trust companies reported assets of $7,534,200,000.

The totals for the country were $16,025,580,000, a gain of $1,584,042,000, or nearly 11 per cent over 1923, and deposits increased from $11,828,983,000 to $13,289,148,000, or more than 12 per cent.

In commenting on the figures for the year, John W. Platten, president of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, says:

"It is significant that trust company resources in the United States have more than doubled in eight years and have practically trebled in twelve years. These tremendous increases, together with the rapidly mounting volume of corporate and personal trust business, give evidence of the deep rooted and commanding position of trust companies, and furnish the best evidence of their ever growing usefulness."

OBITUARY

Mrs. Blanche Downey

Miss Blanche A. Downey, wife of William T. Downey, died at her home 6 Ulster Place, at 12.15 P. M., on Sunday, October 26, after a short illness.

The deceased was born in Newburgh on September 22, 1896, and was the daughter of Daniel A. Gillespie and Nettie Green Gillespie. She was educated in the Rahway public schools and was graduated from the Newark Normal College. For several years she was a teacher in the New Jersey schools. On October 20, 1923, she was united in marriage with Mr. Downey and since that time had lived in Glen Spey, Long Island. She was a member of the Presbyterian church of this borough.

The surviving relatives are her husband and parents and one brother, James.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Glen Spey church and interment was at the Glen Spey Cemetery.

Thanksgiving Proclamation

PRESIDENT COLLIDGE last week issued the Thanksgiving Day proclamation setting aside Thursday, November 27, as a day of "National Thanksgiving. The proclamation follows:

"We approach the season of the year when it has been the custom for the American people to give thanks for the good fortune which the bounty of Providence, through the generosity of nature, has visited upon them. It is altogether a good custom. It has the sanction of antiquity and the approbation of our religious convictions. In acknowledging the receipt of Divine favor, in contemplating the blessings which have been bestowed upon us, we shall reveal the spiritual strength of the nation.

"The year has been marked by a continuation of peace whereby our country has entered into a relationship of better understanding with all the other nations of the earth. Ways have been revealed to us by which we could perform very great service through the giving of friendly counsel, through the extension of financial assistance and true exercise of a spirit of neighborly friendliness to less favored peoples. We should give thanks for the power which has been given into our keeping, with which we have been able to render these services to the rest of mankind.

"At home we have continually had an abundant state of public wealth.

"The production of our industries has been large and our harvests have been bountiful. We have been remarkably free from disorder and remarkably successful in all those pursuits which flourish during a state of domestic peace. An abundant prosperity has overspread the land. We shall do well to accept all these favors and bounties with a becoming humility, and dedicate them to the service of the righteous cause of the giver of all good and perfect gifts. As the nation has prospered, let all the people show that they are worthy to prosper, by rededicating America to the service of God and mankind.

"THEREFORE I, CALVIN COOLIDGE, President of the United States of America, hereby proclaim and fix Thursday, the twenty-seventh day of November, as a day for national thanksgiving. I recommend that the people gather in their places of worship and at the family altars and offer up their thanks for the goodness which has been shown to them in such a multitude of ways.

"Especially I urge them to supplicate the Throne of Grace, that they may gather strength from their tribulations; that they may gain humility from their victories; that they may bear without complaining the burdens that shall be placed upon them, and that they may be increasingly worthy in all ways of the blessings that shall come to them.

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the United States.

"Done at the City of Washington, this Fifth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-ninth.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

DIVINING BY FIRE

AS GOOD Doctor Primrose, the immortal vicar of Wakefield, sat by his hearth "Purses and coffins popped out of the fire," we are told. The same thing happens to thousands today when they sit by an open fire, and practically the same thing happened to our curious ancestors, whether their fires burned upon hearth or altar, so many thousands of years ago that they are hid behind the impenetrable curtain of the dead ages.

More Early Risers

A young couple who had just begun to keep house were not financially able to buy a clock; they determined the hour for rising in winter by watching for a light in the window of a neighboring farmhouse.

BIG TIM AND FAITHFUL "OLD READY"

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Big Tim finished the last crumb of his midnight lunch on the driver's seat of his old-fashioned four-wheeled hack. Then he took a red luscious-looking apple from his pocket.

"No," he said suddenly, drawing it back as he was about to sink his teeth in its juicy depths—"Old Ready will cheer up a bit if I give it to him and he deserves it—brave, loyal fellow!"

So Tim got down from the seat, broke the pippin in half with his strong fists and fed the sections to the horse. The latter tried to express his appreciation of the cheering feast. He munched at the last shred of the toothsome dainty, his eye fixed gratefully on his master and then rubbed his frowsy cheek against that of Tim.

"It's all right, isn't it?" chirped Tim. "Ever the best of friends, hey, old scout? What chums we've been nigh on to twenty years. And now—ah me!"

Tim sighed, and well he might. The good old days were gone. Indeed, square by square, mile by mile, laws, ordinances, the police had pushed the old cab stand farther and farther from the city center. New centers had been formed, but chauffeurs and automobiles and electric cabs had intruded.

Thus for over a year Tim and Ready had been obliged to make their night stand at the present corner—a street car junction. An occasional fare came along. There were some exigent midnight calls from doctors, the hospital, or some belated convalescents.

Tim had grown old and hardened in the service. Ready was drooping and gray. The hack had seen both its best and its worst days. There was a family of four at home. Tim knew nothing but driving a hack, so he was fast going down hill with a falling business.

"If I only had the capital to buy an electric cab," he mused longingly. "And a new suit. Then me for a fashionable hotel stand or the depots and a good rest for you, old Ready. Fare, sir?"

Tim, always on the lookout for business, as a feature of routine hailed a man who had suddenly appeared, looking about him as though in a hurry or anxious to hurry others. He was a well-dressed handsome young fellow and he seemed flustered and excited.

The stranger looked over Tim, then his hack, and then old Ready. It was apparent from the disappointed expression of his face that the layout was not encouraging.

"See here," he said rapidly. "Is there a public garage anywhere near?"

"Mile down the avenue," vouchsafed Tim.

Again the man looked over Tim and his equipment.

"Are you ready for a hard run?" he inquired.

"Well, sir," replied Tim, "as you see, old Ready is no race horse, but if it's a sure steady plugging gait he can't be beat."

"Get up on your box and follow orders, then," directed the stranger. "You shall have good pay, only do just as I direct you," and to Tim's surprise the man got up beside him as though resolved to act as pilot direct.

He pulled his coat collar well up over his face and spoke crisply, nervously when he spoke at all. After devious turns and windings he ordered Tim to drive slowly down a dark lane. Behind a three-story brick house he whispered an order to halt.

Then he was lost in the darkness of the yard beyond for some minutes. When he returned, to the amazement of Tim, he carried in his arms a girl's form wrapped up in a great waterproof coat.

"See here, mister," exclaimed Tim, aghast, "what's this—kidnaping?"

"No," flared out the young man breathlessly, "villainy! Poor dear!" and he held the form more shelteringly. "Get us away quick, if you want to help a good cause."

The man disposed of the senseless form of the girl within the vehicle. Then he spoke hurriedly and definitely to Tim. He wished to reach a certain point, a little suburb eight miles distant.

"No traversed roads," he explained. "You must cut across the prairies west of the city."

"It'll be slow work for this old rig, that," reported Tim dubiously.

"Do your best—you shan't lose," assured his fare.

It was, indeed, slow work, and unpleasant and venturesome at that. The old vehicle wobbled and creaked as they left the paved streets. Old Ready stumbled, puffed and had to halt frequently for a rest. Then a mile or less from their destination, a wheel broke off in a rut. The hack nearly pitched over. Ready gave a final gasp and sank down smashing the shafts and lay in the mud and mire, collapsed.

"This is pretty serious," grumbled Tim. "I hope you'll see to the damage."

"Doubly over, my man," promised the fare. "Ah!" he exclaimed joyfully, looking within the vehicle—"Aida, it is I. We have escaped," and he hastened over some explanations. "I will be back as soon as I get my charge to the town just beyond here," he assured Tim and half supporting his companion he disappeared amid the darkness.

"H'm!" commented Tim lugubriously "the end has come for the old layout. I guess."

It was about an hour later when Tim, anxiously stroking poor Ready who appeared to be at his last gasp, was startled by the appearance of two men. They were breathless from running and in a minute or two Tim knew that they were on the trail of his recent fare. They looked inside the vehicle. Then they began to question him as to the direction the passengers had gone.

Sturdy Tim gave them no satisfaction and they tried to force him to speak. He beat off one of his assailants. The other seizing a stone was about to lay him out, when Ready staggered to his feet. With a quick nip he seized the man's arm between his powerful jaws. There was a crunching sound, a curdling yell and then the two baffled fellows sneaked away.

Daylight was dawning as a welcome figure appeared upon the bleak spot on the prairie. There was a happy relieved look in the face of the young man.

"Well, my man," he hailed cheerily, "thought I was going to forget you. I've had lots to do—among other things getting married to the young lady you have helped out of the hands of scheming cruel relations."

"Why, sir, a romance," intimated Tim.

"Well nigh a tragedy," said the young man seriously. "They had drugged her to split her away, but I got ahead of them. Now she is safe. Dear! dear! a wreck, indeed, isn't it?"

"Yes, the old hack will never run again—nor Ready, much," observed Tim.

The stranger asked a few questions. Then he became interested and pressed his inquiries still further.

"I see your mind is on an electric cab," he observed finally. "Well, old Ready deserves retirement. I'll settle the bill for the new layout, uniform and all."

That is why, arrayed in a spick and span suit and proud owner of the noblest cab in the city, Tim Downey does a thriving business as a popular up-to-date chauffeur.

Animals Make Noises Indicative of Speech

One of the most wonderful attributes of zebra mongooses is their capia verborum. Their dispose of so many different sounds, uttered in so great a variety of intonations, and with such convincing expressiveness, of joy, of sorrow, of anger, of regret and disappointment, of expectation, of anxiety and fear, that it amounts to a language.

Unlike many other mammals known to me, they converse at a distance, even when they are out of sight of one another, as, for instance, when they happen to be in two different rooms.

They often talk in their sleep, and Rikki-Tikki (the writer's male mongoose) from time to time gave vent, while sound asleep, to an endless lament, a series of long-drawn, though not unharmonious, wails in a rising and falling cadence, expressive of heart-rending sorrow and distress, painful to listen to in the silence of the night.

Yet another curious peculiarity of theirs is that they look, intently and with evident interest, at stretches of country lying in front of them, when they find themselves at the top of a hill or a mountain where they have not previously been. Their eyesight is marvelously sharp, and they detect birds of prey—the only thing in the world which they fear, apart from leopards and servals—at incredible altitudes in the sky.—Hans Coudenhove in the Atlantic Monthly.

Contact and Influence

Did you ever play marbles? If you have then you know that when two marbles are set going and they come in contact with each other, each is likely to be deflected from its course. If one is shot more swiftly than the other the slower ball will be deflected the more. A large marble will turn a smaller one off its course and go on with scarcely a perceptible deviation from its own way. So likewise no two persons can come together without one or both being influenced from the course chosen.

Long Rails Effect Saving

An order for a fairly large tonnage of unusually long rails has recently been placed by one of the western railroads. By the use of such rails the number of joints will be reduced 15 per cent, resulting in an economy, as the expense of constructing and maintaining joints is a large item. Fewer joints also mean easier rolling, with less wear and tear on the rolling stock and the passengers' nerves.

When in Rome

The watchman in the graveyard approached a figure lying in the grass of the cemetery. He kicked the tramp, who woke up with an injured air.

"What are you doing?" yelled the guardian of the dead.

"Playing dead," answered the weary traveler. "When I am in Rome I do as the Romans do."—Stone Hill.

Fly in the Ointment

"I am rich," he said. "If you marry me, my money, my motor cars, my yacht, my houses, everything will be yours."

"Fine!" she exclaimed, delightedly. Then her brow clouded.

"But what will you do?" she asked.

Temperatures for Best Work

Physical workers can do their best work in an average temperature of between 55 and 65 degrees, while mental workers do better under cooler conditions.

Radio Industry Uses Gas as Fuel In Process of Crystallizing Horns

Crystallizing room in the manufacture of radio horns, showing one drying oven and crystallizing ovens.

ONE of the latest uses of gas in industry is its adoption as a fuel in the manufacture of radio horns. After the fibrous material of which the horns are made has been placed in heavy layers on molds and filled with a composition of paste and glue, the horns are allowed to stand on racks for three hours and are then baked and dried for three more hours in gas heated ovens. Perfect control of the degree of heat in the ovens is made possible by the use of gas.

One of the most popular styles of finish for radio horns is what is known as the crystallized finish. This finish is produced by the application of crystallizing lacquer followed by baking in gas heated ovens. Each oven will accommodate a rack holding forty horns, and additional horns are hung on the oven walls. Through the use of gas in these ovens an even, controlled heat guarantees both successful operation and a maximum speed of production.

Lightning Gives Idea

At a carnival in northern England a tent in which a wireless concert was in progress was struck by lightning. The canvas was split, but the most curious effect was that the dark brown stockings and green blouse worn by one of the women in the tent were bleached white. Such a happening suggests that scientists might profitably investigate the possibility of adapting electricity for bleaching purposes.

Sea Monster Dragged Boat

A sea monster measuring 17 feet in length and 12 feet in girth, and weighing nearly two tons, was captured at Simon's Town, South Africa. When harpooned, this species of sea elephant dragged a 30-foot motorboat two miles and put up a desperate fight before being killed.

Has Variety of Pets

A recent passenger on the Cunarder Saxonia brought a small Noah's ark cargo to his Canadian farm. It consisted of two geese, two ducks, two owls, eight different kinds of cage birds in pairs, and a pair of white mice.

Kiwi a Wonderful Bird

The kiwi is called the strangest bird known to man. It was recently obtained by the government in exchange for a cage of rare white owls. There is no trace of wings on the kiwi. It is a very meditative creature, standing motionless for hours, apparently with a perpetual frown. It sleeps all day and digs for its food at night, which is buried by its keepers. Furthermore, it has the growl of a dog and does not fly.—Kansas City Times.

LOCAL PRIDE STOPPED IN NEW YORK RING IN FINAL ROUND

SID MARTIN GIVEN ROUGH HANDLING

Local Philippino Loses By Technical Knockout to Willie Furguson, of Newark, at Elizabeth—Russel Beats Sailor Sam.

Another local fighter to get rough handling in a strange ring this week was Sid Martin, Philippino, when he was beaten by Willie Furguson, of Newark, in the way of technicality in the sixth round of their scheduled eight round semi-final affair.

Furguson administered a hard beating to the local man, but was in danger himself in a few of the rounds. In the first Martin slipped over a right to the jaw and Furguson went to the canvas for a short count.

The sixth round started with Furguson giving Martin some of his tricks and caused blood to flow freely from the Carteret boy's eye with a stiff one. With forty seconds of the round to go, Martin was in such a bad state that a hard left sent him to the floor, where his seconds tossed in the towel.

In the final bout Spark Plug Russell, popular bantam of Newark, engaged Sailor Sam of Elizabeth, in sort of a slugging match, which Russell easily took by a large margin.

Local Boys Figure In Rahway Victory

Inspired by their showing in previous practice drills, Coach Brooks, of the Rahway High School Varsity football eleven, started five Carteret boys in the game against Cranford, Saturday afternoon which Rahway won by a 33 to 3 score.

Those boys who were chosen by Brooks as starters in last week's game were Garber, left end; Nadel, center; Brown, right guard; Evans, right tackle; and Clifford, right end.

BOUT IS FILLED WITH TNT ACTION

Both Men Were Willing to Fight and Pleased Crowd of Fans Greatly—Tiger Nelson Baffled by Frankie Krebs in Final Bout.

Many fans saw a rare happening at the Perth Amboy Boxing Club's show Monday night, when Dick Lynch was floored for a count of eight by Roy McNeil, colored, of Long Branch, in the fourth stanza of their splashing six story semi-final bout.

The battle was filled with action throughout with both men willing to let forth their assortment of hooks

DICK LYNCH and straight ones. The negro's ability to tie up Dick earned a close decision for him. The weights were: Lynch, 140 pounds, and McNeil, 144.

Sport Notes

Sunde has never ridden a winner in the Preakness. Boxing has become a popular sport among the Brazilians. If it's for exercise why don't golfers lug their own golf bags? The National Lacrosse Association of Canada was organized in 1907. Jem Smith was the last pugilistic champion under the London prize ring rules. There are more than 500,000 caddies on golf links throughout the United States. An athletic champion has never been able to repeat for ten years in either the amateur or professional class. The college record for putting the shot is 48 feet 10 1/4 inches. The world's record—16-pound shot—is 51 feet.

fabric of the Rotherham chapel is practically the same as when it was built in 1483.

Since the dissolution of chantries at the period of the Reformation, the Rotherham chapel has passed through varying vicissitudes, having been used as an almshouse, a jail and more recently a tobacconist's shop.

The chapel is now to be used for the purposes for which it was originally built.

WHAT TO EAT

We learn that the tomato is one of the foods which are rich in vitamins A, B, C. In the raw tomato the vitamins are found in excellent amount; in canned tomato (open kettle method) not so good, but in the pressure canned, almost all of the three are found in the same proportion.

An insufficient amount of the vitamin A in the diet causes one to be susceptible to colds and their complications. The lack of vitamin B is not common in this country; it is found among the rice-eating nations and causes a disease called beri-beri.

A lack of this vitamin tends toward malnutrition and digestive disturbances. A lack of vitamin C causes scurvy, and if insufficient, produces serious results on the liver and teeth.

Lettuce, spinach and green leaves are rich in vitamins and should be eaten freely. Orange juice, grapefruit and lemon juice all are rich in these health and growth-producing elements.

Spring Salad.—Wash a firm head of lettuce, drain and shake dry. Cut into quarters and heap over it quartered tomatoes and sprinkle with chopped celery and onion. Serve with the following dressing: Beat one egg and add gradually a pint of oil, using any of the salad oils; beat in a little at a time until the whole is used, adding at the last enough lemon juice to suit the taste, with salt and cayenne as desired.

Cabbage and Pineapple Salad.—Shred a small head of cabbage and let stand in ice water to become crisp. Drain and add a few slices of finely minced canned pineapple and a generous amount of nicely seasoned salad dressing. Cabbage is another good source of vitamins.

Drink Milk and Have a Good Complexion

If girls only realized how much milk is capable of helping their complexions, they would probably be found drinking this taken-for-granted food at all hours of the day. Milk baths used to be indulged in by beautiful ladies and no doubt they were quite as effective as the mud baths of this generation, but if the milk had been applied internally it is dollars to doughnuts that the fair ones would have noticed red cheeks and firm skin much sooner than by the outside method.

Milk nourishes facial muscles, makes good, red blood to show through, and in all helps perhaps more than any other food to insure a healthy, wholesome complexion. The outdoor girl of today is getting very tired of her paint box mussy cosmetics and she is giving more and more attention to a diet which insures a complexion that will not wash off.

If you envy a good complexion, the sensible and satisfactory way to achieve one is to give thought to the daily diet, remembering that a daily quart of milk is sure to show results before long in the face itself. Once more—don't envy the outdoor girl's school days' complexion—drink and own one yourself!

A tall, thin glass of creamy milk with tiny frost beads gathering on the outside as it comes forth from its frigid retreat in the ice-box! What more refreshing or invigorating drink can one imagine?

The too-slim woman, the near-skinny man knows from hearsay or experience that Pasterurized milk is the delicious substance which can remedy one's natural deficiencies.

While the stoutest woman or the next-to-fat man may equally count on the ways of milk for toning down their excess flesh if taken correctly, and for those who are just right physically, a between-meals "snack" of tasty milk means just plain comfort and better health.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; its significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

IRENE

PERHAPS the most disputed name in the lexicon of feminine proper names, from the standpoint of pronunciation, is Irene, signifying peace. The accent of the syllable has changed within the past couple of years, and the final "e" is now sounded by the fashionable, who have adopted the name.

The origin dates back to heathen days when Eireen, peace, was personified and adored as a goddess. In Christian times, when peace on earth was preached she was formed into a name which was known as Irene. The first Irene of much fame was the pious widow whose care revived St. Sebastian after his first martyrdom, and in 303, three sisters, Agape (love), Irene and Chionia, underwent martyrdom at Thessalonica, but Irene seems to have absorbed all the subsequent honors, although Agape is occasionally to be found in modern Greece, and formed the masculine surname Agapetus, once the property of a pope, and still used in Russia.

The name Irene was very frequent among Greek empresses and belonged to the lady who would fain have added herself to the list of Charlemagne's many wives. It is from her that the Russians have it as Eireena, and in the ancient Greek colony at Sorrento, where the women's features strongly recall their Hellenic descent, Irene is one of the most popular baptismal names.

Irene's jewel is the jaclinth, which is commended especially to travelers, since it insures its wearer from harm and is said to pale in color if danger approaches. It is a peculiar fact, but one none the less vouched for by historical records, that no one wearing a jaclinth has ever been known to have been struck by lightning. To dream of the gem signifies success. Saturday is Irene's lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

James Russell Lowell has written of Irene:

Here is a spirit deep and crystal clear,
Calmly beneath her earnest face it lies,
Free without boldness, meek without a fear,
Quicker to look than speak its sympathies,
Far down into her large and patient eyes
I gaze, deep-drinking of the infinite,
As, in the mid-watch of a clear, still night,

WOMAN'S CLOTHES CATCH FIRE AS SHE WARMS HERSELF AT THE STOVE IN THE DINING ROOM OF HOME—ALL ASLEEP AT TIME.

SCREAMS BRINGS HUSBANDS' AID

Mr. Basini and the Girl Twins Rush to Aid of Mother in Tearing Down Her Burning Clothes Woman Dies Six Hours Later at Rahway Hos- pital—Funeral Services Monday Morning.

Mrs. Johanna Basini, forty-six years old, wife of Caleb Basini, of 497 Roosevelt avenue, this borough, died at 6 o'clock yesterday morning in the Rahway hospital from burns received at 11.30 o'clock Wednesday night, while warming herself at the stove in the dining room. The strings of the apron which Mrs. Basini wore caught fire first and within a moment her entire dress was enveloped in flames.

Screaming to the pitch of her voice Mrs. Basini made an attempt to run up to the upper floor of the Basini residence, but collapsed on the stairs, as her young daughter and her husband, who were asleep at the time, dashed from their beds to her aid.

Mrs. Basini's twin daughters, Elvira and Alfreda, and also their father tore the burning dress from the mother's body, burning their hands in the act. Mrs. Basini finally became unconscious. Cries and screams brought neighbors to the house who made every effort to help the victim. Dr. J. J. Reason was summoned and he gave her first aid. The woman was taken to the Rahway hospital. She succumbed at daybreak yesterday.

The fate of Mrs. Basini gave this borough a big shock for the woman was one of the most active in welfare, charity and civic work. For some time the victim operated a confectionary store with much success due to her friendly spirit among the people.

Mrs. Basini was a member of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, Carteret Court, Catholic Daughters of America, Companions of Foresters, Lady Woodmen of the World, Hyacinth Grove, Ladies' Democratic Organization and the Parent-Teacher Association.

She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Ellen Lausmohr, Mrs. Aida Lee, Mrs. Alma Peterson, Miss Elvira and Miss Alfreda; one brother Hugh McDonald, of Trenton, a sister, Mrs. Mary Hart, of Davison street, and her husband.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning from her late home. Services will take place at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church.

Local Woman Refused Court Divorce Decree

Dismissing a divorce suit in which Paul Kolos of this borough serving a life sentence for murder, was accused of desertion and unfaithfulness, Vice-Chancellor Buchanan Wednesday afternoon refused to grant to the prisoner's wife, Mrs. Mary Kolos. Kolos was brought from the New Jersey state prison for the hearing in the state house. He was sentenced to life imprisonment by the late Justice Jas. J. Bergen of Somerville, August 19, 1921. Mrs. Kunzman, widow of the murdered man, was alleged to have been friendly with Kolos, before the fatal shooting.

The vice chancellor, in dismissing the divorce suit ruled that the petitioner, Mrs. Kolos, had failed to substantiate her charges involving her prisoner-husband and Mrs. Kunzman. The court also held that a divorce on grounds of desertion could not be recommended, the petitioner failing to prove the statutory two-year separation ante-dating the shooting.

Carteret Bus Hit By Fast Express Train

Twelve passengers of a Lincoln bus running between this borough and Perth Amboy and two operators of other vehicles narrowly escaped instant death Wednesday afternoon when the crossing gates for the New Brunswick avenue crossing, of the Central Railroad Company at Perth Amboy were lowered with the vehicles on the tracks in the path of the oncoming southbound Pennsylvania train.

One Life Was Lost, Three Men Are Missing While Thirteen Others were Injured When Oil Tank Explodes at Warner.

ANOTHER BLAST ON WEDNESDAY

Carteret Watches All Night Big Glare From Burning Oil Tank Which Contained 87,000 Gallons of Gas—Damage Is Huge.

One life was lost, thirteen members of an oil tank crew were injured, 87,000 gallons of gasoline burned and a ship and barge destroyed by a fire which broke out at the Sinclair Oil docks at Warner following an explosion shortly before 7 o'clock Monday night. When the explosion occurred, it was first believed that gas tanks of the local oil plant went up. The glare was visible plainly, as if the fire was right here in the midst. It continued to illuminate Carteret most of Monday evening and throughout the entire night. Hundreds of people were standing along the streets watching the progress of the fire.

Barge No. 44 and the steamship William Bruce, both owned by the Sinclair Company tied up at the oil docks Monday afternoon. At 5 o'clock the gas was being poured into the tanks at the yard. The explosion occurred on the barge and fire quickly spread to the ship, where thirty-six men were in the galley and staterooms.

With the thermometer around 20 and a stiff gale blowing across the sound, the employees on the boat were seen running back and forth, some wearing nothing but overalls.

Hope for the safety of three members of the crew of the tug Baxter was abandoned today, after a search since Monday night, when they are believed to have been blown overboard into the icy waters of the Staten Island sound. Captain Peter Vincent of the tug Baxter, which was anchored near the barge and the tanker, said today that part of his crew of seven men were blown overboard while others jumped. He did not know the names of the missing men, because he declared, they had joined the crew only the day before the explosion.

Explosion of one of the two remaining compartments containing gasoline on the tanker on Wednesday morning shook the buildings in Carteret. The tanker burned as late as yesterday.

MULVIHILL SAYS "SOREHEAD MOVE"

Mayor States That If Any Change Is Desired By the People It Should Be Made Into Carteret City Adds That the Existing Governments Are Good Enough For the People.

The borough has been buzzing this week with rumors and reports that a move has been instigated for commission government and that Republicans, Democrats and Independent voters are behind the project. It was reported that the petitions to be signed by the voters was in circulation, but so far it could not be confirmed. There have been seen several printed petitions, none however having any names.

The petitions are in affidavit form containing room for twenty-five signatures. The signatures are arranged in districts so that the borough clerk would have no difficulty in looking up whether the signatures were genuine.

The petition reads as follows: "To the Borough Clerk of the Borough of Carteret, County of Middlesex and the State of New Jersey: "We, the undersigned, legal voters of the Borough of Carteret, do hereby declare that we are persons qualified to vote at the last general election as shown by the registry of qualified voters used at said election in the borough of Carteret, New Jersey, and we do hereby request you to call an election to submit to the voters of the Borough of Carteret aforesaid, the question of the adoption of the provisions of an act, entitled 'An act relating to, regulating and providing for the government of cities, towns, boroughs and other municipalities within this state,' approved April 25, 1911, which title was amended by Chapter 366, Laws of 1912 to read, 'An act relating to, regulating and providing for the government of cities, towns, townships, boroughs, villages and municipalities governed by boards of commissioners of improvement commissions in this state,' pursuant to the provisions of said act and supplements thereto and amendments thereof, and to take all proceedings as therein required."

THANKSGIVING WEEK IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

Many Important Events Sched- uled for Coming Week—Sev- eral Church Bazaars Are at Head Of the List.

Thanksgiving week has another record of dances, entertainments, fairs and card parties on its schedule. As a matter of fact it will keep the young and the grown up folks busy nightly, as something is listed to come off every night of the week.

Tonight the Ladies Republican Club will hold a business meeting, followed by a social and card game. The Ladies' Democratic Organization will also hold a meeting and social tonight. The Ladies' Whist Club will play tonight at the home of Mrs. Julius Kloss. Tomorrow night begins the bazaar of the Holy Family church, which will continue until November 30.

Next Sunday the G. T. Club will hold a party at the Carteret Inn. On Thanksgiving eve the bazaar of St. Joseph's church starts its four days run. On the same night the Young People's Hebrew Association will hold its dance at Dalton's auditorium.

Falcon's hall is occupied almost nightly by Hungarian, Polish and Slavish societies for dances and entertainments.

Fire Threatens Home of Samuel Jackulik

A forest fire which broke out this morning in the field surrounding the home of Samuel Jackulik, of George street, East Rahway, was checked at three o'clock this afternoon by firemen of both companies.

Mrs. Jackulik was battling the blaze all morning as the flames progressed toward her barn and garage. When late this afternoon it grew to a larger proportion, a fire alarm brought out the firemen, who applied chemicals and checked the fire within a short time.

B. & L. SOCIETY IS ORGANIZED

Charles Conrad is Temporary President of Sound View Build- ing & Loan Association Formed Tuesday Night.

WILL START TO FUNCTION SOON

Board of Directors Includes Prominent Business Men of the Borough—Subscription of Shares Is Started.

The Sound View Building & Loan Association of this borough was formed at a meeting held in the office of Elmer E. Brown at 576 Roosevelt avenue, Tuesday night. Temporary officers and a temporary board of directors were elected.

Charles Conrad is president of the association; Dr. J. Wantoch, vice president; Fred S. Simons, secretary, and Robert Brown, treasurer. The board is composed of Aaron Rabinowitz, Daniel B. Brown, Isidore Weiss, Charles Conrad, A. J. Miller, Thomas Cheret, Isidore Zimmerman, Morris Goodman, Frank Brown, George Chama and Victor Axelrad. Elmer E. Brown will act as counselor.

The association will start its function as soon as the necessary amount of shares have been subscribed for. The next regular meeting is scheduled to be held the second Tuesday of December.

The demand for loans in the borough is large, because of the extensive building operations. Big progress has been made in the last year or so by the Carteret Building & Loan Association, the Roosevelt Building & Loan Association and the Blazing Star Building & Loan Association.

ISSUE WILL PAY FOR CONSTRUCTION OF MEMORIAL MUNICIPAL BUILDING—OR- DINANCE IS APPROVED AT FIRST AND SECOND READINGS BY COUNCIL.

WATER SITUATION ALSO DISCUSSED

Ambrose Mundy, Superintendent of Water Com- pany, Explains Various Phases—Electric Boost- er Pump For Fire Emergency Is Advocated By the Fire and Water Committee.

The bond issue and the water question occupied the attention of the Borough Council at the meeting held Monday night. Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill presided. Borough Attorney Emil Stremlau acted as clerk in the absence of Harvey V.O. Platt. Present at the session were Councilman Frank Andres, Samuel B. Brown, Joseph C.

DIPHTHERIA IS TO BE FOUGHT

Board of Health Commences Work On Immunization of Chil- dren Against the Dreaded Dis- ease and Check Its Spread.

TOXIN-ANTITOXIN TO BE APPLIED

Inspector Born Makes An Appeal to Parents to Have Their Chil- dren Undergo the Absolutely Harmless Treatment.

The Board of Health is about to start the immunization of children of the borough against diphtheria to stamp out this dreaded disease. The co-operation of the parents of the children or guardians is being enlisted. The method to be employed is the Toxin-Antitoxin treatment of immunization and is absolutely harmless and avoid of after danger. The only inconvenience the patient may experience is a tired feeling, within twenty-four hours after each injection which are three in number and given at weekly intervals.

Health Inspector Born said today that by giving consent to the treatment, the child is insured against the diphtheria disease for almost a lifetime. Children between the ages of six months to ten years will be cared for first. Other ages will be taken care of later. No child will be treated without the specific consent of the parents. Mr. Born is sending out a circular to the parents calling their attention to this great service given by the Health Board.

Announcement will be made later where the clinics for that purpose will be held. Meanwhile parents desiring the Toxin-Antitoxin, may obtain same by applying to the health officer.

Girls' Friendly Society Has Fine Euchre Party

A large collection of beautiful and valuable prizes were distributed at the euchre held under the auspices of the Girls' Friendly Club of St. Mark's church in the parish house Wednesday night. The affair was a notable success, financially and socially. Ten games of euchre were played, following which refreshments were served.

The first prize went to Mrs. Edith Klose. The other winners were Cecelia Andres, Peter Wilbur, Mrs. Kathryn Coughlin, Mrs. F. Larkin, Mrs. L. Peterson, Mrs. Saunders, E. Barker, Bessie Edmond, Mary Kadilla, Mrs. Thomas Misdom, F. Colgan, Mary Edmond, Mrs. Andrew Christensen, Mrs. Amy Reid, Miss Kathryn G. Brady, Mrs. J. Bodnar, Miss Lillian Donnelly, Thomas Misdom, Stephen Stanson, Mrs. S. Bishop, Miss Dorothy Thatcher, Miss Amanda Kirchner, William Schints. The door prizes went to Miss Ruth Ellis and August Freeman.

Mrs. Kloss Entertains Whist Club Tonight

The Ladies' Whist Club will be entertained tonight at the home of Mrs. Julius Kloss. Last Friday night the ladies met at the home of Mrs. E. Lerkowitz. Mrs. J. Mantoch was the winner of the first prize. The second prize went to Miss Clara Stern and the third to Mrs. Thomas D. Cheret.

Plenty Turkeys Here

Thanksgiving turkeys will be plentiful for Carteret buyers with prices probably five to six cents a pound less than last year, according to meat market proprietors here. The supply is plentiful, it is stated.

Child, Edward Wilgus and Charles A. Phillips.

A bond issue for $125,000 to pay for the construction of the memorial municipal building will be floated shortly in accordance with an ordinance passed at the first and second readings. The issue will be known as public improvement bonds and will be dated January 1, 1925. All outstanding certificates issued on the borough hall account will be redeemed with the sale of the bonds.

Property owners along Catherine street petitioned the council for sewer connections. The request was referred to the Borough Engineer, Oliver Mitchell, and the street and road committee for investigation. Peter Desanto of 48 Union street petitioned the council for a permit to operate a poolroom. This was referred to the police committee.

Considerable amusement was furnished by Ambrose Mundy, of the Middlesex Water Company to the council. The members of the council have learned that if anyone operates a still in the borough, the water company officials will know about it. Mr. Mundy said that each meter reader has instructions to mark an "S" on house cards where a still is found. This disclosure was made by Mr. Mundy after Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill and Borough Attorney Emil Stremlau balked against a bill of 167 sent to George Sanyi, of Holly street, this borough. The bill is for three months water service in the Sanyi residence. The mayor, to whom Sanyi appealed for aid, was sure that Sanyi never used that much pressure as to deserve a bill of 167 when his quarterly bills run about $3.

It was after Mayor Mulvihill protested against this huge bill that Mr. Mundy explained how he thought that Sanyi might have used a lot of water. The superintendent told the council that Sanyi's water rate card came to the office marked with an "S" which indicated that he operated a still. The mayor however insisted that to his knowledge Sanyi does not run a still, that he is a well behaved citizen and a hard working man. Mr. Mundy insisted that the company would make no adjustment and referred the town fathers to take the case to the Public Utilities Commission.

Councilman Charles A. Phillips, chairman of the fire and water committee, asked Mr. Mundy whether it would not be well to install an electric booster pump so that water pressure could be drawn in case of fire or other emergency. Mr. Mundy believed the suggestion to be a good one. He intimated however that if the courts will give the company the rate now asked, there would be no specific need for the pump as a new 24-inch main would be laid.

Jolly Girl Hiking Club Add New Members

At the regular meeting of the Jolly Girls' Hiking Club recently, held at the home of Miss Ida Lee, three girls became members of the club. The present members are the following: Misses Edna Bradford, Helen Donnelly, Olive Gunderson, Ida Lee, Mary Muchi, Louise Pirron, Evelyn Springer, Frances Sarzilla and Helen Scalagi.

The club decided to go to Proctors Theatre at Elizabeth on Thanksgiving Day to see "The Old Homestead." Plans were also made for a social gathering during ceremonial week. Refreshments were served after adjournment by the hostess.

Games were played in which Miss Miss Fannyuanuanouanouanua Helen won the booby prize, Fanny won the writing contest and Edna the funny story contest.

Thanksgiving

Suddenly over the border
That shelters night from day
The sun had dropped and as quietly
Sped on its ceaseless way.
But in the west there lingered
In dapper hues and fair,
A twilight which awakened
The watcher's heart to prayer.

God, for beauties shown me,
The mauve, the crimson and gray,
That herald the advent of evening
And tell of departing day;
For clouds tinged with gold and silver,
For heaven's lanterns fair,
For all of earth and its wonders,
I offer this, my prayer.

I thank thee for friends who are loyal,
For dear ones, for love that is true,
For home and the comfort it brings me
When day and my labors are through;
For victories won o'er the tempter,
For strength of my body of clay,
For peace in our land of freedom,
And hope—for the coming day.

—Chicago Tribune.

Thanksgiving Reveries and Queries

Thanksgiving is the first of America's own holidays. As the earliest to be set apart its observance runs through the whole history of the nation. Like most other distinctive features of our American order of life it sprang up out of the local soil. It was at first and for many years colonial. It became national only as its observance spread from town to town, from colony to colony, from state to state.

While it has a historical interest all its own, Thanksgiving is identified with no single event, no special occasion, no definite date in our history. It recalls no single act, as does "Independence day." It commemorates the name and service of no man, as do the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln. It is not shared with other peoples as are Christmas and New Year's.

Day Identified With All.
The American Thanksgiving day is identified with the soil we till, for whose harvest we give thanks. It is, therefore, identified with the toil and the toilers whose tillage and productive labor, inventive skill, constructive and distributive enterprise feed, clothe, shelter and develop our own people and many of their kith and kin in the old fatherlands across the seas. "Thanksgiving" is another and greater Labor day. It recalls and calls forth all kinds of effort by all classes of people. It merges the common product of the common toil, for the national possession of which the President and governors of the whole people call upon them to thank their Father-Creator and the good providence of the Great Provider. In thus reminding us that our harvests are the joint product of Mother Nature, the children of men and Father God, Thanksgiving is first of all the American people's expression of grateful appreciation for their "country"—its land and waters, its fertility and beauty; for our great out-of-doors nature, its response to human effort, to man's discovery and his working with natural law. Thanksgiving is, therefore, nature's harvest-home holiday.

Celebrates Entire Year.
And yet it celebrates the full round year. While held after harvest, Thanksgiving does not let us forget the seed and sowing of the springtime, the plowing and weeding of the summer as vital to the all-inclusive process of reaping. Moreover, and above all, in this linking soil and skies, earth and the heavens, it is the Day of Remembrance of the Father of us all, as the great giver not only but as the greatest worker, with whom we may work and who works with all for the common good. "My father worketh hitherto and I work," said the greatest of the sons of God and the children of men.

These reveries awaken queries, also. Inham Taylor declares, in the Chicago Daily News. They spring from the sincerest recognition and most appreciative acknowledgment that the American people are and always have been, a composite race, and that adopted citizens from many lands have done very much to make America what it is. The early history of the United States interweaves fine, strong strands of English, Scotch, Celtic, French, Spanish and Jewish life, with not few or feeble negro traits, and toils, and some relics of Indian and old Mexican civilization. The human conquest and amazing development of this new continent cannot be accounted for without crediting much to the toil and many other enrichments of the Latin, Slavic and southeastern European immigrants. Contributions to our culture in art and philosophy and to our cultivation of the land and our commerce of the sea come from the older civilizations of China, India and Japan.

Founders of Country's Faith.
Foundations of America's faith were laid by pilgrims and cavaliers, Catholics and Protestants, each in its own way, yet all to the same great end. They are merely listed here as queries raised by our Thanksgiving reveries, their discussion being reserved for timely opportunity. Their mere statement, however, makes bold the undoubting faith and hope that these, and all other problems of American life, can all and only be solved and settled by the spirit inspiring Katherine Lee Bates' great patriotic hymn that breathes the soul of our American Thanksgiving:

O, beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
America, America,
God send His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

O, beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved
And mercy more than life.
America, America,
May God thy gold refine,
Till all success be nobleness
And every grain divine.

Holiday of the Home.
Thanksgiving is a day sacred to the home. More of it is spent at home than at church, in family reunions than in public assemblies, in serving the needy, the lonely, and the homeless than in formal services of worship. Its sanctuary is the thoughtful, thankful heart more than the house of worship. Who that has lived in any of our oldest colonial states, especially in New England, can ever forget, or fail to have a glow of heart at every remembrance of the real home Thanksgiving day as observed on the soil from which it sprang? At the very mention of it, what visions reappear, of the long preceding preparations for it at the old family homestead; of the letters flying forth and back between the old folks at home and the scattered young folks in their new homes, or transient abodes; of the railway station platforms and cars thronged by merry home-bound children-of-an-older-growth, and children's children; of greetings at the threshold of the old farm house or village home, mingling the smiles and laughter of the living with tears or silent, sorrowing, undying yearning for "the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still"; of the bountifully laden,

That our ancient order of obedience and orderly change stands fast.
For the hope of better social understanding and just dealings.
That our great opportunities of world-wide helpfulness remain.
That the idea of brotherhood among the nations has taken root.

—Congregationalist and Advance beautifully decorated family table, with America's fattest turkey as a "welcome home," instead of the "fatted calf" of ancient days.

National Development.
In the truest American homes the Thanksgiving family reunion is all that Robert Burns sang of "The Cotter's Saturday Night," and still more for being more joyous, though no less religious for all that. And there are Americans, not a few, who feel deep down in their hearts for their own country what the Scotch singer sang of his: "From scenes like these old Scotia's grandeur springs."

Out of this population more wonderfully composite than constitutes the citizenship of any other nation, a very distinctive national development has evolved. It is recognized by ourselves and other peoples as distinctively our own. As such, and as a distinct contribution to the world's possessions and to the heritage of mankind, it is here and now being considered, without any comparison with the characteristics of other nations, as better or worse.

This life-spirit of the American people is a fact, and a fact that raises these two queries at least: Is this American life or spirit distinct and valuable enough to be conserved, developed and perpetuated? If so, how can it maintain its distinct identity and value, enriched by the accessions from abroad which are appreciated and welcomed, without being transformed, diluted, or deteriorated? These are not only fair questions, but are queries that are forcing themselves upon the more or less strained attention of our people.

Thankfulness and Hope

Thanksgiving is not, at its best, what anybody says or does, but rather what he feels. And so it is, that all of us, equal members in a free democracy, are privileged to draw our inventories together, to total up the credit side of our ledger of life as one united people, and to join together in a festival of good cheer and hearty thanks for what the past has yielded; to face the future with a mutual hopefulness in what it holds in store—Farm and Ranch.

Good Samaritan Aids Jailbirds; Home Looted

Milwaukee.—Glenn Henry's abiding faith in the basic goodness of mankind has been severely tested.
Mr. Henry, who in business hours is credit manager of the Wisconsin Credit Clothing company, spends his leisure hours doing good to his needy brothers, making a specialty of assisting those whose errors have landed them in jail.

Last week he obtained the release on parole of a house of correction prisoner, took the man to his home, and helped him with carfare and suggestions in hunting a job. His protégé brought in a friend, who also needed help in getting started back on the straight path. The newcomer was also provided with temporary sleeping and eating quarters in the Henry home.

At night, when Mr. Henry returned after a few hours' absence, he found his welfare workers absent. So were a violin, a gun, a traveling bag and numerous other articles which had not been nailed down. The missing articles are worth about $75, he told police.

Thief Accepts $1 Loot

San Francisco.—"Give me that purse," demanded the uncouth stranger who approached Mrs. Eugenia T. Early at Colby and Bacon streets recently. "I will not," responded Mrs. Early in a very decided tone of voice. "A dollar is enough for you." The bandit took the dollar and meekly went his way.

Town Maintains Haven for Hoboes and Such

Altoona, Pa.—Although it's only an old barn, it has a reputation throughout the United States.
Years ago, a man named Hagerty, who lived just outside the limits of this city, owned the barn, which became a favorite stopping place for the knights of the road traveling along the route of the present Lincoln highway. Mr. Hagerty never objected to the hoboes stopping in his barn, even after fire, believed to have been started by them, destroyed the original building. He built a new barn, and when he died enjoined his heirs never to close the building's doors to tramps. The heirs have done his bidding. Every night from two or three to a dozen hoboes stop there.
A resident of this city, traveling in the west this summer, was asked by a man from California if he knew where Hagerty's barn was located. The Altoonian replied in the affirmative, and the western man said he and many "traveling friends" had stopped at the place.

MOTHER'S SUMMER GIRL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH
SUMMERTIME is children's time More than any other.
"Wintertime brings Christmas time," Interrupts my mother.
Yes, I know, but Christmas goes Overnight and leaves the snows, But the summer stays and stays All through all the summer days.
Summertime is sunny time; That's another reason Why I like the summertime More than any season. Mother says, "It's often hot." Yes, and often it is not. Then we have the summer showers, Bringing all the summer flowers.
Summertime is picnic time, That is why I love it, With the green grass all around, Skies of blue above it. "But the summer cooks you so," Mother says. It does, I know, But, it seems, the more you cook, More they say how "well" you look.
"Summertime is some one's time, And that some one's you!" Mother says, and takes me up, Just like mothers do. Says (and aren't mothers queer?), "I was teasing you, my dear." Pets my cheek and pats my curl, Says that I'm her "summer girl."

Ship's "Mate"
Our word "mate," the ship's officer, is derived from "gemacca," meaning an equal or companion. Today the word mate is also used in a slang sense for friend or comrade. The sea sense of the word is that the mate is the equal to the captain in capacity, able to assist him, and, if necessary, to take his place.

Copying Nature
Cover a billiard table in a bright red cloth instead of the customary soft green and every billiard hall would be deserted in half an hour. Billiard tables from the beginning were covered with green for the same reason that nature covers her open stretches usually with green, because it is soothing to the eye.

MILESTONES IN NEW JERSEY'S PROGRESS

A thirty-foot ship channel leads from the two miles of deck frontage at Port Newark through to the open sea.

Port Newark gives Northern New Jersey Industries another Outlet to the Seven Seas.

THE CITY OF NEWARK, under the leadership of Director Thomas L. Raymond, is developing on Newark Bay a shipping centre that combined with the fourteen railroads now serving the district gives New Jersey industries unequalled transportation facilities by land and sea. The shores of Newark Bay and of the Hackensack and Passaic Rivers are destined to become the greatest industrial community on the Atlantic Coast. Port Newark supplements these splendid port facilities now furnished by the Hudson and the Delaware rivers.

Electricity and gas are necessities in modern industrial processes and the utilities furnishing these commodities share in the profits of industrial progress.

In the last five years the electric power load of Public Service increased by more than forty per cent.

In the last five years the sales of industrial gas by Public Service increased by more than thirty per cent.

The earnings of the operating subsidiaries of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey come from the business of furnishing electric, gas and local transportation to five-sixths of the State's people, give to the Corporation's securities safety and stability and permit the payment of an attractive return. # THE GOVERNOR'S DECISION

By FRANK ALLEN

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE governor sat at his desk, staring at a letter in his hand. Presently he touched his bell. A smart, alert secretary appeared.

"I shall not see anyone this afternoon except a woman named Mrs. Winthrop," he said. "She is to be admitted as soon as she arrives."

"Very good, sir," answered the secretary, and disappeared again.

Governor Smith read the letter again, and his thoughts went traveling back along a road that he had kept closed, even against himself, for 20 years. The letter was a pathetic appeal from a mother on behalf of her only son, sentenced to serve ten years in prison for killing a man in a drunken brawl. "He is a good boy," wrote the mother, "but his father was a convict, and he never had a chance. I implore you to give me a hearing. I shall come to the executive mansion this afternoon at four. Do not refuse to see me, if you have any mercy, Lucy Winthrop."

The governor was back 20 years inside the penitentiary at Mansfield.

"Smith," said the head warden, "the governor wants to see you."

The convict followed the man into the office, where the governor was standing before the window.

"This is the man, sir," said the head warden, and the governor turned round and took the prisoner's hand in his.

"Smith, you are a free man," he said. "I have decided to issue you an unconditional pardon. In due time, if you show yourself worthy of it, your rights of citizenship will be restored to you."

He paused and added:

"Remember, Smith, there is the stain of murder on your soul. You killed a man. There is no way of disguising that, even to yourself. That you had great provocation extenuates your crime, but does not excuse it. I hope you will report to me, Smith, from time to time. Now you can go back to your wife and child."

It was three years since the convict had seen his wife. The child had not been born when he was sent to prison. When Smith saw the free heavens above him and heard the clang of the prison gates behind, the tears streamed down his cheeks.

He went to the little cottage where his wife had lived. The place was for sale. Nobody knew anything about her. Smith spent weeks trying to locate her. That he did so at last was purely by chance. He met her father in the street. The old man passed by as though he did not see him. Smith ran back and seized him by the arm.

"For heaven's sake tell me where she is," he cried. "She is not dead."

"She is dead to you, forever," answered the old man.

"You have no right to keep her from me."

"I am not keeping her from you. She is keeping away from you because she wants no more to do with you. She helped you to gain your freedom, now she is going to keep hers. She has secured a divorce."

Smith had killed one man, and the memory of his crime was strong upon him. Nevertheless he was ready to kill another. He looked around; the street was almost empty and it was growing dark. He seized the old man by the throat.

"Tell me where she lives, or I will strangle you," the ex-convict shouted. He saw a look of terror in the other's eyes. The old man stammered out the address, and the ex-convict, releasing him, hurried away.

The old man had been too terrified to lie. Smith found the place; it was a clean little cottage on the outskirts of the town. Smith would never have found it without the information. He rapped at the door, and a moment later he was staring into his wife's terrified eyes.

"You have come back!" she whispered.

Before the man could reply he heard a child calling from one of the rooms. He hurried in. Upon a little cot the baby was seated, and, as the father entered, he looked up at him and smiled. Something seemed to burst in the man's heart. He snatched the child in his arms and covered him with kisses.

"Put down my child!" exclaimed his wife's voice at his side, and Smith turned to see a fury confronting him.

"You—murderer!" the woman gasped. "How dare you come here and pollute my child with your touch?"

"Your child?" the man stammered.

"Yes, mine. The court gave me the custody of him. You have no part with him any more. You have no right here. Leave this house and never let me see you again!"

This was the woman who had clung to him so lovingly when the guard led him away to begin his sentence. The man looked helpless, and the woman, seeing his distress, softened a little.

"I don't want to hurt you more than you have hurt yourself," she said. "Don't you see that you must not come into my life again?"

"No," said the man stupidly.

"For the boy's sake," she answered.

"What do you think his life will be if he grows up to discover that his father was a convict?"

"We can go somewhere," the man pleaded. "We can begin life anew."

"And live a lie? No," she answered. "The court has set me free, and given me the child. I am sorry for you, but you must go. It is for his sake."

Smith put on his hat and went out without a word. He had hardly set his foot outside the door before it closed.

From that moment he had set to work desperately to retrieve himself. He had taken a position, through the kindness of the governor, who saw to it that his past should never come to light among his associates. He had saved money, had gone into politics. He was elected a congressman. Then, the record of his unflinching integrity aided him, and he had been swept into the governor's chair by a large majority of the voters of his state. And the secret of his past died when the old governor, his friend, died, leaving him a legacy sufficient to insure him against all future want. It was the supreme act of the old governor's life, that he, who had not been all he had dreamed of being, should have raised this convict out of the dust.

"Mrs. Winthrop, sir," said the secretary.

A black-garbed woman hurried into the room and sank down into the chair which the governor had courteously accorded her.

"I got your letter, madam," said the governor.

"You will pardon him," the mother pleaded. "He never had a chance. He was a convict's son."

The governor was looking into her face. She did not know him. But he would have known her anywhere.

"Tell me what happened to the father," he requested.

"He was a murderer," sobbed the woman. "When he came out of prison I cast him off. I could not let the boy grow up to know that his father had killed a man. But it was in the blood. Still, Henry struck in a moment of anger. He had no intention to kill."

"But the father, madam," persisted the governor. "What became of him?"

"How should I know?" answered the woman. "He went to the bad, I suppose. He was a worthless man. I could not let Harry know that his father was a murderer."

"You have never regretted your decision, madam? It did not occur to you that you had some responsibility for the father's future?"

"No!" she cried wildly. "Don't let us talk of that scoundrel; tell me that you will pardon my son."

She raised her eyes for the first time and looked into the governor's face. Something there seemed to terrify her. For the moment, for she looked hard at him, and the governor met her gaze patiently. If she recognized him—but she did not recognize him. Her eyes fell, then she sank to the floor and, kneeling before the governor, with her hands clasped in appeal.

"You must pardon him," she said. "You, who are so upright, to whom temptation has never come, cannot understand the temptations and passions of a boy bereft of a father's love and protection. I did everything I could for him. I changed my name. I moved to another city. But it was hard to give him the proper environments, and in spite of all he turned out wild, but he will never do wrong again."

"Get up, madam," said the governor. "I have decided to pardon the boy on one condition. This is, that he report to me from time to time, that I may know how he is progressing. I hope to help him, too; if he wants his chance to run straight, he shall have it. That is all, madam. The pardon shall be delivered to the warden tomorrow. And—if I may venture on a suggestion to you—remember that charity covers all sins. Be charitable, even in your memories of the man you married and cast away. Good afternoon."

Distinctive Colors of Moose, Caribou, and Elk

The caribou, or reindeer, which is a member of the deer family, is closely related to the reindeer of Europe and Asia. There are at least two distinct species. The Arctic caribou, which inhabits the Far North from Greenland to Alaska, has a gray or light brown coat in summer. In the coldest season the animal is almost white. The woodland caribou is darker in color and larger in size. The moose, also a member of the deer family, is purplish-gray. It is much larger than the caribou. Strictly speaking, there is no elk in America. The name is correctly applied to the great flat-horned deer of Europe, but in this country to the wapiti, which is the large, round-horned stag. The wapiti is related to the red deer of Europe rather than the true elks. The American elk, or wapiti, originally inhabited large parts of the American continent, but it is now confined almost entirely to the northern Rockies. It is yellowish-brown on its upper parts, while its sides are gray.—Pathfinder Magazine.

FEARS PROMISE OF GIFT IS THREAT

Death Revives Grim Tragedy of Wedding Eve.

Harbin, China.—An old man died recently in a small village of eastern Siberia whose name evokes among Russians memories of a tragedy, the poignancy of which is unsurpassed in the annals of that wild and gloomy land.

St. Petersburg was the scene and the time the late '80s. The principal actor was a younger officer of one of the most brilliant regiments of the czar's guard. He was accomplished and highly connected and a general favorite, but the life led by him and a majority of his comrades proved too fast for the resources of a diminished and badly managed estate.

The young officer turned to the money lenders who preyed upon men of his kind. One was found who was willing to advance money against his promissory notes, and who never failed to respond until the total debt had reached many thousands of rubles.

Finally the chance of a wealthy marriage gave promise of release for the young man from his financial troubles. He informed the money lender of his good luck and obtained more money.

The money lender told the young officer that he planned a fine wedding present for the occasion of his marriage. Misinterpreting the man's meaning and taking it to be a threat that the notes would be presented for payment or protest, the young officer foresaw himself ruined and resolved upon desperate measures.

The money lender was found dead in his own house a few days later, and the crime was traced to the borrower. The police discovered among the old man's effects a package neatly tied with ribbon containing all of the other's notes. An inscription showed that this was to have been the wedding gift.

Evidence of the young officer's guilt was clear and he was exiled to Siberia. Old residents of Siberia tell many stories of his remorse-stricken life, which has just ended in penury and misery.

Finds Father After 45 Years, Result of Dream

Paterson, N. J.—A month ago Mrs. Jeanette Miller, who lives in a furnished apartment at 75 Pearl street, this city, dreamed of her father, whom she had not seen since she was a girl of six, 45 years ago. So vivid was her dream that she went to police headquarters at Brooklyn, N. Y., and enlisted the aid of the police in a search for her father.

The story of Mrs. Miller's dream was published in the newspapers and came to the eye of John Rosenthal, a real estate broker of Springfield, L. I. Mr. Rosenthal remembered that the night watchman who had been in his employ for more than thirty years had often spoken of a missing daughter. He arranged a meeting between Mrs. Miller and the watchman, who proved to be her father.

The father had been working under the name of Winchester, but a photograph of himself and his wife taken at the time of their marriage disclosed a striking resemblance between the woman and Mrs. Miller.

Dog Chained to Fatal Motor Changes Color

Galveston, Tex.—Mutt, a black-and-tan Alredale, furnished the first instance ever recorded here of an animal turning gray from fright or shock. The dog, belonging to seven-year-old Jack Symington, Jr., had been missing since an automobile accident in which both the boy's parents were killed.

Mutt was chained to the running board when the car struck a rut while running at a high rate of speed and turned over three times. Later the dog was found cowering under the house. When he was finally enticed out his head was covered with white hairs.

Good and Bad Luck

To balance "unlucky" superstitions there are many "lucky" ones. If, when dressing, one accidentally puts on a garment inside out, an unexpected gift will shortly arrive. To carry about a coin with a hole in it is to secure one's self against misfortune, and if swallows are permitted to build near a house, the owner need not trouble to take out a fire insurance policy, for fire will never attack a dwelling thus protected.

High Prizes for Animals

The bureau of animal industry says that the highest price ever paid for a horse was $205,000. This was a thoroughbred horse purchased by August Belmont from an Englishman. The highest price paid for a bull was $106,000. There are several instances where dairy cows have been purchased for amounts over $25,000.

Where Walnuts Flourish

Commercial success in growing the English walnut is found only in southern California. In the Eastern states, so far as the present data show, it may be said that the Persian walnut flourishes on all soils upon which the black walnut is found, and under favorable conditions on some others. Sandy loams, clay loams and gravelly loams if not too open, are suitable for the growth of this tree.

Drink Milk and Have a Good Complexion

If girls only realized how much milk is capable of helping their complexions, they would probably be found drinking this taken-for-granted food at all hours of the day. Milk baths used to be indulged in by beautiful ladies and no doubt they were quite as effective as the mud baths of this generation, but if the milk had been applied internally it is dollars to doughnuts that the fair ones would have noticed red cheeks and firm skin much sooner than by the outside method.

Milk nourishes facial muscles, makes good, red blood to show through, and in all helps perhaps more than any other food to insure a healthy, wholesome complexion. The outdoor girl of today is getting very tired of her paint box mussy cosmetics and she is giving more and more attention to a diet which insures a complexion that will not wash off.

If you envy a good complexion, the sensible and satisfactory way to achieve one is to give due thought to the daily diet, remembering that a daily quart of milk is sure to show results before long in the face itself. Once more—don't envy the outdoor girl's school days' complexion—drink and own one yourself.

A tall, thin glass of creamy milk with tiny frost beads gathering on the outside as it comes forth from its frigid retreat in the ice-box! What more refreshing or invigorating drink can one imagine?

The too-slim woman, the near-skinny man knows from hearsay or experience that Pasterurized milk is the delicious substance which can remedy one's natural deficiencies.

While the stoutest woman or the next-to-fat man may equally count on the ways of milk for toning down their excess flesh if taken correctly, and for those who are just right physically, a between-meals "snack" of tasty milk means just plain comfort and better health.

THANKSGIVING

There are so many things that we can give thanks for next Thursday, which is Thanksgiving Day. We can give thanks because we are happy, prosperous and gay.

Be grateful first that you are alive, if all your undertakings thrive. If you have met with some reverse, do not think that you must your woes rehearse, but just bear in mind that things could be worse and be thankful.

If you are blessed with strength and health, though you may have but little wealth, be satisfied with what you have got, don't moan about your wretched lot, but whether you are rich or not, be thankful.

In short whatever your place in life for parents, children, friends, or wife, the course of fate you cannot swerve—you must admit with all your nerve that you've got as much as you deserve.

BE THANKFUL.

BOY SCOUT PICTURE AT LOCAL THEATRES

"The Call" Will Be Shown at the Majestic and Crescent Theatres on Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 1 and 2, Respectively.

An excellent motion picture based on the Boy Scout idea of character building will be shown at the Majestic and Crescent theatres in this borough on Monday and Tuesday, December 1 and 2.

The picture is known as "The Call," and it has been heartily endorsed by the National office of the Boy Scouts of America.

The synopsis of "The Call" is as follows: Jerry, an orphan "newsy," while watching a Boy Scout parade, realizes that he, too, would like to be a Boy Scout.

summer camps. Here he enters whole heartedly into the camp activities. "Egg Mary," who delivers fresh eggs to the camp, is waylaid and robbed. Jerry, with the help of his companions, capture the robbers and recovers "Egg Mary's" money.

The Executive Committee of the local scout councils urge the attendance of every one interested in the importance of boy's work to see this production. They also take this means of expressing the appreciation of the Boy Scouts of America in this district to Messrs. Spivack, Goldstein, Kenny and managers of the theatres at which it will be shown.

The picture will also be shown at Woodbridge and Perth Amboy.

An advertisement inserted in The Carteret News will bring quick results.

Newark Theatre

The marriage question comes in for a lot of overhauling in the coming film attraction at the Newark Theatre, commencing Monday, Nov. 24, for the entire week. This is no less than a screen version of Owen Davis' well known play, "Her Marriage Vow."

"Her Marriage Vow" is the story of young Carol, who turns down wealthy Ted Lowe to marry Bob Hilton, who has only a very meager salary check to offer. Most of her friends think she is terribly foolish. But her old grandmother with whom she has been living since the death of her own parents, is glad that she chose love rather than riches.

The man who was rejected and who represented "riches," refuses to get out of the scene; he waits patiently; and when a little domestic difficulty opens up between Bob and Carol, in he steps, and then the drama fizzes.

The part of Carol is played by Beverly Bayne (Mrs. Francis X. Bushman) who makes her return to screenland after a long lay-off. Bob Hilton is impersonated by Monte Blue, a star who needs no introduction to film fans. Others in the cast are Willard Louis, Margaret Livingston, John Roche and Priscilla Moran.

The Pantages Vaudeville program is headed by the Colleano Family—eight members. They are known as the world's greatest acrobats, equilibrists and creators of thrills and their act is a sensational exhibition of whirl wind feats. Others on the program are Kate and Wiley, vaudeville's classiest gymnasts; Bentell and Gould in "Dansyobits"; Burke, Welsh and Nana in "They're Peculiar"; and Eva North in "Here Comes Eva."

Broad Street Theatre

Sam Forrest, accomplished though taciturn general stage director for Sam H. Harris, has been associated for more than thirty years with the stage and its doings. His knowledge of stagecraft is a byword in New York dramatic circles. Necessarily from this long association, there has been borne home to Mr. Forrest the dismay attached to making predictions about the success or failure of a stage production.

It was with some surprise therefore, that this writer harked yesterday to a positive statement ament the delights of "The Moneylender," the new comedy-drama which Sam H. Harris will present at the Broad Street Theatre, Newark, for an entire week beginning Monday, Nov. 24.

When Sam Forrest's lips are cast in prophetic mold the auditor knowing the man, cannot fail to listen. "This new play is a gem," Mr. Forrest began. "It has vitality, a charming romance, splendid situations and a thrill a minute. Combine this with the excellent color the production exudes, and the fact that it is replete with lines and scenes which bring forth hearty laughs and we have something made to order for popular fancy. The strong theme of "The Moneylender" cannot be overlooked. We have had "Abie's Irish Rose" and a host of pieces concocted frivolously about the general theme of the meeting of Jew and Gentile—intention matrimony. In "The Moneylender," there has been given excellent and serious treatment of this powerful motif. "In my years of experience directing productions, I have never had a more malleable group of actors to cope with. I have no hesitancy in saying that "The Moneylender" is cast perfectly. And the author has afforded eighteen splendid parts for a perfect cast to interpret intelligently. If preliminaries ever have fore-ordained the success of an attraction, the material and the progress of Mr. augurs certain success."

Branford Theatre

With John M. Stahl directing, Lewis Stone, Florence Vidor and Lew Cody in the leading roles and A. P. Young writing the adaptation, the same veterans who are responsible for many motion picture successes, there is no doubt that "Husbands and Lovers," which is the First National attraction now playing at the Branford Theatre, that it is in keeping with their part work.

"Husbands and Lovers" is based on an original theme by Mr. Stahl. While it contains no similarity of plot or action to either his "Why Men Leave Home" or his previous success "The Dangerous Age," the story deals in a humorous way with the same sort of intimate details of married life. Misunderstandings and little squabbles, embarrassing differences of opinions before outsiders, the family "friend" who is particularly attractive to his chum's wife and very appreciative of the way she does her hair and her taste in clothes—all of these little things that approach tragedy in real life Stahl pictures with touches of comedy that makes the production a delightful satire.

Larry Semon, one of the screen's foremost fun-makers appears in his latest comedy "The Gown Shop," and the Branford Review of Events completes the motion picture program. The Branford Mixed Quartette, consisting of Ann Robinson, soprano; Forma Lee, contralto; Terry Horne, tenor and Robert Johns, baritone, appear on the A. Gordon Reid programme and offer an unusual array of numbers.

The Branford Symphony orchestra, assisted by Warren Yates at the mammoth organ, renders a popular operatic overture under the direction of Jacob L. Rittenband.

"Football Week" will again be staged at the Branford commencing Saturday, Nov. 25. Motion pictures have been taken of all leading high schools in action and each night two schools will have the theatre for their rosters.

Shubert Theatre

For the gala Thanksgiving Week attraction at the Shubert Theatre, Newark, the Messrs. Shubert will offer their latest and most sumptuous musical offering, "Lovetime in Heidelberg." This mammoth attraction will come to Newark direct from a record breaking engagement in Philadelphia, and prior to its New York premiere. The company numbers more than one hundred members. The chief prima donna role is sung by the petite, blonde and dazzling European prima donna, Ise Marvenga. Opposite her plays Howard Marsh, whose splendid performance in "Blossom Time" is of recent memory. Much of the comedy of the operetta is entrusted to George Hassell, who has been featured in numerous Winter Garden productions. In addition there is one of the greatest singing choruses ever seen on the local stage, including forty lovely girls and fifty trained male voices.

Briefly, "Lovetime in Heidelberg" relates how Prince Karl, Franz, of Karlsberg, is sent for a year of study to Heidelberg University where he falls in love with Kathie, the prettiest waitress at the Inn of the Three Golden Apples at which the students are wont to foregather for their song-fests and beer. Just as their attachment has reached the point where he is ready to chuck the business of royalty and flee away to Paris with the beautiful Kathie, duty calls him back to Karlsberg, the throne and marriage with a Princess of the blood. He never forgets the Kathie of his youth, though, and there is an enchanting scene at the end when he returns to Heidelberg to see once again the sweetheart who had glorified his student days.

The Messrs. Shubert believe "Lovetime in Heidelberg" to be the outstanding success of their career, destined to surpass in popularity those other famous musical successes, "Maytime" and "Blossom Time." The musical score, embracing twenty-three numbers, is by Sigmund Romberg and the books and lyrics by Dorothy Donnelly.

AUTO LICENSE AGENT NOW IN WOODBRIDGE

Commissioner Dill Appoints J. P. Gerity of 93 Main Street, Woodbridge, Agent for Auto Licenses and Drivers Licenses.

For the convenience of motorists in this vicinity, Commissioner Dill has appointed J. P. Gerity of 93 Main street, Woodbridge, auto license agent and already Mr. Gerity is dispensing 1925 auto licenses and drivers licenses.

It will be much appreciated by motorists that an additional agency has been established in Middlesex county, and the people of Carteret, and Woodbridge township and others in surrounding towns to have an agency in the main street of Woodbridge where it is easily found.

The office will be open according to rules laid down by the commissioner from 9 to 5 up to December 24th and from December 26th to 31st from 9 until 6 P. M. In previous years December 1st was the first date whereon licenses could be obtained for the new year, this year an added two weeks was granted motorists so as to relieve congestion at the close of the year. The law states that there should be no 1924 tags or drivers cards used after January 1st, 1925, and the commissioner has taken the matter up with police and other municipal authorities to see that those who violate the law will be fined.

As the rush will warrant additional force will be added to meet the demand so that applicants will be taken care of with speed and courtesy.

In conversation with Mr. Gerity for the information of motorists he advises that in making application the following should be had to complete by the applicant:

First—For motor drivers; if a naturalized citizen, the date and place naturalized.

Second—For motor car owners: the name of headlight devices, as no license will be issued if same is not on the approved list of the department.

Third—For commercial car owners: application will have to show height, length and width and size of front and rear, tires.

Fourth—Motor bus owners will have to show number of passengers to be carried. On a new bus municipal license will have to be shown.

Fifth—Driving permits, applicants bordering on ages from 17 to 20 will be required to present a birth certificate or other legal document to prove his or her age, which must be over 17 years at time of application.

In order to help the situation Mr. Gerity also advises applicants to call for blanks so that they may fill out same at their convenience, then when same is presented there will be no delay. Any information desired by motorists will be given cheerfully either by calling at 93 Main street, or phone 283 Woodbridge.

Mr. Gerity, the new motor agent, is well known in Carteret and this vicinity, for many years he was in the employ of the Port Reading Railroad at Port Reading under the late L. J. Barrett, and for the past eight years he has been in business in Woodbridge. In 1921 he was a candidate for the assembly on the Democratic ticket and was often seen during the campaign in and around Carteret. His many friends are congratulating him on his appointment.

UNUSUALLY LARGE GAS CONTRACTS

Public Service Electric and Gas Company Have Been Awarded Two Large Gas Contracts for Industrial Purposes.

Two unusually large contracts for gas to be used for industrial purposes have been awarded to Public Service Electric and Gas Company. One of these was signed by the Hyatt Bearing Division of the General Motors Corporation in Harrison, formerly the Hyatt Roller Bearing Company. The contract, based on the company's consumption of gas last year, will average about 7,500,000 cubic feet per month, which makes this concern the largest gas consumer in New Jersey.

The contract is for one year, during which period the company will discontinue the use of its private gas plant, which has been in operation about five years. If, at the end of the year, the company decides to continue its contract, it will abandon permanently its own plant. Gas is used by the Hyatt concern in heat treating the bearing parts used in automobiles and for other industrial purposes.

The other contract was obtained from the Stewart Hartshorne Company of East Newark, manufacturers of shade rollers. This company will use four to five million cubic feet of gas a month for heat treatment of roller wire. The company will abandon its old private producer gas plant.

The yearly consumption of gas represented by these two new contracts would be sufficient to serve 4,000 families.

Buick Continues its Leadership

For the seventh consecutive year Buick has first choice of space at the National Automobile Shows. This signal honor is awarded annually by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce to the manufacturer-member having the largest volume of business for the preceding twelve months.

In winning and in maintaining this enviable position year after year, Buick has demonstrated conclusively that the true value of any automobile is reflected in the consistency with which the public buys it.

Since the introduction of the 1925 Buick models, public patronage has increased to an even greater degree.

A tribute to the Buick engineering skill and manufacturing ability that have provided newer and better Buick cars without departing in any way from the fundamentals of power, economy and dependability for which all Buicks have been famous.

America's Thanksgiving Days

Since the earliest times and throughout all the nations of the earth, there has been and still is observed some sort of festival in celebration of the ingathering of the grains and fruits of the soil. Moreover, religious services of some sort have always had a prominent part in the festival. As in ancient times the peoples offered sacrifices and gave offerings to some special deity in gratitude for the present and supplication for the future, so today the sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving for the blessings of the present and solemn prayer for their continuance in the future are offered to God.

The Old Testament is filled with exhortations calling the Hebrews to bring their "first fruits" unto the house of the Lord, to adorn the temple with boughs and palm branches, and continue the feast and rejoicing for seven days. The ancient Egyptians offered sacrifices and gave offerings of corn and wine to Neith, the mother of the sun. The ancient Teutons and Scandinavians offered sacrifices to Frey, the god of rain and sunshine, and the author and protector of all fruits of the soil. Although, for the most part, present-day celebrations are connected with the final ingathering of the crops, the festive observance in many countries is still made with the "first fruits."

Distinctively American.

But Thanksgiving, as commemorated in America, is distinctively an American institution. The day finds its birth in that first Thanksgiving observed by the doughty Pilgrims of Plymouth colony in the fall of 1621, who were justly grateful for the first harvest in their new home in Massachusetts, and Governor Bradford appointed three days of thanksgiving and feasting. Chief Massasoit and other friendly Indians were bidden to the feast, and brought with them four dressed deer.

The dawn of the first day of Thanksgiving was broken by the booming of a great cannon, and later a solemn procession filed toward the meeting-house. Elder Brewster carried the great Bible, and Governor Bradford followed in the rear. After the service the party returned to the central log cabin, where all enjoyed such a feast as they had not tasted since leaving their home land the year before. The ceremonies lasted for three days, and it is to be doubted if many similar gatherings since have been filled with such friendliness and brotherliness, as characterized this first day of thankfulness. Although the first year in the new land had been a hard one for the colonists, nearly half of their number dying during the first terrible winter, yet they felt that they had much to be grateful for.

Sponsored by Governor Bradford.

The year 1622 was even more fraught with misfortune, but again they declared and observed their thanks, and continued to do so year after year. Later the idea of Governor Bradford—a period of "rejoicing together after a more special manner"—was taken up by other colonies, such as Boston, Salem and Virginia. The state of Connecticut did much to foster and encourage the annual celebration of Thanksgiving day, and by the first quarter of the following century the fall festival had become well established throughout the New world. The dutch settlers of New Amsterdam had brought with them memories of Thanksgiving days in Holland, where, indeed, the Pilgrims had also been initiated into the Dutch manner of observing such festivals. The annual Thanksgiving day in the Netherlands fell early in October, when the people went to church to thank God for their deliverance from the Spanish; for the Dutch early in the Seventeenth century cast off the yoke of the Spanish, just as our forefathers later threw off the yoke of Britain, because their rights were invaded and they were taxed without their consent. In the New Amsterdam (New York), the first Thanksgiving proclamation on record was in 1644, in gratitude for deliverance from the Indians.

Thanksgiving in December.

With the coming of Revolutionary times, the custom of Thanksgiving days spread still further. In October, 1775, a proclamation was issued for Thanksgiving to be observed December 15, signed "By order of the Provincial Congress, John Hancock, President." This proclamation is noteworthy, since it was the first to appear without the royal arms and the words, "God Save the King." Previous to that date the proclamations had read something after this fashion (1743): "In the seventeenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Second, by the Grace of God of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, etc. God Save the King."

The first national proclamation for a Thanksgiving was made by the Continental Congress, designating December 15, 1777. The next year, December 30 was set apart, although in May a special day of thanks had been appointed upon receipt of the news that France had signed a treaty of alliance with the thirteen states of the American Union.

After the signing of peace with Great Britain, in October, 1783, congress appointed December 11 as a day of Thanksgiving. In January, 1795, George Washington issued a national proclamation for February 19, in recognition of our "exemption from foreign war, the prospect of continued exemption and the great degree of internal tranquillity," and directing the people to "render thanks to the great Ruler of nations for the manifold and signal mercies which distinguished our lot as a nation."

Not until April, 1815, did another national Thanksgiving occur, proclaimed by President Madison upon the conclusion of the War of 1812. During the Civil war, President Lincoln appointed a day of Thanksgiving following the victory at Gettysburg, and it was he who established the custom of Presidents issuing annual Thanksgiving proclamations, appointing the last Thursday of November. Today the governors of many of the states issue proclamations in conjunction with that of the President, so that Thanksgiving is the one holiday of the year receiving official sanction and personal support on the part of Americans of all political and religious beliefs.

Soccer football is the most popular sport among the college youths in China. Tennis ranks second and track third.

Oxford has twice won the big English boat race nine times in succession. Cambridge's greatest number of successive wins is five.

Between 150 and 200 sanctioned open tournaments are held during the season in the various tennis centers of the British Isles.

In his comparatively short ring career, Young Marullo, the Italian boxer of New Orleans, has fought 28 battles, and scored 15 knockouts.

Considering what he does to the turf, a golfer on the links for the first time in five months might be said to go through a harrowing experience.

How Serious Is a Knockout?

When a fighter, battling his way to the top, is battered to the canvas for the count of ten, just how serious is it, as far as his career is concerned?

It some times appears that the boxing fans take a knockout too seriously and even the boxer thinks it the most terrible thing in the world if he happens to be "stretched" out on the canvas by a hefty hook.

Take any present day champion in the squared circle and you will find that they have all received their "bumps" at some time or other during their careers. A quick glance through the records will prove that many of the past and present champs, with the exception of Jack Britton, have been sent to the land of Nod at least once.

There is a knockout in Jack Dempsey's record. He was dropped in 1917 by Jim Flynn although it is now believed that the present heavyweight champ "took one," but that will not mark it off the list. Johnny Wilson was sent to the canvas for a "long count" by Bryan Downey, and although the records do not state such a proceeding, the good citizens of Cleveland are more than sure of their facts. Benny Leonard has been counted out twice, and our own Mickey Walker was stopped early in his career by one of those rude Delmont boys in Newark. Johnny Kilbane was stopped by Eugene Crique and Johnny Dundee has felt the canvas for the full count at least once when Willie Jackson smacked him on the chin in 1917. It took Willie just one round to do it, too. Jimmie Wilde was stopped by Pete Herman, to whom he conceded seventeen pounds. Later he lost his title to Pancho Villa on a knockout. Carpenter has been the most-knocked-out champion of them all, and yet he went a long way up the ladder. Harry Wills, Kid Norfolk, Harry Greb and Johnny Buff have all felt the caress of the canvas denoting that things were over for the evening, yet they have made good in the game.

Where Is the Live Wire?

A little action by a few members of the Knights of Columbus will start the bowling ball arolling and consequently boast Carteret up among the leading cities of the county on the alleys. The Woodbridge Caseys are planning to organize a bowling league in which various teams in Middlesex County will be involved, such as New Brunswick, Sayreville, South Amboy, Perth Amboy, Woodbridge and also Carteret, if there are some "live wires" here. Rahway will probably enter a representative team.

The leader of this move, Joseph Grace, of the Woodbridge Council, as we see it, believes that Carteret does not wish to have a team entered in the circuit and it will only take one man to convince him that we wish to be represented in some bowling league this season. We are sure that there are at least ten very good pin tumblers in the borough who would back up a single man and have a team registered, which would be welcomed by the promoters.

All fans interested in bowling know that the alley game has fell below the high standard attained by teams, which the borough has put out in years before. With practically very little exertion on the part of a few individuals, who will be backed up by this page, Carteret will be again one of the leaders on the lanes.

Three hundred and eighteen thousand people will see the combined games between Harvard and Yale, Illinois-Ohio State, and Stanford-California.

Carteret Hunters Invade Woods as Ban Is Lifted

After a week's patience the local hunters were delighted by the weatherman's kindness in dampening up the wooded lands with a few light rainfalls and a little frost. These few rainy hours during last week caused the New Jersey Fish and Game Commission to lift the ban, that restricted all hunters from engaging in that sport for a week, on midnight last Sunday.

From reports very few hunters were failures in getting at least one pheasant or rabbit this week, while some were lucky and had the opportunity to shoot a several birds.

Lights went out in the borough on Monday shortly before 7 o'clock. At about the same time the huge oil tank fire at Warner started. The Public Service Company explained that the lights went out not because of the explosion but because of switch trouble.

Martin Leaves Us

Apparently this country--especially the east--was a little too rough for Sid Martin, our recent representative in the ring from the Phillipine Islands, who left for South American lands last Friday evening by boat. On his arrival in Carteret fight promoters thought that they had found a real boxer in Martin, but all the dope turned out to be a fizzle as he was never on the better end of a scrap.

Three weeks ago he was beaten in a slow bout by "Gats" Gargano, of Staten Island, at Perth Amboy. This defeat was an excusable one for Martin as he wrenched his left arm and was handicapped throughout the bout. But in a recent mixup in Elizabeth Willie Ferguson, of Newark, dropped Sid in the sixth round of a semi-final.

QUEER DECISION BEATS CARTERET

Referee Allows Visiting Soccer Club a Score When It Was Apparent That Ball Was Not In Scoring Territory---Score 2-1.

Probably their defeat by the Manchester Unity Field Club of Kearney at Brady's Field last Sunday afternoon will not be recorded in the State League's standings as Manager Elliott of the Carteret Soccer Club has filed a protest due to the fact that a local player appeared in the game with the Unity eleven. The game was fast all the way and although Carteret snatched the lead in the first period when Buchanan slipped the inflated pill between the goal posts they did not succeed in gaining the verdict. Kearney played very fast ball in the second half and by tallying twice won the game by a score of 2 to 1.

The visitors' first counter was allowed by the referee although Carteret protested that the ball did not pass through the net. A hard shot was stopped by Cooke, who fumbled it for a second before booting the ball back into midfield, but Referee Toggins claimed that the ball was in scoring territory and Kearney was allowed the goal.

Soccer Club To Travel To Harrison Next Sunday

After playing four consecutive home games, the local soccer club will make their stand on a foreign grid when it battles the Ryerson Field Club at the Washington School Oval in Harrison next Sunday afternoon. The Ryerson eleven is tied for first place in the team standings.

Nitiny Lions Nip Penn In Tie Game

Now there is no such thing as an unblemished eleven in the east, as has been throughout the season up to last Saturday when the Penn State Nitiny Lions "chewed and clawed" the heretofore undefeated and untied Pennsylvania gridders into an 0-0 tie game at Philadelphia. Penn State has not been playing the exceptional football that their rival statesmen have been this season, but it was through their hard untiring work in last week's game that brought such an honor as tying Pennsylvania and dropping the latter among four other colleges, namely: Rutgers, Yale, Dartmouth, and Lehigh who haven't been defeated, but were tied.

Yale's victory over Princeton was the outstanding feature, while Rutgers brought its season's point total up to 242 by trampling over N. Y. U. by 41 to 3 in games last Saturday.

Carteret boxers are the cause of much more interest on the part of fistic fans in the state for the first time probably in the history of the march of local ring crusaders. We have in mind a bout that will stir the fans into hysterics right up to the end. Besides a number of fans from the borough there will be those of Newark and Elizabeth,

RAHWAY POSITIONED FOR STATE PENNANT

Score 7-6 Triumph Over Fast Nutley High School Gridders at Rahway On Saturday---Harrington Scores Touchdown.

Rahway High School's football eleven advanced in the race for State gridiron honors Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park when the fast and stubborn Nutley High School representatives were turned back 7 to 6.

Stanford's team drew first blood in the initial period when Bill Evans seized a fumble and ran ninety-two yards for a touchdown after Brook's charges had advanced the pigskin within eight yards of the invaders' goal line. Senter failed in an attempt to add an additional point.

In the second period Crowell of Rahway hurled a forward to Haut, who received it on his opponents' goal line, but the officials ruled the play out of order because the Red and Black backfield was in motion. Rahway came back in the same period and Harrington shot through for a touchdown from Nutley's four-yard line. Crowell settled the battle when he added the winning point in a beautiful kick.

Both elevens fought hard in the last half and in the fading moments of the contest used many forward passes. Smith intercepted the ball and for a moment it looked like Rahway would add another touchdown, but Nutley's line held tight.

Besides Harrington, Nadel also of the borough, played a fast game at center.

Slams Pins for 289 In Rahway Elk Tilt

When one pin failed to "flop" after he had tumbled the timbers for ten straight strikes, Bill Donnelly was deprived of a perfect 300 score, on the Y. M. C. A. alleys in Rahway Monday evening, but the score, which he did make, 289, was put down in the Rahway City League books as a record. Donnelly's 289 count came in the first game and despite this mark his team, the Elks, were beaten by a one pin margin, by the N. S. Club. The Elks team dropped all three tilts. Donnelly's average was 201.2. The scores:

who will see Dick Lynch and Willie Ferguson, of Newark, let loose in the same cage at Turn Hall, Elizabeth, where the Lyceum Club of that city will hold one of its frequent shows on Monday evening, December 8.

As a workout for this affair Dick will meet Buddy Williams, of Passaic, in a six round main go at the big smoker and rally, which will be livened up by singing and dancing, given by the Men's Progressive Club, in Avenel next Wednesday night. There will be five other four round bouts on the card.

The Ferguson bout will be scheduled to go eight rounds although there is a great possibility that it will not. Lynch is down to even weight and has plenty of strength, which he displayed in a recent bout with Cy Stevens, of Perth Amboy, whom he knocked out in quick time. On the other hand the local mauler will not have an easy time of it for Ferguson sent Sid Martin sprawling to the resin in six rounds of a bout that was all Willie, and Martin is no boy that takes that sort of treatment if he can help it, although this is what we believe was the cause of his departure from the United States last week to South America.

Reports came from the camp of Roy O'Neil, of Long Branch, stating that the colored boxer desires another bout with Lynch. O'Neil's challenge will be accepted with much delight as Dick's manager believes that his boy can get a good sized verdict over the Long Branch boy, who was the victor in a recent bout at Perth Amboy. When Dave thinks that anything can be done Dick generally goes to it and finishes the job the way it is wanted to be done. This bout will be arranged shortly and the local manager, Dave Lynch, thinks that the bout can be put on the card of the next Poulson show in Amboy on December 2.

Promoters are seeking bouts for Lynch in Highland Park and Trenton. Dick was to fight in the capitol next week, but his scheduled opponent was hurt while training and as another man was unable to be secured the scrap fell through, but within the next three weeks another bout will be arranged.

Lynch has secured his New York State boxing license and probably in two weeks his manager will undoubtedly get some fights there for him.

XMAS SEAL SALE OPENS NOV. 28

New Jersey Tuberculosis League
Preparing For Seventh Annual Sale of Christmas Stamps—
Middlesex Has High Goal.

The seventeenth annual Christmas Seal sale of the New Jersey Tuberculosis League opens November 28, the day following Thanksgiving. The Middlesex County Tuberculosis League although only organized in 1907 has been doing very active work. This organization employs an executive secretary, stenographer, three nurses and a social worker who do home visiting throughout the county and aid the doctors in the clinics. Free clinics are held at Perth Amboy, New Brunswick, South River, Carteret and Jamesburg. People from all over the county attend these clinics. Through the examining clinicians patients are admitted to the sanatoria at White Haven, Bonnie Burn and Glen Gardner and the undernourished children are admitted to Farmingdale Preventorium. Arrangements are made with the Freeholders whereby those unable to pay for treatment at the Sanatoria are cared for at the expense of the Freeholders. When the father or mother of a family are receiving home or sanatorium treatment, every effort is made to have the children adequately cared for. Those needing charitable help are referred to the proper organizations. The children are examined at frequent intervals at the clinic; tonsilectomies and dental care are provided free of charge by various hospitals and doctors and clinics. The most important work of the League is a work of prevention. The seals this year are unusually attractive. On a background of blue, stands the figure of health, in one hand she bears the torch of hope, in the other the shield of protection. Because of the increased work of the past year Middlesex County has an unusually high goal to reach—two million of these Health seals are for sale.

THE ECONOMIC COST OF TUBERCULOSIS

Report Issued by National Tuberculosis Association — 106,000 Lives Wasted Each Year May be Saved.

In a recent report issued by the National Tuberculosis Association the following stupendous figures are given. In 1922 there were 106,000 deaths from tuberculosis in the United States, and about 954,000 cases. Tuberculosis cuts off two and one-half years of life from the complete expectation of every individual under present mortality conditions. If each individual were to add only $100 to the community wealth per year tuberculosis would cost the community $250 per person. Among the one hundred million persons in the United States this loss is over 25 billion dollars. It has been estimated that a tuberculosis patient is under care for an average of two and one-third years. Probably for at least one year he is unable to earn. Considering all occupations we can place the average annual earnings of a person at $1,000. Among the 954,000 tuberculosis cases, 954 million dollars were thus lost through sickness. The usual length of stay in a sanatorium is six months. The cost of this is about $500. While it is not possible, nor perhaps necessary, to give each patient six months sanatorium treatment, the cost of caring for tuberculosis patients must be met whether in a sanatorium or not. If all the 954,000 cases could receive either sanatorium care or other adequate treatment, which would cost at least as much, about $480,000,000 would be the estimated cost of caring for tuberculosis. These estimates of the cost of tuberculosis in the United States, namely 25 billion dollars due to loss of life from tuberculosis, 954 million dollars lost in wages and 480 million dollars for the expense of caring for tuberculosis patients total approximately 26 and a half billion dollars. Yet health may be purchased. From experiments tried at Framingham, Mass., it has been figured that the health machinery necessary to control tuberculosis would be $2.00 to $2.50 per person in any American community. For the entire population this would cost seven billion dollars in a period of 35 years, as contrasted with a loss of nearly 26 billion dollars. The 106,000 lives wasted each year may be saved. 106,000 is about the population of Yonkers, N. Y.; Spokane, Wash.; Fort Worth, Tex., and Lowell, Mass.

Swipes White Hearse to Take His Gal for Ride

Chicago.—Officer John Wright (colored) of the Englewood police station paused beside a large white hearse standing at Sixty-fifth and State streets. On the seat sat a young negro with his arm around the waist of a dusky belle beside him. There had been no deaths on Wright's beat, and he looked in vain for a crepe-decked door. Moreover, J. W. Blackwell, an undertaker at 5512 South State street, had reported a hearse missing. "What are you doing here?" asked Wright. "Waiting for business to pick up," replied Hughie Hilbring, indifferently. Wright peered into the vehicle. There was nothing inside but a bouquet and a box of chocolates. "Well, I'd promised to take Sadie riding," Hilbring finally confessed, "and I just couldn't get nobody to loan me their liver, so I borrowed this. It rides easier, anyway."

LIVES AS GYPSY TO SAVE INFANT

Young Mother Refuses to Disclose Her Past.

Worcester, Mass.—Frail and wan after weeks of suffering and anxiety, Delia Lescaup, twenty-two, from her bed at the City hospital told how she lived the life of a gypsy in the woods near West Boylston rather than surrender her fifteen-month-old daughter to a charitable organization. After two nights in the woods, during which she wrapped her baby in her coat and sheltered in the thin summer clothes, she found sanctuary with a friendly Italian family in West Boylston. Here her second child was born, which died a day after, according to her story. Her concern since her arrival at the City hospital is for her infant daughter, which is being cared for in the children's department of the hospital. "I will not let them take her from me," she repeated again and again. "As soon as I get well I am going to get work and earn money to support her," she said. She refused to tell how she had been able to obtain food. She was equally unresponsive to questions of where she had come from or who her parents were, beyond the fact that her mother had died last January. She said that her only living relative was a married sister in New York. The woman first made her appearance in the city four months ago with her child.

Half-Starved Herder Dog Saves Lost Lone Sheep

Stevenson, Wash.—Half starved, lost in the desolate country near the summit of the Cascade mountains, yet faithful to his charge, is the story of a shepherd dog that guarded a lone sheep in the forested hills. He finally drove the helpless animal to the camp of a forest fire guard, Tom Merchant, near Bend, Ore., who is now seeking the dog's owner. Frightened at first by the presence of a man, the dog has become friendly with Merchant since bringing the sheep to the camp. Once the sheep was turned over to a man the dog apparently considered his responsibility was ended. For days and nights the animal seems content to sleep and recuperate from the long vigil when he kept off the cougars and bears. Most of the sheep came out of the summer feeding grounds ten days ago, but one must have become lost and was located by this herder dog.

Drives Car 106 Hours, Finds Prize Is Myth

York, Pa.—Herbert Diehl, nineteen years old, completed an automobile endurance record, expecting to win $3,500 that had been told was offered by the Wheeling (W. Va.) Automobile club to anyone beating the 105 hours and 13 minutes mark established by "Dare Devil" Lockwood of Baltimore. Diehl drove 106 hours and 13 minutes, after signing a contract with a man calling himself J. A. Peters. Then he sent to Wheeling for his prize, only to be told no such offer had been made. Diehl, during his drive ate only two ham sandwiches and a portion of toast and drank only two cups of coffee. He smoked 19 packages of cigarettes.

11 Mothers-in-Law Organize First Club

Orange, N. J.—The Mothers-in-Law club, with eleven members, was organized here. Mrs. Joseph Pernitze was elected president. "There will be no room in the club for hackneyed jokes about mothers-in-law," Mrs. Pernitze said. "We have organized as women with mutual interests, to hold afternoon tea parties twice a month and bridge parties once a week. We will not talk about our sons and daughters-in-law." Mrs. Pernitze said she believed this the first club whose membership was confined to mothers-in-law.

WATER FEUD IN FEDERAL COURT

Mr. Bergen replied: "I know as much as any engineer in the United States about the depreciation of cast iron pipe."

He claimed that the reason the company could not give better service was that its credit had been destroyed by the Board of Public Utility Commissioners.

The President of the Middlesex Water Company read into record statements regarding the desirability of the twenty-six towns mostly in Union County, developing the Raritan-Millstone source of supply where one of the companies in which he is interested owns property. These statements were the same as made in his many speeches in the past several years in his efforts to get the towns to buy the properties or make contracts with his companies satisfactory to him.

The next witness for the company was Nicholas S. Hill, Jr., former city engineer of New York.

At the hearings a few months ago he testified that the value of the company's property was $2,500,000 but he now finds it to be $3,000,000 in round figures.

Senator Brown wanted to know whether he examined the books in this case to see what the property actually cost. He said that he did not. He stated that he adopted the theory that the company is entitled to today's cost of all property less depreciation despite the fact that most of the property was purchased over twenty-five years ago and is not as efficient. He also stated that he assumed in his value that it would take two years to build the property and that 17 1/2 per cent in overhead ought to be added for interest, insurance and contingencies during this two years of supposed construction. The witness started the court when the theory of his running the value on the books from a little over $1,600,000 up to $3,000,000 in theory was applied to a few items.

He was asked about a pump purchased from the Perth Amboy Water Department early in the year and admitted this cost $3,000 and claimed it cost $6,000 more to cart it to Rahway and put it in place. In reply to the query as to whether he had allowed any depreciation for this pump he said that he had allowed for its being seventeen years old. Further questioning developed that though the pump is seventeen years old and cost in place a few months ago $9,000 it is now, according to his theory, worth $25,596, almost three times as much and more than three times as much if 17 1/2 per cent be added. Mr. Hill practically admitted that he used a method that would give him the highest valuation.

Ambrose Mundy, the water company superintendent, was another witness. He made a poor witness for the company. He claimed that he had looked up rates of other companies, and they were higher than the Middlesex Company rates. When asked to name some he mentioned those of the Commonwealth Company, those of Butler, Pa., and Tarrytown, N. Y. Senator Brown asked him if he knew that these were small companies in mountainous sections where there was little demand and he said he knew nothing about them and had never been to those places. The superintendent claimed he operates the company efficiently. Asked why it was that a church in Carteret was burned to the ground in the middle of the afternoon recently, he claimed it was the fault of the Carteret firemen.

In answer to a question as to whether or not Perth Amboy could not supply additional water, he claimed that he did not know though shortly before in giving the operating expense he particularly mentioned an item of $5,000 for water bought from Perth Amboy by his company.

The company's questions at this point were asked by Mr. Bergen, who changed from the role of company expert to company attorney. He questioned Mr. Mundy regarding the operating expenses and when Mr. Mundy failed to answer to his satisfaction, he advised the witness that he had the answer in his hand and all he had to do was read it. After a few more questions, the superintendent was excused.

President Bergen claimed he needs one million dollars at once for improvements. The next hearing will be on Friday, November 21.

Past Chief Rangers Held Busy Session On Sunday

The Past Chief Rangers Association of Middlesex County held an interesting meeting in the borough on Sunday night. A series of interesting talks were delivered. A bon was started in behalf of Eugene F. Gidney, for the appointment of grand-sub chief ranger at the approaching convention. The association endorsed the appointment of state organizer by the Supreme Court of Foresters. Edward C. Smith, of South Amboy, presided at the meeting. A special hour followed. Refreshments were served.

BIRD FANCIER IS FOUND DEAD IN DINGY ROOM

Always Preferred Feathered Tribe to Society of Humans.

Philadelphia.—The families that live in Fernber avenue knew old Michael Grofchick as the man who liked birds better than he did people.

He used to say to them: "The birds, they are better. Always they are happy, but people"—and he would shrug his shoulders.

That was the reason Michael lived among the birds. Never a wife, never a friend lived with him. But the three rooms of his little house—it looks like a bird cage itself—were piled with crates in which Michael kept the canaries he raised for the pet stores.

Recently the neighbors found Michael dead in the second story room of the house. From a hundred cages

The Body Was Sprawled on the Floor. lined against the wall canaries were clattering—possibly because they hadn't had breakfast yet.

Sprawled on Floor. Michael's heart had ceased beating as he was on his way to open the window. "The body was sprawled on the floor midway between the bed and the smudgy panes of glass. It was little the police found in the house except supplies for the birds. There were 500 canaries at least, and grain enough for them. But on the first floor, aside from the cages, there were only a table, a cabinet, a chair a chrono of the ascension and a row of blue ribbons that Michael's birds had won him.

In the second floor room was a bed with a tattered comforter and 100 more cages. The attic was lined with crates. That was all. On the downstairs table was a loaf of bread and a package of coffee, the only food in the house. Michael didn't spend much on his table, the neighbors confided. It all went to the birds.

AN ORDINANCE AUTHORIZING THE ISSUE OF $125,000.00 PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT BONDS OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET, COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX AND STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

WHEREAS, the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret, did on April 21, 1924, adopt on third and final reading, an ordinance providing for the erection and construction of the Borough Hall appropriating therefor the sum of $100,000.00;

AND WHEREAS, on May 19, 1924, said Borough Council passed on third and final reading, an amendment to said ordinance whereby the appropriation for the said Borough Hall was increased to $125,000.00;

AND WHEREAS, said Borough Hall is now nearing completion and temporary improvement certificates have been issued from time to time to meet the cost of the construction of said Borough Hall;

Be it Ordained by the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret, in the County of Middlesex:

1. Pursuant to Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 of New Jersey, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, negotiable bonds of the Borough of Carteret, in the County of Middlesex, being known as "Public Improvement Bonds" and to be dated January 1, 1925, are hereby authorized to be issued in the aggregate principal amount of $125,000.00, for the purposes hereinafter stated, for which said purposes the said sum of $125,000.00 is necessary to be raised.

2. The money to be raised by the issuance of said bonds shall be applied to the purpose of paying for the construction of the building known as the "Borough Hall." All temporary indebtedness now outstanding lawfully incurred by the Borough of Carteret for said purposes pursuant to Section 13 of the act, aforesaid, shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said bonds.

3. Said bonds shall be in such denomination and form and payable principal and interest in such manner and at such times and place and bear interest at such rate as may be provided by resolution of the Council, shall be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer and attested by the Clerk under the seal of the Borough, and if coupons for the payment of interest be attached, they shall be executed by the facsimile signature of the Borough Treasurer.

4. The following matters are hereby determined and declared, pursuant to the rules of Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 of New Jersey as amended:

(a) No part of the cost of said improvement has been or is to be specially assessed against property specially benefited.

(b) The probable period of the usefulness of the improvement for which said bonds are to be issued, computed in the manner described by Section 4 of said Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 as amended (said improvement being either not yet completed or completed within one year prior to the date of the bonds hereby authorized) is thirty years beginning upon the date of said bonds; the said Borough Hall being of the character of construction defined in clause (b) of sub-section (1) Section 4 of the act aforesaid.

(c) The average assessed valuation of the taxable real property including improvements of the Borough of Carteret, computed upon the next preceding three valuations thereof in the manner provided in Section 12 of said Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 as amended, is $7,167,927.00.

(d) The net debt of the Borough of Carteret computed in the manner required by Section 12 as amended, including the indebtedness hereby incurred is $177,598.25.

(e) The statement required by said Section 12 showing said net debt, etc., has been made and filed with the Borough Clerk as required by said act.

5. There shall be levied in each year, while any of the bonds shall be outstanding, in the same manner and at the same time as other taxes, a tax upon all taxable property of the Borough sufficient to produce the amount of principal and interest to mature the succeeding year.

6. This ordinance shall take effect in the manner provided by law. Introduced November 17, 1924.

Passed on first and second readings, November 17, 1924.

H. V. PLATT,
Borough Clerk.

THANKSGIVING DAY CELEBRATED HERE

CHURCHES OF EVERY DENOMINATION HOLD SPECIAL SERVICE YESTERDAY—INTERESTING SERMONS ARE DELIVERED WITH THANKSGIVING THEMES.

MANY AFFAIRS THANKSGIVING EVE

Y. P. H. A. Hold Fine Dance at Dalton's Wednesday Night, Bazars at St. Joseph's and Holy Family Church Draw Crowds—Falcon's Hall Is Place of Merry—Many Private Affairs Also Held.

Thanksgiving Day was duly celebrated in the borough yesterday. Grandpa has been doing his daily dozen at the wood pile. Grandma has left the hot pumpkin pies on the stove. Daughter, son-in-law and kiddy have arrived to spend Thanksgiving with the folks. One of the great attractions of Thanksgiving was the enjoyment of good things to eat.

Special Thanksgiving services were held in the borough yesterday in practically all the churches. At the First Presbyterian church Rev. Charles Mitchell, formerly of Pittsburgh, conducted the services.

A delightful supper and entertainment was held at St. Elias Greek Catholic church last night with a large attendance. The affair was held in the new auditorium, which is nearing completion.

Thanksgiving eve a wonderful dance was held at Dalton's auditorium by the Young People's Hebrew Association, which was attended by a large audience. Many prizes were awarded.

Large crowds attended last night the bazar at St. Joseph's church, while a similar crowd was found at the Holy Family church bazar.

NEW THEATRE FOR CARTERET

Reports Have It Here Today That a Large and Beautiful Structure Will Be Erected in the Center of the Borough.

TO START BUILDING IN SPRING

New York and Perth Amboy Interests Are Reported To Be Behind Plan to Put Up Fine Motion Picture Playhouse.

Carteret will have a large, modern and beautiful motion picture theatre next year, according to reports circulating in the borough. No definite information as to the project is available, but it is understood that the new playhouse will be erected in "the centre" of the town—probably along Cooke avenue.

The playhouse will have every modern equipment and only first run pictures will be shown. The project, it is understood, is contemplated by the New York theatrical real estate investors, who in conjunction with Perth Amboy men will put up the building, it is said, and will be similar to those built in big cities.

Legion Women Arrange Card Party for Dec. 9

General indications point to a big success of the card party and dance which the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Roosevelt Post No. 263, American Legion will hold at St. Joseph's auditorium on the night of December 9. Miss Jane Cook is in charge of the arrangements. A large number of handsome prizes will be the feature of the affair. The proceeds of the card party will go to swell the Christmas fund of the local legion post.

Card of Thanks

The undersigned wish to express their sincere thanks to Rev. J. J. J. Reason for the prompt aid rendered and the many friends and sympathizers in the recent bereavement of our dear wife and mother. —Signed, Mr. Caleb Basini and family.

26 ARRESTED IN WEEK-END RAID

Police Invade Warren Street Establishment and Nab Nineteen Negroes Engaged in a Spirited Crap Game.

ALSO ARREST SIX MEN ELSEWHERE

Chief of Police Harrington Renews His Effort to Clean Up Chrome Section of Undesirable Speakeasiers.

A total of twenty-six arrests were made by the police here over the week end in a renewed effort to clean up the chrome section of gambling establishments, hooch emporiums, speak-easies and other questionable resorts. The round which took place last Saturday evening on a resort in Warren street was well staged and netted a total of nineteen prisoners.

Acting under the direction of Chief of Police Harrington, the police officers invaded the place operated by John Wisniewski, at 41 Warren street. In the rear of the establishment, the police say they found the nineteen men engaged in a dice game. The game was so spirited that the entire neighborhood heard the progress of the game. It was shortly after 8 o'clock when the bluecoats stationed themselves around the building to gather in the haul. A large dice table was confiscated.

Wisniewski was not at the place when the raid was made. The men however were taken to headquarters and later arranged before Recorder Thomas L. Slugg, who fined each $10.

FOUR EXPLOSIONS ROCK THE BOROUGH

Occurred On Tanker William Boyce Thompson, Loaded With Gasoline—Has Been Burning Eleven Days.

The borough was somewhat disturbed yesterday when four explosions occurred on the tanker William Boyce Thompson, loaded with barrels of gasoline which has been burning at Warners for the last eleven days. The firemen and employees have been battling the blaze with chemicals, but with little success.

The fire renewed its force, following the explosion and again was clearly seen over the borough. It was feared that all of the gasoline would explode. A search is still on for six members of the tanker who have been missing since the night the fire had started. It is believed that the men jumped overboard when the tanker caught fire and were lost in the Staten Island sound.

HEAVY FINES ARE IMPOSED

Mrs. Massores and Her Son Alex Are Convicted of Possession and Transportation of Liquor Last June.

FINES TOTAL $1,500 FOR BOTH CHARGES

Mother and Son Are Heavily Penalized By Judge Runyon After Pleading Guilty to Two Charges.

Bootlegging proved to be a costly affair for Mrs. Sophie Massores and her twenty-year old son Alex, both of 28 Cherry street, this borough, when the two were arraigned before Judge Runyon on a charge of possession and transportation of alleged liquor. A plea of guilty in behalf of the defendants was entered by Borough Attorney Emil Sremliau, who represented them.

After entering the plea Judge Runyon fined the woman and her son a total of $1,500; composed as follows: $500 each for possession and $250 each for transportation of the liquor. Mrs. Massores almost staggered to the floor when she heard the penalty she would have to pay.

Troubles for the Massores started on June 28, of this year, when agents of Director Chamberlain's force caught them transporting two jugs of liquor. A raid on the Massores farm house netted the federal agents a large haul.

The sentence imposed, the defendants declared that they unable to raise the money for the fine. They were taken to an ante-room pending removal to the jail. Within a short time Mrs. Massores was able to procure the $750 to pay the fine, which she paid and was released, leaving her son behind the bars.

MISS WOODHULL MARRIED YESTERDAY

Becomes Bride of William Gerity, Jr., at St. James Rectory, Woodbridge Yesterday Afternoon—Will Live in Borough.

Miss Florence Woodhull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Woodhull, of Lincoln avenue, this borough, became the bride of William Gerity, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gerity, Sr. at a pretty wedding which took place at St. James rectory, Woodbridge, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Rev. Father J. R. O'Farrell performed the ceremony. The bride was dressed in a beautiful blue beaded georgette, Miss Mildred Woodhull, a sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid. Andrew Gerity, of Woodbridge, acted as best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony and attended by a large group of friends from this borough, Woodbridge, Perth Amboy and New York. The couple is away on a wedding trip, their whereabouts however, are unknown. On return Mr. and Mrs. Gerity will live in the borough.

REAL ESTATE SOLD DURING THE WEEK

One-Family House and Two Lots on Emerson Street and Two-Family House and Two Lots in Chrome Section Sold.

Property consisting of an up-to-date one-family house and two lots was sold to Peter Tracz and Annie Tracz by Michael M. Enot of Woodbridge. The property is located on Emerson street and the price paid was said to be over $3,500.

A large two-family dwelling and two lots were sold to Max Abrams by Harry Abrams and Dora, his wife. The property is located in the Chrome section of the borough. Although the consideration was not given out, it was estimated that over $80,000 was paid for it. The new owner expects to make additional improvements.

Attorney Maxwell Sosin represented all the parties in the consummation of both transactions.

P. T. A. Will Hold Benefit Show Tuesday

The Parent-Teacher Association of this borough will present "The Wanderer of the Wasteland" at the Majestic and Crescent theatres on Tuesday, December 2 to raise funds for its Christmas fund. There will be matinee and night performances at both theatres. John Harrington, chairman of the arrangement committee, expects a large audience, in view of the fact that the picture is unusually interesting and thrilling, while help is given at the same time.

Supper Tomorrow
The Young People of the German Lutheran Zion church will hold a supper at the church tomorrow night. It will be followed by a social session.

Carteret Inn Decorated

The dining room of the Carteret Inn has been beautifully decorated by Grohman Brothers, managers of the inn. Several huge palms have been placed on the floor, giving the hall an artistic touch. Many events will take place at the inn this winter.

HORSE, PRISONER FOR SIX YEARS, SET AT LIBERTY

Owner Locked Animal Up After It Dragged Him Across Field.

Blue Springs, Neb.—By reason of the interposition of the State Humane society a pardon has been issued by John Childress, a farmer living a mile south of this town, to a nine-year-old dapple gray horse that the owner admits he has had in confinement for six years in punishment for having bolted and run away while hitched to a disk plow six years ago. Childress was caught in the lines and dragged for a considerable distance.

The case, one of the strangest in the history of the society, was brought to the attention of officers recently by neighbors of Childress, who said he had one horse he never let out of his barn. Childress lives on a quarter-section of good land, only a part of it cultivated, and has a reputation as an eccentric.

Angry at Horse.

He readily admitted to the officers he was so angered over the action of the horse in dragging him across the plowed field that he took it at once to the barn, tied it up and kept it there for the past six years, never having allowed it outside of the building. He said he had fed the animal regularly, but that having once determined on its punishment he refused to change his mind.

The officers say although the horse has the bony framework to carry 1,000 pounds of weight, its body has wasted away until it weighs only 1,000 pounds and looks like a horse of twenty-five.

Childress agreed, if no prosecution was had, that he would trade or sell the animal within the next two weeks.

"Dead" Man Hears Kin Over Radio; Reunion

Louisville, Ky.—Chance and a radio recently united brothers who had been separated by half the circumference of the earth for more than four years. During that time the younger brother, a ukulele player in Hawaii, was reported drowned off Kalkiki beach and a body believed to have been his was buried.

Recently Frank Plada, a Louisville musician, gave a concert over the broadcasting station there. A few minutes before the announcer sent his name over the wireless August Plada, recently arrived in Washington from Honolulu, was invited to hear a radio concert. At first he demurred, then accepted the invitation.

The first station the Washington instrument picked up was in Louisville, and August Plada heard his brother's name announced. Now he will be the ukulele soloist for his brother's quintet.

Cat Bolts Stuffed Bird and Dies of Indigestion

New York.—Catnip, one of the largest of the feline nomads that infest Carl Schurz park in Yorkville, was found dead on one of the park's sidewalks the other day.

A little child, park officials say, had been pulling a toy bird with flapping wings along one of the paths when Catnip happened to pass by. She pounced on the bird, caught it in her teeth and carried it off to her favorite haunt in the underbrush.

The following morning she was found dead. The officials explain that she must have been so hungry that she swallowed the bird whole, and since it was only feathers and sawdust it must have given her acute indigestion, causing her death.

Hopper Hops Out Without Shoes as Wife Hides 'Em

Logansport, Ind.—Mrs. Jack Hopper would not let Jack "hop" out for a little party with "the boys." To prevent his intentions she hid his socks and shoes, according to her story to the police. But this didn't hinder Jack from "hopping" from the house. He was later arrested on a charge of intoxication. At the time of apprehension by the police he was happy, but shoeless.

The country's per capita wealth of $2,918 sounds pretty good, and would be pretty good if it were not for taxes.

Fashion note says that walking-sticks will be the mode for women. If they crowd out the lipstick all will be well.

There are two kinds of women who like to dress with great style: those who have the price and those who have not.

Wooden Cheese Beats Old Nutmeg Swindle

Waynesboro, Pa.—Years ago merchants were swindled by buying wooden nutmegs and others have been "worked" by taking in counterfeit money, but the latest scheme is the selling of fake cheese.

Cheese swindlers, under cover of darkness, swindled James Proferes, a confectioner of Chambersburg, by selling him a cheese that was not a cheese.

Two men traveling in a large motor truck stopped at the Proferes' store. They gave him a taste of the cheese, and he bought it for $2. After the departure of the men he decided that he would have some more of the cheese. He got a knife and attempted to cut a piece. Then the hatchet was brought into play. Even tramping on the cheese and hurling it on the floor did not break it.

Just what the counterfeit cheese is made of was beyond the comprehension of those who viewed it. To outward appearances it is a cheese—even to the smell. But it is not a regulation cheese.

TRAPPED IN TREE BY ELECTRIC WIRE

Boy Escapes Unhurt When Power Is Shut Off.

Mount Vernon, N. Y.—Trapped in a tree charged with hundreds of volts of electricity on Greendale avenue in the Green Court development, Valentine Becker, a twelve-year-old boy of 18 Beekman avenue, was in imminent danger of death for several minutes until the power in the lines was shut off. Then Valentine was able to climb down to the street. He was not hurt, despite his nerve-racking experience.

Valentine had gone seeking horse chestnuts with several companions. He selected a tree and climbed up among the branches. Suddenly he found himself "fastened" to the tree. He could move but slightly. His cries attracted people in the vicinity, who saw that the tree was charged, and a hurry call was sent to police headquarters. Chief Atwell and Patrolman Gleason hastened to the scene, while Lieutenant Curtis called the Westchester Lighting company.

In the meantime, however, Roy G. Hyer, superintendent of construction of the company, was apprised of the boy's predicament. He shouted to Valentine to remain quiet and not attempt to pull himself away. Then Mr. Hyer telephoned to the company offices and gave instructions that the power be shut off.

Seeress Lifts Bad Omen and $11 From Victim

Milwaukee.—When a fortune teller predicts a dark future, and then proceeds to add $11 worth of gloom to it, it is time to call police. That is what Mrs. Marie Kesselhom, 888 Sixth street, did.

The fortune teller appeared at the Kesselhom front door, and by signs and words began warning Mrs. Kesselhom that trouble was in store for her.

"You will probably be a widow soon," said the seer.

"What shall I do?" asked Mrs. Kesselhom.

"Get all the small change you have," directed the itinerant prophetess. Mrs. Kesselhom found 30 cents. This was put in a glass on the table, and the mysterious mystic mumbled something over it.

"Leave that there all day, and don't touch it, or some harm will befall your husband," ordered the visitor.

Next, Mrs. Kesselhom was asked to bring all the money she had. She produced the $11, which the fortune teller seized and then walked out.

"Where are you going?" asked Mrs. Kesselhom.

"I'm going to the church to pray all day over this money for your husband's safety; for he is in grave danger."

The fortune teller didn't return.

Driving From Running Board, Saves Child

Emporia, Kan.—Raymond Steinmetz, a quick-witted motorist, saved the life of a five-year-old girl by snatching her from in front of a moving train at a crossing while driving his motorcar from the running board with one hand at 30 miles an hour. The child, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Gearhart, had wandered onto the tracks directly in front of a train. Seeing the child's plight and throwing his legs over the side of the car, Steinmetz stood on the running board, opened the gas throttle, and while holding the wheel with one hand, grabbed the child with the other. He jerked her to safety just as the train whizzed by.

So close was the rescue that Steinmetz' car bears a small dent on the rear fender where it was grazed by the locomotive.

Catch Coyote

Seattle, Wash.—A wild coyote, prowling in the automobile retail agency section of the city, ten blocks southeast of the main business district, was captured by Leo Murphy and William Dowling after the animal had been cornered against a fence.

Trunk for Hats and Shoes

Any woman with a large wardrobe who does much traveling and visiting will rejoice in the new trunks made exclusively for hats and shoes. Since one's head and heels are equally important this season, it is well to devote equal care to both shoes and hats. One side of the trunk is divided into five drawers for the shoes, while the other side is formed of wide interlocking tape to which the hats can be slung.

SUDDEN RICHES LEAD VETERAN TO GLORY AND GRAVE

Just as Dreams of 86 Sordid Years Come True, Death Steps In.

Hickman, Ky.—Uncle Davie Bullock is dead—dead of vanilla extract, prosperity and pride—dead just when his dreams of 86 sordid years had come true and he had been transformed from a beggar to a "gentleman."

Uncle Davie Bullock died, but not before he had had his fling. He died wearing a new suit of clothes, money in his pockets, fishing-tackle galore, fish nets and a shotgun, on the wall of the shack called home—and in his hand a bottle of vanilla extract, the last of a flock he had purchased to appease his thirst.

Fortune Waves Hand.

When the moon came up in Hickman last night they found him dead. Uncle Davie's head was pillowed in his last bottle of vanilla extract, and in the weeds were eight empty bottles which had left him in an alcoholic stupor.

Two weeks ago Uncle Davie Bullock was alive and well, ragged, half bare-footed, generally hungry, always thirsty, known from door to door, but knowing no place as home. Then, one night as he slept under the stars, fortune waved a hand over his gray head, and he woke to find Uncle Sam had rewarded him for his years of service with the Union army in the Civil war. The government sent him $1,157 as back pay, and the promise of $50 monthly for so long as he should live. He was "fixed" for life, and rejoiced.

Plenty to Drink.

Pride came with prosperity. New clothes, fishing tackle, a gun, and a shack to call home—these Uncle Davie bought, along with ample supplies to quench his thirst. A peaceful life in his shack by a stream, with his gun and rods—that was Uncle Davie's vision of the future—that, and plenty to drink.

The police found Uncle Davie sleeping on someone else's porch only two nights ago. He begged to be let alone, and the officers, out of respect for his years and his record, let him sleep. When they returned to see that he was all right they found Uncle Davie dead.

Used Hammer to Wake Son in Time for School

New York.—Peter Kiteonis, the twelve-year-old son of Nicholas Kiteonis, a dishwasher, was slow in getting out of bed to go to school in the morning.

He arrived in his classroom on time, however, but when his teacher saw his condition she called an ambulance and sent him to St. Mary's hospital.

"My father used a hammer to wake me up," said Peter.

The boy remained in the hospital while being treated for three broken fingers, a broken wrist, injured spine, bruises on his shoulders and back and a deep cut in his scalp, which required several stitches.

Peter was remanded to the care of the Children's society when he was arraigned in Children's court, while a police search began for his father.

Operate to Save Life of Cat, Fire Heroine

Tacoma, Wash.—Blue Bell, a Persian cat that saved the lives of six persons in a fire, is recovering from a surgical operation undertaken to save her life.

The operation was ordered by Mr. and Mrs. Carl V. Hall, owners of the cat, on advice that in no other way could Blue Bell's life be prolonged.

"She saved the lives of all the members of my family," said Mr. Hall, "and I owe it to her to do everything possible for her."

It was on July 8 last that the cat aroused Mrs. Hall by jumping on her bed and scratching her into wakefulness and the knowledge that the house was on fire. Mrs. Hall awakened her husband, and the four Hall children were hustled out of the house less than three minutes before it collapsed.

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: His cigar is always tilted up in his mouth; whether lit or not, he loves it best, it seems, in the crowded subways and elevators. He is big, hearty, whole-souled, and you like him in spite of his fool manners—he knows everything but how to appeal gently to woman.

In fact:

His bad manners are the only thing wrong with him.

Prescription for the bride-to-be:

Gentle-unhurting administrations of etiquette will make others see his good points finally—and you will love him more.

MILESTONES IN NEW JERSEY'S PROGRESS

Contractors' records show that in the first nine months of 1924, 2,667 new houses in the Camden and 520 in the Burlington districts were wired for the use of electricity.

HOUSING PROJECTS ANTICIPATE OPENING OF DELAWARE RIVER BRIDGE

New houses actually constructed in the territory surrounding Camden and north along the Delaware River forecast the rapid development of this territory to follow the opening in the near future of the great bridge connecting Camden and Philadelphia. Expansion of the already great industrial life of the territory will follow increase in population assuring an era of progress and prosperity.

The effect of increased growth in the territory is already being reflected in figures of business done by Public Service utilities.

In the first nine months of this year, in the Camden and Burlington districts combined, more than 6,700 electric and more than 1,500 gas customers were added.

This is at the rate of about thirty new electric and seven new gas customers for each working day.

Nothing better illustrates the essential nature of the utility services provided by Public Service than these evidences of new homes and new utility customers.

Nothing better illustrates the close relation between the growth and prosperity of communities and their public utilities.

The progress and development of New Jersey means the progress and development of Public Service.

That is why investment in the securities of an enterprise which, like Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, serves through its subsidiaries five of every six people living in a rapidly growing State, is safe and sound; and it is one of the reasons why thousands have taken advantage of the opportunity to buy

Even the cleverest and most perfect circumstantial evidence is likely to be at fault after all, and therefore ought to be received with great caution. FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

EVERY one likes fresh, crispy rolls. These are fine when properly risen and well baked.

Potato Rolls.

Mash four small-sized potatoes, add one-half cupful of milk heated hot; to another half cupful of milk add two compressed yeast cakes, one tablespoonful of sugar, the same of lard, one teaspoonful each of butter and salt; flour, four cupfuls. Add the yeast when the mixture is cool enough, mix all the ingredients and beat well. Set to rise at ten in the morning. Roll out at four, cut and place in pans to bake at six o'clock.

Salad Dressing for Fruit.

Cook together one-half cupful each of pineapple juice, lemon juice, orange juice and water, with two tablespoonfuls of corn starch mixed with one-fourth cupful of sugar. Cook until smooth, add two well-beaten eggs and cook until the eggs are cooked. This dressing will keep for some time.

Flemish Fish.

This is a good way to use leftover fish. Flake it and put a good layer into a baking dish, then cover with a layer of buttered browned crumbs, three-fourths of a cupful of finely chopped onions, browned with the crumbs and bread in three or four tablespoonfuls of butter, three-fourths of a cupful of white sauce. Stand in the oven until piping hot, then serve at once.

Apple-ettes.

Line deep individual tins with good pastry, fill with sliced apple, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and bake. Serve with dots of whipped cream sprinkled with grated cheese over the top.

Through the Glad Eyes of a Woman

SHE DIDN'T MEAN TO BE

YET she laughed in the subway at the girl sitting opposite, and said quite audibly to her escort: "What a guy."

Yet she called the old maid's dog a "heavily little brute" because it jumped at her with its muddy paws.

Yet she sneered when she heard of Mamie Black's wedding to an old friend of hers.

Yet she bossed very offensively and in the presence of others, one of her juniors in the office.

Yet she looked the applicant for a job up and down from head to foot, made her feel the worth of a packet of cigarette papers, and then kept her waiting an hour.

Yet she borrowed her car fare on many occasions from a fellow-worker who could ill-afford to lose the money, and forgot to pay it back.

Yet she grabbed all the evening newspapers at her club, and sat on those she wasn't reading.

Yet she called her husband a silly old thing, and drew attention to his bald head and graying temples.

Yet she couldn't be bothered to be polite to her own folks and greet them cheerfully at the breakfast table or take an interest in their troubles.

It is said to be possible to devote a lifetime to study of the science of mah-jongg, but, fortunately, it is not compulsory.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

CLEAR YOUR HEART

CLEAR your heart of hate and go forth in the morning with all your being packed with love.

Try it today if you have not already done so and experience in the eventide the exhilarating sensation which comes to him or her who has done his or her full duty to the human kind.

Our greatest happiness, our sweetest dreams, our rosiest realizations, our supremest joys come from proffering a helping hand to the friendless who are trudging up the hill alone, forgotten in the crowds that sweep like the waves on the bosom of the ocean.

Thousands of burden-bearers all about us are praying for sympathy, a kindly word, the touch of a gentle hand which you and I can bestow by being humane, thoughtful and considerate.

They are lonely, heart-broken, dependent, but doing their best to stem the relentless tide threatening to sweep them off their feet.

Scatter smiles and get a smile in return even though you are carrying a kit of sorrow yourself.

Learn who is your neighbor and what your duty is toward him and shirk not when duty calls.

Purge your heart of pride and envy. March along with the noble-hearted whose lips are singing praises from morn till night, and whose souls are alight with eternal light.

Make this a joyous existence instead of one of tears and regrets, laden with care, dimmed with disbelief and unlighted by a single ray of beneficent faith.

Do these things and rise to an eminence where there is an enduring peace which cannot be measured or weighed.

Put forth thy hand in God's name and do for others the best you can. Be always patient, cheerful and charitable. Ask no man's favor, but seek to have it bestowed upon you as a natural reward for the kindness you have done to others.

And when the play is over there will descend upon you the unspeakable joy which comes to him or her who has made personal sacrifices and done his or her full duty.

GREGORY'S RELATIVES

WHEN Gregory was growing up, he had two grandmothers to visit. One lived in a great big house in town. Gregory remembered that house stuffed full of the spoils of yearly trips "to the other side." There were cabinets and shelves and tables cluttered with dust-covered objects of art. Some had been shipped by careless housemaids, some broken and glued hastily so that the edges showed black and sticky.

His other grandmother lived in the country. In his school days when things went wrong, he would imagine himself back in the green-shuttered white cottage, where, in the low-ceilinged parlor, a fire on the hearth threw its light over the orderly room, and touched the Chinese chess men and the Eighteenth century cup and saucer and all the other distinct things he remembered, each with its fascinating story. He knew why a certain plate had been riveted, and he liked the pattern of the carefully darned blankets on his bed upstairs, and he knew that the lemon drops would always be in the blue glass jar.

Then Gregory grew up. It was a question in his own mind, as in every one else's, which of two nice girls he was going to marry. Even after his wedding he would ask himself why it had been Mary. Not that there was the least doubt in his mind that it was Mary he wanted. But why? Gradually he satisfied himself with the happiness of his life, and left the question blissfully unanswered.

Then he and Mary went to visit his old flame and her husband. He returned home again with a breath of relief. His host and hostess were happy together—no doubt of that. Gregory was glad to know—but they lived in a turmoil, a hurly-burly of undertakings half begun and never finished, that left Gregory speechless. There were magazines and piles of unanswered letters on the desk; one dropped one's coat and hat anywhere; everyone was late to everything; Gregory was warned against two weak-legged chairs that had never been mended; the children came to the table, and their manners were atrocious. "Bolshevism" was the way Gregory summed it all up to himself on his first evening home.

Then he looked across at Mary reading on the other side of the table. There was a dignity about her that took him back to his grandmother in her little white house. Suddenly he recognized a quality that went a long way toward answering that unsolved question of his early married years—he recognized the habit of personal and material upkeep.

'What's in a Name?'

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

LAURA

LAURA, which is generally conceded to be the best suited to a woman of meek and gentle mien, should by right of derivation signify victor, since it not only means, but also comes, from the laurel, sign of the conqueror. However its derivation is somewhat devotional and rather more poetic.

The real root of Laura is in Roman mythology where the lares were the spirits which guarded the home and were represented by images placed near the hearthstone. On certain religious occasions, these images were adorned with crowns of laurel or evergreen. Finally there appears a Roman deity called Lara, or Laurentia, sometimes spelled Laurentia. Greek mythology made poor Laurentia a nymph, whom, because of her chattering, Jupiter sent to the lower regions, accompanied by Mercury.

Another tradition makes her the woman who nursed Romulus and Remus, and disposes of her and the she-wolf simultaneously. Still a third version degraded her like Flora, who was once a goddess in whose honor spring festivals were given, and made her leave all her property to the state in the time of Ancus Martius.

Laura's flower, the laurel with its cool chaste bloom, has peculiar powers. It dispels contagion in time of plague and in Italy its boughs are thrown on the fire during a thunderstorm. The Italians have always loved the name, due perhaps to that most exquisite love story of history. Petrarch's Laura has a place among the immortals. They call her Lorenza in Italy as well as Laura.

Her jewel is the emerald, the color of the heart of woodland. It is said to have the mystic power to strengthen the eyesight of its wearer and when it could not protect from danger, old superstition has it, that a piece would break from the gem. Monday is Laura's lucky day and 2 her lucky number.

An extract from a charming poem written to Laura by Edward Steadman follows:

Laura, my darling, the years that have flown Brought few of the prizes I pledged to my own; I said that no sorrow should roughen her way— Her life should be cloudless, a long summer's day. Shadow and sunshine, thistles and flowers, Which of the two, darling, most have been ours? Yet tonight, by the smile on your lips, I can see You are dreaming of me, darling, dreaming of me. Drink Milk and Have a Good Complexion

If girls only realized how much milk is capable of helping their complexions, they would probably be found drinking this taken-for-granted food at all hours of the day. Milk baths used to be indulged in by beautiful ladies and no doubt they were quite as effective as the mud baths of this generation, but if the milk had been applied internally it is dollars to doughnuts that the fair ones would have noticed red cheeks and firm skin much sooner than by the outside method.

Milk nourishes facial muscles, makes good, red blood to show through, and in all helps perhaps more than any other food to insure a healthy, wholesome complexion. The outdoor girl of today is getting very tired of her paint box mussy cosmetics and she is giving more and more attention to a diet which insures a complexion that will not wash off.

If you envy a good complexion, the sensible and satisfactory way to achieve one is to give due thought to the daily diet, remembering that a daily quart of milk is sure to show results before long in the face itself. Once more—don't envy the outdoor girl's school days' complexion—drink and own one yourself.

A tall, thin glass of creamy milk with tiny frost beads gathering on the outside as it comes forth from its frigid retreat in the ice-box! What more refreshing or invigorating drink can one imagine?

The too-slim woman, the near-skinny man knows from hearsay or experience that Pasterurized milk is the delicious substance which can remedy one's natural deficiencies.

While the stoutest woman or the next-to-fat man may equally count on the ways of milk for toning down their excess flesh if taken correctly, and for those who are just right physically, a between-meals "snack" of tasty milk means just plain comfort and better health.

WHAT STOREKEEPERS CAN DO

Strangers coming to Carteret judge the community largely by the stores along the main streets, such as Roosevelt, Pershing or Washington avenues. Clean, well lighted show windows, with the wares displayed, carefully selected and artistically arranged will arrest attention and invite passersby to enter. If they will find the interior of the store clean and inviting they will buy. In addition to this merchants and their help would add a little friendliness to the string and a kindly sympathy to the wrapping paper after the purchases have been as a whole has gained a friend. The mere efficiency made, not only the merchant, but the community the merchants serve the public, the more they will better their fortunes.

FAITH IN CARTERET

That this borough is growing and prospering and that our citizens have a forward vision and unbound faith is indicated by the formation of another building loan society here, the Sound View Building & Loan Association. Building societies have chiefly one purpose, to aid housekeepers. These societies as a rule prosper, because the community prospers and because new houses are constantly going up. There are several loan societies here and all of them are taxed to capacity for loans. This demand is very encouraging. It points to a bigger and busier community. Home loan societies are also a sign that the community can help itself nicely.

The world takes very little interest in a community that lacks public spirit and fails to show an inclination to help itself. To attract the attention of the public Carteret must strongly evidence a progressive spirit and its citizens must work hard, individually and unitedly, to make it a greater and better abiding place, a place attractive to investments, enterprise and industry—essentials to the growth, progress and welfare of a community.

The Christmas fund inaugurated by the Roosevelt Post, No. 263, American Legion, this year, is a worthy undertaking and deserves much commendation. The legionnaires have preached in recent months that they are willing to serve now as they did during the war and with the creation of the fund, they surely live up to what they have said. There is no doubt that the local post is one of the most active, not only in the county, but in the state. They are sustaining the spirit of the borough with their numerous activities. The addition of the ladies' auxiliary to the post has brought added fortification to the legionnaires here.

Since the legionnaires are devoting much time to the Christmas project, it is only fair and reasonable that every citizen should co-operate and help them. With the aid of the good and spirited people here, the undertaking of the fund will be a big success. Every little bit will help.

One can contribute a dollar, ten, fifty or a hundred. But give. Whatever the donation may be, how small it may be, yet it will do much good. Picture yourself how happy you will be, after you have made a donation and thereby help making someone else happy. A lot of children in the borough are already looking forward to the big treat the legionnaires will give them. Many mothers, who may be in dependent conditions are throwing their cares away, knowing that at least at Christmas time, they will enjoy the days in peace and happiness.

The Carteret Fire Company No. 2 has started off the fund with a donation of $25. What a splendid act. It shows the spirit of the firemen who are always ready, day and night to help save a life, save a home and save a child. Every able citizen, who enjoys health and prosperity should not pass this off, is truly a privilege to be able to donate to a cause like this. It comes back to you many times more.

Send your donation to the legion now. Do not wait until Christmas time. DO IT TODAY.

CROWNS OF THE ROMAN GODS

Apollo, Bacchus, Minerva, Venus, Each Were Given Floral Adornment for Their Heads.

Crowns were at one time used for the simple purpose of keeping uncombed hair off the eyes. Originally made of flowers and plants, they were subsequently formed of horn, and finally of metal. Jupiter wore wild flowers; Bacchus, ivy; Apollo, laurel; Minerva, olive, and Venus, roses.

In ancient times, not only kings and leaders but priests, athletes and even ordinary citizens seem to have worn crowns. The Detroit News, a crown made of grass or weeds gathered on the spot was often presented by a beleaguered city to the general who raised the siege.

The civic crown was made of oak leaves, and was given to a soldier who in battle saved the life of a Roman citizen. The camp crown, made of gold, was given to him who first entered the enemy's camp; the naval crown to him who first boarded an enemy's ship. To him who gained a victory over pirates on the high seas was presented a crown of myrtle.

Frog's Greed Fatal.

In a New South Wales town a large green frog was found in the act of swallowing an 18-inch brown snake. The amphibian had managed to get down about five inches of the reptile, and seemed to have stuck at that, as both remained in the one position for the next hour and a half. When they were dispatched the frog measured six inches from north to south, and was pronounced the largest of its kind ever seen in that district. The snake was badly mauled about the swallowed portion, and looked as though he had been partly chewed, but in spite of this he still had a remnant of life in him when found. Both were preserved and are now on view in spirits, having been replaced in the position in which they were discovered.

Saved by His Teeth.

P. L. Prestrelle was overcome by gas in a 60-foot well, and when he failed to respond to the calls of his fellow workmen they lowered a rope into the well with the intention of sending some one down to rescue him. They felt a strain on the rope, and hauling it out found Prestrelle clinging to it with his teeth, though he still was unconscious. It was necessary to pry his jaws apart to release the rope. He has no recollection of the incident.—Maller (S. D.) News in Evening Huronite.

Ninety-One Yields to One Hundred.

A nonagenarian's rivalry with a centenarian has been brought to a close by the retirement of Robert Joseph, aged ninety-one, from the service of a firm of brewers in Burton-on-Trent, England. For 30 years his employers tried to persuade him to retire. They always met with a refusal, but at last he saw there was no hope of vanquishing his centenarian rival, who is still working in the south of England.

English Railroad's Record.

For more than fifty years the North London railway, begun by Robert Stephenson, has been in operation, during which time 1,000,000,000 passengers were carried. The marvelous record established by this railway is one to be envied by railroads the world over, for not a life has been lost due to an accident on the road. Can any other railroad having carried as many passengers show such a clean record?

CLERKS SWORN TO SECRECY

In Some Places the 'Oath' Is Given Yearly as Business Men's Safeguard.

The recent litigation connected with an alleged breach of the bond of secrecy between a bank and its client has roused considerable interest in banking circles and the commercial world generally, says London Tit-Bits. On entering the service of a bank, every clerk is compelled to make a declaration of secrecy, when he undertakes to refrain from giving any information respecting the accounts of the bank's clients.

So important is this matter in the eyes of bank directors that in more than one big bank the staff have to sign this declaration annually, and are thus constantly reminded of the necessity for secrecy.

Without this safeguard the business man would lose faith in his banker; not only would it be unpleasant to know that his business was made common knowledge, but in some cases the leaking out of details of some transactions might also lead to serious loss.

Information about effects of a restricted and guarded nature is often exchanged between bankers. It is well known that a man's best reference is his banker. Perhaps he has arranged to guarantee a friend's overdraft at another bank; the latter will ask for the name of the guarantor's bankers as a reference, and will inquire of them whether, in their opinion, his standing is sufficient to warrant their acceptance of the guaranty.

The phrase, "good for your requirements," is usually all that is necessary to satisfy the applicants as to the bona fides of the guarantor.

So strict are the rules as to secrecy in a bank that the officials will nowadays refuse to give information of any description over the telephone, even though the client himself is inquiring.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

IN THE average man's life there are usually two women; the one who loves him and bores him—and the one who fascinates him and merely endures him.

When a bachelor listens to a pretty woman's story of her sad, sad life, somehow he always subconsciously hears the ominous strains of the wedding march.

A pen in the hand of a woman in love is as dangerous as the scissors in the hand of a baby. The best way, dear heart, to charm a man with a love-letter is to refrain from writing it.

When a man vows that he has never done anything which his wife could disapprove, he usually means that he has never done anything which she could prove.

A married flirt is one who, figuratively speaking, reads "Zippy Stories" behind the cover of "The Outline of History."

Many a girl marries what she fancies is a rock of strength and nobility on which to lean, only to discover that she has merely acquired a pebble in the shoe.

The man who has to supply a modern woman's wants may be excused for secretly suspecting that she must have been made from a wish-bone instead of from a rib.

There are only two ways for a woman to get any happiness out of love: either to take it, like religion or medicine, with blind faith, or to enjoy a man's devotion as you do the June moon, knowing perfectly well that it is bound to change.

Call no man an angel until you have seen him smile at a punctured tire, 20 miles from a garage.

Mammoth Pig.

What is claimed to be the largest pig in the world was exhibited in Australia recently.

The animal weighs 1,188 pounds, or more than half a ton, and measures eight feet three inches in length. Its height is three feet nine inches; it has a waist measurement of six feet five inches; while it is only twenty-five months old.

This giant looks more like a hippopotamus than a pig, and when it has finished growing it is probable that it will resemble an elephant more than a product of the farmyard.

Commissioned to Paint Christ on Prison Wall

Montgomery, Ala.—Having painted his way out of the federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Max Sasanoft, Russian artist, has been commissioned to paint a picture of Christ upon the walls of Kilby prison near here.

Sasanoft was granted clemency by President Harding after the artist had translated his conception of the compassionate Christ on the gray walls of the federal prison in Atlanta. His fame for this picture spread, and the Big Brothers' Bible class of Montgomery, one of the largest interdenominational classes in the South, obtained the artist for a smaller task at the state prison.

Prisoners at Kilby have donated 5 cents each, one-third of their weekly allowance, to aid in meeting the expense of the painting. It is hoped that it will be ready for unveiling by Christmas.

All the Difference

We sometimes think we hate flattery when we only hate the manner in which we have been flattered.—Roche-foucauld.

Thief Returns Money and Asks for Prayers

Sunbury, Pa.—A conscience-stricken thief has been returning stolen money to the owners of late, at the same time writing for forgiveness and the prayers of the persons from whom the money had been stolen.

At least nine women of Berwick have received money which had been stolen from them. Nearly every day money has been received by someone in different sections of the town. About $142 was returned in this way.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Andreas received $30 a few days after it had been stolen; Mrs. Fred A. Walton, $2, which disappeared several months ago; Miss Laura Harman, $20, stolen in June; Mrs. Joseph Cotright, $5; Mrs. George Garrison, $7; Mrs. Ollie Cope, $1; Mrs. Roscoe Pollock, $13; Miss Catharin Dildine, $6, which was taken from her handbag while she was at supper, and Mrs. Fred Shultz, $25, taken from her several months ago.

Praise When Possible

You may be liberal in your praise, where praise is due; it costs nothing; it encourages much. —Ungere Mann.

Living Viper Found in Stomach of Girl

Chur, Switzerland.—When the stomach of a young nurse who had died in terrible agony was opened, a living viper was found.

The patient had been put on a strict diet, and the venomous snake, driven by hunger, had eaten the intestines of the young woman.

Only one explanation seems likely, namely, that the girl, while on a hike in the Swiss mountains, drank from a mountain brook and swallowed either a serpent egg or a small living reptile.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

MR. AND MRS. NICK

EVERYONE who visited Nick and Mrs. Nick came away convinced that their home was a wonderful organization—their household ran on greased wheels.

Then Dick suddenly turned up from the West. Dick and Nick had not seen each other since their bachelor days years before when they worked from sunrise to sunset and rested from sunset to sunrise.

Dick just telephoned from the station that he was in town; Mrs. Nick said that, if he'd only written ahead that he would come, they would have been prepared for him more formally than he would find them now.

At the table they decided on a reunion of all the old crowd within halting distance. Monday they would have a stag party. But, "not Monday," put in Mrs. Nick gently.

Half an hour later they were comfortably seated round a blazing fire. Dick had his hand in his pocket on his cigarette case when Nick said, "Sorry, old man, I can't ask you to smoke in here—we keep the little room at the end of the hall for smoking."

Then Mrs. Nick had an emergency schedule to present—not, she repeated, what his entertainment would have been had he "written ahead" of his coming. And Dick settled down to the real work of visiting in a well-organized household.

Next summer Mr. and Mrs. Dick asked Nick and his wife to their ranch. At breakfast they served themselves; then they were offered their choice of horses or the library for the day; dinner was the only fixed hour, and everyone was so hungry for that that they were all invariably prompt.

On their return in the fall, Mrs. Nick said suddenly: "My dear, has it ever occurred to you that in our life here we need more leeway?"

"What do you mean?" asked Nick cautiously.

"I think we have been over-systematized, over-organized. Too much routine is a bad habit."

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRDING KING

SALIVA OF LOWER ANIMALS

THE saliva of the lower animals—for instance that of the dog—is supposed to have great healing powers. Wounds licked by a dog will heal quickly.

"material" in a rather loose sense. That of the lower animals possessed healing or deadly qualities as the case might be—that of man protected against the evil eye, evil spirits and bad luck.

In the dog licking sores superstition we have a combination of the ancient belief in the magic power of saliva and the doctrine of disease transference—the latter a primitive idea running through many current superstitions.

Such Is a Woman

Have you ever noticed that when a fellow takes his wife's advice she always asks him later why he wasn't man enough to make up his own mind.—Auburn Globe-Republican.

Insult to Injury

Tailor (excitedly)—It is not enough that you never pay your bills, sir; but you are getting fatter right along and I have to use more material for your clothes.

A LINE O' CHEER

By John Kendrick Bangs.

THE GOOD WORD

"WHAT'S the good word?" quoth one to yne. "Well, you can take your choice of three,"

Said I: "There's LOVE, and HOPE, and CHEER.

All sounding sweetly on my ear."

"Till take the first," said he, "and you

Can keep yourself the other two.

For if I've LOVE it seems to me I hold the substance of the three."

And as I thought it o'er that night,

I found the wise old chap was right.

For he to whom true LOVE doth fall Hath truly won and garnered all.

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Word's Real Meaning

When we say "going downstairs," we really mean, if the phrase is used rightly, "going up."

"Down" is derived from the Saxon word "dun" which means a hill or upland.

The opposite to "dun" is "a-dun" so what we should say when a descent is meant, is "going a-downstairs."

Gethsemane

On the land now known as the Garden of Gethsemane there are eight very old olive trees which tradition says were living in the time of Christ.

The actual location of the Garden of "Our Lord's Agony" was lost, and the present site selected as the probable location.

Witching Number?

On Aug. 13, 1898, the city of Manila surrendered to the American army commanded by Gen. Wesley M. Merritt. Besides the 13 in the date, the numerals in the year, added together, total 28, or twice 13, and the name Wesley Merritt contains 13 letters.

The American land force in the engagement numbered 8,500 men and the Spanish garrison 13,000.

How Word Originated

The French hackney-coach, sacre, bears the name of the Irish Saint Flaccus, patron of gardeners, because an inn in Paris, the Hotel de St. Flaccus, was the first station for the hire of carriages.

Makes Slow Increase

Scientists say that the average height of the human race increases at the rate of one and one-fourth inches every thousand years.

Sealed! to protect Buick performance

Buick's chassis is sealed. Iron and steel housings protect the operation of all driving parts—seal them in to safeguard Buick performance.

Here are the vital points at which Buick engineering provides this extra protection:

- 1 FAN HUB—Fan bearing totally enclosed—lubricated by its own gear pump. 2 MOTOR—Steel cover keeps water from short-circuiting spark plugs. Steel cover over valve-in-head mechanism keeps dust out, oil in. 3 STARTER-GENERATOR—Delco single unit starter-generator completely housed in single housing. Starting gears housed with flywheel. 4 FLYWHEEL—Completely housed. Starting teeth protected from road damage and accumulation of mud and dirt. 5 CLUTCH—Multiple disc—completely housed. 6 TRANSMISSION—Completely protected. Shifting mechanism holes sealed. 7 UNIVERSAL JOINT—Completely encased in ball joint at front end of torque tube—lubricated automatically from transmission. 8 PROPELLER SHAFT—Buick's third member drive, which is a torque tube, completely encloses the propeller shaft. It is impossible for road dirt to work from the shaft into the universal joint or rear axle. 9 REAR AXLE—Floating type, totally enclosed in rear axle housing.

AT THE MASQUE BALL

By WALTER O. MARQUIS

HER divorce! Grace contemplated this thought with clashing emotions; a flush, too vivid to be natural, colored her cheeks.

Presently she was conscious only of a great relief; thankful that this long struggle was over. Relief.

"Freedom!" she whispered, and she closed her eyes—

Two years ago, he reflected, the word that Grace had divorced him would have been distressing; five years ago it would have been like the blight of death—today it was good.

Well, she had done it. Probably he never would see her again . . . and he was glad of it.

Life, with her new perspective, seemed beautiful to Grace. Her movements were unhampered; there was not that old deterrent factor in her friendship for Brett Forbes.

Grace Mervin's return was on the eve of the annual masque at the Cosmos club. She was eager. It had been two years since she has been in the joyous midst of this revelry.

"Tomorrow night," she said, "at the Cosmos masque. No, not before!"

"You'll know," she told him. "Your love, if it is as deep as you say it is, will tell you! And I," she added very softly, "shall know you."

A tall, well-built dancer in marine officer's uniform brushed her shoulder and she started. She turned to look at him, and found his eyes intent upon her. Here was Brett Forbes!

came as gium as a door post, it was obvious that Barbara was up to her tricks again. She had almost promised to marry him.

There was a great deal of conjecture, even a little betting. The night of the big dance everyone was excited. Jim and Barbara came late. People who saw them on the stairs said Barbara was white, and barely nodded to them.

Everybody was quiet for a minute, and then a bolder soul spoke out: "Well, Jim, she almost married you, didn't she?"

Well, the joke was on the crowd, and what else could be done but pick them up and carry them bodily to their train?

Shubert Theatre

Next week's theatrical attractions include Victor Herbert's last opera, "The Dream Girl," starring Fay Bainter and featuring Walter Woolf, which the Messrs. Shubert will present at the Shubert Theatre on Monday evening for an engagement of one week.

The action of "The Dream Girl" is laid in England. A number of American girl students have gone to London with their "Aunt Harriet" to study and enjoy the scenery, so the story goes, and while there, one of the girls, a pretty ingenue named Elspeth, is introduced to a young American athlete, Jack Warren, who has been in England competing in some international games.

That night Elspeth dreams that she is living in an age of castles and knights and that Warren who rescues her from a tyrannical guardian who wishes to marry her for her money. In the morning she hails Warren as her hero and rescuer. The athlete is surprised and embarrassed at first, but later, when he and Elspeth are alone, he confides that he too has had such a dream and that Elspeth bears a striking resemblance to the girl that he rescued.

AN ORDINANCE AUTHORIZING THE ISSUE OF $125,000.00 PUBLIC IMPROVEMENT BONDS OF THE BOROUGH OF CARTERET, COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX AND STATE OF NEW JERSEY.

WHEREAS, the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret, did on April 21, 1924, adopt on third and final reading, an ordinance providing for the erection and construction of the Borough Hall appropriating therefor the sum of $100,000.00;

AND WHEREAS, on May 19, 1924, said Borough Council passed on third and final reading, an amendment to said ordinance whereby the appropriation for the said Borough Hall was increased to $125,000.00;

AND WHEREAS, said Borough Hall is now nearing completion and temporary improvement certificates have been issued from time to time to meet the cost of the construction of said Borough Hall;

Be it Ordained by the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret, in the County of Middlesex:

1. Pursuant to Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 of New Jersey, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, negotiable bonds of the Borough of Carteret, in the County of Middlesex, being known as "Public Improvement Bonds" and to be dated January 1, 1925, are hereby authorized to be issued in the aggregate principal amount of $125,000.00, for the purposes hereinafter stated, for which said purposes the said sum of $125,000.00 is necessary to be raised.

2. The money to be raised by the issuance of said bonds shall be applied to the purpose of paying for the construction of the building known as the "Borough Hall." All temporary indebtedness now outstanding lawfully incurred by the Borough of Carteret for said purpose pursuant to Section 13 of the act aforesaid, shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of said bonds.

3. Said bonds shall be in such denomination and form and payable principal and interest in such manner and at such times and place and bear interest at such rate as may be provided by resolution of the Council, shall be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer and attested by the Clerk under the seal of the Borough, and if coupons for the payment of interest be attached, they shall be executed by the facsimile signature of the Borough Treasurer.

4. The following matters are hereby determined and declared, pursuant to the rules of Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 of New Jersey as amended: (a) No part of the cost of said improvement has been or is to be specially assessed again property specially benefited.

(b) The probable period of the usefulness of the improvement for which said bonds are to be issued, computed in the manner described by Section 4 of said Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 as amended (said improvement being either not yet completed or completed within one year prior to the date of the bonds hereby authorized) is thirty years beginning upon the date of said bonds; the said Borough Hall being of the character of construction defined in clause (b) of sub-section (1) Section 4 of the act aforesaid.

(c) The average assessed valuation of the taxable real property including improvements of the Borough of Carteret, computed upon the next preceding three valuations thereof in the manner provided in Section 12 of said Chapter 252 of the Laws of 1916 as amended, is $7,167,927.00.

(d) The net debt of the Borough of Carteret computed in the manner required by Section 12 as amended, including the indebtedness hereby incurred is $177,598.25.

(e) The statement required by said Section 12 showing said net debt, etc. has been made and filed with the Borough Clerk as required by said act.

5. There shall be levied in each year, while any of the bonds shall be outstanding, in the same manner and at the same time as other taxes, a tax upon all taxable property of the Borough sufficient to produce the amount of principal and interest to mature the succeeding year.

6. This ordinance shall take effect in the manner provided by law. Introduced November 17, 1924. Passed on first and second readings, November 17, 1924. H. V. O. PLATT, Borough Clerk.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the foregoing ordinance was introduced at a regular meeting of the Borough Council of the Borough of Carteret, held on the 17th day of November, 1924 and that at a regular meeting to be held at Firehouse No. 2, Roosevelt Avenue, Carteret, New Jersey, on the 1st day of December, 1924, at 8 o'clock in the evening, the said Council will consider the final passage of said ordinance, when and where all persons interested therein will be given an opportunity to be heard concerning said ordinance. H. V. O. PLATT, Borough Clerk.

Find Bogus Coin Plant Near Liberty Statue

New York.—A raid of a scow which for two years has lain at anchor in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty disclosed a counterfeiting plant which government agents said they believed was operated by an international ring which has been flooding the country with bogus nickels, dimes and quarters for seven years.

Three counterfeit Treasury department molds were found on the scow, the Sparklight, one of five craft raided during the day. The coins found were said by secret service operatives to be perfect in detail, but lacking in the weight of good coin. A quantity of metal alloy, the raw material of counterfeiting, was also confiscated.

Boys Steal Dynamite, Have "Pretty Bonfire"

Pottsville, Pa.—Informed by school teachers that scholars had dynamite in their possession, police investigated and announced that three pupils, all less than twelve years old, had confessed taking a box of dynamite from the Sherman Coal company here and had used the sticks for kindling wood. The boys confessed building a fire with forty of the sticks because they made such "pretty blue flames." The police confiscated the remainder of the lot.

Shot With Paper Wad

Dunkirk, Ind.—When Mr. and Mrs. Gail Dugan, recently married, objected to the tactics of a billing party some one in the crowd pointed a revolver at Dugan and fired. A paper-wad bullet hit Dugan in the hip and inflicted a severe wound which required the attention of a physician.

WOLVES WHIPPED BY ZOO KEEPER

Conquers Beasts With Bare Hands in Atlanta Park.

Atlanta, Ga.—The story of a desperate battle with two mad wolves was revealed when J. W. Camp, animal keeper at the Grant park zoo, appeared at Grady hospital to take the Pasteur treatment.

According to Camp, he entered a cage in which the two wolves were confined. While he was stooping in the act of arranging food for the animals he heard a snarl behind him. He wheeled around just in time to knock one of the beasts to the ground as it leaped at him.

Enraged, both wolves attacked him and for several minutes he fought them with his bare hands. The wolves kept a position in the cage which prevented him from escaping. Fighting desperately against the repeated attacks of the animals, which sought to rend him with their powerful fangs, he finally succeeded in stunning one of them with a blow from his fist. Fighting the other wolf all the while, he staggered to the open cage door and escaped.

Mr. Camp, whose address was given as 131 Burns street, suffered only a severe laceration on his right hand, which was dressed at Grady hospital. One of the wolves died, and an examination by state physicians revealed that it was suffering from hydrophobia. The other animal was then ordered killed.

Haunted by Wife's Ghost, Deserts Bride, Children

Derby, Conn.—Haunted by the ghost of his former wife, who died three months ago, and who is said to have appeared nightly before him, warning him to either desert his bride or three weeks or she would cause the death of her successor, leaving evidence which would incriminate him, Wadslaw Zydron, a Polish shop hand of this city, has mysteriously disappeared in New York city with $2,000 of his bride's life savings, after deserting his two children.

The present Mrs. Zydron has appealed to both local police and New York authorities to find her husband, who left here to go to Poland, where he was to regain his health and shattered nerves, somewhat shaken by his alleged experiences with the phantom figure which is said to have appeared at his bedside every night for the last two weeks and a half. Mrs. Zydron fears that the ghost of the first Mrs. Zydron will come back to carry out the death threat. She has asked the police for protection. She is insistent that she hears footsteps roaming through the rooms in the middle of the night, the shutters bang loudly against the frame building and low moans echo through the rafters while she lies ached, frightened and expectant of pending

SCHOOL DAYS

QUIBS' OF SPORT

By EDDIE EKROY

A season that showed thorough ability as a football eleven was just completed by the fast Rahway High School gridgers, of which team a number of Carteret boys are members. Rahway won the Union County class B championship by defeating Nutley by 7 to 6 a week ago at Rahway and also remains with two other schools, Princeton and Red Bank, as undefeated teams in the Class B division.

The Rahway team is eager to become more than county champs and have expressed their desire to earn the state title by wanting to arrange a post-season game with either Princeton or Red Bank. A battle between Rahway and Princeton at the Palmer Stadium would draw close to 25,000 fans, a great number for a scholastic contest. And the Red Bank eleven would bring about sufficient cause for an attendance almost as large.

Red Bank has scored more points against their opponents than either Rahway or Princeton and Princeton tallied two more than the Union County school team. Rahway was also scored upon more times than the other schools. Points scored by Red Bank were: 218; by Princeton, 126; and by Rahway, 126. Points scored by opponents of Red Bank were 32; against Princeton, 7, and against Rahway, 44.

No Substitution For Work

The main reason why Rahway rose to the top with Red Bank and Princeton, which are schools much larger than the Rahway institution, was due to the hard everyday training for their games. Substitutions have been found for food, rubber and numerous other products, but never has anyone gotten up a substitute for work.

A good example of this was found right here in Carteret, in the fist centers. A promising scrapper came here from the Philippines, Sid Martin by name, and through neglect of training he was slammed back to the bottom where he came from. The positive side of the argument becomes apparent when one takes a glance at the records of Carl Morris and Dick Lynch. Both have worked hard and continue to do so. Morris has gained the name as a second Burlenbach and Lynch is feared likewise by his opponents.

Firpo was given the name of "Wild Bull of the Pampass" because he could crush a man's bones with his wallop and because he went at his opponent like a mad bull. At the time he trained about half as much as a real boxer should, but previous to the Wills and Weinert bouts he did nothing but what was "good for Firpo" and now his name is "mud."

Basketball To Come Yet

We hear that the baskets will be put up in the St. Joseph's parochial school court as soon as the bazar is over in a week. Also that the Columbus school is planning to make the seats in the auditorium movable so that a court for the Blue and White cagers can be arranged.

The outlook for the coming basketball season is beginning to become brighter on account of these plans and within two or three weeks there will be any number of local cage teams on the courts. The Carteret Separates, to be organized by Jack Donovan, will open their season within that time at the St. Joseph's court and the St. Joseph's Juniors will also get going; besides other parish quintets.

The high school five has opened the season already, but were at a great disadvantage as they dropped two contests, to South Amboy and Tottenville. The players haven't a court to practice on and

Varsity Battles To Draw With Ex-High

A few thousand football fans saw the Rahway high school varsity battle to a scoreless tie with the ex-high boys at Riverside park, Rahway, yesterday afternoon. Both teams played well and several good gains were made by each. In the past years the ex-high generally had the advantage of the varsity elevens, but this year the undergrads made their rivals battle to escape defeat.

Wrong Idea That Birds Poison Captive Young

A belief, that seems as persistent today as when Hood wrote "The Plea of the Midsummer Fairies," is that parent birds will deliberately poison their captive young. A correspondent in a London paper practically begs the question by inquiring what poison is used for the purpose. He goes on to say: "I have known several cases. Recently a man took some young goldfinches out of a chestnut tree here and caged them. The old birds came and fed them. He put them in his cottage at night and put them out at 5 a. m. This went on for ever a week. Then one morning after the old ones had fed them they all died."

The reply given is to the effect that, though there have been many statements made with regard to birds poisoning their young in similar circumstances, there does not appear to be a morsel of scientific evidence in support of the theory. "It is difficult," the writer remarks, "to imagine how circumstances would arise in nature that would lead to a development of such an instinct, and those birds which killed their young would have no descendants to perpetuate their habit."

If the owners of Bedglins, dying in suspicious circumstances, would subject the victims to a post-mortem, light might be shed upon the subject. It is difficult to conjecture what poison could be used for such a purpose, as young birds are fed mainly on insects, and the other ones delight in the so-called "poisonous" berries. This being the case, we ourselves, should be inclined to acquit the parents and bring in a verdict, "Death due to natural causes."

furthermore they would be able to make a far better showing if they played some of their games on their home court.

Basketball will probably enjoy its greatest season here yet!

With the football season completed basketball now is coming to the fore in the colleges and schools as well as on professional floors. The country has had the greatest football season that has ever been seen before this year. The season was dry and large attendances turned out as a result.

Soccer is in its first year here and although the local eleven is not enjoying the season that most teams are, the fans are attending the games fairly well, but an improvement could be made there. Of course, fans are not fond of seeing a second division team perform, but if the club is not supported they will always watch a poor outfit play. During the past few years Carteret had a strong football eleven—probably one of the strongest in the state, but the lack of public support caused further action in this sport to be dropped and now practically the same club is playing regularly in Woodbridge.

Man Held Dead Writes to Wife From Egypt

Chester, Pa.—A letter received by his wife cleared up the mystery surrounding the disappearance from this city in December of Joseph Parent. The letter from Parent contained the information that he was located in Cairo, Egypt, and is prospering. He asks his wife to join him. Parent dropped from sight on the night of December 6, after he left home to go to the mills, where he was employed. Mrs. Parent found a note under the door of her home warning her to leave Chester or she and her boy would be murdered.

The wife is making plans to dispose of her household effects and sail for Egypt.

Treasure Trove Liner Is Found on Ocean Bed

Norfolk, Va.—After thirteen years at the bottom of the seas the treasure laden Ward liner Merida has been found. One day recently two trawlers, dragging a mile-long iron sweep along the floor of the ocean off the Virginia coast, caught the wreck of a ship which went down in a collision in 1911 laden with gold, silver, copper, and jewels valued at $2,000,000 to $5,000,000.

The search was financed by a group of well-known New Yorkers, including Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., Franklin I. Mallory and W. Heyward Drayton III.
