

Power of Perversity
Not Well Understood

Perversity is one of the great forces of nature. Men have been fighting it for a great many years and opposition has served only to make its power greater. It has seldom been harnessed, except by chance, but potentially it is a mover of mountains. Sebastian Bach was an orphan who possessed a fiddle, a store of genius and an elder brother who was "practical." The brother permitted him to practice on the fiddle one hour each day—no more; and when Sebastian stole away and practiced in secret he was cut off for his sin. It may be that his musician's soul yearned to express itself, but he was a boy as well as a genius; and it is quite probable that perversity more than genius spurred him to rebellion.

When a small daughter is offered a book and told that it will prove instructive, she at once abominates it; forbid her to read another, and at once it holds a fascination almost beyond her powers to resist. Make the eating of suetkneut an offense against church and state and at once many thousands of good folks who never were tempted by the stuff will become enamored of it.

Consider the peach tree. It must be pruned to the orthodox "basket" shape to admit the sunshine and lighten the task of those who pick the fruit. But the pruners cut away the top wood only; they do not disturb the roots. And because the roots continue to supply undiminished vitality the tree exerts itself to put on more wood than was cut away. Efforts to keep it low but encourage its efforts to grow higher.

And there is steam. Free in the air, it is impotent and worthless. Restrain it and its struggles to escape afford power to keep the wheels of civilization turning.

If perversity may be harnessed and set to work, why employ it only as a means of engendering bitterness? It is here to stay; the supply is unlimited and everlasting; it is more dependable than loyalty, a sense of duty or fear of the devil.

It seems a foolish business to waste good breath in moralizing when perversity stands ready to turn the trick. There were times when even unwise movements got great help from persecution.—Baltimore Sun.

Gigantic Power Project

The island of Sicily is to be provided with electric power from Italy, which will embrace the erection of one of the most wonderful transmission wires in the world. Bids have been received from an American company for the construction of two steel towers, higher than the famous Eiffel tower in Paris, which will carry the transmission cables across the Straits of Messina. The height of the towers will be approximately 1,082 feet, and the distance between them will be two miles. There will be two circuits of three cables each, running 30 feet apart. The cables will be of steel, about four-fifths of an inch in diameter, and will clear the water in the center of the straits at a minimum height of 230 feet. At one terminus the cables will have automatic movable attachments to allow for changes in temperature and for wind pressure.—Family Herald.

Lightning Risks

The possibilities are that a man standing directly under a storm cloud would be struck by lightning fifteen times in one hundred strokes, while a man flat on the ground would be struck only once in a hundred strokes. The figures apply only if the man is isolated. The chance that a thunder cloud of a sufficient voltage to cause a discharge will be over a particular object is small, and thus the likelihood of any particular object being struck is very slight indeed.

Beautiful in Ruin Is Famous Dryburgh Abbey

A beautiful ancient church, like a fine old painting or poem, has a message for people of the present day. It is as if the builders challenged the modern world in this wise: "Here is our ideal of beauty; it breathes the life of our time and marks a step in our progress. Do you moderns surpass us in such expressions of beauty?"

The abbey of Dryburgh lies in Berwickshire, just across the border not far from Abbotsford and Melrose abbey, says the Christian Science Monitor. There is a question whether it was founded by David I in 1150, or by Hugh de Morville. Probably both men did much for it. The abbey today is surrounded by orchards and noble trees and crosses a peninsula around which sweeps the Tweed river. Two gables are still entire, and in the west one is a beautifully radiated circular window, called the wheel of St. Catherine. The general architecture of the abbey shows Roman, Saxon, Norman and Gothic influences. We associate the spot principally with Sir Walter Scott, but Thompson composed his "Winter" here, and long before that Gower, the friend of Chaucer, occupied a cell in Dryburgh abbey. Chaucer himself stayed some time here with his friend and rival.

Then She Knew All
There Was to Know

"Is this a speedometer?" she asked, as she tapped on the glass which covered that instrument. "Yes, dear," I replied in a sweet, gentle voice. "Don't they call this the dash light?" she queried, fingering the little nickel-plated illuminator. "Yes, honey," my words floated out softly as before. "And is this the cut-out?" she inquired.

"Yes, Toodles," as I took my foot off the accelerator. Not more than 200 feet away our course was blocked by a fast moving train.

"But what on earth is this funny-looking pedal?" she said in a curious tone, as she gave the accelerator a vigorous push with her dainty foot.

"This, sweetheart, is heaven," I said in a soft, celestial voice, as I picked up a gold harp and flew away.—The Watchman Examiner.

Days of the Guilds

The name "guilds" was given to certain corporations or fraternities of traders that grew up in the free cities and towns of Europe in the Middle ages. Free cities of this kind in England were called "boroughs." These corporations were most powerful in the towns of Flanders and South Germany. Each guild exercised a monopoly in its own particular craft, in return for which privilege the members rendered military service in defending the towns from attack. The right to exercise one's trade independently depended upon membership in a guild, which membership carried with it the rights of citizenship. The guild was expected to supervise the work of its members and to see that it was of reasonable quality. Henry VIII of England gave a death blow to the guilds by confiscating their property, on the ground that it was used for surreptitious purposes.—Kansas City Star.

Knew Value of Rifle

The Arab caravan men who used to trade across the Sahara through wastes patrolled by robber tribes had a proverb which told a deal of truth. "Without doubt," they said, "Allah is great, and Mohammed is his prophet, but Sidl Vinster (Mr. Winchester) is the trader's real friend."

Saved From Death by Knowledge of Morse

Two employees of a telegraph company sent to repair a burglar alarm in a financial institution at Boston were accidentally locked in the vault. Bank employees in vain tried to open the massive door. It was equipped with a time lock which was set to open the following morning. The police, fire department and safe experts could do nothing. There was a safety device inside the vault which, if the prisoners knew about, would have released them but there seemed to be no way to make them acquainted with the fact.

Finally someone thought of the Morse telegraph code. With huge sledges the words were sounded to the imprisoned men. Then the anxious throng waited. There was no answer. Suddenly the door swung open and the two men tottered out. They had heard the message and found the lock. They were on the point of collapse after being in the air-tight compartment for an hour.

A MILE OF GOOD STORES IN THE HEART OF ELIZABETH

Over 150 stores are located on both sides of Elizabeth Avenue, between Broad Street (at the Courthouse) and Seventh Street.

Every kind of business is represented, from large banks and department stores to large and small specialty shops.

YOU CAN BUY FOR LESS
ON ELIZABETH AVENUE

The principle reason for Elizabeth Avenue prices being lower is the fact that rents on Elizabeth Avenue are but a small fraction of those in the more congested centers and most Elizabeth Avenue buildings are owned by the merchants occupying them, therefore the overhead charges are reduced to a minimum, which naturally is reflected in lower selling prices.

SHOPPING IS A PLEASURE ON ELIZABETH AVENUE

Those who care to use their cars on their shopping tours will find Elizabeth Avenue a most convenient place to shop as there is ample parking facility on the street proper as well as on the numerous side streets which are wide and cross every few hundred feet.

Traffic delays on Elizabeth Avenue are rare as the street is sufficiently wide, so that the trolleys and busses do not hold up the automobile traffic.

The Cadet Engineer

In all of the important departments of PUBLIC SERVICE—Electric, Gas, Railway, Production and Commercial, the Cadet Engineer of today is being trained in order that he may be fitted to become the operating executive of tomorrow.

He is recruited from the leading technical schools of the country, dons overalls, and for a period of from three to five years, passes from job to job in order that he may acquire a practical working knowledge of the business of which his books have taught him the theory. Then he becomes a member of the regular organization and his future career depends upon the ability he shows.

The PUBLIC SERVICE Cadet System was inaugurated in order that the efficient organization so necessary to adequate service, may be continuously maintained.

The Cadet Engineer who enrolls with PUBLIC SERVICE enlists as well in the public service of the people.

PLAN TOGETHER

Members of the Roosevelt Post No. 263, American Legion, the only real active organization composed of ex-service men, has been busy for several weeks with their plans for Memorial Day which will be observed this year on Saturday, May 30.

Memorial Day—as we understand from mere reports—is also the day when the borough officials intend to dedicate the new Memorial Municipal Building—a structure built to commemorate the heroism of the fighters for our nation and at the same time house our local government.

The dedication and the legion observance have therefore one object, an object to pay tribute to our warriors, and it surely would be a most fitting event if the legionnaires and the borough council worked and planned the function together—hand in hand.

It may be said here, without audacity, that it is a deep mystery why appropriate plans for the dedication affair have not been laid out weeks ago. Is it not something worth while to crow about? Is it not something that our citizens would be proud to talk and boost?

To make a success of a fete of this sort, the entire community has to take an active part. So far no individual has been asked to co-operate, no society has been asked to plan—no one has been asked to arrange anything pertaining to the dedication.

In the budget of 1925 the council has rightly appropriated a few thousand dollars for the ceremony. The Carteret News has advocated this, and has also as early as in February suggested that necessary arrangements be made at least two or three months in advance.

Those who have voted for the building of the structure are surely somewhat disappointed. If the dedication will take place on Memorial Day, should they not at least know about it? If they did well in advance, they may have planned a program of their own, they may have done something to show up the day. There are rumors that the dedication will be held Memorial Day—and that is all they know about.

The legion men are awaiting. The council has the next move.

On Saturday Afternoon

By HERBERT L. McNARY

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS twenty minutes past twelve; at one o'clock the office would close—and Lester Merritt had not yet decided how he would spend that Saturday afternoon.

Jones & Parker, his firm of bankers and brokers, were to open an uptown office. There were several men eligible for the position of manager of this new office. Merritt was one of the possibilities.

As it dawned on him, however, that Hartman, his immediate superior would have a large say in the matter, Merritt became a bit discouraged. He didn't "pull" extra well with Hartman.

Merritt glanced toward the private office of Edgar Jones, the firm's head. Jones had left, but his secretary, Nayla Redmond, was still clicking away at her machine. Could he ask Nayla to spend the afternoon with him in some agreeable way?

Merritt sauntered toward her. She might have some information on the new appointment.

"Boss gone, Nayla? Er—he hasn't said anything about that new appointment, has he?"

"No, Lester, he is leaving that to Hartman."

Merritt made a wry smile. "That doesn't help me much except give me hope so long as the selection hasn't been made."

"I'm sure it hasn't," said the girl. "He left for the Commercial club without having consulted with Hartman."

"What's on at the Commercial club?"

"He's to give a talk."

"I have a card to that club," reflected Merritt. "I suppose you will be enjoying yourself at the beach or some place this afternoon," said Merritt with a brief smile, "while I drink the words of his majesty. I hope I profit."

"So do I," encouraged Nayla.

Merritt listened that afternoon to more words flowing from the lips of his employer than he had ever heard the same man utter in all the three years Merritt had spent with Jones & Parker. It was not an occasion of oratory on the part of Jones. He spoke at length about advancement and the method of advancement. He gave as an observation that successful salesmen frequently failed to apply their selling qualities to themselves. He stated that salesmen invariably went after a prospect while they waited for a position to come to them; and that they sought diligently to acquaint themselves with the men to whom they expected to sell while keeping clear of the men from whom they expected promotions. Jones was stating conditions as they existed in his office, and Merritt was forced to admit the truth of the statements, especially as they applied to him. He was a successful salesman; he hadn't made the most of his opportunity of making himself known to Jones.

The first thing Monday morning Merritt sought to remedy his omission of three years by breezing directly into the office of Edgar Jones.

"I understand you are to have an uptown branch office," began Merritt, "and of course you will require a manager for it. I believe that I am only stating the truth when I say that I am the man best fitted for the position. My sales records have consistently led in this office; and I am very well acquainted with the clientele you will have up town. I think also that I have executive ability."

"If you had told me as much some time ago," replied the broker, "the position would probably now be yours."

"You mean that someone has already been appointed?" asked Merritt with a sinking of heart.

"Not appointed. I will do that; but I have left it to Mr. Hartman to make a selection. If you are as fitted for the position as you honestly think you are, I imagine your name is the one he intends to present to me. I am not as familiar with the salesmen as I would like to be."

"So I understand," said Merritt with a brief smile as he turned to go.

"You understand?" repeated the broker questioningly.

Merritt turned back. "I mean I attended your talk at the Commercial club Saturday afternoon. I appreciated the truth of your statements. That is why I am here now."

"Do you usually spend your Saturday afternoons in that fashion?"

"Not as a rule; but I figured that you could say something of value to me, and I wasn't disappointed."

"Were any of your associates present?"

"No, I believe not!"

Jones did a bit of reflecting. When he glanced up it was to look searchingly at Merritt. "As I said before I will make the appointment for our new office. If Hartman does not happen to select you as his choice, why—well, I will make him prove his selection best."

"Thank you, Mr. Jones," and Merritt left elated. He knew that it would be next to impossible for Hartman to prove any other man in the office better entitled to the position than Merritt.

"You seem happy," observed Nayla Redmond as Merritt came out of the private office.

"That's because I have good news for you—I mean news for you. Mr. Jones is interested in my case and I think I will get the new appointment."

"That will be good news, Lester," said Nayla tenderly while her blue eyes softened in a way that set Merritt's blood racing.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

DO NOT LOSE HOPE

FREQUENTLY, when the days seem darkest and troubles roll in upon you like the storming waves of the sea, trying their best to overwhelm you, sunny-faced Hope is hovering near, ready to rescue you at your bidding.

Thousands of weary souls on the very threshold of discouragement, about to yield to the crushing weight of their burdens, have at the last moment resolutely resolved to stand up and make a new fight.

This resolution, in perhaps the most trying hour of their lives, marked the turning-point in their careers.

They found a new courage which carried them on and on, carrying them safely through their hardest battles, where they fought inch by inch until the shout of victory stirred their hearts, warmed their blood and cleared their vision.

From doubting Thomases they became sanguine Pauls, filled with the spirit of faith.

They saw new visions and dreamed new dreams.

They had strength of their own instead of that borrowed from others, which through adversity they soon learned how to use to advantage.

Such are the men and women who today are making a better world for all mankind.

There is nothing too big for them to undertake, no load too heavy for them to carry, no troublesome hills over which they cannot blaze an easy path for the less confident to follow.

Leaders in their chosen fields of labor, they take part in the boldest and noblest adventures, never growing weary of well-doing, never faltering by the wayside, never declining to lend a helping hand to the earnest, struggling in their first effort.

They think, plan, organize, achieve and create, while those without hope, hesitate, draw back, afraid to step up in the clearer, invigorating air and wage the battle with alert brains, hard sinewed arms and hearts unafraid.

They turn stubborn difficulties into willing servants, surmount impending obstacles, write their names on the eternal skies, and call lustily to the new generations to gird their armor, accept Hope as their captain until the end of their days.

Freshmen Minstrel Feature Tonight

That the Freshmen Minstrel tonight will be a success is evident due to the fact that much time has been devoted to the development of the big event. Being an enthusiastic crowd, they work hard to get their lessons in, besides the daily practice. It is quite apparent that the coaching of Miss Roach and Miss Monahan will do much in making the minstrel a huge success.

The part of interlocutor has been given to Laurence Harris. Those occupying endmen seats are Ronald Armour, Sidney Rubel, Sidney Currie, Edward Nadel, Harry Rock, Alexander Cowalsky, Thaddeus Neiman and Stephen Kubiaka.

The programme follows: Overture, Colorado Freshman Orchestra

SCOUT JAMBOREE TO BE TOMORROW

Monster District Celebration Will Be Held at Parish House Field, Woodbridge—15 Boy Scout Troops To Take Part.

The monated district scout jamboree scheduled for this Saturday, May 2, promises to be an event of unusual interest. The place selected for this big scout celebration is Parish House Field, Woodbridge, located between Rahway avenue and the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Freeman street.

Some 400 boys, who are members of the fifteen Scout troops, comprising the Perth Amboy District Council, Boy Scouts of America, will take part.

The jamboree will last all day and will close with a big camp fire at night. The main part of the program, however, will take place in the afternoon, starting about 2 o'clock. This will consist of a series of interesting competitions and demonstrations. The events are: flapjack cooking, water boiling, fire race, verbal message relay, knot tying, fire by friction. The scout craft demonstration will portray various features of the scout program, some of these will be both dramatic and spectacular.

Prominent citizens of Carteret, Perth Amboy and Woodbridge township are to be present as judges of the events. They will be assisted in the technical interpretations of these activities by visiting scout executives and their scout officials from other parts of the state.

The special feature during the afternoon will be the musical program by the members of the band from the State Home for Boys at Jamesburg, who are coming to the jamboree under the leadership of Lee J. Thorp, scout executive in charge of the scout activities at this well known institution.

Many of the scouts are arriving this evening to spend the night on the field camping out in true scout fashion. For these "over nighters," a special camp fire program has been arranged. The closing part of the district scout jamboree will be a monster camp fire on Saturday evening, around which will take place a typical camp Coway Council program. This feature should prove of special interest to parents of boys who are planning to go to camp this summer.

FATHER WAS SON'S RIVAL FOR GIRL'S HAND, SHE ADMITS

Former Sweetheart Tells Motive for Murder by Parent Who Shot Self.

Pittsburgh.—A love triangle where in the father won the affections of his son's sweetheart and, after casting her aside, shot and killed his boy because he refused to obey his parent's order to marry her, was the explanation given to the police by the woman in the case in the shooting of Albert J. Tilles, Jr., eighteen, by his father, Albert J. Tilles, forty-five, a leading churchman of No. 81 Maple avenue, Ingram. The elder Tilles, after killing his son, fired a bullet into his own head, but the wound is not serious. The tragedy occurred in the Tilles home. Before the shooting Tilles and his son had been quarreling in the boy's room. During the altercation the boy was heard to say: "I can get you 20 years for what I know about you." This remark was the clue on which police have been working, and a pretty North side girl, "the woman in the case," told the police the motive for the shooting and attempted suicide.

Girl Tells Story.

According to the story of the young woman, the elder Tilles went to a summer camp on the Allegheny river last summer with his son. The boy's sweetheart was there. The father became infatuated with the young woman. The son, on learning of the attachment, broke off his friendship with her.

A marked coolness between father and son followed. This feeling became bitter a short time later when the elder Tilles, to shield himself, insisted that his son marry the girl. The boy refused and several violent quarrels followed.

The boy's threat, just before the shooting, that he could get his father 20 years for what he knew about him, was based, the police say, on the knowledge of his father's relationship with the young woman.

Tilles, who is now in the Presbyterian hospital, told the police he shot his son and then attempted to end his own life, in pursuance of a suicide pact. He will be taken from the hospital to be confronted by the young woman whose inconsistency led to the tragedy.

Russian Women, Children Are Using More Liquor

Moscow.—Alcohol consumption among women and children in Russia is increasing at a disturbing rate. Statistics just issued by the international revenue authorities of the Yenisei district disclose that while men drink relatively less than formerly, women and children imbibe considerably more. Most of the liquor consumed is home-brewed vodka.

Out of 3,000 villages in one district, 2,640 were found to be engaged in making illicit vodka. In this district 4,356 stills were confiscated, while a much larger number were hidden from the authorities.

Realizing that complete prohibition was a failure, the government now is permitting the sale of vodka containing 30 per cent alcohol.

Inventor Had Taken No Chance of Losing

Surely, the Scotch are the most tolerant people in the world, as they bear the brunt of most of its so-called humor. But there is considerable basis for the well-circulated theory that the Scot is canny. Here is an authentic yarn, vouched for by Harry Furness in his "Some Victorian Men" that illustrates the point.

When Bessemer, the genius who gave to steel his name, came to make his discovery public, he put a lump of the famous steel in his pocket and made his way to Nasmyth, of steel-hammer fame.

Placing the metal on Nasmyth's desk, he told him that he had made an extraordinary discovery which would revolutionize the whole metal world. Then came a little incident which shows what wonderful heads these Scotch financiers possess. What do you think Nasmyth said to this excited inventor?

"Eh, mon, it's vary risky to show your wonderful invention. The world is very dishonest."

To which the inspiring inventor replied: "Right, Mr. Nasmyth, I just calculated whom I was coming to see, so with my last half-crown I registered the invention on my way."

Lenny Really Didn't Know Weight of Hog

If old Lenny Foskett was anything more than deliberate, he was exasperating. He moved, spoke and lived at his own sweet will, and no one had ever been known to budge him. He came into the village store one morning, threw himself down on the bench in front of the counter and announced that he had just killed his prize hog.

"Guess how much he weighed, boys," he drawled.

"Two hundred and seventy-five," ventured one of the loungers.

Lenny shook his head. Others offered suggestions; the guesses grew so brisk that it began to sound like an auction. All sorts of weights were given, but to all of them Lenny merely shook his head. The others began to lose patience. From mere curiosity they began to long passionately to learn the weight of the hog and pass on to another subject.

"Well, for heaven's sake, how much did your old hog weigh?" somebody demanded. "We've guessed every figure possible! How much did he weigh?"

Lenny yawned. "Hi—hum, I dunno," he drawled. "I ain't weighed him yet."—Youth's Companion.

Man-Made Earthquake

It is believed that the numerous small earthquakes recently reported from the Midlands of England are due to the handiwork of man. In excavating for coal and iron the miner cuts away millions of tons of rock and coal and piles it on the surface, thus setting up all sorts of stresses. In July, 1913, dwellers near the coast of Cornwallshire were startled out of their sleep by loud subterranean rumblings, while the earth quivered over an area of many square miles. It was found that a considerable area of land lying between the Rivals granite quarries and the shore had started to slide seaward. The fact was that the waste of the quarries which for years has been dumped on this lower ground, had proved too much for it, and had set the whole ledge sliding, producing a very good imitation of a real earthquake.

Badly Dressed Statesmen

Cecil Rhodes would not have accepted the dictum of the Tailor and Cutter that it is obligatory on statesmen to dress well. Even on ceremonial occasions Rhodes would wear old and dilapidated flannels and a seedy slouch hat.

Sir Gordon Sprigg, when premier of Cape Colony, made an effort to enforce the wearing of "respectable" dark clothes in the Cape parliament. Sir Gordon was the height of respectability himself, and always wore a black frock-coat in parliament.

Rhodes refused to follow the premier's lead and made a speech against the proposed sumptuary regulation. "If I cannot help to legislate in comfortable clothes," said he, "I refuse to help at all, and I think most honorable members will agree with me." They did.

Brain Stimulant

Here's a scientist announcing that a by-product of whale oil is a wonderful brain stimulant. If it acted on the whales that way there wouldn't be any whale oil available.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Scientists May Claim Improvement on Nature

If experiments at present in progress prove satisfactory, in time to come steam boilers will not be used to work big power plants—mercury or sulphur vapors will be employed instead.

The idea is that such vapors involve much higher temperatures than even superheated steam, and the higher the temperature, of course, the greater the power produced.

The hot vapors, after driving a turbine, will be condensed, yielding their heat to water, thus generating steam for use in its turn.

This century has been a wonderful one for the chemical industry.

Even new materials have been produced, writes Mr. Harrison E. Howe in "These Eventful Years." The demand for silk at a low price has brought about the production of artificial silk. The fiber looks like silk, and answers the purpose of silk; yet it is made from wood pulp, or even cotton.

In the plant world science is improving on nature. On sugar cane plantations it has been found that a certain kind of paper, when spread over the rows, discourages weeds and thus minimizes hoeing.

The cane shoots can push through this specially prepared paper, which is tough enough to prevent quite effectively the growth of soft-topped weeds.

Alex, the Corrector

Cruden, the compiler of the Concordance of the Bible, became insane, and imagined himself divinely appointed to correct abuses. Calling himself Alex, the Corrector, he carried a sponge to erase objectionable writings.

Rockefeller as a Loafer

When I asked Mr. Rockefeller to what he chiefly attributed his success, he instantly replied. "To others," writes C. B. Forbes in Hearsy's International-Cosmopolitan. "Ever since my early manhood I have been a loafer," said Mr. Rockefeller. "While the newspapers were picturing me as a slave to business, working day and night, the truth is that I wasn't working hard at all—at least, not at business. I was working hard very often, but not at 26 Broadway or at any other place of business, but at my home, near Cleveland, where my special hobby was the transplanting of trees, and where I did a lot of gardening. I left others to do the hard work. After middle age I rarely ever visited the office, and it is many years since I did any work whatsoever there."

Knew Whereof He Spoke

Famous as "Woodbine Willie," Rev. G. A. Studdert-Kennedy tells the story of a "rookie" who had joined a crack cavalry corps, and after several attempts to stay on his horse had lost some of his exuberance.

He was standing on the sunny side of the canteen looking like the spirit of melancholy when the regimental chaplain approached.

"What's the matter, my boy?" asked the good man. "Homesick?"

"Oh, a little," was the answer. "You see, I'm just a raw recruit."

"Cheer up, you'll be all right. But you shouldn't say 'raw recruit.' The raw is superfluous."

Rubbing his chin reflectively the rookie replied with sad emphasis: "Not when you join the cavalry it ain't str."

Blue and White Take Another

The Blue and White tilters took another exciting game Monday afternoon, at Brady's oval. In a game of excellent work the Carteret representatives defeated the Jamesburg High School 5-1.

Day, the invader's tosser, virtually tried hard to win his own game. He had the best batting average for the Jamesburgers, also scoring their only tally on Smith's bingle past first.

Joe Sexton clinched the game by getting a homer in the eighth frame. Rosenblum put a double over Clayton's head when the latter came in too far.

CROSS WORDS TAKE ANOTHER CONFLICT

Wallop Out 17-5 Victory Over Mohicans At Port Reading Last Sunday Afternoon—Will Play Orioles Here Sunday.

The Cross Words made short work of the Port Reading Mohicans in a Middlesex County baseball league contest at Port Reading last Sunday afternoon.

To attain this top peak, the Cross Words exhibited an exhibition very seldom seen in the junior circles. Their playing was remarkable and at no stage of Sunday's contest did the Port outfit have a glance of favorable opportunities in becoming a winner.

Trusko, Jacobowitz, and Skurat played well for Carteret in the field, the latter filling in as substitute at the hot corner due to the absence of Helley, who regularly holds down the position.

Sport Notes

In winter the Gulf states are the golf states. University of Pennsylvania used 600 footballs during the gridiron season.

Tennis and golf are proving more popular than cricket with Englishmen. Babe Ruth draws a larger salary than the President of the French republic.

Baseball higher-ups can never make the fans believe that money is the ruler of all evil. Clyde Milan, former outfielder for Washington, will manage Memphis in the Southern association again this season.

An immense stadium and an automobile track, on which will be held international motor races, are to be built in Atlantic City, N. J.

Stanley Covelaskie, traded from the Cleveland club to Washington, won a sweepstake live-bird match at Locust Gap, Pa., by potting 22 out of 24 birds.

At the annual meeting of the Baltimore International ball club all the officers were re-elected and a 10 per cent dividend declared on the capital stock.

The Phillies have signed two St. Louis semi-pro pitchers. They are Fred Roseberg, twenty-two years old, a right-hander, and Walter Wolf, twenty years old, a lefty.

Jack Blott, the former University of Michigan catcher who recently resigned from the Cincinnati Nationals to become a college coach, has been placed on the "voluntarily retired list."

A report comes from New York that Outfielder Whitey Witt may be given a chance to fill Everett Scott's place at short should the veteran infielder fall down under the load of age. Witt was a shortstop in his early days.

Houston has signed Pitcher Edgar Hennig of the University of Illinois. His home is in San Marcos, Texas. Joe Gore, an outfielder from Oklahoma, and Raymond Benge, a pitcher, are other college lads who will tryout with the Bluffs.

Sparrow Robinson, Paris sports critic, who is in New York, says he has been commissioned to present to John McGraw and Charley Comiskey and all players who made the European tour, medals from the French government.

The eighth frame brought home as many runs as the bacon. Schwiegert had his head ducked in the dust and then sent to the showers. He was relieved by Hoarse, but the damage was already done—Sullivan got his triple; his first healthy swat of the year to his favorite left field pasture.

THINKS HIS BRIDE IS POOR BARGAIN SO HE DROPS OUT

Chicago.—"My husband's leaving me. He says he thinks I'm a poor bargain. He doesn't like my cooking. He doesn't like my kisses. He doesn't like my conversation. In fact, he says he doesn't like anything about me."

and conversation were all right. I don't see why a husband should go off and leave me."

Couldn't Help Her. "You look like a nice little lady," Judge Morgan said. "But I can't issue a warrant for your husband. He's only been away from home a couple of days, and he has paid all your bills."

"But, Judge, you must arrest him. I've got two policemen holding him down at one of the banks where he went to draw out his money," the bride pleaded. "I've just married him, and I like him, and I don't want him to go away. Maybe he'd like me better in another week if I could make him come back."

"The only thing I can issue a warrant for is nonsupport," the judge said, "and as yet your husband isn't guilty of that. But I'll tell you what to do. Go down to the bank and try and persuade your husband to come up and talk it over with me. I'll see if I can get him to go back to you."

The bride said she'd try, and left for the bank, where two policemen were holding her husband pending issuance of the warrant—that could not, under the law, be issued.

Magyar Pianist Claims Descent From Columbus

Neutra, Hungary.—Rudolf Columbus, a piano player employed at a local restaurant bar, claims to be a direct descendant of Christopher Columbus.

Rudolf's father in 1910 read in a Vienna paper that the heirs of the great explorer were called upon by the Spanish government to make known any claims upon certain estates left by Christopher.

Convinced from the traditions of his family that he was a direct lineal descendant, he began to trace the family tree. This required much money, however, and searching of official records in Portugal, Spain and Austria-Hungary, and he died without accomplishing his purpose.

Rudolf has now announced that he will continue where his father left off, and will lay claim to the fortunes of the house of Columbus-Veragua in Spain.

Margie and the Marquis

By J. O. STECHHAN

(© 1925 Western Newspaper Union)

ALL day long she presided over the hot-cake plate, in the front window of "The Greasy Spoon," pouring batter.

Her name was Margie. At least, that's what everyone called her and she was the best advertisement of the little restaurant, just off Main street, for her cheery smile seemed to say: "Come on in, the cakes are fine!" And they were.

On day, as she looked up, Margie saw an odd chap. What made him so funny was the way he contorted his face to insert a monocle in his right eye. Having finally achieved it, he watched her spellbound, as she cleaned the hot plate of a dozen cakes at one swoop. It was a neat trick.

"My word!" he applauded and then smiled up engagingly into Margie's face. A feeling swept over Margie in that instant the like of which she had never been conscious of before. Something went momentarily wrong with her steering-gear of the batter, for from the spout dripped a doughy "I love U," which turned speedily to a rich, affectionate brown.

Another instant and the man was inside the smoky, little eating house—monocle and all. He seated himself at the table nearest to Margie. There he was with a stack of "hots" already steaming up into his face. Shortly, he had another helping and still another. The waiter placed a check beside his plate. That evidently disturbed the monocle, for it dropped from the man's eye, as he suddenly realized that he hadn't a cent in his pocket with which to pay.

"Why don't you think up something new?" barked the official ejector, who hovered in the background. Just as he was on the point of making shift of the unfortunate man, Margie deserted her post.

"You let him alone," she roared, brandishing her cake turner vigorously. "I'll pay."

"Oh, your ladyship overwhelms me." The man arose, reinserted his single eyeglass and bowed profoundly to Margie. She had never seen anything quite so gallant in all her life—not even on the screen.

"Pardon me," the man continued and he handed her a card. It read: REGINALD ISHAM POTEET Marquis of Morney

Character Leads There was a great cloud of smoke, as from a fire, over in the window, for a dozen hot cakes were burning to a cinder. Margie was oblivious of that fact, her eyes being glued to the card. She couldn't believe that she was really awake. She had often dreamed such things, but now— "Get your things and come with me," the Marquis spoke gently. "You mean—me?" And she obeyed, as in a daze.

Although there had been rough scenes in "The Greasy Spoon," there was never such a commotion as that which followed. Sam Finkie, who owned the place, raged and stormed. He already saw complete ruin staring him in the face.

As they waited on the corner for the Hollywood bus, Margie noticed for the first time that Reginald Isiam Poteet had evidently turned his collar and cuffs once or twice since their last visit to the laundry. But that didn't matter.

"You're really in pictures?" she inquired timidly. "Ya-as," he drawled. "Lovely!" Margie thrilled. "I'm sure you must be a star."

"To prove to you that I'm not ungrateful for your assistance—it was so careless of me to come away without my money—I'm going to get you in, my girl."

"Into a studio?" "Into the pictures," the Marquis of Morney spoke in his grandest manner. "We're putting on 'The Hasher's Romance,' and you're just the type the director needs to go ahead."

Although they were in a public conveyance, Reginald Isiam Poteet had literally to fight off the appreciative demonstration of his companion. She too was grateful; for the whole world was fair and rosy. And now they were before the mysterious portal that opens into Fairyland—otherwise known as the studio gate. A crowd was reading the type-written notice that had just been tacked up. It said something about the place being "Closed by Order of the Court."

That was enough for Margie. She didn't have to read further, for her feminine intuition got the full import of it quick. "Just my luck," she sighed. Her companion excused himself—"to investigate," he said. After waiting hopefully for his return all morning, the girl started back to "The Greasy Spoon." It had been a pleasant outing anyway, though a disappointing one.

"Who knows but what the Marquis may get hungry again some day and show up outside my window?" Margie consoled herself.

Deer on Railroad Track Four does and two bucks that were on the railroad tracks when a train came around a curve at Sheffield, Pa., proceeded leisurely ahead of the locomotive for half a mile before turning into the woods. The engineer, rather than injure the animals, proceeded at a snail's pace until they were out of the way.

Find That Beauty Pays Where villages are being made more beautiful, the impetus has come in nearly every case from local initiative. Villages that have well-planned streets, attractive recreation spots, and pleasing approaches are nearly always indebted for these advantages to the energy and public spirit of some small group of citizens. Under such inspiration dump heaps have been turned into garden spots, unsightly shacks and dilapidated stores have been torn down and replaced by smart, substantial business buildings, and extensive programs of landscape gardening and tree planting have been undertaken.

Villages that have embarked on this path are finding that beauty pays. It improves local business and attracts tourist business. It enhances real estate values, and has a powerful influence in raising individual standards of efficiency and enterprise.

Pointer for Dissatisfied If you don't like Ozark and Dale county, move. You are not hobbled here. Space is valuable here now. We want only men who are for the old town and county. And, besides, you do not want to remain where you are not wanted. If you are a fault-finder, a trouble-maker, a knocker, against good schools and churches, can't see any good in your neighbors and the good men and women who make this good city and country, please move. And, the quicker you move, the quicker all the people will rise up and call you blessed.—Ozark (Ala.) Southern Star.

Worth All It Costs The American town, as a rule, is ugly, thrown together in piecemeal, without regard to beauty in the mix or harmony in the groupings. It is interesting to note that the Department of Agriculture is endeavoring to stimulate a keener interest in the beautification of American villages. It is all worth while. It is quite feasible. The cost is small compared with the returns. Even inexpensive houses may be made pretty in design.

Acquiring Wolfishness Live with wolves, and you will learn to howl.—Spanish Proverb.

Debt Mankind Owes to Benefactors of Race

Of all the faults of human character, surely none is so base as heartless indifference to benefactors. And have we today any benefactors like Caesar, Alfred, Cromwell and their compeers? Our closest friends, our earliest teachers, our parents themselves are not more truly our benefactors than they. To them we owe what we prize most—country, freedom, peace, knowledge, art, thought, the cultivated sense of right and wrong. What a long tale of patience, sacrifice and martyrdom is the history of human progress! Should it not affect us as if we were reading in the diary of a parent the record of his struggles for his children? For us they toiled, endured, bled and died; that we by their labor might have rest; that their thought might know, by their death might live happily, writes Frederic Harrison in "The Meaning of History."

We know the devotion which the believers in every creed have felt for the authors of their faith. Intolerant and narrow as this has often been, it yet bears witness to a sense of one of the deepest and best of our emotions. The feeling may become too often partial and bigoted; yet let us beware of neglecting it. Let us dread above bigotry itself, a temper of irreverence and ingratitude. For whom did these men work, if not for us? Not for themselves, when they gave up peace, honor, life, reputation itself—as when the great French republican exclaimed, "May my name be accused, so that France be free!" Not for themselves they worked, but for their cause, for their fellows, for us, their children. Not that they might have fame, but that they might leave the world better than they found it; that the good time, long hoped for, might come at last.

His Dog His Instructor

Here's a worth-while dog story, as told in the Winamac (Ga.) Republican: "John Moorman was talking the other day about modern sports and old-time sports—basketball and dog fights. Said John: 'When I was a kid I had a dog that was scrappy, and was my instructor in philosophy and values of life as well. My dog didn't always lick his opponent in battle, but when he himself received a drubbing he didn't whine around the house and at his master's heels, but crawled way back, under the kitchen and stayed there, without food or further comfort until his wounds were healed. Then he emerged, took a full meal, and was ready again with pep and vigor to meet the world's problems. When he was licked 'he went way back and sat down.' and in the solitude was able to get his bearings and meet his further tasks with decision.'

WHY Telephone Directory Advertising Pulls!
The Telephone Directory reaches every telephone user and nearly everybody tele-phones.
It stays in active service in homes and business offices for months.
It is consulted many times a day by business men and by housewives who control 80% of the family expenditure.
It keeps your name, business, address and telephone number before buyers whose patronage you desire.
It is especially valuable in reaching newcomers in the community.
Its high advertising effectiveness is as marked as is the low cost of its advertising space.

“Let’s Take Twice the Space We Used Last Year”

Girl's Strange Mentality

Scientists are trying to find out what actuates a girl named Thea Alba. Until lately she had shown nothing specially strange about her actions, except the habit of writing with her left hand as well as her right. One day, however, she told her folks that she was continually thinking of two or three things at the same time, and very soon she began to do things that seemed to prove it. She wrote at first, two different words at the same time, one with each hand. Being a good drawer and a pianist, she trained herself so that she can paint and draw with both hands at once. She can play the piano with one hand, and at the same time write or draw with the other. At an examination before doctors she drew a portrait with each hand in twenty seconds. She can also write with three pieces of chalk at the same time. Just how or why—nobody yet knows.—Family Herald.

Trivial Diary Entries

Best Record of Doings

A hundred times, perhaps, the pen has been taken up with reluctance to tell the story of an unexciting day. There has seemed to be nothing worth saying, no happening worth the spoiling of paper with ink, says a writer in the London Times. Yet, for habit's sake and in a determination not to be beaten, an entry has been made, and often, at the year's end, these entries, which once seemed so dull, are found to have more truth and more entertainment in them than many a record of a relatively eventful day.

When "there is nothing worth saying" a diarist is apt to fill in the gap with a little of himself, to give play to his imagination, to escape from that formality which settles over even the simplest of domestic histories, and to permit himself, as he thinks, to be trivial. Then, indeed, he is writing, as the perfect diarist must nearly always write, for no other eye but his own. He would blush to imagine posterity looking at that singularly trivial page. Yet that is the page which amuses him when months later he rereads it, and that certainly is the page in which, if it survives, his great-grandchildren will have their chief delight. "An empty day," he thinks as he writes. "What on earth can I say of it?" And nine times out of ten it is on such occasions that the trivial goddess who presides over the fortunes of diarists tricks him into drawing without knowing it a portrait of himself.

Weapons of Warfare

of American Indians

Though some Indians were more proficient at it than others, and the methods of some tribes were more advanced than those of others, there was very little secret about the making of warlike implements, and all the Indians knew how. Flints and similar stones were used not so much because of their hardness as for the reason they could be flaked off and fashioned into desired shapes as arrow, lance, spear or harpoon heads, knives, saws or scrapers. The flint was to be found in open fields, bowlder beds and elsewhere, and the tribes camped occasionally near the larger supplies to break off with rocks or hammers the quantities and sizes of flint chips needed. These were carried home, to be flaked off and worked into shape with the aid of sharp-pointed implements of bone. The waste and refuse of the process, as well as the tools employed in it, have often been found on the sites of early Indian dwellings. The products of this primitive industry range in size from tiny arrow tips to ceremonial spear heads more than a foot long.—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

Moslem's Holy Period

The Ramadan is the ninth month of the Moslem year, observed as a fast in commemoration of the first revelation received by Mohammed. It commences with the new moon of the ninth month of the year and ends on the day preceding the great festival of Baidram. From dawn to sunset of each day during this period the strictest abstinence is enjoined. All eating, drinking, bathing, smoking and other bodily pleasures—even swallowing one's saliva—being forbidden. At night, however, the satisfaction of the most necessary desires is permitted. As the Mohammedan year is lunar, consisting of 354 days, 21 hours, it follows that in the course of 33 years the Ramadan passes through all the seasons. It is said that the fast of the Ramadan is much less strictly observed now than in former times.—Kansas City Star.

Slang and Language

Slang is perpetually changing, language much more slowly. The common spoken language of any one period, is, as it were, the melting pot from which the pure gold of its literary language is distilled. The slang, having contributed its quota, dies, but the literary language lives on. It has emerged from the crucible pure coin for ever. Any great language, such as Greek or Latin, is eternal, for in the hands of a master it becomes a thing of power, a vehicle for the living truth. And once that truth has poured through it, it is immortal, a radiant garment of thought, no longer the tongue merely of merchants and artisans, but the speech of gods and heroes.—Nineteenth Century.

Fools Himself

Why is it that a woman can make a fool of a wise man and a wise man of a fool? She can't. It is true that a wise man often makes a fool of himself about a woman, but it is his own vanity and egotism that betray him into folly. For instance, it is a common thing for an old man with a huge fortune to marry a girl young enough to be his granddaughter. In such cases the man falls himself into the belief that he is so handsome and attractive that a girl prefers him to a boy of her own age. But it is self-conceit—not the girl—that does the trick.—Family Herald.

Origin of "Pan Out"

This expression had its origin among gold miners. The pan used by miners is a circular pan with sloping sides. In this gold is separated from earth or gravel by twirling or shaking it with water. If gold is found the miners say the gravel or sand "pans out" well. But if no gold or very little gold is found the earth does not "pan out." Hence the expression came to be applied to anything from which a result is expected.—Exchange.

Woman's Claim to Fame

Jenny Geddes started a riot in St. Giles church, Edinburgh, Scotland, July 23, 1637, when she protested against the use of English in the liturgy, by hurling a folding stool at the officiating bishop.

Enemies of Thrift

Debt is the secret foe of thrift, as vice and idleness are its open enemies.—Aughhey.

Huge Station Meters That Measure Gas Resemble Breeches of Big Gun Battery

Pictured above is not a group of oil tanks lying on their sides; neither is it the breech or loading end of a battery of huge guns such as were used in the late World War.

On the contrary, it's a peaceful enough trio of station meters at one of the big gas plants of Public Service Electric and Gas Company. These meters measure the manufactured gas on its way to the storage holders.

Each of the station meters in the above picture has a cylindrical cast iron case, enclosing a revolving measuring drum of sheet metal divided into four compartments. The case is filled with water to a height sufficiently above the center of the meter to seal the partitions in the drum. The water level determines the accuracy of the meter and is kept constant by means of a continual flow of water. The glass cylinder at the right of the meter makes it possible at all times to observe the level of the water and the action of the overflow.

Gas, entering a partition of the drum at one end, causes the drum to revolve and the gas passes out another end. The amount of gas passed by each revolution of the drum is recorded on the dials on the front of the meter.

Sixteen feet in diameter and sixteen feet long, each of these meters with water content weighs 231,000 pounds—over 15,000 times as heavy as the average house meter—and has a capacity of 173,000 cubic feet per hour—approximately a thousand times the capacity of the average house meter.

Enough gas is passed through one of these station meters in one day to supply about eighty-five families an entire year.

What are the Protestant Churches Coming to!

ARE YOU A PROTESTANT CHURCH MEMBER? Are you aware of the fact that American Protestantism is fast slipping from the rocky heights of true Bible faith? Do you know that scores of theological seminaries, where your future ministers are being trained, have ruled out an infallible Bible; that thousands of ministers are preaching a man-made gospel; and that literally hundreds of thousands of church members are being swept along by this ever-rising tide of "modernism"?

Do you know that this country today is thickly dotted with churches that are mere shells of their former selves? Do you know that a general collapse of American Protestantism was actually threatening some time ago; that a mighty counter-movement has started; and that we are IN THE GREAT CRISIS right now?

We want to reach EVERYBODY that calls himself a church member—also those who do not read a church paper, and they are legion. Hence this general announcement in your secular paper. Men and women, are you in favor of retaining the Bible that your fathers believed in and that your mothers trusted in, that was their hope and stay in times of grief and sorrow, that gave them cheering visions of a heavenly rest—the rest that your liberals do not believe in because it belongs to the "supernatural" and, therefore, "unknowable". Will you join us in saying "Whatever you do, or don't do, but HANDS OFF THE BIBLE?" Will you help save the Bible for America? Will you join in the fight for its integrity?

Will you, too, deny modern scholarship the right to rob us of the only sure foundation upon which our feet can stand, in these shifting sands of time?

Then you are interested in the news that we are now able to convey to you—the greatest piece of news heralded for a long time. It is this, THAT A NEW REFORMATION IS COMING! There are rumblings everywhere of the approaching battle—the battle between faith and unbelief, between true religion and false science, between FUNDAMENTALISM and LIBERALISM. And there is yet more news. It is this—that A GREAT GENERAL MAGAZINE is now being published, for all the Protestant denominations, edited by the great leaders of conservative Protestantism, which is here to keep its readers promptly informed of every new development in the "new Reformation" movement, and which is blazing the way to a "new Protestantism" in America! The magazine is bigger than any denomination; it has nothing to do with this sect or that. It is interdenominational. It is here to fight, on a huge, nation-wide scale, for the sanctity of the Bible! It is here to place the Bible where our fathers placed it—far above all the thoughts, and philosophies, and imaginations, of mere men! And it is here to adore a DIVINE CHRIST in that DIVINELY INSPIRED BIBLE! That is the only Christ men and women would want for their Saviour in the hour of death; that is the only Bible they would care to rely on when the chilly waves begin to strike their feet, weary of travel.

MATTHEWS, Minister of largest Presbyterian church in the world, Seattle, Wash.; GEORGE M'CREADY PRICE, expert Geologist, of England; L. R. SCARBOROUGH, President Southwestern Baptist Seminary; JOHN ROACH STRATON, Minister Calvary Baptist Church, New York; GEORGE WHEATON TAFT, President Northern Baptist Seminary, Chicago; MARTIN LUTHER THOMAS, Minister First Presbyterian Church, San Pedro, Cal.—and numerous contributors of note.

This is not a church paper! It is unlike anything you have ever seen. It is bold, but not radical. It is fearless, but not rude. It is powerful in its true, deep, clear faith, but not bigoted. It is conservative, and yet sanely progressive. One of the paper's greatest features is the Practical Comment on the Sunday School lessons, by the editor-in-chief, Dr. Monsma. It's unlike anything else ever published in the Sunday School line—not an exposition (you will still need your lesson helps) and yet something that will enable you to grasp the lessons and to apply them practically like never before. "Practical Comment" is written in a snappy style, reads like a story, and goes right to the heart of every lesson.

Community Building

Finer School Buildings Is Universal Demand

The little old red schoolhouse is dropping off into obscurity. Like the hickory stick of the Three R's days, it is becoming but a ghost of the dim past.

"Modern progress," says the Indiana Limestone Quarrymen's association, "is sweeping before it the flimsy shells that once housed armies of tiny Americans. These claptrap structures, cold, unsanitary and at best poor fire risks, are rapidly being replaced by sturdy modern buildings."

"A survey just completed shows that during the year 1924 more than $225,000,000 was expended in replacing antiquated school buildings."

"Plans have been adopted and contracts already awarded indicate that the present year will show a still greater volume of school building construction. Beauty in architecture is being combined with utilization."

"Community interest and civic pride are in a measure responsible for the stride toward better school buildings. More and more schools are becoming community centers as well as temples of wisdom. Space for assemblies and recreation purposes are now almost a first consideration."

"Waste of space was a characteristic of many old school buildings. By judicious architecture, it has been estimated, $50,000,000 could be saved, the chief economies being in the reduction of waste space on stairs and corridors and the increase in usable areas."

"The future will see finer school buildings with better facilities and at a lower cost to the taxpayer."

Old Schoolhouse Now a Community Center

One little red schoolhouse in Vermont has been transformed into a lively center of community co-operation, according to the statement of the superintendent of schools in Poultney, made to the Interior department, bureau of education. This schoolhouse was lacking in attractiveness and in the conveniences and equipment needed by a modern rural school until 1922, when a parent-teacher association was organized. Things began to happen as soon as the men and women of the community became interested in the school. Money was raised for necessary equipment. Fourteen men with four teams in the school district had a "bee" one Saturday afternoon which resulted in regaining the school grounds. The people opened their homes and raised money in various ways for further improvements. The teacher co-operated with the women in their efforts to raise money.

The school is now rated a "standard school," but the Red Schoolhouse Parent-Teacher association will continue to work until a "superior" name plate has been placed on the building.

"Go-Getter" Wins

There is but one sure way to get what one wants, and that is to go after it and to go with such determination that obstacles to attainment will be removed. This is as true of towns and communities as of men. If a town wishes another industry it will get it much more quickly by going after it with some definite and attractive offer than by waiting for the industry to come seeking location. If a town needs a new hotel, as Albertville did, the quickest way to get one is to do as Albertville did. It is the "go-getter" that gets results and the town that needs a hotel, an industry, a bank or a larger population must be a "go-getter" if it hopes to secure the thing desired. Albertville has pointed the way to many small Alabama cities.

—Anniston (Ala.) Star.

Our Little Town

There are fancier towns than our little town.

There are towns that are bigger than this.

But folks that live here in our little town.

Don't know of the pleasures they miss.

And so we're contented to live on right here.

Not worry o'er things of the West, Or the East or the North or the South, whatsoever.

For we know our own town is the best.

—Kansas City Star.

People Make Community

Tuscaloosa is a better city in many ways than the average. It is not fine buildings, broad streets nor educational opportunities—but the people make a community, and it's the spirit that counts. Co-operative efforts will bring any city into prominence and establish it permanently in its rightful place in the sun.—Tuscaloosa News.

March of Improvement

Formerly the first impression a visitor got on arriving and the last one he took away with him on leaving was one of squalor, because the town dump lay across the main approach to the village. Today the land where the dump stood is the property of the civic club. Old shacks have been removed from it and refuse cleared away. It has been leveled and planted to grass, flowers and trees. It is spanned by gravel walks and surrounded by ornamental lighting standards.

Cupid in Court

"Love! Love! Why do you keep on talking about love? I don't like to hear a lawyer talking about love; it suggests the devil trying on a halo."—From "This Frail Woman," by Andrew Souter.

Dies of Starvation as Father Seeks Work

New York.—Firmo Cellegino, a blacksmith out of work since Christmas, visited the Fifth street police station recently on an unusual errand. He asked the desk sergeant if the city would not provide free burial for George, one of the Cellegino twins, three days old. George died at Bellevue, where physicians said death was due to the mother having been undernourished.

Cellegino was perplexed. It was the other twin, Tello, who had been ill. The twins were born prematurely. When Tello was ailing they took both babies to the hospital. The father went to inquire for Tello and was informed that he was still ailing and that George had died.

What makes the case still more difficult for Cellegino is that there is another baby, Giuseppe, nine months old, at home and nothing in the cupboard. Mrs. Georgiana Cellegino, the mother, is in bed, suffering from lack of food and grief over the death of little George.

Meanwhile there is the burial to attend to. Tello may die any moment. Giuseppe hasn't any food. Cellegino is a willing worker, and if there is a job available says he would appreciate the opportunity to earn enough for those surviving and, to bury George.

Mad Tiger Kills Trainer; Killed in Audience Leap

Manila.—Crashing through the steel bars that separated it from the girl performer who was putting the animal through its tricks, a circus tiger at a Manila carnival show instantly killed the young woman.

A quick-minded Filipino detective in the audience shot and killed the blood-maddened jungle beast, just as it was leaping from the stage on which it had ended the girl's life into the midst of the crowded seats encircling the ring-side.

So quickly did the killing occur that circus employees had no opportunity to come to the girl's rescue.

The shot felled the tiger as it hurtled through the air toward the audience and quelled the panic which had started.

Grabs Rope in Midair After Fall Out of Window

Lawton, Okla.—B. F. Moore, a carpenter working on the new hospital building at Fort Sill, Okla., qualified as a movie stunt performer. While he was working on the second story of the building he lost his balance and fell backward out of a window. As he fell he grasped a rope which ran through a pulley at the top of the building. The other end of the rope struck him in the face as he descended. He was also successful in grabbing the loose rope, retarding his rapid descent, stopping just as his feet reached the ground. Aside from minor injuries to his face he was unharmed.

Charge That Americans Neglect Their Gardens

Americans, charged by Europeans with a disregard of things artistic, are guilty on one count at least, according to Ralph R. Root, president of the Society of Landscape Architects and chairman of the landscape and garden committee of the Chicago fifth annual "Own Your Home" exposition, who states that Americans are neglecting their gardens.

"Every year there are fewer and fewer gardens planted, particularly the flower garden, that is fast dying in this country. Years ago many Americans beautified their towns as well as their homes with lovely gardens, though we never showed the interest that Europeans, particularly the English people, take in their little plots of ground.

"In England the poorest shack of a house has its carefully kept rose garden, and the English countryside in the spring is a real fairyland of beauty.

"We have forgotten the charm of flower gardens and in an effort to re-interest the public in the importance of this phase of home ownership, old-fashioned English rose gardens will be planted at the national "Own Your Home" exposition to be held this year in Chicago, New York city, Philadelphia and Buffalo."

Work for Improvement of the Rural School

A campaign to bring the problem of the small rural school prominently before the legislatures of 42 states is expected to effect definite improvement in rural school standards, according to an announcement by the United States bureau of education.

Many new laws pertaining to schools are pending. Among these, educational leaders are laying particular stress upon the need for laws exacting higher qualifications for teachers' certificates and standardization of small one, two and three-teacher schools.

Reports to the bureau of education indicate that the supply of teachers is now more nearly adequate to fill the demand than for many years, and that the time is opportune for more stringent regulation of teacher certification.

"The emergency is now over and disregard of professional standards is no longer necessary," it is declared by the bureau. High school enrollment has increased during the last ten years in an unprecedented manner. There are plenty of high school graduates anxious to prepare themselves to be teachers.

Pain's Positive Value

Pain in itself is not without its alleviations. It is seldom both violent and long-continued; and its pauses and intermissions become positive pleasures. It has the power of shedding a satisfaction over intervals of ease, which few enjoyments exceed.—Paley.

The Turning Point

A manufacturer had for some time boarded a poor student free of charge, and the latter had become friendly with little Karl, the ten-year-old son of the family. One day he informed Karl of his parents' wish that he should enter him in foreign languages. "Ach, Gott!" replied the youngster reproachfully; "and I thought we were going to be friends!"

ACCIDENT PREVENTION

On Thursday night, May 21st, at the Columbus school auditorium, a meeting will take place under the auspices of the New Jersey State Department of Labor to illustrate to the people how accidents are caused, and how a greater part of them can be easily prevented, if we are a bit more careful in the course of our daily labors.

This meeting should be of more than passing interest. With so many laborers employed in local plants much will be learned from the motion pictures that will be shown that night and from the talks that will be delivered by State Labor Commissioner McBride and others.

There have been altogether too many accidents since the first of the year. Those who will attend the session may learn a good lesson, a lesson that will help the wife, children and the family in future years.

WE MOURN

Carteret mourns with the rest of the county the death of County Detective William M. Fitzpatrick, who was killed at the Main street grade crossing in Woodbridge on Saturday afternoon. The fatality came as a shock to many of his friends and associates in this borough.

Bill's activities in this borough are well known. He has been instrumental in solving many important criminal matters that have taken place here. He has aided at all times the local police. The deceased detective was on his way to Carteret on the fatal day, to secure data in connection with a local shooting affair.

Fitzpatrick had planned to attend the big police chiefs convention in New York Tuesday with Chief of Police Henry J. Harrington. The chief and the detective were friends since boyhood days. And instead of attending the convention, the chief had to attend on Tuesday the funeral of his able and much liked pal.

THE CIVIC MONUMENT

The memorial municipal building is completed and will be officially dedicated on Saturday, May 30. In this new structure is the evidence that Carteret is fully awake to the many responsibilities of civic duty. From this center for many years to come will radiate lines of power and influence that will make the Borough of Carteret a greater place and its citizens more fitted for the privileges and duties of citizenship.

By the way—it may be added that Memorial Day will be observed in a big fashion. Members of the Roosevelt Post American Legion and the Borough Council are now busy completing arrangements for various events. Lodges, fraternities and organizations can aid by joining forces in the parade with a band of their own at the helm.

Candid Courage

Ancient Bards

"Scalds" was the name given to the ancient Scandinavian poets, who sang or recited verses of their own composition, commemorating the famous deeds of living heroes or of their ancestors. They were similar to the troubadours of southern France, the minnesingers of Germany and the bards of the Celtic tribes. Very few complete Scaldic poems are extant; but many fragments are found in the "Younger Edda" and in the "Sagas."—Kansas City Star.

Mrs. P. P. Beyer Sails for England

Many friends witnessed the departure of Mrs. Fred P. Beyer of Charles street, this borough, who is leaving to join the White Star liner "Celtic" at New York, from where she will sail for Liverpool. She intends visiting her sisters in the Cumberland Lake district and her brother, an engineer in the plant of Messrs. Clark & Co., of Hull, England.

Republican Massmeeting

A Republican mass meeting will be held in Dalton's Auditorium on Tuesday evening, June 2. The speaker of the evening will be Hon. Thomas McCran, Republican candidate for governor. Hon. Fred Schneider, candidate for congress, will also address the meeting. Freeholders Clarence Haight and Dr. Bell-off, candidates for re-election to the board, and the assembly and local candidates are also expected to be present.

Plan For Euchre

The Girls Friendly Society of St. Mark's church will hold a euchre at St. Marks' parish hall on Wednesday night, June 3. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Gladys Abell, chairman; Mrs. A. Drummond, Mrs. E. Klöse, Mrs. E. Misdom, the Misges and Gertrude Ellis.

Value of Antitoxins

Explained by Doctor

Toxins are the poisons of disease and produce the symptoms common to the disease after circulating through the blood.

Antitoxins are substances that work against or neutralize the toxins in any given cases, and they are produced by the use of the bacteria or the toxins. These are injected into an animal, usually a horse, in increasing doses, until it becomes habituated to them and is no longer made ill by them. The immunity or resistance resides in the blood, which has now developed a defense mechanism against the poison.

The animal's blood is then drawn off in small quantities, filtered and purified. This blood is in turn injected into the blood of a man, where it exerts the same protecting influence against the particular toxin by which it was produced as it did in the horse.

This is very briefly the nature and mode of operation of antitoxin serums. The use of an antitoxin in diphtheria has already saved countless lives and has changed the once dreaded and fatal disease to a rather simple complaint if diagnosed early and treated with antitoxin.

The discoveries of the Dicks and of Dochez promise to give the same relief from scarlet fever when methods originated only in 1924 are perfected for this particular disease.—Dr. Walter E. James in the Outlook.

"Prettiness" Makes No Appeal to Normal Boy

When nature hands on the good points of parents she invariably seems to be more generous to the boys than to the girls. Curly hair, long eyelashes and good complexions go to the boys more frequently than to the girls.

Notice the boys with natural "marcel" waves and curling eyelashes, and notice how they value them. A girl would be proud of them, but most men and boys are morally ashamed to possess these advantages. They blush every time any one mentions eyelashes, while the curls are given frequent applications of water and brilliantine to restrain their wayward tendencies, says London Answers.

All this, while less fortunate sisters try vainly to play the coquette with scanty, sandy eyelashes, and spend a small fortune at the hairdresser's in an endeavor to take the lankness out of their uninteresting tresses!

Real auburn tresses, too, are more often than not handed on to the boys. But there is one consolation. A girl thus endowed may refer to her tresses as "titan red," but a boy is never allowed to imagine that he is anything else but "ginger"!

English Town Makers

Specialty of Blankets

There ought to be a game—perhaps there is—in which a town's name is answered by its industry, an exchange observed. "Sheffield," cries one, "Knives," says the other; "Cheddar" cries another, "Cheese," replies one, To Witney, the answer, without any quibbling, is "Blankets." Witney is quibbled, you may say, with blankets, wrapped up in them, indeed, devoted to them, and proud of them, as well it may be. For are not they the best in Britain? And this is no new industry, but a 500-year-old one, and it has ever brought prosperity to the little town and work for its people. Still older than its blankets is the town, the Witaneye of the Saxons, and a thank-offering of Queen Emma, wife of that Canute who sat beside the sea. It has its market place, where the Butter Cross of 1083 made shelter for the farmers' wives who came to sell their eggs and butter. But food is secondary to blankets in this little place. Behind the one long street of houses runs the Windrush, that serves the blanket makers with its clear waters. In the town stands the guild hall of the Blanket-Makers' company, with their arms and motto—a motto that gives good reason for the continuous prosperity of the blanket makers and their industry: "Weave truth with trust."

Sweden Great Power

During Middle Ages

Cities of southern Sweden were among the greatest commercial centers of the civilized world during the Middle Ages. Stockholm and Lund ranked with London and Paris, says the Family Herald. They absorbed the commerce of the northern seas and were the admiration of thousands of travelers and merchants who passed through them and trafficked with them. Later Sweden was the great military power of northern Europe. The ambassadors of the Swedish kings were received with the utmost deference in every court. Her soldiers won great battles and ended mighty wars. The England of Cromwell and Charles II was unimportant and isolated in comparison with this northern kingdom, which could pour forth armies of gigantic blond warriors headed by brave and astute generals. Sweden is today a peaceful kingdom. Even the secession of Norway was accomplished without bloodshed. Denmark once dominated and tyrannized over both kingdoms.

Wisdom from Babe's Lips

As a child of three Wolfgang Mozart's wonderful playing on the harpsichord was the talk of Salzburg. He was only four years old when he composed a concerto so difficult that even his father, one of the most skilled violinists in Germany, could not play it. "Of course," said the infant prodigy, "no one can be expected to play it without diligent practice." A year later, when Wolfgang was only five years old, he was invited to give a recital in the hall of the university, when the magic of his tiny fingers worked his auditors to a pitch of the wildest enthusiasm.

Had Spectacular Career

Sam Patch was a lad widely known for daring leaps and dives. Born in 1807 in Rhode Island, he became a cotton spinner in Paterson, N. J. A jump from a bridge into the Passaic river brought him such notoriety that he traveled about leaping from bridges and diving from topsails of ships. He was killed in 1829 when attempting a jump of 125 feet into the Genesee river.

Keen Shot Kills Tiger

With his long tail erect over his back and his head held high, came the monarch of the forest straight for us. His strength, grace and speed are impossible to describe. As he rounded a turn about 60 yards away I let him have it with my right barrel. The bullet went true to its mark. When it hit him, full in the right eye, he was in the act of making a spring. The leap, for a good 20 feet beyond, came, but when he touched the earth he was stone dead. The bullet had entered his brain, and not a mark was visible on his beautiful coat, nor was there the least twitching of his muscles after the fatal shot.

No one there had ever seen or heard of a tiger being shot without having a mark of any kind made on his skin.—Brig. Gen. William Mitchell in National Geographic Magazine.

Sea and Land in Battle

The washing away by the sea of land worth millions of dollars on the coast of New Jersey, pointed to in the annual report of the United States coast and geodetic survey, draws attention to the battle waged year in and year out between the sea and land all over the world. The sea and land have been foes since the beginning of time and, according to some physiographers, these old enemies will remain such until the last mountain pinnacle has been washed down and ground to sand, and the victorious ocean rolls unbroken around the world. But whatever may be the outcome millions of years hence, we are still in the give-and-take era. Many miles of land are washed away annually; but compensating areas are built up in other places.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Not to Be Caught Twice

There was a queer old custom in England that compelled a person when making a certain kind of statement to add: "Except the mayor." Foote, the comedian, having remarked at an inn: "I have dined as well as anyone in England," the landlord prompted him: "Except the mayor." "I except nobody," said Foote boldly. For this the landlord had him haled before a magistrate, who fined him a shilling for not conforming to the ancient custom. Foote paid the shilling, at the same time observing that he thought his accuser "the greatest fool in Christendom—except the mayor."

CARTERET P. T. A. RE-ELECT OFFICERS

On Tuesday Night For Another Term—Mrs. C. H. Byrne, Is President of Association—Mrs. Connolly Is Secretary.

REPORTS ARE READ

Committee Authorized to Purchase Flag to Be Presented to Board of Education for New High School.

The present officers of the Carteret Parent-Teacher Association were re-elected Tuesday night for another term at the annual meeting of the association. They will begin their new terms of office in October. The officers are:

President, Mrs. C. H. Byrne. First vice-president, Mrs. J. J. Ruckreigel; second vice-president, Miss B. V. Hermann (supervising principal of the public schools). Secretary, Mrs. John Connolly. Treasurer, Mrs. Alexander Lebowitz.

There were no other nominations from the nominating committee or from the floor when the latter were called for. With the exception of Mrs. Connolly the other officers are each elected this year for the third consecutive term. Mrs. Connolly succeeded Mrs. Joseph C. Child, a former secretary who resigned.

In addition to the election much other business was transacted. The executive committee was authorized to purchase a flag and stand to be presented to the Board of Education at the opening of the new high school building. The flag is to be placed upon the stage of the high school auditorium. Miss B. V. Hermann, supervising principal of the schools of Carteret, explained in detail the educational trip which the seniors of next year will take to Washington, D. C. The pupils are to be accompanied by one or two teachers. They will visit all the points of historical interest in Washington and probably will visit Independence Hall and Penn's home in Philadelphia. A three-day trip will cost approximately $28 per pupil; a five-day trip will cost proportionately more but would give more time for observation and study while on the trip.

At the close of Miss Hermann's talk the association voted to donate $100 toward the expense of the trip. The president presented a written report of the work accomplished by the association since it was organized less than two years ago; also a report of the Spring meeting of the Middlesex Council of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, held in Milltown in April. She also thanked the members officers and teachers for their cooperation in all the undertakings of the association.

Mrs. J. J. Ruckreigel, who was the general chairman of the committee of arrangements for the card party held by the association in April, gave a report of the affair. To date the returns total more than $200. Several tickets are still out and unaccounted for, and those who are holding them are requested to return unsold tickets and money for those sold, to Mrs. Alexander Lebowitz, the treasurer, or, to Mrs. Ruckreigel. The net returns from the card party to date after deducting all expenses are about $125. Mrs. Ruckreigel and Mrs. Byrne wish to thank the merchants, teachers and others who donated prizes, and all others who contributed to the success of the affair.

The program of the evening included several selections by the Oriole Castle orchestra, a new musical organization that scored a tremendous hit and drew numerous encores. The orchestra is made up entirely of boys who were formerly or at present are pupils of the local schools.

Miss Seppel, supervisor of music and a talented vocalist, sang several solos. An interesting feature of the program was a dress promenade in which the proper dress for high school girls was illustrated. In the promenade were also exhibited improper types of dress for school and evening and the proper styles and designs of dress for use while taking part in athletic games such as basketball.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program. The meeting was largely attended. It was the final meeting of the association for the summer. The next regular meeting will be held in October.

Cora Nome Vanishing Cream

makes an ideal base or "ancher" to apply before using face powder. It prepares the skin properly to receive the powder and makes the powder itself adhere still better. This cream is also wonderful for protecting the skin against damaging winds and weather. Likewise refreshing to use at the end of the day. Fragrant with the enchanting Cora Nome perfume.

Card Game Sunday

A large attendance is expected at the card party to be held on Sunday, May 17, at Odd Fellows hall, under the auspices of the Hebrew Ladies' Aid Society. Games will start at 8:30 prompt.

STAINS MAY EASILY BE ERASED AT HOME

Employ Reliable Methods and Act Promptly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Most stains may be removed easily at home, provided reliable methods are known and a few simple precautions are taken. Prompt home treatment is necessary with some stains in order to save the article in question from being ruined, and in most cases it is desirable, since all stains are removed more easily when fresh.

The nature of a stain should be known, if possible, before its removal is attempted, since this determines the treatment to be adopted, the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture points out. If an unsuitable stain remover is used, the stain may be "set" so that its removal becomes difficult or even impossible. For example, if hot water, which easily removes most fresh fruit stains, is applied to stains containing protein, such as stains of milk, blood, eggs or meat juice, it coagulates the albumin in the fibers of the cloth and makes it extremely difficult to remove the stain. Similarly, soap, which aids in the removal of grease spots, sets many fruit stains.

The kind of fabric upon which the stain occurs also should be known. The method of treatment adopted depends as much upon the nature, color, weave, finish and weight of the fabric as upon the kind of stain. Cotton, linen, wool and silk each require special treatment in certain cases. Details of these various methods of handling different stains will be furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In general, hot water should be avoided in treating unknown stains until after other substances have been tried; but for certain stains prompt application of boiling water poured from a teakettle held at a height of three or four feet above the stain is very effective. This is a good method to use on white or fast-colored material for most fresh fruit stains when still moist. Peach and berry stains usually respond well to this treatment. The stained material should be stretched over a bowl or other vessel and the boiling water poured upon it from a height sufficient for the water to strike the stain with some force. With some stains, especially those in which fruit pulp is present, a little rubbing alternated with applications of boiling water is helpful. A stain remaining after this treatment frequently can be bleached by hanging the wet material in the sun to dry. The stains of cooked fruits are somewhat different in character from those of fresh fruit and are usually easier to remove. Ordinary laundering is often all that is necessary. The boiling water treatment can be tried for stains made by the dark red and purple fruits and berries, such as cranberries and black raspberries.

Blancmange Is Flavored

Milk With Cornstarch

Blancmange is practically flavored milk jelled with cornstarch, arrow root, Irish moss, or some similar material. When gelatin is used, without eggs to stiffen the milk, the result is sometimes called "ivory" or "velvet" pudding. A blancmange or ivory pudding into which egg whites have been folded is often called a "snow" pudding. All of these puddings are excellent served alone, with plain or whipped cream, or with stewed or crushed fresh fruit poured over them. Maple syrup and honey are good when other sauces are not in hand.

Butterscotch Blancmange.

- 1 quart milk 1 cupful brown 8 tablespoonfuls sugar. cornstarch 1 tablespoonful butter. 1/4 teaspoonful salt. 1/4 teaspoonful vanilla.

Heat the milk in the double boiler. Moisten the cornstarch in a little cold milk, add, stir until thick, and cook until the starchy taste disappears. In another saucepan melt the brown sugar with the butter until it is waxy, but not caramelized. Add this to the cornstarch mixture and add salt and vanilla. Cool, and serve with cream.

Proportions of Food

It is well to know what proportions to use of the foods in each of the five groups, the United States Department of Agriculture points out. As a rule, the diet will be sufficiently bulky and flavorful and will furnish the right proportions of starch, fat, and sugar for the taste of most people if the vegetables and fruits furnish about 20 per cent of the fuel; the milk, meat, eggs, and similar foods, 20 per cent; the cereal foods, 30 per cent; sweets, 10 per cent; and fats and fat foods, 20 per cent. A diet made up on these proportions will also furnish satisfactory kinds and amounts of protein, mineral substances, and vitamins.

Silence Gives Warning

The calling back and forth of feeding birds indirectly serves another purpose. It advertises the fact that all is well, a most important thing. If a sudden silence falls upon part of a flock the rest immediately look up in alarm to locate the foe. Sudden silence in this case is just as certainly an alarm note as a sharp, noisy warning would be in a flock of birds feeding quietly.

The Telephone Rate Decision

On March 6, 1924, the New York Telephone Company filed with the Board of Public Utility Commissioners new schedules of rates for local telephone service in Northern New Jersey, to become effective April 1, 1924.

These rates were suspended by the Board pending investigation, but the Board did not reach a decision until December 31, 1924, which decision the management of the company was convinced would result in the confiscation of the company's property used in the public service.

To enable the company to fulfill its obligations to the public, as well as to protect its stockholders, it was imperative that such confiscation should be stopped at the earliest possible moment, and, therefore, application for a injunction was made to the United States District Court for New Jersey, upon the ground that the Commission's order was in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

On May 2, 1925, the Court decided that the order of the Board, requiring the company to continue the existing rates for local telephone service was confiscatory and invalid, and on May 12 made a decree enjoining the enforcement of the Board's order; this injunction to remain in force pending the trial and determination of the company's suit and until the further order of the Court.

The company is required to file a bond of two million dollars with the Court to insure the prompt repayment to subscribers as the Court may direct, of any sums paid by them for local telephone service in excess of rates now in effect, should the final determination be adverse to the company.

The schedules of rates for local telephone service which the company filed on March 6, 1924, will become effective on June 1, 1925, and bills for local telephone service will be rendered in accordance therewith.

The Drab Miss Spence

By M. and R. M. TERRELL

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

"NOW what," wondered Laura Spence, as she answered his buzzer and prepared to take dictation, "was troubling Tom Woodworth today?" Not that she had any right to wonder about her employer's recent worries, any more than she had a right to think of him as Tom.

Tom Woodworth tramped about the office, sat down and bounded up again half a dozen times, scowled, flushed, cleared his throat and acted like a small boy about to recite.

"In the deuce of a fix!" he burst out at last.

"Yes?" said Laura. "Fact is, Miss Spence, I got an uncle," he said, scowling at the floor and flushing. "Uncle Woody; nutty old party, lives in Australia. I've a good chance of his backing me in that big water meter proposition."

Laura brightened. "Isn't that fine?" she exclaimed.

"Yes," he assented; "but there's a string to it. He's come all the way from Brisbane to talk it over. He's cracked on the marriage question. Thinks if everybody got married it would save the world for democracy or something. Never expected him to come over, so I wrote him I was married. He's here and has to be shown!"

"I suppose, Mr. Woodworth, you want me to help you pick a girl to pose as your wife until he goes—one warranted not to blackmail you afterwards," Laura chirped.

"Fact is, I thought—well, I kind of wished—wouldn't you do it yourself? You're in the office and I can trust—"

"Me?" Laura exclaimed. "Why, I'm not the type of a wife you want."

"You suit me—uncle," he exclaimed hurriedly. "Ideal—er—lots of character and so infernally—"

"I couldn't possibly!" she exclaimed, rising in alarm.

"You're so—so domestic looking!"

"No!"

"Uncle Woody's crazy about real women. Old fashioned. No, I mean uncle. No time for the lazy sort. He's up at the Ambassador. He won't stay more than a couple of days, and it would just be a question of a dinner or two and a show or so," Tom pleaded. "I told him we were moving, so there wouldn't be any question of our having to pretend to keep home."

Miss Spence hesitated. "I know marriage'd be the last thing you'd think of," he continued.

"I haven't any clothes," she demurred.

"Get whatever you need and charge it to—type-writer supplies. Please, Miss Spence; I'm in a deuce of a pickle!"

"If I should agree—" she began.

Tom sat in the foyer of the Ambassador that night waiting for the make-believe Mrs. Tom. Presently he saw a stranger approach him, a lovely, golden girl—slim, rounded form in a clinging cloth of gold dress, misty gold hair drifting around the pure oval of a cameo-like face, blue eyes, deep and shining, a bare, rounded throat, slender, tapering hands, rosy tipped.

"Will I do?" she asked timidly, and with a start he realized that this unbelievable fairy was, or rather had been, drab Miss Spence.

The approach of Uncle Woody smoothed over their embarrassment.

The two evenings fled by and on the third, the last of Uncle Woody's stay, Tom met her with troubled face. "D—n Uncle Woody!" he stormed. "Can you beat that suspicious old kangaroo? He insisted upon seeing our marriage certificate before he'll come through for the—er, water meters!"

"Couldn't you fake one?" she asked, "or borrow one somewhere?"

"Not a chance," he cried. "It has to be the real thing. You don't know uncle! I won't hold you to it. You could get a divorce." His eyes pleaded, he mopped his forehead. Oh, Lollie, if I could only say—" he stammered.

Perhaps that "Lollie" had something to do with Miss Spence's answer. "We could charge the divorce to—type-writer supplies," she suggested, shyly.

"You're a brick!" cried Tom. "There's a little church around the corner. I'll keep my thumb over the date when I show uncle the certificate."

At the train next day Tom wrung his uncle's hand repeatedly. Lollie was down the platform speaking to some friends. "I can never thank you enough," Tom exclaimed. "If it hadn't been for that scheme of yours, I would never have had the courage nor the chance to do it. I'm so shy!"

"You are—a lot," agreed his uncle. "And you say Lollie has worked in your office for years?"

"Dawgone it, yes; and every time I tried to propose to her, she'd look me straight in the eye and my courage took a vacation. But I put it over on her."

"Maybe," his uncle chuckled. "Here's Lollie. Ask her the particulars, Tom. By-by, kid; look me up when you come down to—Australia!" He clambered aboard the train.

Tom turned to find Laura standing beside him, her face suspiciously innocent as she waved her handkerchief to uncle.

"Lollie, did you—hear all he said?" Tom stammered.

"I didn't need to, Tommy," she confessed. "Dear goose, what do you suppose women have intuition for, anyway?"

Gas and Electric Bills Require 52 Tons Paper a Year

Ten Million Statements End to End Would Reach About 2,700 Miles.

About fifty-two tons of paper a year are required to supply nearly 10,000,000 regular bills to customers of Public Service Electric and Gas Company. Approximately 1,056 reams of white paper, each ream weighing ninety-five pounds, and about sixty reams of pink paper, each ream weighing fifty pounds, are used.

The bills used in one year, if placed end to end, would extend a distance of about 2,700 miles.

Bills are printed four times a year and it takes about two weeks to print each lot. White paper sheets, each measuring thirty-eight and one-half inches by forty-six inches, are used for the electric and gas lighting and the industrial fuel gas bills; each sheet receives twenty-one impressions in the one printing operation and is cut into that many bills. Pink paper sheets, each measuring twenty-four inches by thirty-eight inches, are used for the power bills, each sheet receiving twelve impressions.

Always Room for That

There's always room at the top—and if it's a woman's letter, there's always room at the bottom—for a postscript.

Radio Plumbs Sea's Depths

One of the most important developments in navigation in recent times, the "fathometer," which measures the depth of the sea at the rate of 240 times a minute, was demonstrated on a trip of the Berkshires of the Merchants and Miners' line, between Baltimore and Boston. This instrument, working on the principle of transmitting and receiving sound waves through the water, takes the place of the sounding lead used since the early days of ocean transportation.

The fathometer was demonstrated on a three-day voyage in the presence of newspaper men and technical experts. Throughout this period it gave soundings of one to four a second, depending on the nature of the ocean bed, corresponding with the depths shown on the charts.

Parking Space

A certain church in a middle western town maintains a nursery where members of the congregation who have young children may leave them in care of a young woman of the parish while they are attending the morning service.

When church was over, one fine day last summer, a little boy and a little girl remained unclaimed long after all the other children had been taken home. Finally, a man and a woman came rushing in breathlessly. As the children ran to their arms, the mother explained apologetically to the young woman in charge:

"We're so sorry to have kept you after hours, but we simply couldn't get around the course any sooner."—Life.

TAKE UP HOBBY TO REST TIRED NERVES

Physician's Advice to Over-worked Business Man.

A friend who was on the verge of a serious nervous breakdown went to a great specialist to seek advice, Richard Worth relates, in the Washington Post. The very first question the doctor asked him was, "What hobbies have you?"

My friend looked rather dumfounded. Then he explained that he was a busy man and that apart from an occasional round of golf he had no time for hobbies.

"Then we can put our finger on the real cause of your nerves," said the specialist. He saw, I suppose, that my friend was inclined to be skeptical, so he indulged in a little personal reminiscence.

"There are a great many people who seem to think that we doctors, are never ill," he said. "They think that because we may be able to prescribe for their ailments—real or imaginary—we must, of necessity, keep to the health rules we may be obliged to lay down for them."

He smiled. "There never was a bigger fallacy," he continued. "We do get very run down—and very often the physician cannot heal himself. Two years ago I was faced with the self-same trouble that has sent you to me. Do you know how I cured myself of nerves? Well, I'll tell you. I learned to knit—and in three months' time I was a different man!"

My friend started at him in speechless amazement.

"One of my patients—a man who is the head of a great legal firm—who was also faced with a nervous breakdown, simply because, like yourself, he put business first and foremost and never gave a thought to anything else, took my advice. He looked round until he found a hobby that appealed to him. He was a different man in six months."

"Do you know what he does in his leisure moments now? He makes his furniture—and very excellent work he is turning out!"

"One reason why the craze for crossword puzzles has spread so rapidly is because brain and other workers find in the problems an outlet for nerves? That may sound curious—but it is nevertheless perfectly true. The forced concentration makes them forget their business and other cares."

"My advice to 'jumpy' folk is this—find a hobby that appeals to you—and work at it. In that lies salvation and a sound mind in a sound body."

Flocking to Australia

Since the United States began restricting immigration, southern Europe has turned covetous eyes on Australia, and there has been a great influx of Slavs, Greeks, Italians, Maltese and other peoples. The latest advice is that the steamer Cephee will arrive there in a few weeks with 1,200 Yugoslavs.

Sir George Fuller, premier of New South Wales, has written the federal government suggesting that the commonwealth institute a quota system on the American lines, or adopt other means to limit foreign immigration.

Official government statements declare that while the need for population in Australia is urgent some substantial reason must be advanced before the door be shut against white Europeans. Nevertheless, the government is watching the situation carefully.

When Pedagogues Kicked

Scotland's army of schoolmasters in the year 1782 sent a memorial to parliament pointing out that while their average income was £13 a year that of a plowman was £14 to £16. No relief was granted until 1802, when the Schoolmasters' act was passed, and their income was legally fixed at "not under 300 merks (£16 13s. 4d) nor over 400 merks (£22 4s. 6d)." The heritors had also to provide a house, "which need not contain more than two rooms, including the kitchen, and with ground for a garden or not more than a quarter of a Scots acre, or two bolls of meal as its equivalent." They were highly indignant at being obliged to "erect palaces for donkeys," but legal compulsion could no longer be ignored. Thereafter, conditions were at least good enough to prevent schoolmasters from resigning their office to become headless—as had actually happened during the darkest days!

An advertisement inserted in The Carteret News will bring quick results.

Franklin Ranks High as Apostle of Thrift

Who does not remember Benjamin Franklin's advice: "Don't give too much for the whistle"? And by that he meant don't give more of thought or time or money for anything than it is worth. His unhappy experience with the whistle marked the beginning of Franklin's great work in the cause of thrift, the Thrift Magazine recalls.

He had few books but was determined to have an education. Many a time he would sit up nearly all night reading by candlelight. To buy more books, Franklin made a bargain with his brother, to whom he was apprenticed, by which he would board himself on half the money it had been costing. Then he did without fish and meat, lived on a cheap vegetable diet and invested his savings in worthwhile books.

He never attended a college or even a high school. He went to a primitive grammar school but two years and yet he was one of the best educated men of his day. He found time to write books, to study science, to invent. No one ever exemplified the value of thrift in time more than did Franklin. His "wise saws" on time-saying, such as "Since thou art not sure of a minute, throw not away an hour," are known to all.

Policy of Silence Makes Few Enemies

A keen observer recently remarked that harsh words in the English language have more synonyms than pleasant words have. A little turning of the pages of the dictionary bears him out.

If you say a man tells the truth you have said it all. There is no neat and forceful way of emphasizing and enlarging upon that. But if you say he lies you will find a hundred subtleties to say it. From the "short and ugly" to "equivocate," "quibble," "prevaricate" and the like, the list is long, says the Montreal Star.

One politician made himself famous by saying of another that he "was economical in the use of the truth to the verge of parsimoniousness." Such a statement draws a smile. It is bland, it is suave, it has the mild sting of vinegar, not the burning erosion of vitriol.

Even better than such elaborate circumlocutions to express a thing which at best we should have left unsaid is to forego for the moment being clever, and keep our peace. The world will think more highly of us for it.

Why Some Men Fail

Some men never accomplish anything because they permit the means to overshadow the end.—Birmingham

Boy Carries Three From Flaming House

Conneaut, Ohio.—Leroy Crandall, nine, of East Conneaut, was hailed as a hero.

When his mother, Mrs. B. H. Crandall, came to the city, she left Leroy in charge of the home and of his sister, Viola, six, and his twin brothers, Lloyd and Floyd, three.

Upon reaching here, Mrs. Crandall telephoned Leroy and was told the children are "having lots of fun." Next Mrs. Crandall heard a scream.

"The whole kitchen is on fire," came next as the receiver dropped from Leroy's hand.

Rushing to her home in an automobile, Mrs. Crandall found the younger children to safety, pulled down and trampled clothing which caught fire behind a kitchen stove and was throwing water on the blazing wood box.

"I was scared but I wanted to help all I could," the boy said.

YOUTH FLYING KITE IS KILLED BY WIRE

Burned to Death When It Crosses Electric Line.

Tampa, Fla.—His efforts to produce a kite superior to that of any of his playmates cost the life of Benjamin Guy Little, eleven years old.

Benny appeared before his playmates one morning with a kite which he told them was the "last word" in kite making. To his kite, Benny had attached a copper wire.

As Benny's kite mounted toward the clouds about noon a strong puff of wind carried the kite over some wires. The wire on Benny's kite touched a high-tension electric wire. One flash, and Benny's clothing was ablaze, the grass around him was burning and Benny's mates were fleeing. His body was badly burned. He was rushed to a hospital, but efforts to save his life were futile.

Jock Misunderstood

His bagpipe playing was the chief thing that mattered to him in life. One night while he was strutting about the room, skirling for all he was worth, his wife attempted a mild and very belated protest.

"Jock," she said, "that's an awful noise you're making."

Jock sat down and took off his boots, then got up and resumed his piping in his stocking soles.

ESSENTIAL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WE WHO are lazy, we who shirk, I wonder is the trouble this?— That we must scourge ourselves to work

Because the larger view we miss? Why do we labor? Is it just To serve ourselves, and not the age? Are we as common as the dust In which we labor for our wage?

If so, we earn a poor reward, However great our wage may be. 'Tis not for wage men wear the sword, Or plow the land, or fell the tree. Who sees within the tree a hearth, The nourishment within the soil, Who wears a sword to free the earth, He needs no scourge to make him toil.

The world wheels forward like a car, Essential every working cog; Whatever your labor, what you are, Behind a desk, upon a log, You play your necessary part In all the work there is to do; Go forward with uplifted heart, Because the world has need of You. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Ancient Microscope

The first microscope patented in England, in 1742, was made by George Lindsey, and is a remarkable specimen of eighteenth-century work. Only one other example is known, and this is at the Science museum, South Kensington.

Marvels of Jelly-Fish

The jelly-fish has a truly wonderful way of reproducing its species. In most cases the beginning is an egg, which, lying on the bottom, produces a beautiful tree-like growth. The "tree" fastens itself to the bottom and brings forth buds which, when ripe, drop off and develop into jelly-fish. The latter in turn lay eggs and the process is repeated. Most of the very large species have a different way of reproducing themselves. The egg is set free in the water and develops into a pear-shaped larva, which for a while swims about rapidly, being provided with hair-like appendages that serve the purpose of ears. Then the larva settles down, anchors itself to the bottom, increases in size rapidly, and finally splits up into thin, flat discs which swim off and grow up into large jelly-fishes.

Origin of Gloves

Gloves trace their origin back for centuries, the first mention of them in literature is to be found in the Bible, but scientists believe we should go back still further, for among prehistoric relics an unmistakable drawing of a glove, rudely etched upon a stone, was discovered.

It is said that the first skilled glove-makers were the monks of the early Middle ages. In 790 Charlemagne granted to the abbots and monks of Sithin, in ancient France, unlimited right of hunting the deer for skins of which to make gloves. Glove-making was established in France as an industry in the Twelfth century.

Squash Needs Much Room

One squash plant needs 15 miles of roots to extract its daily food from the soil around it.

Rahway Star Clouts Ball Into the Right Field in Belated Inning For Victory—Sabo and Jip Ginda Also Smash Homers.

By EDDIE EKROY

The Carteret Leaguers trotted out on Brady's Field, last Sunday, in their splendid array of new uniforms and polished off the Belmonts...

Both outfits managed to push a run over the scoring dish in the tenth, and when the visitors turned the trick in their half of that session...

Two Men On Bases in Tenth. This evening of the game, but with Leshick on second and Elko on first...

The Belmonts were able to add to their run column in this frame when Gregory started things off with a long triple to left center...

Ted Faulkner is becoming to be something of a near expert in calling strikes and balls. His work as arbiter in this contest is deserving of honorable mention...

The Leaguers showed their real strength in hitting home runs. But where was Butternut? Did Worth substitute for him?

The man who enjoyed the performance a great deal was the ancient second baseman, Joey Elko. He got three hits, driving in one run and making another himself...

Also Joey made one of the nicest catches of the tilt. He speared Edgie's fly in short right field and saved the game, since Kochansky was grazing second base at the time.

Worth's homer came when the fans least expected it. Every one knows that Butch is a mighty slugger, but two strikeouts chalked against him...

Mankind Vainly Seeks Nature's Great Secret

We may be quite certain that Nature holds in reserve causes of reconstruction, as it also holds in its hands the causes of destruction.

Logic leads us to think that our vital force, our psychic monad, our individual self, is equally indestructible, and more justly.

As to our human personalities, which are a part of this universal matter, and their immortality or resurrection, it would be of the highest interest for us to know the essence of the soul.

Home Folks Solving Big Coal Problem By Laying In Supply During Summer

ONE YEAR'S PRODUCTION OF ANTHRACITE

It would take 33 Great Pyramids to equal this in size.

GREAT (OR CHEOPS) PYRAMID
750 FT. IN HEIGHT 451 FT. WIDE AT BASE

MORE coal for domestic use is likely to be bought during this coming summer than ever before. Figures prepared by the Anthracite Bureau of Information show that the household is taking increasing advantage every year of the discount for early buying and that by storing his own coal in his cellar he is protecting himself against winter stoppage of transportation or mining.

In five of the last ten years there has been an excess of summer over winter purchases of anthracite. At present, 45 per cent are made between April and September.

The average number of days worked in the anthracite mines in the ten years ending 1923 (excluding the strike year 1922) was 264, as compared to only 165 in the decade ending 1909. The average miner drawing his pay envelope for the week has two more working days to his credit than was the case 20 years ago.

These data indicate the extent to which seasonal buying of this household fuel has been overcome and the extent to which the problem of transporting coal from the mine mouth to the consumer's cellar is being solved.

Getting Coal To Consumers

If one year's output of anthracite, averaging about 75,000,000 tons, were allowed to accumulate at the mines the pile would be 23 times the size of the Cheops or Great Pyramid in Egypt. It requires 1,400,000 carloads to haul a year's production of anthracite from the mines. Each car visits the mines about 30 times a year.

so that at least 45,000 cars are in daily service.

In shipping one year's supply into the cellar, 17,500,000 normal truckloads would be needed. More than 5,500,000 private homes and an almost equal number of families living in apartment houses are served by anthracite dealers. Neither the railroads nor the available delivery trucks would be able to meet the transportation problem in coal if consumers did not buy all the year round.

Official figures of the Government show the evil effects of seasonality. The cost of producing 1 ton of coal is greatly increased by irregular operations. In a mine which works 80 per cent of the time the increase in the cost of mining one ton is 5 cents on the dollar, in a mine which works 60 per cent of the time the increase is 14 cents on the dollar, and in a mine which works 45 per cent of the time the increase is 27 cents on the dollar.

The elimination of seasonal production began some years ago when the anthracite producers offered progressive discounts for summer purchases. A ton bought in April costs on the average 50 cents less than a ton bought in September.

Balance of Supply and Demand Experts are agreed that the cheapest and most efficient place to store next winter's coal is in the cellar bin. According to the United States Coal Commission: "Storage of coal by consumers is the all important balance wheel between fluctuating consumption and varied production. It is the consumer's insurance against protracted general stoppage of coal mining or of railroad deliveries."

Cure for Blisters

Blisters, caused by the shoe rubbing the foot, develop into a real painful ulcer if they are not properly treated, Mr. Mann of Anytown learned.

If pricked, some disinfectant should be applied immediately. The best way to let the water out is to pass a bit of vaseline thread through the blister.

When the blister is on the sole of the foot where the skin is thick, take a fine white thread and grease it well with borated or pure vaseline.

Thread a coarse needle and pass it through the blister from one end to the other. Cut the thread on each side and cover the spot with a bit of vaseline. Next day draw the thread out. The blister will be gone.

Blisters on the hand may be pricked with a needle and then covered with a layer of collodion one ounce, castor oil eight grains; soft turpentine eight grains. Two or three coats are required.

Geese on Guard

Wild geese are extremely wary, and take nothing for granted. While feeding they have a perfect system of sentries. Not content with this, every now and then two or three will fly round high up to see that nothing is even approaching them from a distance.

Their hearing is very acute, and it is said their sense of smell is also. Certainly, if they are approached down wind, they are up and away at once, even if the greatest care has been taken to keep out of sight.

They have a cry like a pack of hounds, which may have given rise to many of the legends of ghostly packs that are said to hunt an equally ghostly fox at night.

It was a lesson on punctuation, and Jimmy was almost asleep at his desk.

"Now," said the teacher, "if I say, 'I must leave, as I have an engagement—' By the way, what is the time? I place a 'dash' after 'engagement,' because the sentence is broken off abruptly."

At that moment she caught sight of Jimmy.

"New then, Jimmy, you are not listening. What was I saying?" she asked him.

"Please, Miss Smith," said Jimmy, with a start, "you were telling us you said 'dash' because your engagement was broken off abruptly!"

LOVE TRIANGLE MAKES FATHER TIME GROGGY

Wife, Aged 99, Has Husband Arrested, Aided by Daughter, 66.

Des Moines.—A love triangle which makes Father Time look foolish was brought to light in the Municipal court in Des Moines the other day.

John Diggins, forty-one years old, a husband seemingly caught between the devil and the deep blue sea of too much romance, and two flappers whose respective ages range from cradle to the grave, played the principal roles.

Diggins was haled into court at the instance of his ninety-nine-year-old wife, Ellen Diggins, and his sixty-six-year-old daughter-in-law, Louise O'Brien, on a charge of threatening to commit a public offense after he is alleged to have deserted the two women for a twenty-two-year-old girl whose name was not revealed. He was held for trial and committed to jail in default of $300 bond, where he declares he will spend his time singing the "Too Many Mamma Blues."

Ninety-Nine and Bobbed.

Still vigorous despite her ninety-nine years, Mrs. Diggins violently shook her bobbed gray locks when asked if she still loved her errant husband. "I am through with him," she declared. "There are plenty more men in the world."

Diggins admitted at the city jail that he had been "driven to drinking canned heat" through the intensity of his emotion when she was but ninety-five years old. This Diggins denies, declaring that the wedding occurred two years ago and that he was forced into the agreement by his wife's son and daughter-in-law. "I never loved her and now I am through with her for good," he declared.

Mrs. Diggins alleges that her husband left her about a month ago, taking a quantity of her clothes and other belongings which he gave to his youthful sweetheart.

Diggins said he left because he could no longer stand her abusive treatment of him. "Once she got mad and broke up a brand new cook stove and at another time she had me arrested for shooting firecrackers in my own house," he said.

Iron Splinter Drawn From Eye by Magnet

Berlin.—An iron splinter, one millimeter long, was recently removed from the eye of a locksmith with the aid of a gigantic magnet. The splinter had been in the patient's eye for three months before it could be located. Eleven sittings, in each of which the splinter, in a remote corner of the eye, was brought forward a little farther, were necessary to complete the operation.

Doctor Panderborn, the oculist in charge, was particularly concerned about removing the splinter, as the locksmith had lost one eye 30 years ago through a similar mishap. The experiment with the magnet was regarded as having little prospects of success, but it seemed to be the only alternative to complete blindness.

Wife Adds to His Fame

Hepplewhite was one of the eminent furniture finishers and designers who flourished under the reign of the Georges in England, and whose furniture was in vogue about the time of the American Revolution. When he died in 1780 his wife carried on his work and produced other pieces and original designs that were very popular for several decades. Much of the Hepplewhite work was done in mahoganies and in light woods.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

AT MOST, the average kiss lasts thirty seconds—but the memory of it (if you don't marry) and the consequences (if you do) may last for thirty years.

Only a college co-ed can "tell you all about men." A multiple divorcee knows enough to know that you can't know anything about ANY man, until you've been married to him, at least once.

When a man declares "I never flatter!" hold onto your heart and head around the curves of his conversation.

A man may lose his job, his money and his top hat; but, not until he loses his enthusiasm does he part with that supreme gift of the gods—Eternal Youth!

The average man's idea of "conversing" with a woman is to gaze at her intently and let her "babble on," while he thinks up the brilliant thing he wants to say next.

Every woman in love believes herself a Christopher Columbus, who has discovered the one and only man on earth who will never look at another woman.

Because a man enjoys eating grapefruit is no sign that he doesn't prefer strawberries; and the fact that he enjoys kissing a woman seems never to be a proof that he doesn't love another woman.

Nowadays the White Woman's Burden seems to be the effort to be up with the styles in what's left of the clothes she wears.

THE LITTLE TIN BOX

By JAMES F. DWYER

(By Shore Story Pub. Co.)

The Watch and Ward man of a construction company thinks that a twelve-inch girder four hundred feet above the street is no place for a nervous man. He fortifies his courage with the wrong kind of nerve tonic.

MORGAN, foreman of the Hudson-Gerard Construction Company, swinging on a narrow plank four hundred feet above the sidewalk, whistled a tune as he glanced around at the unclothed ribs of the giant skyscraper he was throwing heavenwards. Far below human ants looked up through the clear air at the gaunt skeleton, their white, upturned faces, round and featureless, reminding the foreman of full-blown flowers on bulky stalks.

The watchers attracted Morgan. Sitting down on the plank, with legs dangling in space, he stared into the stone-walled canyon up and down which the human current flowed unceasingly. The peculiar weird expectancy which seemed to chain the little groups watching the perial workers interested him. He had never looked at the crowds before, but some absurd analytical kink had just manifested itself in his mind, and he gratified it. He tried to understand the fascination which held men motionless hour after hour till their aching necks rebelled at the torture. Unconsciously, a hate of the crowd welled up within the foreman. He felt that they were waiting for something to happen. The motionless groups were uncanny. He noted those who stopped only for a moment, hurrying away with quick, upward glances, as if fearful lest the disaster pictured by their imagination might take place before they could shut out the nerve-ringing scene. Others stopped, backed carefully out of the current, and, shouldering the wall, settled down for prolonged spells of keen watching.

The foreman started to reason quietly to himself. "There's no fascination in seeing men work," he murmured, "so it's the fascination of seeing men in danger. Increase the danger, and you increase the spine tickles that keep those loafers peeping upwards. Where does it end? I honestly believe that a percentage of those dough-faced gals stand for hours on the chance of seeing one of us do a to-boggan slide through the ether. That's all they're waiting for, d-n 'em."

In some peculiar manner the expressed conclusion pulled into his conscious mind the image of Johnson, who was known on the job as "Gerard's Pet." Morgan sat wondering a moment, then laughed queerly. From the pocket of his jacket he took a small tin box about two inches square, and saluted at its contents.

"If Johnson has been chewing this stuff long I guess he'll give those sun-gazers a sensation one of these days," he muttered. "Old Gerard's Pet, eh? Nerves on the blink! Carries his little box of nerve dope round with him! The foxy Johnson! What the h—ll does he want up in the clouds?"

Again he stared down into the tremendous abyss as if he expected an answer to his question to drift up with the faint, ghostly sounds of the heavy traffic. He noticed that the little groups were increasing, and he looked for a reason. There was nothing unusual happening, but the mesh of iron and steel seemed to attract pedestrians.

Presently Morgan laughed uneasily. "D-n 'em," he cried, "I believe they're watching me. They are, sure, I'm in it! Gerard's Pet! watching me on top and the crowd watching me below!"

He shook his fist at the spectators, stood up on the plank and climbed cautiously along it.

"Watching me," he muttered, "the d-n buzzards! They're hungry for a tragedy. If they watch Johnson—Johnson minus his little tin box—they might get a run. At any rate I'm going to watch him now. He must have lost that at lunch time, and if he's been chewing it regular I guess the loss of it will begin to upset his grit before the day is out."

Crawling carefully along the narrow bridge, he climbed into the cobweb of steel beams and looked back at the crowd from a position of comparative safety.

"The dough-faced loafers," he murmured. "It's funny I never thought till today what kept 'em watching and watching."

Wondering how he had overlooked this powerful incentive to the morbid minded, he stepped cautiously along the brink of the shadowy abyss that lay between the tremendous girders, and as he walked he muttered continually:

"Gerard's Pet, eh? Put to watch me, and has to chew a morsel of opium to keep his nerve up. Guess he's craving a pick-me-up now."

At the southern end of the gigantic frame, which towered, black and ugly over the surrounding buildings, he stopped and peered around. Johnson was standing upon a great triangle of steel, directing half a dozen men who were climbing along the iron threads where the wind after falling them with occasional moments of calm, attacked them with fierce, strident gusts in their moments of unpreparedness.

Morgan stepped out on the triangle and stood near "The Pet," but Johnson gave no indication that he was aware of his presence. The foreman's animus was concealed and the other was a hyper-sensitive person. The hummers changed ceaselessly and the skeleton thrilled under the blows.

Away out on the bay the white of the goddess were embroidered with gold as the sun sank lower. The puffing steamers appeared to be sailing immediately beneath, and Morgan's eyes passed over Johnson and studied the scene. The foreman was in a meditative mood, and it was mainly because these moods were increasing lately that "The Pet" had been put on the job.

Johnson was a slight, nervous man, with shifty eyes. Morgan's contemptuous silence irritated him. Standing with his back turned, he felt the gaze of the foreman playing over him like a searchlight. He felt it on his head, on the back of his neck, even on his hands. Suddenly he turned quickly to find Morgan looking over towards Europe.

Johnson moistened his lips and stammered violently as he moved the man along. "The Pet's" left hand strayed upwards, but when it had reached his pocket it was suddenly jerked back to his side. Three times the hand tried to forage in the pocket, and three times it was jerked away. Johnson's mind was certain that the tin box was lost, but Johnson's nerves, tutored by the presence of the silent foreman, urged the twitching fingers to continue the search. Presently Morgan laughed and Johnson looked at him inquiringly.

"I was just thinking of those infernal watchers down there on the sidewalk," explained the foreman. "I never knew till today what keeps 'em there."

"And what does keep them there?" asked Johnson.

"Why, they're waiting to see one of us flop," replied the discoverer, "just hanging round thinking one of us will lose his nerve and take a header."

Johnson wrinkled his face into a sickly smile and again moistened his dry lips. Morgan had timed his visit well.

"I don't think that is the reason," he stammered, "they're interested in the work."

The foreman laughed contemptuously. "I know 'em," he cried, "I've been studying them today."

Again the foraging hand crept upward, and again it was jerked swiftly back. Its owner made an attempt to change the subject.

"Farley sent down a note about that iron," he spluttered, "he wants you—"

"Look," interrupted Morgan, "just look how they're lining up down there. What for, I would like to know? There's nothing particular doing."

Johnson stared out across the bay. "Not there," snapped the foreman, "Right beneath you, man. Down under your feet. They're cursed ghouls."

"The Pet" moved back a few inches from the extreme apex of the triangle. He turned his face to Morgan and the gray eyes of the student of crowds noted his livid cheeks.

"Move along," muttered Johnson, "I'm going to."

Morgan didn't move. "Crowd on nerve you?" he sneered.

"No," snapped "The Pet."

"What's up, then?"

"Nothing."

"I thought your nerves were going back on you," grinned the foreman.

Johnson's left hand was foraging blindly in his jacket pocket.

"You think too much," he stammered. "Move a little."

"Just oblige me by going round the other way," murmured Morgan. "I've got my eye on a batch of hungry buzzards down there and I don't want to lose sight of them."

Johnson turned towards the apex and moved a few paces cautiously.

"I knew a man," remarked the foreman, critically eyeing the other, "whose nerve went on the blink at this game. He took to drugs."

"Yes," muttered Johnson, half turning to look at the speaker.

"Yes," repeated Morgan, "he took to opium, or some stuff like it, and the crowd got a sensation one day. He forgot his box and lost it or something."

"The Pet" wheeled swiftly. "You bound," he snarled. "You—you took it."

The foreman grinned. "Don't upset yourself," he murmured, "your nerves are rocky sure."

"Give it up," shrieked Johnson. "Give it up!"

and the box was swept to the left of the narrow bridge. Johnson tried to keep his arm at his side, but the effort was beyond him. It leaped out after the bit of tin, which flashed in the sunlight, and losing his balance, he sprawled forward along the girder. Morgan tried to backstep quickly, but Johnson's right arm swung like a band of iron around his ankles; and, locked together, they followed the little tin box.

Poppy Day

Tomorrow, Saturday, is Poppy Day in Carteret. The Carteret Girl Scouts under the direction of Mrs. Timothy J. Nevill, their captain as well as the local troops of Boy Scouts of America, have volunteered their services to help sell poppies on the streets of the borough.

Surely there is no other flower that could be a greater symbol of our honored dead war fighters than the poppy which is to be sold tomorrow. For weeks, the ladies of the legion have been busy making them. These poppies are the color of the pure blood that men shed for our Great Principles, and the manner of its growth despite trappings of the Yankee Man, who will die with a smile but will not acknowledge defeat.

The purpose of the sale is well known to all of us. Money secured from the annual Buddy Poppy sale, which is sponsored throughout the nation by war veterans is used in the relief work. It is a doubly praiseworthy task because it serves two purposes, honoring the service of the dead and contributing to something very worthy.

Closing Decoration Day

The Carteret Business Men's Association at its special meeting held this week adopted a resolution, in which it was decided to observe Saturday, May 30, Memorial Day, by calling upon the merchants of the borough to close their stores in accordance with the usual custom, at least for two hours beginning at 10 A. M. and until noon.

Our borough merchants in deciding upon the course to close at least for a brief time will observe the day in honor of those who fought for their country. It is hoped that every merchant here will comply with the request of the association, of which Alex Lebowitz is president.

Let every merchant give the war veterans and war heroes the honor due them by at least closing the shops for two hours.

The move by the association is a commendable one.

Communicated.

Memorial Day Parade

To the Veterans of all Wars and the Public:

I take this opportunity, through the press, to convey to you the purpose, and the reason why the Memorial Day Parade and the services should have your full cooperation and solemn respect.

Memorial Day is observed so that we may all turn out and lay aside our businesses and pleasures to pay respect to the honored dead who made the supreme sacrifice while in service and those who willingly would have done so if called upon, but were spared to return from war as heroes and were later called by the Supreme Maker.

The Veterans of all Wars owe a solemn duty to "carry on" for those who are not here, and install in the hearts of all, from the smallest child to the aged, the spirit of patriotism. This day is a day that will never be forgotten, and in years to come when we shall pass on and will no longer be able to carry the banner, our graves and memories shall be held dear by every American; and generation after generation will realize that the loss of life of those men was not in vain.

The public is asked to cooperate to the fullest, from the time that the salute of three bombs is fired at six o'clock in the morning, until the bomb is fired at noon, in order that nothing will be left undone in showing respect to those who are no longer able to be here to serve our country.

I beg of you, the men of the borough, to lift your hats when the flag of our country passes you on this day. Also that the public will realize the solemnity of the services conducted at the Memorial Building during the prayer, roll call, taps, thirty seconds silence and firing of the salute. Men not in uniform will uncover their heads; and may silence prevail. This is a debt you owe; so pay the respect you feel is due the memories of the dead.

Will all residents of the borough display the national colors, and when displayed from a staff allow the flag to fly at half mast until the firing of the bomb at noon, after which the flag will be raised to top mast.

Eighteen Steel Towers to Carry Electric Wires Across Two Rivers Tying in Three Big Power Plants

One of Steel Transmission Towers With Portion of Kearny Super-Power Station.

CROSSING the Passaic and Hackensack rivers, the Kearny yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the main line of the Lackawanna Railroad, a series of eighteen steel towers, some more than 300 feet high, are being constructed by Public Service in preparation for a power line completely interconnecting three big electric plants when the Kearny super-power station is completed.

The project will be known as the Essex-Kearny-Marion tie line and will harness together something like 600,000 horsepower of electrical energy generated in these three stations to furnish power and light to the industries and residents of New Jersey.

The portion of the line which will cross the two rivers will have a minimum clearance above high tide of about 140 feet to the lowest transmission wire, necessitating towers on either side of the Passaic River about 217 feet high and 229 feet for the Hackensack River crossing. These spans are about 775 feet and 856 feet respectively.

The towers across the Pennsylvania property are 297 feet high, necessitated by future developments of the railroad which include the elevation of some of the tracks.

The electric distribution department, Electric and Gas Company, prepared the specifications for the line. The towers and foundations were designed by Archbold-Brady Company. Public Service Production Company is doing the construction work.

JURY TO PROBE DONOGHUE CASE

in front of a lunch wagon in Roosevelt avenue. Donohue is said to have noticed the disorder and came to the scene. Csuko and Janovick ran. The officer went after them and caught them. Csuko is said to have had a gun in his hands. As the officer neared Roosevelt avenue with his two prisoners, a car driven by Vincent Rudnak pulled alongside the walk. Janovick jumped inside and Miller mounted the running board, crying "Try and get me."

Donohue fired a shot as the car dashed away. It is believed that this shot landed in Csuko's back. Rudnak drove to the Rahway hospital, where Csuko was taken. In the meantime the Rahway police authorities arrested Rudnak and Janovick.

The case has been under investigation by County Detective William Fitzpatrick, who met his tragic death on Saturday afternoon May 9, when a Pennsylvania railroad express hit his car at the Main street crossing in Woodbridge. Detective Fitzpatrick was on his way to the death bed of Csuko to take an antemortem statement from the man.

At the prosecutor's office it was said that an investigation into the shooting has been almost completed by the county authorities except that an ante-mortem statement of Csuko had not been obtained. Csuko had time and again refused to give the statement.

Prosecutor Joseph E. Stricker said that nothing had been done in the case as far as a grand jury investigation, because of the fact that the principal in the case, Csuko, was confined in the hospital. The death of Csuko, however, will cause the presentation of the case to the grand jury, when it convenes on June 5.

Buick Loops Globe in Record Run

The above illustration shows the route taken by the "round the world" Buick. The lower left photograph shows Kenilworth Castle, Warwick, England, in the background; the photo at the upper right shows the globe circled in front of the Paris office of the New York Herald. The car is being driven by dealer representatives. It will have had 350 different drivers when it completes its world tour in New York.

A Buick car, which departed unheralded from New York City last December, to be driven from one Buick dealer to another in a trip around the world, is nearing the end of its long journey.

The car, a Standard Six Touring model, is strictly "on its own," being accompanied by mechanics or special drivers. When it returns to New York City the machine will have been handled by approximately 350 different drivers.

The last difficult leg of the trip has been completed, a long run over the questionable roads across the continent of Australia. The car is now en route to New Zealand and Honolulu, from whence it will be shipped to San Francisco and driven across the United States through Detroit and Flint to New York.

The trip around the world was conceived to demonstrate that a Buick will travel to the remotest corners of the earth and that on such a journey it is always safeguarded by service facilities.

The globe-circling car has made its trip without faltering. Driven from dealer to dealer by dealers' representatives only, it has demonstrated Buick's ability to withstand the "man-handling" from hundreds of drivers of various nationalities and degrees of skill.

After coming from the regular assembly line in the factory at Flint, Mich., it was equipped with four spare tires and a shovel. Supplemental tanks on the running boards provide oil, gasoline and water for the long runs over deserts and other uninhabited regions.

After being boxed and sent to New York City it was shipped across the Atlantic to Liverpool, where its land journey started on December 21, 1924. The car was passed from dealer to dealer en route to London.

It then was shipped from London to Amsterdam. With frequent changes of drivers it passed south through Europe, visiting Brussels and Paris and finally reaching the Mediterranean at Marseilles, France.

On January 26, it was placed on a steamer bound for Port Said, Egypt. From there it was driven south to Cairo. Then the route swung "east of Suez," where the real test began.

Through Palestine and the biblical country, the car proceeded to Beirut. On February 5, it left there for Damascus and Baghdad, accompanied by one of the desert convoys of the Nairn Transport Company, which incidentally uses Buicks in its desert fleet.

The Syrian desert was crossed without difficulty. The Buick distributor in Beirut, however, gives some idea of the country traversed, in the following letter excerpt:

"The road was terrible in places, being nothing more than a cart track strewn with large boulders. In the run over the Lebanon Mountains the car climbed to a height of more than a mile. After spending the night at Damascus, the 540-mile run to Baghdad was made at an average speed of 35 miles an hour."

The Mesopotamian distributors took the Buick at Baghdad and drove it to Basra on the Persian gulf, from whence it was sent to Bombay, India. From there it was driven over indifferent trail-roads across the continent to Calcutta.

It then went to Ceylon, where the Buick distributor drove it for three days before sending it to Perth, on the southwest coast of Australia, where it arrived April 1. The desert waste of southern Australia between Perth and Adelaide was regarded as the most difficult part of the trip. The distance is something more than halfway across the United States. This long stretch of bad going was negotiated successfully.

As was the shorter journey from Adelaide to Melbourne, near the southeast end of the continent. The car since was driven to Albany and then to Sydney, from which point it was shipped to New Zealand.

After completion of the globe journey it is planned to preserve the car as an object of historical interest.

Lightning Rods Urged for Tree Protection

Trees with wide-spreading root systems or with roots that reach deep into moist soil are relatively good electrical conductors and, generally speaking, are in most danger of being struck by lightning, says the weather bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture. The rodding of valuable trees to protect against lightning is therefore strongly recommended.

No tree is immune; but among trees of the same kind the one standing well above its neighbors is in most danger, even in a dense forest. This may be due to the greater height of the tree or the kind of ground it stands on. Trees growing in the open are in more danger than those in a thick stand of timber, as are also those growing along an avenue or border of woods. Those growing in moist soil along the banks of a stream or lake are better conductors for lightning than those growing in drier soil. Sound trees in general are less likely to be damaged than those with rotten wood.

Trees growing in loam and sandy soils are struck more frequently than those in clay, marl and calcareous soils. Oaks often grow to great height and mostly in loam and sandy soils. Moreover, they are a good example of a starchy tree, which is a better conductor of electricity than an oily tree like the beech. The oak also is a top-rooted tree, with its root system extending deep into the soil, which constitutes another factor of danger from lightning for it. Studies in various localities, particularly in western Europe, have shown conclusively that the oak is struck much more often than other kinds of trees.

Elm, ash, poplar and gum trees are also very susceptible to lightning damage, while those least attractive to lightning are the chestnut, maple, alder, and mountain ash, according to the bureau.

Entitled to That Credit
"My ole mule," said Uncle Eben, "balked in de middle of de road, held up a line of autos an' kicked at de traffic cop. An' I says to myself, 'Mistah Mule, you may have a bad disposition; but you sho' has got courage.'"

Do Not Force Plants

If a plant has been growing thriftily for some time and then begins to go back it probably needs a rest, and no amount of forcing will do any permanent good. During the resting period a plant is better left entirely alone in a dry, cool cellar. It will of its own accord and without any attention of any kind begin to put out new green shoots. When these new shoots show themselves the plant should be given a thorough watering, a reporting if necessary, and brought up into its place in the sun. After it is growing well it may be given fertilizer.

"The Mills of the Gods"

This is an old Greek aphorism taken from the "Oracle Sibyllina." The original, literally translated, reads as follows: "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind small." Longfellow, in translating it, inserted the word "exceeding" and made it read: "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small." The same thought is found in Plutarch and other ancient writers.—Exchange.

Radioactive Beings

Albert Nodon, Paris, has made experiments which indicate that all living things are radioactive.

Betterment Called For

It may be predicted that the time will come when there will be a lively emulation for betterment among villages of this country, especially in the West. The pioneer days are over. The time is past when any habitable place was acceptable as a home, when the impulse was to regard a home merely as a temporary abode. The country has become stabilized. Villages and towns have taken on permanency, and with it they should develop and define distinctive characteristics. Efforts in this direction can be made to pay. They make for better values in property and in happiness.

Urges Railway Cleanup

Holding that the unkempt appearance of railroad rights of way in American cities makes an unfavorable impression on all persons entering them or passing through, the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at its annual meeting at Dallas, Texas, recommended to all member boards that they appoint strong and active committees to work in co-operation with railroads and industries and with civic bodies to the end that the railroad rights of way shall be converted into attractive city entrances.

Answer: Certainly. The brake on the outside front wheel is automatically released, making steering easy and car control sure. Only one such device has so far been perfected, and Buick has it.

With this wonderfully convenient little ironer, you'll get that big heavy all-day ironing done in about two hours.

Bed and table linens and towels come out of the Thor Eke new. Skilled hand ironing does not excel the work of the Thor on dresses, shirts, underthings.

When the ironing is done, fold up the Thor and roll it into the closet or the corner. The Thor occupies about the same space as a sewing machine, and can be moved about as easily as a tea wagon. Electrically driven, electric or gas heated.

Garden Wall Should Resemble the House

It is usually best to have a garden wall of the same material as the house, whether it is of stone, stucco or brick. For the frame house, the wall may appropriately be of cobbles, a delicate lattice, a paneled "board" fence surmounted by lattice, a picket fence or a hedge.

There are of necessity several gates. Where the wall is masonry, a hooded gateway is quaint and attractive. In the hedge nothing could be more pleasing than a trellised arch with a painted gate made of porch balusters. The design of wooden gateways is limited only by the ingenuity and imagination of the home owner.

The rule for a wood pergola is to set the columns as far apart both ways as they are high. The usual wood for exterior woodwork is white pine, as it is very weather-resistant. The fact that garden woodwork must be properly painted and kept so need hardly be emphasized. That paint protection is necessary for the mere preservation of these articles constantly exposed to the weather is well demonstrated by the ordinary unpainted telegraph pole, which is a sight familiar to us all. White will always be the favored color for outdoor woodwork, though green and brown are appropriate, and have greater durability.

Inspirational

Proudly the efficiency expert gazes upon his completed work. Over ever, dank in that great financial office hum, the motto: "Do Him Now."

Bird Believed Extinct

The biological survey says that the treay-bill woodpecker is found at the present time in the west and heavy semitropical woods of the southeastern United States. The Carolina parakeet was "lost" in practically the same regions. It is believed by scientists to be extinct, inasmuch as specimens have not been seen in several years. When last seen these birds were found in Florida.

Farthest South

The world's most southern post office is the covered barrel on a ledge of the rock which forms the south end of Cape Horn. When weather conditions permit a boat is sent from passing ships to collect any mail that may be in the barrel to be taken to foreign ports. Mail for the opposite direction is dropped into the barrel at the same time.

SO long as "a man is known by the company he keeps," it is well to consider how much prestige the name of you bank carries.

PREPARING MEAT FOR DRIED BEEF SUPPLY

Good Plan to Preserve Part of Lean Portion

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where there are large quantities of beef on hand, as when beef cattle are slaughtered on the farm, it is a good plan to preserve part of the lean meat by corning and drying it.

The round is commonly used for dried beef, the inside of the thigh being considered the choicest piece, as it is slightly more tender. The round should be cut lengthwise of the grain of the meat in preparing for dried beef, so that the muscle fibers may be cut crosswise when the dried beef is sliced for table use.

Cure the meat by corning it, as follows: Weigh the meat and for each 100 pounds allow eight pounds of salt; sprinkle a layer of salt one-quarter of an inch in depth over the bottom of the vessel (a stone jar or wooden barrel which has been thoroughly cleaned and scoured is preferable); pack the cuts of meat as closely as possible making a layer five or six inches thick; then add alternate layers of salt and meat, being careful to cover the top layer of meat with considerable salt.

Allow the salted meat to stand overnight, then add a solution composed of ingredients in the following proportion: For 100 pounds of meat use five pounds of sugar, two ounces of baking soda, and four ounces of sulphur dissolved in one gallon of lukewarm water. Mix thoroughly and pour over the meat. Then add three gallons of water. Keep the meat entirely under the brine by using a loose board cover with a weight on it. If any of the meat projects it is apt to cause spoilage.

After being removed from the pickles, the meat should be smoked and hung in a dry place or near the kitchen fire, where the water will evaporate from it. It may be used at any time after smoking, although the longer it hangs in the dry atmosphere the drier it will become. The drier the climate, in general, the more easily can meats be dried. In arid regions good dried meat can be made by exposing it fresh (if protected from flies) to the air.

Pickled and cured meats are smoked to aid in their preservation and to give flavor and palatability. The crescents formed by the burning of wood closes the meat pores to some extent, excluding the air, and is somewhat objectionable to insects. Directions for smoking meats are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1415. Beef on the Farm, which may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture while the supply lasts.

Pastry Paste Useful to Make Delicious Cookies

Plain pastry or pie trimming makes excellent cookies when cut in fancy shapes and decorated, says the United States Department of Agriculture. A thick coating of ground almonds pressed into the paste before cooking makes a particularly good "almond straw." Pie trimming in tiny rounds cut with a small-sized baking powder can be converted into delicious little tea cakes if brushed with egg yolk and sprinkled with granulated sugar, nuts and small bits of candied fruits before baking. Cinnamon may also be used on the tops. Goodies like these may be easily prepared without encroaching too far on the busy homemaker's time.

LEAGUERS OUTWIT PLAINFIELD TEAM

Are Outhit, 13 to 14, But Make Their Bingles Count To Take Contest By 10-8 Score—Worth Hits Triple and Homer—Elko Gets Four Hits.

The Leaguers returned home on the better end again for the fifth time this season, having yet to taste defeat. Their latest achievement occurred in the ball game last Sunday at Brady's Field with the Plainfield Baseball Club, comprised of players of the Crescents, Catholic Club and the Recreations. Jack Martin, a former New York Yankee in 1914 and 1915, played at short for the visitors, but, despite this opposition, the Carteret club took the measure of one of its hardest baseball rivals ever to appear at the local lot before. The contest ended with a score of 10 to 8 and a high total of base hits, including a homer and triple by Butch Worth, who broke up the eleven inning tilt a week before with a similar clout.

The victory was welcomed heartily, but through a mishap, the Leaguers will be without a catcher, however, for the remainder of the season. In the second inning Martin popped a high fly on the side of the third base stands between home plate and third base, and Catcher Brady and Third Baseman Sabo tried for the fly. Both collided as Sabo caught the ball and went down in a heap, Sabo recovering without any injury to amount to anything, while Brady suffered a broken leg. It is believed that the left leg is broken, but positive proof is not assured. An x-ray will be taken.

Brady will be out of the game for the remainder of the season, with the prospects of his re-entering in the late months. Charley Collins, of Rahway, happened to come along at the time of the accident and within a few minutes time, Collins was in a uniform and the game was re-called. Collins starred in his relief role with two hits out of three trips to the plate and a fine performance behind the plate. Speaking of hits, we may mention the blows by Worth. Butch is hitting 'em. He uncorked a homer and a long triple to right in the first and third innings. Both hits were long ones and the homer was probably the longest drive hit into right field, even longer than his first drive, a week previously.

Joey Elko also shone out as one of the game's stars with four hits in five tries and an errorless day in the field, having taken five chances without a slight falter. Jack Martin also wielded the willow in an excellent fashion, getting as good as average as Elko, but his performance in short field was nothing unusual—it could have been much better than it was, for many base hits got by him. The Elizabeth Braves will show up here next Sunday in a game, which should be even better than the above mentioned one, for the Braves have a classy outfit. The Elizabethans played the Field Club last season and lost a 2-1 engagement in their first appearance, but managed to take the locals into camp in the second tilt of the campaign.

TIGERS AND STARS BATTLE TO A DRAW

Stars Tie Score With One Run in Seventh After Trailing Champions—Game Called by Umpire Account of Darkness—Cadillac and Belmonts Tonight.

The Tigers and Stars fought a seven inning draw at Brady's Field last night in a Twilight League contest. The game was called at the end of the seventh on account of darkness, the score standing at six runs all.

In the sixth frame the Tigers led by 6-5 and through some miscalculation the leading team packed up and decided to call it a night, but Bill and Ed Mack protested and the game was resumed. The Stars found Sullivan's offerings for a couple of clean hits and Levi tallied with the tying run. The Stars had a man on third but Beisel fanned for the third out.

BELMONTS PLAY CADILLACS The game between the Belmonts and Cadillac, which was postponed on Tuesday evening will be played off tonight. The contest is scheduled to get off at about 6:15 o'clock. Roth and Morgan will probably form the battery for the Eaters, while Manager Joey Elko's selection for the Belmonts is not ascertained.

BLUE AND WHITE LICKS CRANFORD

Locals Gain Decision Over Union County Lads in Tenth, 10-7.

The High School Junior varsity traveled to Cranford Wednesday afternoon and emerged the victor in a thrilling ten inning combat with the High School varsity nine of that place, 10 to 7. The locals tied the count in the ninth with a two run rally and also managed to drive three more counters across the scoring dish in the tenth, while blanking the enemy tossers in these same frames.

Sexton starred for the winners with the bat, getting three hits out of four tries, while Migletz was also good with four bingles in six official times at bat.

SACRED HEARTS LOSE TO LOCALS

League Leaders Drop Close Battle to Crosswords Here.

The Cross Words played a brilliant game of ball last Sunday afternoon at Brady's Field to defeat the Middlesex County League leading Sacred Hearts of South Amboy. The battle was intense throughout and the outcome was marked by a close score, 5-3. The victory placed the locals in a favorable position to take the lead, which is held by the Levins Stars at the present time, this team having won all of its three tilts played.

A four run rally in the second inning and a circuit clout by Skurat in the sixth featured the locals win; while the visiting combination reached the locals for three runs in their half of the sixth, for their only scoring of the combat.

Next Sunday the Cross Words will have an off day, but regardless of the fact that a rest if given them, the locals will inaugurate a series with the Port Reading A. C., which has been going great during the past few weeks. The game will be played in a preliminary to the Carteret All Leaguers' contest at Brady's Field. Action is scheduled to start at one o'clock.

Reserves vs. Varsity

The entire student body of the local High School is looking with great enthusiasm towards a proposed contest between the varsity nine and the reserves in the near future, probably next week. The Reserves will line up with a fairly strong team, having Gerve Harrigan and Sid Currie as the battery, while the varsity will start off with Migletz flinging to Rosenblum.

The game is not scheduled as yet, but it is probable that it will be arranged for some afternoon next week. Those who will play with the reserves will be: Yaretski, 1b; Brechka, lf; Smolenski, 3b; Harrigan, p; Yerke, 2b; Rubie, ss; Knorr, rf; Herman, cf; Currie, c; Armour, cf; P. Chodash, cf; A. ### FIREMEN DINE AT INN HERE

More Than 75 Guests Attend Banquet of Fire Department of U. S. Metals Refining Company Last Night.

FIREMEN LAUDED

Mr. Aldrich Praises Men for the Splendid Work Done—Fire Chief Robert Winters Acted as Toastmaster.

A delicious menu, splendid entertainment, interesting talks and general merriment were the features of the banquet held by the fire department of the United States Metals Refining Company at the Carteret Inn last night, at which over seventy-five guests attended.

The menu consisted of olives, celery, sweet pickles, cream of celery soup, baked mackerel, roast jumbo squash, baked potatoes, asparagus on toast, pond lily salad, rochefort cheese and saltines, ice cream, coffee and cigars. Joseph Barnes, proprietor of the inn and L. C. Berry, manager, had charge of the catering. Robert Winters, fire chief, acted as toastmaster. In his introductory remarks he gave high praise to the members of the fire company, the splendid co-operation and good work. He also thanked Harry Morecraft for his efforts towards the firemen and C. H. Aldrich for his many worthy deeds to the company. Mr. Aldrich in reply spoke of the wonderful improvement made by the fire department within the last year and declared that it was most gratifying in every way to see the great harmony existing in the body of men, whose principal aims are to safeguard the properties of the plant.

The fire department was given high praise in a series of brief talks made by some of the invited guests, which included Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill, Battalion Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Kenah, of Elizabeth; Engineer John S. Olbricht, Harry Morecraft, J. J. Wisely, M. A. Koeckert and M. W. Merrill. Chief Winters was highly lauded by the speakers for his energetic and wonderful protection of the plant.

The inn was artistically decorated. The music for the evening was furnished by the Hermsdorff orchestra, of Elizabeth. The entertainers included Jack Robinson, John Dunne and Joseph Fitzgerald. Mr. Fitzgerald had charge of the entertainment.

The guests were: R. Winters, chief; F. Muller, assistant chief; J. Wilhelm, William Mackowski, J. Paulin, captains; William Romond, inspector; J. Hagerman, J. Moss, A. Peterson, lieutenants; and J. Sanknar, B. Manarotti, R. Therpesen, F. Makowski, M. Abaravie, J. Mitchell, H. Edwards, C. Kane, P. Fox, E. Duffy, A. Street, J. Girdner, J. Fitzgerald, C. Scott, S. Pistal, J. Olear, C. Green, B. ### WATER COMPANY WINS RATE CASE

Special Master Dawes Declares Rate Decision of Utilities Board Is Unjust and Confiscatory in Reports.

FAVORS INCREASE

Puts Valuation of Water Company at $250,000 and Says Company Should Have a Net Revenue of $180,000.

The water rate which the Middlesex Water Company was allowed by the Public Utilities Commission in a decision handed down July 24, of last year, was declared confiscatory, in a report filed in the federal court at Trenton on Tuesday by Special Master Aaron Davis.

The water company appealed to the federal court, following the board's action, contending that the rates were low. This contention was upheld by the master who recommends that the federal court allow the increase asked by the water company.

The special master contends that the value of the company's property is $250,000 as against $2,190,000 fixed by the Utility Board. The master holds that the company is entitled to a net revenue of $180,000 a year and not $160,000 established by the Utility Commission.

The rates which the company was permitted to make effective are "clearly confiscatory" and the valuation placed on the property by the Utility Commission was far below its true estimate, said the special master.

Prepare To Go To The Sophomore Hop

Have you bought your ticket for the Sophomore Hop? No. You'll surely miss a good time, letting such an event as this slip by without attending.

In case you answer in the negative, "step on it" as they are selling very fast.

It is only a week off and the committees are working very hard completing the arrangements. The chaperons of the affair will be Mrs. J. Child, Mrs. P. Bareford, Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. H. Kay, Miss B. V. Hermann, Miss S. McCarthy, Miss J. Lang, Miss M. Sepple, and members of the High School faculty.

Don't forget to attend this "Hop" at Columbus School on June 5th at 8 o'clock.

Hear Osborn Suit

A jury before Judge Freeman Woodbridge in the district court at New Brunswick heard yesterday testimony in the suit brought by L. Bamberger & Co. of Newark against Elmer E. Osborn, of 195 Pershing avenue, this borough, Francis A. Monaghan represented the defendant.

The suit is the result of an accident that took place at Washington avenue and Atlantic street, here on Dec. 2, 1924. The Bamberger concern sues for $500 damages. A counter complaint has been filed by the defendant for $150.

PROTESTANT RELIGIOUS EDUCATION COUNCILS START CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $225,000

Money to Be Apportioned to State and Counties for Religious Educational Activities.

Realizing that the fundamental elements of a nation's strength are the intelligence and moral character of its people, Protestant churches of New Jersey will start a drive, commencing next Monday, with the object of raising $225,000 to be used in inter-denominational religious education of the young folks of this state.

The Protestant Religious Education Campaign has been approved by the various church denominations and links the Protestant churches into one common cause, namely, to raise the means for maintaining schools of religious instruction in the various cities of this state. It is estimated that the sum to be raised will finance educational activities in both state and counties for a term of two years.

C. W. Shinn is general campaign director, with headquarters at 979 Broad street, Newark. Mr. Shinn was formerly general secretary of the Ohio Council of Religious Education and for a number of years was general secretary of the Chicago Council of Religious Education. Samuel H. Gillespie, of Morristown, is general chairman; Prof. Walter Hauenstrauich is organization chairman; Russel Colgate is treasurer, and Samuel L. Hamilton is general secretary.

In a statement issued by Chas. G. Tinsworth, of Newark, he says: "Ad-

Pres. Coolidge Praises Sabbath Schools

"If this country is to meet successfully the problems confronting it today, there must be first of all a greater recognition of the spiritual side of life; there must be a more widespread acknowledgment of the obligation that we owe to use our power and strength for the general welfare and redemption of humanity.

"The Sabbath Schools furnish today the great agency by which these spiritual ideals may be made a part of the lives of the younger generation of Americans, and the growth of the schools will mark the spread of these principles.

"I wish you every success in your effort which may strengthen and build up your Sabbath School Association."

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

ent and eighth grades of the public schools are released for one hour each week from their regular school work and actually go to nearby churches for religious instruction under paid teachers who are trained quite instruction in religion is the missing factor in our otherwise noble system of American public education.

"The public school tries hard to build good character. Back of its lessons in conduct it sets the motive of patriotism. To the stronger motive of religious faith it may not appeal. That belongs to church and home. So, with all its plant, faculty and curriculum, it cannot secure conduct controlled by high ideals.

"Without faith in God, morals are in danger. On every hand we see the social consequences of letting a generation grow up taught in many worthy studies but illiterate in religion.

"With but little religious instruction, it seems, youthful feet can be kept from the paths of crime. Supreme Court Judge Fawcett of Brooklyn says that of the four thousand boys who have come before him for sentence, only three were members of the Sunday school—and their offenses were not serious.

"With more and better instruction, combining with book study practice in reverent worship and active Christian service, the religious school not merely safeguards against evil, but builds lives in righteousness. In the hundreds of American communities where such schools have now been established, these happy results are beginning to appear.

"New Jersey needs more and better Sabbath schools; it needs more Daily Vacation Bible Schools; it needs more week-day schools of religion such as we have established in Morristown where 98 per cent of the children of the fifth, sixth, sever for their tasks. New Jersey also needs more training schools where the teachers and officers of church schools can be trained for their tasks. All these things require money and it behooves every citizen interested in a cleaner, better childhood and a more wholesome, moral manhood and womanhood to contribute to the ut most limit to so worthy a cause.

The Catholics and Jews are already leading in this matter.

County committees have been chosen and county headquarters established under the supervision of the following assistant campaign directors:

Rev. Herbert W. Blashfield, head quarters in Trenton, in charge of Mercer and Middlesex counties; Rev. E. Morris Fergusson, D.D., head quarters in Paterson, in charge of Passaic, Morris and Sussex counties; L. B. Edgar, headquarters in Jersey City, in charge of Bergen and Hudson counties; Rev. H. A. Duffie, headquarters in Bernardsville, in charge of Hunterdon and Warren counties; Samuel B. Fares, head quarters in Elizabeth, in charge of Union, Monmouth and Ocean counties; Rev. J. C. Lappeus, H. R. Bowen and Margaret Brown will have charge of Burlington, Camden, Gloucester, Atlantic, Salem, Cumberland and Cape May counties and have established headquarters at Camden. D. H. Wing and Rev. Kemper K. McComb, with headquarters in Newark, will be in charge of Essex county. Somerset county is in charge of W. C. Foster, with headquarters in Somerville.

Dignities in Store

The dignities that confront the elder are usually appalling to the younger sister, and there is a little girl the airmore who has been giving to the subject much careful attention. She electrified the family at breakfast on one occasion by announcing:

"Next year Samuel will be a lawn mower. I wonder why they call him that."

"A lawn mower?" echoed the astonished mother. "What do you mean?"

"That is what you told me," replied the little maid, gravely. "This year he was a freshman. Next year he'll be a lawn mower, and then a janitor and then a senior. And then he'll graduate."

First Wireless Messages

A record has been discovered of alleged wireless telegraphy as long ago as 1662. In that year a book by P. de l'Ancere was published, in which the author reported that a man had demonstrated to King Henry of Germany a means of communicating with absent persons. The inventor rubbed two needles against a magnet, and attached them to different clocks. As an operator turned the needle on one clock dial the needle on the other made the same movement, regardless of the distance which separated the clocks. King Henry, it is stated, forbade the publication of the invention!

Cougar Kills Boy

Wenatchee, Wash.—Jimmy Fehlhaber, thirteen, an orphan of Spokane, was killed by a cougar recently near Brewster when he went to round up some strayed cattle. Parts of the boy's body had been devoured when it was found. His knife, indicating he had put up a fight, was found in the brush.

YOUR Last Name

IS IT SEWALL?

THE New England Sewalls and Sewells have the satisfaction of knowing that they were descended from Henry Sewall, mayor of Coventry, England, in 1604. His son, Henry Sewall, came to New England and settled in Newberry, Massachusetts, in 1634. By his wife Jane Drummer he had a son named Samuel Sewall who was one of the most interesting of the Massachusetts colonists of his day. He gives an excellent chance to know him in his famous diary which recounts with quaintness, humor and rare truthfulness the details of his courtship in later life.

His first wife was Judith Quincy Hall and when he was married to her Governor Bradstreet performed the ceremony. It was on this occasion that the bride's father presented the young bridegroom with a chest full of pine tree shillings equaling the bride in weight.

At his second marriage Samuel's own son officiated.

Samuel Sewall was one of the judges who took an active part in condemning the witches. Later he saw the error of his ways and did not hesitate to confess his error and lament over the action he had taken. It was his custom to spend frequent days in prayer and fasting by way of repenting for his action in the witchcraft trials, although he undoubtedly acted according to his best judgment at the time.

Samuel Sewall made large bequests to Harvard. Joseph Sewall, one of his descendants, declined the presidency of Harvard in 1724, and Joseph's grandson, named Samuel, was member of congress from Massachusetts.

Jonathan Sewall, born in 1766, chief justice of Lower Canada, was a member of this family; born at Cambridge, Massachusetts, he spent his boyhood in England and from thence went to Canada.

The name is usually spelled here Sewall although it is said that at the time of the Revolution members of the family who remained loyal took the spelling Sewell. Apparently most of them were revolutionists for the spelling Sewell is very rare here.

One of the earliest of the name in England was Sewall de Sovill, archbishop of York.

Renovate Waxed Floors

A soiled waxed floor can be easily renovated, says the United States Department of Agriculture. If it is not in bad condition, rubbing with a cloth saturated with turpentine or gasoline will brighten it so that a fresh coat of wax may be applied. If necessary, however, the old coating of wax and dirt may be entirely removed by rubbing first with No. 1 steel wool dipped in turpentine and then with a soft cloth, after which the floor may be refinished with varnish or wax.

Electric Folding Ironer

$5 Down—Eighteen Months to Pay

When the Hurley Machine Company designed this little wonder ironer, it corrected all the faults that ironers used to have, and added all the things that women demanded in a good ironer.

Housekeepers wanted a smaller ironer that could be moved around, one that didn't take up much room when not in use. Here it is!

Only thirty inches wide, the Thor can be easily wheeled about. It folds up so that it needs only about two square feet when not in use.

Folding Thor Features

Aluminum shoe—only one-third the weight of cast iron, from which ironing devices are usually made. Specially treated for ironing purposes.

The roll has specially prepared patented padding that need only be hung up to air occasionally, to restore all of its resilience.

The Thor Folding Ironer is equipped with two clothes racks, so you need not interrupt the ironing to hang up the ironed pieces.

With all these advantages in lighter weight and compactness, the Folding Thor Ironer is able to do a big day's work. It irons everything—men's shirts, children's clothes—embroidered things come out like new!

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT By F. A. WALKER

UPLAND SOLITUDES

IT IS becoming a mooted question among observing educators as to whether our present-day diversions do not often dwarf the budding intellects of the young and carry them far afield in the wrong direction.

With the possible exception of music, the universal language, our entertainments, as a rule, have become mere frivolities, appealing to the baser passions, the redoubtable features in almost all cases being the superb stage settings.

With their deft brushes the scenery painters seem to be doing more for the elevation of the mind than the welders of the stage plot.

Without the exquisite scenes many of our popular plays could indeed become miserable makeloffs, incapable of holding the boards a fortnight.

The fine art of acting is being relegated to the past. There is a craving for the gross, glaring, flagrant and thumping, rather than for the refined, uplifting and ennobling, doubtless due to perverted tastes and cravings for sensationalism and excitement.

The intermediate coils and fine shadings of the older school have given way to higher tones whose intensities and limits have about been reached.

Just what will follow cannot be guessed, except to hint in a vague way that this modern tower of Babel will some day stately topple over, tumble noisily about its feet and leave us babbling in stange tongues, wondering what confusion means!

There is in the human heart an everlasting yearning for something new, and no one apparently knows what to suggest.

It is just possible that we need now, more than anything else, the upland solitudes, when we may get in the pure, clear atmosphere and reflect awhile without distraction from the crude scarlet letters and blinding lights which have warped our judgment and dulled our per sensitivities.

We need these upland solitudes far more often than we suspect, for it is among them that we gather new strength for the highest uses of life, a keener conception of our frailties, a deeper realization of our lack of human kindness and a keening sense at the loss of our faith in the good, the clean, the noble and in humanity itself!

"Presbyterian True Blue"

The expression "Presbyterian true blue" is an allusion to the blue aprons some early Presbyterian preachers carried about with them and used to throw over their preaching tubs before they began to address their audiences.

"Hand and Seal"

Ancient oriental rulers used thumb impressions on legal documents hence the expression, "hereto I set my hand and seal." Incidentally this practice led into the modern-day finger print identification system.

ELECTRICITY ON THE FARM!

Economists say that the United States is prosperous above all other countries because America does mechanically so many things that other people do by hand. In other words, greater production provides wider distribution of property and wealth. Typical of the American spirit is the extension of mechanical operations to the farm, in which electricity, the power PAR EXCELLENCE, is playing an ever-increasing part. With its network of transmission and distribution lines covering the Nation's highway between New York and Philadelphia, Public Service puts electric energy at the service of cities, towns, villages and farms in the territory it serves.

As long as man has need of POWER, the production of electricity will be a basic industry. Wise investors realizing this truth are turning more and more to public utility securities as safe and sound. The opportunity to secure an unusually attractive public utility investment is open to you through our offer of

Memorial Day

Tomorrow, Saturday, is Memorial Day. We will gather here to review the memories and to honor the fallen heroes of four American wars.

At the middle of last century we engaged in a war with Mexico and twelve years later marked the beginning of our long and bloody civil war.

To pay loving tribute to all of these gallant men who offered their lives in defense of country and of principles vital to liberty, we of Carteret in common with millions of our fellow citizens throughout the length and breadth of the land will gather tomorrow to testify in speech and song, with silent tears and fragrant flowers our appreciation of what they did.

Some of them sleep in marble cities of the dead, guarded by a nation's faithful vigils; some in old fields and beside quiet streams; some in Flanders fields where the poppies grow red as the blood that was shed upon the hard fought fields of France, and some lie in unknown graves.

All over the United States tomorrow the graves of true American men, graves now and still unclaimed by nature and graves of long ago, leveled perhaps by time's obliterating hand, will be honored by those whose lives have been made liveable by the nobility and heroism of those who have died.

ELECTRIC POWER STATIONS LINKED BY RADIO WAVES

RADIO has become so identified with the field of amusement that its adaptability to a constantly enlarging sphere of usefulness is often lost sight of.

Under the name "wireless" almost everyone is familiar of course with its importance as a method of communication between ships at sea and especially as an instrument used by ships in distress in signalling for help.

One of the latest uses to which this marvelous discovery has been adapted is that of communication between electric power plants.

To meet just such emergencies 2XBF at Essex and 2CON at Marion were built. The former is a commercial experimental station and the latter an amateur station.

The antenna is a conspicuous part of the landscape, being 150 feet above the ground and 50 feet above the steel work of the Essex power plant.

Your Health By ANDREW F. CURRIER, M.D. NERVOUSNESS

NERVOUSNESS may be an evidence of diseased organs and tissues; or that the psychic part of the individual, the will, desires, emotions, senses, are out of joint and have gone on strike.

This term is dear to the heart of those who are nervous, and few of them would be willing to give it up for any other.

With doctors the condition is known under such terms as nervous excitement, neurasthenia, hysteria, and hypochondria.

It is perhaps best expressed by the term "nervous excitement."

Nervousness from real disease, or from an impending event of seriousness and great importance, is easily understood, and it would be a rare person who did not suffer from nervous excitement under such conditions, even if he did not cry out and make a great time about it.

Again, a child with scarlet fever, with parched mouth and heated body, with unbalanced mind and uncontrollable restlessness, may have his nervousness or nervous excitement as a direct product of disease.

Or a child of high-strung parents and excitable temperament is denied a toy, or compelled to go to bed when he prefers to sit up, whereupon he cries and stamps his feet or breaks dishes or throws things at his mother's head.

This, also, is nervous excitement or nervousness, but has no direct relation to disease.

Or a woman cries or laughs immoderately perhaps over trifles, or is unable to keep quiet or has a foreboding of evil, scolds, or finds fault continually, and we are compelled to say this woman is laboring under strong nervous excitement or simply that she is hysterical.

When nervousness proceeds from disease, we must cure the causative disease to get rid of the nervousness, and we cannot prevent it except as we prevent the exciting cause.

It may be an indication of insanity and show that mind and body require certain remedies, whether they are suitable hygiene or food or medicines.

When nervousness is unassociated with disease, the great thing is to train the will; to determine persistently not to give way until victory or death results.

Such a task is all the harder if the will was not brought under some measure of control in early life.

Nervousness may come to anybody, but it is far more common in women and children than in men.

It is less common in women who work hard, day by day, than in those who have been brought up in luxury and idleness and who spend their time in frivolity or in tasks which are of no consequence.

Children have it so often that it becomes a reflection on their bad inheritance or their bad bringing up.

Asafoetida is not a pleasant smelling drug, but a five-grain pill will often cure an attack of nerves, and I never heard of its forming an asafoetida habit.

Useful, also, are infusions of camomile, pennyroyal, catnip, and other herb teas dear to our grandmothers. (Copyright by George Matthew Adams)

Archangela Paladini Archangela, Paladini, an Italian historical painter, was born at Pisa in 1590 and died in 1622, aged twenty-three. She was the daughter of Filippo Paladini, an eminent artist of that day, who instructed her in art. She attained great excellence in portrait painting and also excelled in embroidery and music, and sang exquisitely. These uncommon talents, united with an agreeable personality, procured her the friendship of Maria Magdalena, archduchess of Austria, who lived at Florence, and in which court the artist passed the last years of her life.—Chicago Journal.

P. S. Corp. Announce Additional Issue of Stock

An additional issue of common stock, without nominal or par value, was voted by the directors of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey Tuesday afternoon. The issue will be on the basis of one share of stock for each ten shares of common or preferred stock outstanding as of the close of business June 5, next, which means that the total allotment will be not less than 131,200 shares, there being approximately ten times that number of common and preferred shares now in the hands of stockholders.

Shareholders of record on June 5, will have the option of subscribing for one new share for each ten shares of common or preferred stock they hold on that date. Subscription blanks will be furnished to all stockholders and subscriptions may be filed at the office of the Corporation in Newark or its agency the Guaranty Trust Company in the Borough of Manhattan, such right to subscribe for the additional stock to expire at the close of business June 5, 1925.

Subscriptions shall be paid for in cash at the rate of $62.50 for each share, on or before August 1, 1925. In case any stockholder is entitled to a fraction of a share, such fractional shares, combined with others, making one or more full shares will be accepted as a subscription. Negotiable subscription warrants will be issued to stockholders of record as of June 5 by the treasurer on or about July 7. Any shares authorized and not subscribed for by August 1 have already been underwritten.

The directors of the corporation also voted Tuesday to declare a quarterly dividend of $2 on the 8% cumulative preferred stock; $1.75 on the 7% preferred stock, and $1.25 a share on the non par common stock. Dividends will be paid June 30 to stockholders of record June 5.

OFF DAYS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

EVER have it happen, too? Off days ever come to you When you say the foolish thing, Specialize in blundering? That's the day I have today; Ev'rything I do and say In some weak and foolish way.

There are days a fellow's head Acts like ivory or lead— When the things you say, by far, Make you worse out than you are, When the things you tell the rest Make you look your foolishest, When you want to look your best.

It's the day you make mistakes, Blunders, fumbles, silly breaks, It's the day that often comes When your fingers all are thumbs, Dropping ev'ry throw to first— For a man is often cursed With a day he's at his worst.

Well, if such days come to you, Just remember others, too, Have an off day now and then; Just remember other men, Like yourself, get off their game— Be a little slow to blame, Knowing you are much the same.

PUBLIC SERVICE Men and Women The Trackman It is the job of The Trackman to keep in repair and renew when necessary the nearly 900 miles of track over which PUBLIC SERVICE street cars operate. In a year he reconstructs with old rail an average of seven miles, lays an average of seventeen miles of new rail and renews thousands of joints and ties. Of all the vehicles that use the public highways, the street car is the only one that provides its own track without expense to the general public, yet street cars transport more passengers than do all other vehicles combined. Of the millions of dollars expended each year to maintain streets and roads only a small part is spent because of the use of public streets made by street cars. From the standpoint of the general public and of the rider street cars are the backbone of the transit system and The Trackman helps to make them so.

High School Tossers Whitewashed Tuesday

Unable to solve the offerings of Pitcher Dey, Carteret High School lost another diamond contest Tuesday afternoon to Jamesburg by a whitewash score of 3 to 0 at Jamesburg. The contest was well played throughout the seven innings and consequently the scoring which did take place was done through clean hitting. Carteret failed to come through in the opening frame in which they managed to load the bases with only one man retired. Lehrer and Carpenter fanned to end the inning and bring on the unfortunate result.

The score:

CARTERET H. S.
	AB.	R.	H.
Wexler, cf	2	0	0
Miglecz, p	3	0	1
Daniel, ss	3	0	1

Totals	23	3	5

The score by innings:
Carteret 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
Jamesburg 1 1 1 0 0 0 x-3
Two base hit—Chario. Struck out—by Miglecz, 4; by Dey, 13. Bases on balls—off Miglecz, 1; off Dey, 2. Hit by pitcher—by Dey, (Wexler, Carpenter); by Miglecz, (Dowgin, Balewitz). Umpire—Applegate.

Have the Same Meaning

The words "tube" and "chimney" may be used interchangeably, but the word "chimney" usually has reference to the upright structure of brick, stone or the like that extends some distance above a building; it also has reference to the funnel or stack of a steam boiler. The word "tube" is the channel or passage for smoke, air and the gases of combustion to pass through.

CONCERT BAND ENTERTAINS

Wartburg Orphans Farm School Delight Listeners.

Those who have attended the concert given by the twenty-six piece band of the Wartburg Orphan's Farm School, of Mt. Vernon, given at the Columbus School Auditorium on Wednesday night, were surely treated to a delightful entertainment. The boys played unusually well and each and every number was thoroughly enjoyed. The musicale was given under the auspices of the German Evangelical Lutheran church.

The following program was rendered:

- "Flag of Victory, march, F. V. Blon.
- "Mignonne, overture, J. Bauman.
- "Auf Wiedersehen," waltz, E. H. Bailey.
- "Lizzie Polka," cornet solo, J. Hartman, by Joseph Johnson.
- "A Night in Berlin," potpourri, C. Meurelles.
- Address by Rev. S. G. von Boese, director of the Wartburg Orphan's Farm School.
- "Mazopka," overture, F. Mahl.
- "Souvenir de Valence," saxophone solo, Joseph Hauschild.
- "Echoes from the Opera," M. Beyer.
- "Grand American Fantasia," Tr. Bendix.
- "Aida Overture," W. D. McCaugherty.

Job for Police

Early in the morning a woman telephoned to the Reading (Pa.) police to come to her house, and upon the arrival of the officers in a car, she requested them to compel her son to take his cough medicine, which the lad had refused to do. The police declined jurisdiction.

Might Be Possible

"The kinds of buttons and the way of using them are varied," read Mrs. Grouch, who was giving the fashion page the once over. "I suppose," growled her husband, "they might even be used to hold my underwear on if I ever could get them sewed on." —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Imperfect Job

Of many a self-made man we know there can be little doubt; in some respects he'd be improved had he given the contract out.

They All Do

Mr. Bacon—Did you hear those mealy roosters crowing this morning early?
Mrs. Bacon—Yes, dear.
Mr. Bacon—I wonder what on earth they want to do that for?
Mrs. Bacon—Why, don't you remember, dear, you got up one morning early, and you crowed about it for a week?—The Watchword (Dayton, Ohio).

Weather Wise

Widow Waffles—Yes, three times I've dreamed you and me was going 'and in' and down the church path. I wonder wot it do mean?
Widower William (a laggard in love)—A-ah now—I shoudn't wonder if it don't mean we be goin' to 'ave a drop o' rain.

True

"Girls, gnoes, saxophones, horse-racing—a young man has many interests, so many things that have no place in the life of the middle-aged codger."
"Still, the latter is kept busy taking medicine."

His Training

The Farmer—Not a brain cell working in you! Where did you ever learn farming?
The New Hired Man—Me? Why, I've studied every old homestead and back-to-the-farm play that's been screened.

Ancient See

The see of Canterbury, occupied by the primate of the Church of England, was established about 600, by Augustine, a Benedictine monk, sent by Pope Gregory the Great, in 597, to convert England to Christianity.

HIS REAL PROBLEM

The father promised he would do what he could for him, but with certain limitations as to the providing of money.
"But," said he, "I hope you will understand that you will never get on in the world unless you adopt a more rigid code of morals and the purpose to keep straight."
"Rigidity sounds very well, dad," agreed the youth, "but I wish you'd make clear to me how a chap's to keep straight while he's trying to make both ends meet."

CONVENIENT JACKS

"When your machine broke down in the street how'd you ever manage to get it fixed?"
"Oh, there are always a lot of jacks standing around that want to help."

ONLY BIG MONEY TALKS

Life is just a-sayin' Sweetest things to you; Don't need harps for playin' And a Georgia fiddle, too!

"So you don't think money talks much?"
"No; that is, not till it gets big."
