

SEE MENACE IN FOOT- AND-MOUTH DISEASE

Virus Found Too Powerful for Experiments.

Washington.—The highly infectious nature of foot and mouth disease virus, the extremely small size of its active agent, and its ability to escape identification as to its true nature are the outstanding results of the year's study by the American commission which went to Europe in 1925 to study foot-and-mouth disease and is preparing its official report.

The commission comprises Dr. Harry W. Schoening of the United States bureau of animal industry, Dr. Jacob Traum of the University of California, and Dr. Peter K. Ollitsky of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. By a special act of congress the commission was empowered to conduct studies of foot-and-mouth disease abroad with the hope of obtaining information to be used in suppressing most effectively any outbreaks of the malady that may occur in the United States.

The dangers of experimenting with the foot-and-mouth disease virus in the United States were considered too great to permit studies in this country. On the other hand, official European countries where the disease is constantly present welcomed the investigations of the American commission and gave assistance.

Virus Extremely Active.
Though highly technical, the findings of the commission show briefly that the virus of foot-and-mouth disease is extremely active and dangerous. It produced the disease experimentally when diluted as much as one part in ten million. The organism is too small to be seen by the most powerful microscopes. As further proof of its minuteness, the investigators found that centrifugal force for two hours at from 2,500 to 3,000 revolutions a minute failed to throw the organism out of solution.

The resistance of foot-and-mouth disease virus to strong antiseptics also proved to be surprisingly great. Whereas 60 per cent alcohol kills ordinary bacteria within a minute it failed to destroy the virus of foot-and-mouth disease in 26 hours. The virus also showed abnormal resistance to other antiseptics, such as acetone, bichloride of mercury and cresol.

Reporting that foot-and-mouth disease is one of the most contagious diseases known, the commission further notes that in hay or in garden soil it remained living for at least 25 days and the infective agent may persist for longer periods under favorable conditions for its protection.

Bacteria Baffles Cultivation.
The commission's work included studies of immunity and the susceptibility of many kinds of experimental animals. The causative agent of foot-and-mouth disease appears to be separate from any of the known kinds of bacteria of the ordinary species and has baffled artificial cultivation by any means now available. The commission's attempts to produce an active artificial immunity against foot-and-mouth disease were unsuccessful.

Highly technical studies showed that the electric charge of the virus is positive and that the electric charge influenced the passage of the virus through certain types of filter materials. This group of studies, though showing the active agent of the virus to be extremely small, indicated that it is not of a fluid character.

In cattle studies, active virus was found in the saliva before any lesions of the disease were observed. Other workers also have reported the ability of animals in the fever stage to infect others before external signs are seen. The earthworm could not be implicated as a carrier.

A close scrutiny of methods used in Europe for controlling foot-and-mouth disease by rigid quarantine showed that even the severest form of quarantine is relatively ineffective compared with the prompt slaughter of diseased and exposed animals, as practiced in the United States.

European officials with whom the American scientists discussed methods of combating foot-and-mouth disease agreed that, when its extent is limited to a small percentage of the animals, the slaughter and clean-up method is the only effective one, besides being the most economical.

Missouri Man Captures Coon With His Hands

Linn, Mo.—William B. Nilges of near Linn decries the use of dogs, guns, and axes in capturing coons. He uses his bare hands and has had a lot of luck in his new venture. Nilges, when he spies a coon in a tree, rapidly scales it and grabs the aforesaid coon by the tail. Nilges says the coon is at a considerable disadvantage in that position and cannot put up much of a fight. It is just a matter of a few moments to kill him.

Mixture of Races

The Welsh are a Celtic people. At the time of the coming of the Romans in 55 B. C. the natives of Wales represented a mixture of the primitive Iberians and the later invading Celts, all bearing the general name of Gymry. Afterward the Celtic inhabitants of Britain took refuge in Wales, where they were driven westward by the Anglo-Saxons. In time they merged with the natives.

THESE TANKS STORE WASTE STEAM SO THAT IT CAN BE USED AGAIN IN THE MANUFACTURE OF GAS

Steam Accumulators at Harrison Gas Works.

These two giant steel tanks at the Harrison Gas Works of Public Service Electric and Gas Company are reservoirs where waste steam is stored so that it can be used again in the manufacture of gas. The tanks are called accumulators. All the steam used to operate the various engines, turbines and pumps at the gas works is led back to the accumulators after it has done its work in the various units. Each accumulator is filled to about seventy-five per cent of its capacity with water which acts as a medium for heat storage. In the accumulators are a number of mixing tubes so arranged that the water and steam are thoroughly mixed and a continuous circulation of the water is secured. A steam pressure of fifteen pounds is maintained by means of automatic regulators and steam is supplied to the gas generators at a constant pressure of seven pounds.

Colors of Grapes

The dark red color of certain grapes is due to a compound of tannin which all varieties of the vine contain. The color seems to depend on the combined action of the air, light and heat. The change in color is produced naturally in the vine by means of a specific ferment which carries the oxygen of the air to the grape. These ferments are often the agents of coloring in vegetable substances; as they are often seen in apples and in potatoes which have been cut open and thus exposed to the air. The grapes that are white on maturity owe the absence of coloring to the absence of this ferment.

Daddy Was Too Smart

It was little Barbara's first experience with tunnels and her father who was on the train with her said in fun, "Now watch, dear; papa's going to make a sign and it will get dark, but in a little while the light will come back." Immediately the train entered the tunnel, and the child was deeply impressed by exhibition of her father's magic power. But the few minutes' time seemed interminable to Barbara; it seemed as if it would never end, and at length she burst out in dismay, "My gracious, daddy; now just look what you've done!"—Boston Transcript.

Gives the Elephant Palm for Sagacity

"Which elephant is the most intelligent?" repeated the keeper of these huge beasts at the London zoo, when asked the question. "Well, the elephant exceeds any other animal in the world for sheer common sense and quick perception. He seems to have far more brain than any of the rest."

"I should say that Indarini, the big Indian elephant, is our finest animal for this, though the two Burmese ones, living together in the same den, would run her close, no doubt. Her gentleness when carrying folk on her back in the gardens; her quick grasp of what is wanted by her attendants or patrons; her intelligent love and care for children, have made Indarini a general favorite, as well as my own. She will nurse a baby or boy or girl as carefully as the kindest mother, will fold it close to her, will croon over it, will rock it in a cradle, will watch it when sleeping, with looks of affection, and would kill anyone who attempted to hurt it."

Crippled Industry

"Jedge," a very large and determined colored woman announced as she ushered a frightened ex-husband into his honor's chamber, "dis nigger ain't paid me one cent ob alimony for sebben months."

"What's the matter, Sam?" sternly inquired the judge. "Haven't you been working lately?"

"Nosh," was the response. "Ah ain't bin able to find mah dice."—Country Gentleman.

Jean became ill with chicken pox. Her mother made her stay in the house from play, and a wondering friend called to find out why she was not out. Jean's mother told him that she had the chicken pox and could not come out. The lad rushed away and breathlessly broke the news to his mother. "Oh, mother, Jean can't come out because she's got the chicken coops."

Useful "Camphor Bug"

In a small insect discovered in the forests of Sumatra, an English naturalist sees a possible rival of the camphor tree as a source of the useful drug. The creature secretes a milky fluid which possesses the properties of camphor, it is said, and the suggestion has been made that these insects might be raised artificially, as are silkworms, to produce camphor, which is now obtained from trees.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Mayor then asked the property owners to say "yes" or "no" on a proposed sewer. He said there should be a petition from the owners on each street. He called for remarks. The following were then heard:

Mr. Trefinko was in favor of a good sized sewer. Michael Claus, owning a thousand feet on Roosevelt Avenue was in favor of sewer and water. Clarence Slugg was in favor, if all owners are assessed. Carteret Realty Co., Mr. Christensen, in favor of sewer and water, if all assessed equally. Will give further decision at next meeting.

George Yuronka in favor of sewer. Mrs. Sabo in favor of sewer. William D. Casey in favor of sewer but thought it should be a trunk sewer and paid for by the Borough as a whole. Alex. Lebovitz, same opinion as Mr. Casey. Joseph Lysek in favor of sewer. He also stated he thought there were 75% of the property owners present, in favor of sewer, and that work on same should be started at once.

The Mayor then asked if there were any objections. As there were none, the Mayor suggested that petitions from each street be turned in to the Council. Motion by Ellis and Vonah that the matter be left to the Council, Engineer and Attorney as a whole was carried.

The Mayor suggested that petitions be prepared, to be sent to the Supreme Court of the U. S. for their decision on the water question. Motion by Vonah and Ellis that the Attorney prepare such petition, and to let the Public Utilities Commission know of the action taken.

Although British zoologists have exploited the country thoroughly in recent years, Doctor Smith has found several new species. The Siamese collection will prove most useful, museum officials say, for until now it has had few specimens from there. Doctor Smith will remain in Siam for some time investigating the fish fauna for the Siamese government. During that time he also plans to send further collections of birds to the United States.

Practical Patriotism An amusing incident of the German occupation of Lille during the World war is related by a young American aviator whose war diary is published in Liberty. The diarist had been to visit friends in the American army who were stationed at Armentieres.

On his return, he recorded: "I heard a funny story down there. The Germans took Lille and the allies held Armentieres. For a long time the factories in Armentieres continued to be run on electricity that came from Lille. A Frenchman was kept to run the power plant by the Germans and he didn't cut Armentieres off. It was several months before he was caught."

Good News for the Traffic Dodger?

The nation's greatest migration is to be made this summer. According to figures furnished R. H. Grant, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, by officials of the American Automobile Association, before the close of 1927 40,000,000 people—a third of the country's population—will travel by motor car. Their wheeled flight over highways and byways, mountain and plain, constitute the most colossal peace-time movement in the history of mankind.

These vast caravansaries will use between 9,900,000 and 10,000,000 automobiles in their wanderings—almost half the passenger cars in use in the nation. These figures are based on the situation which prevailed in 1926.

All indications point to an increase of about 10 per cent in the number of tourists and the number of automobiles. The summer of 1926 found 36,000,000 people taking to the highways in approximately 9,000,000 automobiles.

A vast amount of money will be spent by the traveling hosts to enrich the innumerable cities and towns and the millions of stay-at-home servants that cater to road-side wants. The traveler will spend at least three and a third billion dollars—a tremendous factor in the increased prosperity of thousands of communities throughout the nation.

Of the total of ten million cars which will be on the road, three and a third millions will carry camping equipment and tour for an average of 33 days each. The other two-thirds will patronize hotels and will spend an average of 10 days on tour. For the canvas brigade the daily expenditure is estimated at $10 per car or $33,333,000 daily for them all, which in 33 days will total nearly $1,100,000,000. The hotel tourists will find their expenses running about even with the camping cohorts, although touring about only one-third as long, and will spend approximately $2,200,000,000. At the most conservative estimate it is safe to assume that the resorts, hotels, garages, filling stations and other agencies catering to motor travel will benefit to the extent of at least $3,300,000,000 from this year's mighty host of motor vacationists.

The vanguard of the great migration already is upon the highways, the first hardy thousands setting out at the first signs of spring. Every touring area in the country is reporting substantial increases and these reports have been borne out by the demands for touring information made at automobile clubs. The cult of the open road is in session. Camping facilities have been greatly improved and extended and their development seems certain to make this phase of touring much more popular—setting a new record in 1927 for the migratory travelers. There will be more people, young and old, on the road than ever before. There will be more cars, more money, more pleasure.

A few years ago vacation travel was considered an expensive luxury. Today it can be made almost as inexpensive as living at home for the family which wishes to spend their time in camps—and "Seeing America First" will have deep meaning for millions of former stay-at-homes.

Table Oilcloth
The table oilcloth will last longer if it is not tucked fast to the table. These oilcloths covers usually wear out at the corners. By allowing it to hang loosely it can be moved a trifle each day, and thus the table corners do not come in the same spot on the cover all the time—as is the case when tucked. Naturally, by this method the corners will not wear out before the rest of the oilcloth. The appearance of the cover can be considerably improved by the addition of a cretonne band at the edge.

Carving the Canyon
The popular idea that earthquakes and volcanic explosions played a part in forming the Grand canyon of the Colorado river is thought by the best authorities to be without foundation. We are now told that the canyon was cut out entirely by the water of the river and that the most effective tool employed was the quartz sand brought down from the sources of the river in the mountains. This sand is harder than any of the constituents of the rock strata in which the canyon has been carved.

Bread From Bulrushes
From the bulrush which, growing in marshes and other wet ground, flourishes in almost all climates, perfectly good bread can be made. In fact long bulrush stalks are considered a real delicacy among the races in central Asia. The percentage of starch is large and makes excellent flour. Natives of Iceland, where bulrushes are not so plentiful, find a substitute material for breadmaking in a certain species of moss. They call it "bread from the stones."

Just Off
When on circuit at a northern town, a judge left his lodgings one night to post a letter. As he was wearing an old jacket and a cap, he was not recognized by the policeman on duty outside, who inquired "if the old devil had gone to bed yet." The judge declared that he did not think so. Then, returning inside, he put his head out of his bedroom window and said, "Officer, the old devil is going to bed now."—London Tit-

Johnson Saw No Good Qualities in Merchant

Doctor Johnson was bitterly prejudiced against all merchants, says the Market for Exchange. His famous biographer, Boswell, once asked him what was the reason for his anger at the trader who achieved opulence, and Johnson replied:

"Why, sir, the reason is, though I do not undertake to prove that is a reason, we see no qualities in trade that should entitle such a man to superiority. We are not angry at a soldier's getting rich, because we see that he possesses qualities which we have not. If a man returns from battle, having lost one hand, with the other full of gold, we feel that he deserves the gold, but we cannot think that a fellow sitting all day at a desk is entitled to get above us."

"But," replied Boswell, "may we not suppose a merchant to be a man of an enlarged mind, such as Addison in the Spectator describes Sir Andrew Freeport to have been?"

"Why, sir," quoth Johnson, "we may suppose any fictitious character. We may suppose a philosophical day laborer, who is happy in reflecting that, by his labor, he contributes to the fertility of the earth and the support of his fellow creatures, but we find no such philosophical day laborer. A merchant may, perhaps, be a man of an enlarged mind, but there is nothing in trade connected with a large mind."

Young Fishes Hatched in Mouth of Mother

The female of a small fresh-water fish found in Egypt, known as the mouth-breeder, protects her eggs by carrying them in her mouth, where they remain until the young ones hatch out; but the habits of some of the perch-like fish called cichlids are even more remarkable, for not only do the females take their eggs into their mouths, but they also carry their young ones within this strange shelter. The fry do not leave their nursery until they are about a fortnight old, but the mother eventually liberates them from their somewhat confined quarters and allows them to swim about outside. They do not venture far, however, keeping quite close to their parent's head, and darting into her mouth again at the least sign of danger. They also pass the night within this safe retreat.

Fixing Cracked Varnish
Furniture finishers, especially those who have to restore pieces of furniture that have become damaged, make use of what they call "amalgamators." These contain solvents that soften the varnish and cause small cracks and checks to run together. One formula is two parts of heavy-bodied wood lacquer reduced with eight parts of lacquer thinner and one part of butyl alcohol. This is applied cautiously with a very soft brush after the surface has been lightly sanded. A second application can be made, if necessary, after the first has dried thoroughly and been sanded smooth. — Popular Science Monthly.

Almost Real
Three ladies of color were in a heated debate over their husbands' cleverness to play the violin. "When mah ol' man plays 'Ol' Black Joe' on his fiddle," said Mandy, "you can jes' hear ol' Joe's cane specklin' along de road." "When mah husban' plays 'Swanee Ribber,'" boasted Liza, "yo' can hear de waves ripplin' ovah de rocks." "Huh," declared Blossom, "dat's nuthin' a-tall. When mah sugah plum takes up his fiddle and plays 'De Ol' Cat Played in de Shavin's,' you could jes' hear you mammy throwin' a shoe at it."—The Lawyer and Banker.

Past Ages of History
The term Middle Ages strictly covers the ten centuries from the fall of the western Roman empire in 476 A. D. to the commencement of the Reformation in the Fifteenth century. The first three centuries of this period have a distinct character of their own, and are often called the Dark Ages. Some English historians consider the Middle Ages to have ended with the accession to the throne of Henry of Richmond, known as Henry VII, in 1485. He established the house of Tudor and was the grandfather of Queen

Pike Long Noted for Hunger and Voracity

The pike is the hungriest and the fiercest of fishes. Fish, flesh and fowl seem alike acceptable to its palate, and it does not disdain mineral products; rings, spoons and other similar articles have been frequently taken from its maw.

Four English boys went to bathe in Inglemere pond, near Ascot, England. One of them, who shall be called Henry, walked into the water to about the depth of four feet, when he spread out his hands and tried to swim. At that instant a large fish came up and took the whole hand in its mouth, but finding itself unable to swallow it relinquished its hold, and the boy, turning round, prepared for a hasty retreat. His companions, who saw the fish, scrambled out of the pond as fast as possible.

Henry had scarcely turned round before the fish came up behind, and, seizing his other hand crosswise, inflicted some very deep wounds on the back of it. The lad raised his free hand, which was still bleeding, and struck the great fish a hard blow on the head, when it disappeared. The other boys took him to a surgeon, who dressed seven wounds in one hand, and so great was the pain the next day that the lad fainted twice. The little finger was bitten through the nail and it was more than six weeks before it was well.

Alexander F. Kerensky, who was head of the first revolutionary government set up in Russia in 1917, recently arrived in the United States. He says his visit has no political significance.

Cats
Mae—It was dark in the taxi and before I knew he kissed me.
Jean—Don't be angry. He wouldn't have done it if it was daylight.

ADOPT FRENCH PHONE

The continental, or "French," type of phone, with receiver and transmitter held in one hand will go into use in this country very soon. The New York Telephone company has been experimenting for some time in an effort to produce this type of phone.

Touring the World

LIEUT. COL. E. ALEXANDER POWELL, noted war correspondent, travelog writer and globe trotter, is engaged in a tour of the world via America's most modern and popular means of travel—the automobile.

With this American car, and accompanied by his wife and daughter, Col. Powell spent the winter visiting the islands in the eastern Mediterranean. Material gathered there will be included in his book, "Mediterranean Moorings," which he is writing on route. He will proceed through Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia and others of those newer countries. The party will drive to Constantinople and thence by ferry across the Bosphorus. The tour will then take them down through Turkey and Syria to Damascus or Jerusalem. Arabia, Persia and India will be visited as the tour proceeds. Col. Powell will drive entirely across China and sail from there for California, completing a trip entirely around the world and traveling by automobile while on land.

The Buick brougham used by the Powells on the trip is standard in every respect except for items of special equipment. It was chosen because of the world-wide Buick authorized service which is available wherever automobiles are used.

Col. Powell is one of the best equipped men in America to undertake this long tour. He holds the record of being the only man to drive from Paris to India, crossing the Sahara Desert. He is also the first man to drive a car from Mexico to Alaska, accomplishing this feat in 1913.

The Creator of Action

OFTEN we hear the enthusiastic expression, "He's a go-getter!"—in other words, a man of action.

The telephone in action, too, can aptly be termed a "go-getter" of the highest order. For instance: When quick sales contact is needed with out-of-town concerns—telephone. When money is overdue—telephone. When shipments are overdue—telephone.

In getting business action in these and many other ways, the telephone plays a leading role. In fact it is one of the greatest forces at the business man's finger tips today.

It works on the revolving-reversing cylinder principle, washing all fabrics by the force of hot soapy water. There is no friction and the most delicate materials and finest laces are washed without injury.

The Thor Electric Washer requires no oiling. Its gears are patented and guaranteed against wear. The wringer rollers are of soft rubber into which buttons and fasteners sink and are not even loosened.

It is easy to clean the Thor inside and out. Finished with Duco, the new lacquer used on the finest cars, it does not show water marks. The cylinder need not be removed when you want to clean it. ### When Irene Was Kidnaped

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

HENRY HALLETT was wondering if he had done a foolish thing when, on his second day in camp, he had, in a moment of pique at his hostess' daughter, Paula, roamed into the woods unguided.

"Don't go beyond the upper falls and if you meet any movie queens, don't let them vamp you!" Paula had shouted after him. "They're shooting a picture on the Allenby grounds. Millionaire Allenby of the Pulp company. So long, dearie!"

The heartless little wretch! Here he had come all the way from home to ask Paula Godding to marry him only to be treated as a joke. "The very idea!" Paula had teased. "Me to marry an infant I've beaten at marbles. I can regard you as a dear little playmate, but as a husband, gosh sakes, no!"

Sauntering along the path, he wondered what he could do to bring himself before her in a new and unfamiliar light. And, pondering this, he came to an open, parklike space where the afternoon sun threw long shadows from the boles of sky-reaching pines. Seating himself on a fallen stump well back in the shade, he rested and watched the wary approaches of a shy chipmunk.

Suddenly, out into the sunlight from the opposite side, strolled the slender figure of a girl.

As she stooped to pick some of the large white daisies that starred the grass, Henry heard the roll of a heavy car. Then he saw the girl's head lift in a startled sort of way. Next moment, two men dashed in through the underbrush, one with a loop of rope which he swung toward the girl, lassoing her neatly.

Henry, whose impulse had been to dash single handed to her aid, suddenly felt foolish. Lucky that Paula had told him of the picture-taking or he might have made an everlasting fool of himself.

He watched them bind her and make off with her to the car. When he heard it vanish in the distance, he hastened over to see by what road the men had come.

Henry decided against trying to find his way back by the road and made a leisurely return along the trail he had come. He rather thought he had come to a decision regarding Paula. He would leave her flat. No girl ought to treat an honest proposal of marriage as Paula had treated his and get away with it. There were other pretty girls in the world.

Yet he hoped Paula had been concerned over his absence. Men had been lost in the North Woods and it would have pleased him, in his present state of mind, to have caused her anxiety. On the contrary, when he came up to the camp, it was quite evident that Paula was not even looking for him.

There was some sort of excitement or other and, unreasonably, Henry felt peeved to think he was not in on it. As Paula came up to him, he resolved not to show overmuch interest in whatever it was.

"Heard the news, Hen? Irene Allenby was kidnaped about an hour ago and her father is offering $5,000 reward for any information as to her whereabouts. She went out to walk—" "I suppose he's been telephoning?" he asked calmly.

"Of course," cried Paula. "He's simply wild!"

"Guess I'll call him myself," said Henry, and before the astonished Paula could gather her wits, he had run quickly into the big living room and snatched down the receiver.

"Mr. Allenby? Not a moment to lose. Forty minutes ago, a huge cat with Durex tires containing your daughter and two men, one smooth-faced, the other with a sandy mustache, drove off on that old lumber road above the upper falls. They were going east and, if there's a road you can head them off— Yes, sir. Very well."

He turned to the open-mouthed Paula. "Mr. Allenby is to pick me up. Thinks his car, by going straight up over the mountain, can beat them to the state road which is the first road they can make any time on. Darn shame—lovely girl like Irene!"

The wild ride over Twin Peaks, the blocking of the kidnapers, the exchange of shots, the rescue of Irene Allenby, isn't the main part of this story. Actually, it was a far greater thriller than the one soon to be screened by the movie company and certainly to Henry it was the time of his young life.

Six hours from the time Paula had seen him go, he came back to her.

"We got her," he said quietly. "Plucky kid. Joked all the way home. Why—why, Paula!"

For Paula, regardless of onlookers, had gone straight into his arms and was sobbing on his shoulder. "I—I don't think, when you're engaged to me, you ought to risk your life, Henry Hallett. I just don't."

So Henry, besides Mr. Allenby's check for $5,000, was rewarded with the heart and hand of the girl he loved, although even today he isn't sure whether he owes his good luck to the fact that for a moment he appeared in the guise of a hero; to the lovely Irene who made Paula jealous, or to the bullet of one of the kidnapers which grazed his cheek and left a tiny wound.

Personally, I think Paula intended to marry him anyway.

George Averof was a Greek from the northern part of Greece, called "Epirus." He made a large fortune in Egypt, and on account of his generous donations to Greece is considered one of the foremost benefactors of the country. It is with his money that the stadium of Athens was built, for which Pentelic marble was used, and erected on exactly the same place where the ancient stadium had stood. He also built the so-called "Averofion" in Athens, a very large reformatory for boys and girls. He willed a large sum of money for the purchase of a cruiser, which was built in England after his death and is still a unit of the Greek navy, bearing the name of George Averof.

Steam Shovel at Harvard

Makes Seismograph Move
Boston.—Harvard's seismograph, the sensitive instrument which records on an average one earthquake a week, has been in a state of unrest for several weeks. Instead of recording a fine line, the needle has been tracing a heavy, jerky line.
This daily and almost continuous "earthquake" was a great mystery for a time until Dr. Kirtley F. Mather discovered that it was caused by a steam shovel excavating the foundations for the new Harvard chemistry building, near by. Every time it hits a rock or the root of a tree the seismograph records a violent "earthquake".

Incidentally, the operators of the shovel would be surprised to find how close a check Doctor Mather can keep on their work. He can look at the day's record and tell, to a second, the time that the men started work in the morning, how long they took for their luncheon, and what time they quit at night.

"Swears" for Passport
Hartford, Conn.—Baby John Brown Wishert Rodger, five months old, is a claimant for the title of the youngest American to make oath to the statements in a passport request and have a passport issued in his own name.
At the age of four months John Brown swore to the truth of certain facts in a language his father was able to translate, and affixed his mark. It was accepted in Washington and a passport issued.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rodger, the baby's parents, are from Scotland. Baby John will be an American citizen automatically when he is twenty-one, but when his father and mother prepared to sail for a visit to their old home they found that he and his three-year-old sister, Margaret, would have to have passports.

5th Week for "Abie's Irish Rose" at the Broad Street Theatre
Over 70,000 people have attended performances of "Abie's Irish Rose" since the record-breaking comedy by Anne Nichols' opened its Newark engagement at the Broad St. Theatre, yet it continues merrily on at that playhouse, where it enters upon its fifth week of its local showing Monday night. The fun of the play is held together by the story of the love and secret marriage of an attractive Jewish youth and a pretty Irish girl, with the more or less usual family hatreds and prejudices on either side. Miss Nichols' characters are all true to life. Scenes in which the lovable but orthodox Jewish father of Abie, the youth, and the likable, but gruff and strict Catholic paternal parent of Rosemary Murphy, the colleen, figure, are calculated to draw a laugh from the most pronounced grouch or blase theatregoer. Miss Nichols' has gathered together an exceptional cast for the production.

"Rose-Marie" that on previous occasions has thrilled us with its beautiful score by the famous composers Rudolph Friml and Herbert Stothart will make its farewell appearance at the Shubert, Newark, where it is booked for one week starting Monday, April 4th with Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

You don't really mean that you've never seen "Rose-Marie" after all these years? Well, Lady Luck will give you this last chance. And if you die without seeing this grand old evergreen among all the musical shows your theatre-going will have been practically a failure.

From the minute the musical director lifts his baton until the last note dies down there is a score that will thrill and delight you as musical plays seldom do.

"Aloma of the South Seas" at Miner's

One of the sensations in New York's recent theatrical developments, "Aloma of the South Seas" will be presented at Miner's Empire Theatre next week commencing Sunday matinee, April 3, to again bring diversity into the programs offered by the Columbia Circuit—the chain of theatres where burlesque usually predominates. In selecting "Aloma" as suited to popular presentation and general appeal, weight was given to its natural elements of entertainment.

Week Sunday matinee, April 10th, "New York to Paris."

In accordance with our contract, we have made and completed an audit of the accounts and records of the Borough of Carteret for the calendar year 1926.

Our audit was conducted in strict compliance with the requirements of the State Department of Municipal Accounts, and the various schedules required by the Commissioner were prepared and are annexed to this report.

In connection with the examination, we have the following comments to make:—

CASH

We were pleased to note that conditions relative to the handling of the cash have improved. The cash is now being reconciled monthly. This procedure was never followed prior to 1926. The Collector-Treasurer is bonded for $25,000.00.

TAXES

All delinquent taxes have been transferred to a tax arrears register, which simplifies the work of the Collector, and also eliminates the handling of the old duplicates. No tax sale was held during the year, and we recommend that a tax and assessment sale be held in 1927.

ASSESSMENTS RECEIVABLE

The unpaid assessments at December 31, 1926 aggregated $60,690.29, as shown on Exhibit "I." There are numerous old items which should be sold or abated, and we again recommend that an assessment sale be held in conjunction with a tax sale in 1927.

We wish to express our appreciation to the various Officials and Assistants for the courtesies extended to us during the progress of our examination.

CERTIFICATE

We hereby certify that the attached Balance Sheet (Exhibit A-1) agrees with the books and records of the Borough of Carteret, and subject to the foregoing remarks, sets forth the true financial condition of the Municipality as at December 31, 1926.

Respectfully submitted,

H. BRAVERMAN & CO.

PARENTS LEARN AFTER 9 YEARS HOW SON DIED

Buddie Tells Details of Messenger's End in the Argonne Forest.

Coffeyville, Kan.—From the lips of the last man to see their son alive before he paid the supreme sacrifice in the bitter campaign against the tottering Hindenburg line in late September, 1918, in the Argonne forest, Mr. and Mrs. U. F. Griffith of this city have learned the fate of their son.

Ralph Griffith, a lad of seventeen, joined the colors at St. Louis the day after the United States entered the World war and was one of the thousands who lost their lives overseas but the story of his passing never was definitely known until recently.

Vernon Engles, a pre-war resident of New York city, since then a patient in a government hospital in California, called at the Griffith home, identified himself, and narrated to the parents the details of their son's death.

Was in Messenger Service. Griffith and Engles, with just two months between their ages, "buddied together" for several months. They were attached to the messenger service of a headquarters troop of the Thirty-fifth division, carrying messages to the front-line trenches and back to directing heads on motor cycles. Engles was disabled in the Argonne the day after Griffith was killed.

According to Engles, they had ridden hard with scanty fare and little sleep for three days, and stopped at a dugout late in the evening of September 28 to spend the night in safety from the enemy fire.

At two o'clock the next morning a rider came to the dugout. He had an important message for the front and asked young Griffith to deliver it.

"For the first time in all his army days," Engles told Mr. and Mrs. Griffith, "Ralph hesitated. It appeared he didn't want to start on the errand. I believe he had a premonition that something dreadful lurked along the way for him. I volunteered to take it, but the rider said Ralph must make the trip."

The next day Griffith's shattered motor cycle was found not far from the dugout. It apparently had been run over by a truck, Engles said. Five months later the boy's body was found in a grave about 800 yards from the spot where the motor cycle had been found. Later it was disinterred and rests in a cemetery.

Engles suffered his injury the day after Griffith was killed, receiving 28 wounds in the right side. He has had 87 major operations and still limps. Engles said he contracted tuberculosis and left the government hospital for life in the open of Arizona.

Having recovered sufficiently to leave the Arizona climate, Engles is making his way home, and his visit to the Griffith family was the fulfillment of a promise to himself that sometime he would find his buddy's parents and tell them of his death.

Signet Ring Reaches Parents. Mr. and Mrs. Griffith had received various reports about the death of their son, and two years ago received from Antwerp, Belgium, a gold signet ring worn by him when he left home for the army. It was in a plain envelope and bore no explanation of how the ring reached Antwerp or how it came to be sent to his parents.

Engles satisfied Mr. and Mrs. Griffith that he was intimately acquainted with their son by his description of the dead youth. He also was acquainted with Capt. Edgar Dale, another Coffeyville youth who lost his life and for whom a concrete bridge two miles north of this city, on state highway No. 16, has been designated as a memorial.

Seek Treasure Trove in Bermuda Islands

A touch of romance is given to Bermuda by traditions of buried treasure which abound there. Several of the islands are said to have been used by the Spaniards in early times for hiding their surplus wealth, notably Ireland island, now a British naval station; Cooper's island, near the old town of St. George's, and Spanish Point, two miles from Hamilton. Accounts of golden crosses and pieces of eight having been found along the shore still exist in ancient records. On one occasion a number of Spanish gold coins were discovered at a spot afterward called Money Place Rock. It is known that in the early days of Atlantic navigation galleons, often richly loaded, used Bermuda as a landmark while on their way from South America and the West Indies to Spain by way of the Azores. Owing to the existence of many coral reefs off the Bermuda coast, these vessels were occasionally wrecked, and how lie beneath the coral formations of past centuries. In some instances it is possible that treasure was salvaged and buried. Not many years ago an American visitor is said to have discovered a hidden vault at Spanish Point, and after his departure for New York an empty space and drill holes were noticed by people living near by. Whether he really found a treasure hoard remains a mystery.

South African Native Strong for Courtesy

Business instinct is strong in the nature of the natives of the Union of South Africa, as is indicated by a letter received by the conductor of a column of editorial comment in the Natal Mercury, published at Durban. The letter:

"Dear Madam—I would much pleased to let me know about your health. I am still in sound health, wishing you the same.

"Then Madam, I have one thing to tell you. I have bought nice six hens very fat, too. I would be pleased if Mrs. can let me know whether she would like me to send her those fowls, each is 85 cents, very cheap, Madam. They are ready and please let your friends know about this. If there are some who would like me to send them fowls, I am gladly willing to do so. Please send my best regards to you and your family—I may remain, your humbly servant."

Tried to Be Tactful

She dabbled in water colors and was rather proud of the results, also her complexion was, at the same time, both the envy of her friends and the object of many spiteful remarks.

At a dinner party on one occasion she sat next a shy, awkward young man who cudged his brains in vain for something to say.

She took pity on him and tried to open conversation by remarking:

"I dare say you've heard that I paint?"

"Y-yes," he stammered looking at her face intently, "but I really don't believe it."

Hayes Had No Frock Coat

Upon his graduation from Kenyon college at Gambier, Ohio, Rutherford B. Hayes, later President of the United States, appeared as the class valedictorian in a box coat with side pockets while all the other members of the class wore black cloth frock coats.

Young Hayes did not show that he felt the need of better clothes and few of the audience noticed it either, after he had launched into his oration. High thinking instead of high living, comments J. H. Galbraith, Ohio historian, was the rule in the New England family transplanted to the West from which he sprang.

Cow's Long Journey

Dogs and cats often refuse to recognize their transfer from one owner to another, returning again and again to their old homes. Now and then a cow will do the same thing.

Recently a farmer near Conway, in North Wales, sold his cow into Denbighshire. Next morning she was found in her old home, waiting to be milked.

She must have crossed Conway river, walked through Conway town, and leaped a four-foot wall to get there.

Open Sesame

Sesame is a word of three syllables, that is, the final letter "e" is sounded. In one of the tales of the "Arabian Nights"—All Baba or the Forty Thieves—"Open Sesame" are the magic words which cause the cave door of the forty thieves to open by itself. "Shut Sesame" were the words which caused it to shut. Sesame is a grain, and hence, when Cassim forgot the word, he cried, "Open wheat! Open rye! Open barley!" but the door obeyed no sound but "Open Sesame."

Beethoven's Castle Braiten

An interesting memento of Beethoven has been recently discovered in Baden near Vienna. It is a memorial tablet which is hitherto unknown announcing that the great composer once lived in the castle Braiten at Alleenstrasse No. 9. This is a small one-story building erected in 1810 by the Polish scholar Ossolinski, in the empire style of architecture. The building was being renovated when the tablet was uncovered. It will again be put in place.

Indians of U. S. to Race Against 2 Tarahumaras

Austin, Texas.—Crack American Indian runners from the Haskell Institute will be pitted against the two famous Tarahumara Indians of Mexico in an endurance run between San Antonio and Austin, 82 miles, as one of the notable features of the third annual Texas relays to be held under the auspices of the athletic department of the University of Texas, March 25, according to L. Theo. Belmont, director.

This marathon will be over the post highway that runs between San Antonio and Austin. The Tarahumara Indian entries have aroused the greatest interest in athletic circles. The fact that they broke the world's long-distance running record several weeks ago in a jaunt which they made between Pueblo and Mexico City, 82 miles, brought to them international attention.

The Tarahumaras are now in their village home in a remote part of the Sierra Madre, in western Chihuahua.

Germans Find Oxygen Is Seasickness Cure

Berlin.—As a remedy for seasickness, German physicians describe the inhalation of oxygen as most efficient.

After the inhalation of the gas for three to four minutes, the patient is said to find immediate relief, even the feeling of nausea ceasing.

German medical experts attribute the beneficial effects of oxygen in this connection to its powerful influence in alleviating an anaemic state of the brain, which they say is one of the pronounced phenomena of seasickness.

Ain't That Nice?

Rome.—The charleston and the black bottom are forbidden in night clubs, also the two-step and waltz; in fact, all dances.

Song Composed Under Stress of Loneliness

Some persons assert that John Howard Payne wrote his wonder song, "Home Sweet Home," while in a debtors' prison. Others say he wrote it at a time when he was penniless and homeless, stranded in London. Payne, however, leaves behind him the statement that he was a fairly successful playwright, with a good supply of money and excellent prospects ahead when he wrote the song. He did admit that he was somewhat depressed at the time he penned the words, but he attributes his depression to a dull October day, merry crowds passing his window as he sat and watched them. He was lonesome. Being a wanderer, he had strayed far from home, but at times he had memories of the days he spent in happy childhood with a mother he adored in a humble cottage at Easthampton, L. I. The tune he adapted from a song he had heard a peasant girl singing to herself in the fields of Italy while he was visiting that country. After writing the words, he jotted down a semblance of the tune he had heard in Italy and sent the suggestion to the composer, Harry E. Bishop, who produced the air that so admirably fits the words.—Kansas City Star.

Heeded Europe's Plea for Financial Help

Probably the first time that Europe called on America for financial assistance in time of war was in 1279. Documents in the Vatican dating back to the thirteenth century record that in 1261 King Haakon of Norway dispatched a bishop from Iceland to Greenland with instructions to keep the Norse colonies both there and in America in better touch with the old country. The bishop preached the Crusades with such success that in 1276 the pope dispatched to Greenland a commission, headed by a Scotsman, to help swell the war chest funds. One member of this group, whose name is not preserved, boarded a ship for America in 1279, returning three years later to Norway with a cargo of sealskins, walrus tusks and whalebone. These were sold and the sum realized was sent to Italy. Again in 1325 a load of walrus tusks arrived in Greenland from the North Atlantic seaboard. They were sold and the proceeds went to Rome.—Living Age.

"Living Wage" Dispute

Australia is seeking to learn exactly how to determine just what is a living wage. The country has a law providing for a living wage based on the cost of living index, but whether that cost of living should be an average of the entire country or for each section is the problem. Farmers do not want it on a city-price basis, and city employers do. And the argument may scrap the law.

Eben F. Comins, well-known Washington artist, with his posthumous portrait of the late Calvin Coolidge, Jr., which he has just completed at his studio in the national capital. The background of the painting is a scene from the porch of the family home in Vermont. Mrs. Coolidge was well pleased with the likeness.

Oil as Locomotive Fuel

According to the Department of Commerce, the first experiments in the United States which resulted in the continued utilization of oil as a locomotive fuel were made by the Central Pacific railroad at its Sacramento (Calif.) shops in 1879, when oil brought by boat from the Atlantic coast was burned in the firebox of an eight-wheel locomotive built to burn wood, but at that time using coal.

On February 23, 1839, the express business first started. The first express package carrier was William Frederick Harnden of Boston, Mass. In his first trip from Boston to New York he carried but few packages.

Slaves Were Shaved A clean-shaven face in the East was originally a sign of servitude. Old pictures show kings and conquerors heavily bearded and with long hair, while their slaves and captives are clean-shaven and close-cropped. The Greeks and the Romans later discarded "face fungus," as it gave their enemies a hand-hold in the close fighting, which was, of course, the rule in those days.

A Modern Fable Once there was a man who honestly admitted he couldn't do any better than the other fellow.

Little Girl's Tears Bring Back Father's Memory Chattanooga, Tenn.—A child's heart-broken cry. "Don't you know me, daddy?" brought back memory to Enos C. King of this city, a victim of amnesia since last fall. King left Chattanooga to go to Philadelphia. At Toledo, Ohio, he lost his memory and soon was penniless. Through his finger prints the Toledo Red Cross identified him and sent him to his wife and baby. These he did not recognize until the girl cried because her father did not know her.

Always Open Question Is not marriage an open question, when it is alleged, from the beginning of the world, that such as are in the institution wish to get out, and such as are out wish to get in?—Emerson.

To Eat, or Not to Eat Borneo tribesmen, who had been given wafers of chocolate wrapped in tin foil, could not decide to eat them, says William Beebe, the noted naturalist, in an article in Liberty Magazine. "These wafers did not fall to bring forth sounds of delight," Beebe writes, "but at the same time they did not fall to provoke a great indecision in the minds of those who had fallen sudden heir to them, because nobody could bring himself to destroy the beautiful smooth shining contour of his silver disk, in spite of the chocolate within."

Ruth "Stuck" the Beans Ruth, about five years old, was helping her uncle make the garden. Her task was to plant the beans which were of the climbing variety. She overheard her uncle say that too many of the beans should not be planted because they had to be stuck. Down Ruthie went on her hands and knees and began to "stick" the beans into the ground very carefully, one at a time. No one noticed her until she was "sticking" the last bean. Then she spoke out, "Now you won't have to stick the beans, Uncle Hugh, I've done it for you."

Ranch Appellations The name "Lazy," so often affixed to western ranches, refers to the brand used on its animals by the ranch. When letters of the alphabet are used they are often varied by their position. When tilted at an angle of 45 degrees they are said to be "tumbling"; when lying flat on their back or face, "lazy."

ODD LANGUAGE LINE IN NORTHERN ITALY

Divides Italians From Those Speaking German.

Washington.—The reported deportation of a German lawyer from Salerno in the German-speaking portion of northern Italy because it is alleged that he gave lessons in the German language, brings Italy's war-torn territory once more into public notice.

"Salerno," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society, "lies close to the 'language line' which crosses the Adige valley about 15 miles north of Trento. This line divides the Italian-speaking inhabitants of Trentino, the southern portion of Italy's new territory, from the German-speaking Tyrolese to the north. This former Tyrolean region is now called 'Alto Adige,' or 'Upper Adige,' by the Italians. This line near Salerno is one of the unique languages lines of Europe, since it is apart from national boundaries; yet there is such a plain demarcation that evidences of the 'cultural boundary' can be seen from the windows of a railway train.

Shows Language Line.

"As the traveler rides north from thoroughly Italian old Trento, scene of the historic council of Trent, he finds Italian architecture on every side. In the villages stucco walls, gently sloping red tile roofs, and the campaniles of the parish churches proclaim this to be a land of Italians. But soon he notes a change. More and more dark shingle roofs appear and take on a steeper pitch. A little farther along some of the roofs are broken by dormer windows, and then near Salerno he sees on a village church the first sharp Gothic spire, it serves almost as an exclamation point to mark the language line.

"From this point northward the population is predominantly Tyrolese, of German blood and German speech. Fifteen miles beyond Salerno the traveler enters Bolzano, metropolis of Alto Adige, and finds himself to all outward appearances in a German world. The population is predominantly German speaking, and German, in spite of laws to discourage it, is the language of the streets, the shops, the hotels and restaurants. One sees only a sprinkling of Italian soldiers and officers on ordinary days. On Sundays and other holidays excursions bring train-loads of uniformed Fascists up from the Italian plains country to the south.

Diverse Cultures Cause Problems

"The northern portion of the Adige valley, though a Roman province in the early centuries of the Christian era, has been governed by people of German ancestry since the days of the barbarian incursions which finally broke up the Roman empire. The valley, however, lies south of the crest of the Alps, and following the World war was made a part of Italy in order that that country might have a logical geographic boundary capable of easy defense. With the country some 200,000 German speaking people went under Italian sovereignty, a fact which has created a stubborn governmental problem for Italy and many other problems for the population itself. Although the life of the people continues, to all appearances, much as when Alto Adige was a part of the Austrian province of Tyrol, many changes have been brought about by the Italian government.

"It has been decided that in every way possible the use of the Italian language shall be extended. The children of Alto Adige must now carry on their studies entirely in Italian and though the parents may teach them German in their homes, the teaching of that language in private classes is prohibited. It was because of this regulation, apparently, that the recently reported deportation took place."

MAINTAIN LARGE SNAKE VILLAGE

Venom Extracted for Serum to Cure Bites.

Boston, Mass.—Harvard university, the United States and the United Fruit company are co-operating through the Antivenin Institute of America to maintain "the largest and most modern snake village in the world" in a war against snake poisoning.

The village, which has a capacity of 5,000 acolyte inhabitants, is at Tela, Honduras. Dr. Afranio do Amaral of Brazil is director. He recently made a flying trip from Central America to lecture before the Harvard school of public health.

Bombardment of Chinandaga

The village is a concrete-walled enclosure, roofed with palm leaves, and containing 16 houses divided into three apartments each with two shallow drinking basins.

There the venom is extracted from the captives and shipped to Glenolden, Pa., where horses are gradually inoculated with it. Their immunized blood makes a serum which is used to protect human life from the venom of snake bites.

The yellow chin, or fer-de-lance, is the most common of the dangerous snakes of that section. There is also the eyelash snake, or horned viper; the cascade rattler, and the coral snake.

The institute also has a station at San Antonio, Texas, which is aided by the army, and this station captured 4,000 rattlesnakes in a four-month period last fall. Seventy-two bites were reported to the station in a three-month period, and twenty-six of those bitten were given the serum. None of these died, but 85 per cent of those not treated died.

The principles of antiviral treatment were developed by the state of Sao Paulo, Brazil. There the antivenin is distributed to the farmers, but Doctor Amaral believes the best means of distribution here is through the drug stores. In Brazil hunters or cattle riders in snake-infested territory may obtain small syringes containing the serum.

Quaint Sham Battle Old Norse Festival

Annually, toward the close of winter, there is celebrated at Lerwick, the capital of the Shetland isles, an ancient Norse festival known as "Up-Helly-Aal." Proceedings are opened by a sham battle between supposed invaders and defenders of the place. The combatants array themselves in costumes as nearly as possible resembling those worn by the vikings—or sea rovers of old. They carry short swords and shields. The whole pageant is intended to portray a viking foray such as the ancestors of these "warriors" were only too familiar with.

It is esteemed an honor to take part in this mimic battle, and those who are engaged in it are called Gulzers, the leader on either side being termed the Gulzer Jahl.

After the rout of the invaders there is a torchlight procession, and the singing of quaint old songs in honor of the "victory." The proceedings end with the kindling of huge bonfires constructed to represent a Norse war galley.

The subsequent revels are prolonged far into the night and are celebrated with all manner of observances, including the solemn drinking of the Shetlanders' national toast, "Health to man and death to the gray fish." The "gray fish" is the whale, from whose carcass much that is of benefit to man may of course be obtained.

Jacobins was the name of a French political club formed at the outbreak of the French revolution in 1789, and so called from the Jacobin convent in Paris, in which the meetings of the club were held. The club represented the extreme party in the revolution, and it practically ruled during the bloody "Reign of Terror." The fall of Robespierre, its president, in 1794, led to its dissolution.

In accordance with our contract, we have made and completed an audit of the accounts and records of the Borough of Carteret for the calendar year 1926.

Our audit was conducted in strict compliance with the requirements of the State Department of Municipal Accounts, and the various schedules required by the Commissioner were prepared and are annexed to this report.

In connection with the examination, we have the following comments to make:—
CASH
We were pleased to note that conditions relative to the handling of the cash have improved. The cash is now being reconciled monthly. This procedure was never followed prior to 1926. The Collector-Treasurer is bonded for $25,000.00.

All delinquent taxes have been transferred to a tax arrears register, which simplifies the work of the Collector, and also eliminates the handling of the old duplicates.
No tax sale was held during the year, and we recommend that a tax and assessment sale be held in 1927.
ASSESSMENTS RECEIVABLE
The unpaid assessments at December 31, 1926 aggregated $60,690.29, as shown on Exhibit "I." There are numerous old items which should be sold or abated, and we again recommend that an assessment sale be held in conjunction with a tax sale in 1927.

We wish to express our appreciation to the various Officials and Assistants for the courtesies extended to us during the progress of our examination.

CERTIFICATE
We hereby certify that the attached Balance Sheet (Exhibit A-1) agrees with the books and records of the Borough of Carteret, and subject to the foregoing remarks, sets forth the true financial condition of the Municipality as at December 31, 1926.

Respectfully submitted,

Points of Importance for Shopping Centers.

A shopping center, no matter how small, fills a definite need in any community; it should be carefully located and artistically constructed, says George B. Ford, who has planned more than a hundred cities and towns among which is the restored Rhelms, and Marcia Mead, noted architectural advisor.

"One of the nuisances which has constantly intruded itself in a neighborhood is the small store which juts out into the roadway, and spoils what otherwise would be an attractive residence street. As a remedy for this it was suggested that at an important traffic-center a well-planned group of stores might be built to serve the community in an attractive as well as a practical manner.

"The game of marketing is an old one. The Roman forum was in reality a market place for the sale of the various commodities necessary for the city. It was a large open square surrounded by a colonnade, where the shops were located.

"These sheltered trading places, except for modern requirements of sanitation and transportation embody the essential of a modern open public market.

"The crux of the whole matter, today, is the terminal or terminals as the case may be. The terminal is a business unit in itself, a highly sensitized mechanism of regulated transportation and storage facilities. City distribution is always a complicated problem, and since women are the chief retail buyers of food this is very much a woman's problem.

"Wrong location has caused the failure of many a public market because it was not in a place where women would go to buy.

"So the first step in the establishment of a market is a survey. "Even when indications may seem conclusive that a public market would be a success in a certain location, it is well to begin with a curb market which can be thoroughly tested before putting up a permanent building.

"For example, the fate of the finely equipped market house at Newark, N. J., for some time hung in the balance. It well-nigh failed because it was off the general line of travel, so that one had to cross crowded thoroughfares to reach it.

"The functions of a market are expressed in the inscription over the portal of the Norfolk market. "That pure food may be kept in the best manner and sold at a fair price, this building is erected by the city of Norfolk."

Real Democracy

In the minds of many people, democracy rests upon the colossal untruth that "one man is as good as another," so that a large number are more likely to be right than a small number. In reality democracy rests upon the ubiquitous fact that all men are directly interested in securing good government, while its successes have often been due to its practical recognition of the truth that some men are born to lead and others to follow.—John Fiske.

You hear a lot of fellows saying they wish it was Thursday, or they wish it was their birthday or that it was summer or that this job was done. Now we never could get the idea of wishing away time. You might as well wish away one of your legs. Every time a day goes past there's just so much less of you left.—American Boy Magazine.

New Jersey Far in Lead According to figures recently compiled by the United States census bureau in co-operation with the New Jersey department of conservation and development, New Jersey produced 43 per cent of the country's output of vitreous chinaware in 1925. The total value of New Jersey's product was $11,887,789. This was the combined output of 18 plants, some of which have as many as six separate potteries. Most of this output was in the Trenton pottery district. New Jersey is far in the lead of any other state, with Ohio standing second, producing only 16 per cent of the total output.—New York World.

A Winner When they were selecting the Eva for "Uncle Tom's Cabin," there were hundreds of interesting little tots on the Universal lot. The big laugh came from two little six-year-olds who were discussing the future. "I'm goin' to be a big movie star myself, some day," remarked one. "I ain't! I'm goin' to be a necker," said Miss Sophisticated No. 2. "So's your Aunt Minnie." "Well," retorted the other, "Aunt Minnie ain't so bad, at that."—Los Angeles Times.

Baby Carriage Passing Kensington garden, the fashionable parade in London for baby carriages containing children of wealthy parents, is being gradually deserted. It appears that many of the youngsters require something more than an airing in a pram or with a nurse these days and demand they be taken out in a motor car. This in turn has created a demand for the "nurse-chauffeur" to drive young charges about in the daytime.—Indianapolis News.

COAL-PIT WORKERS HELD IN SLAVERY

Scottish Miners Long the Property of Owners.

At the beginning of the Seventeenth century when coal was first mined in Scotland, the miners, who daily risked their lives in their hazardous employment, were slaves.

In those far-off days, miners, both men and women, were bound for life to the pits in which they worked, and were actually transferred with the collieries, when these were sold to a new owner, as part of the property. This extraordinary state of bondage, sanctioned by Scots law in 1606, continued for nearly two centuries.

Even for the children, there was no hope of escape, for as soon as they started to work, they too were "thralled" to the pit for the rest of their lives. Parents were so inured to the hardships of their own lot that they regarded slavery as inevitable for their children also.

Some infants were sold to the masters at the time of their baptism, in the presence of the minister, who witnessed this bargain in human life. The employer then presented "aries" or earnest money to the father, and from that moment the babe was bound for life to the pit.

If any miner, roused by a bitter sense of injustice, tried to gain his freedom by running away from his servitude, he was immediately arrested as a thief. In the eyes of the law, a miner was the property of his master, and if he dared to make his escape he was punished for the crime of stealing himself, a valuable piece of property that belonged to his owner.

Toward the middle of the Eighteenth century, the first gleam of independence began to stir in the breasts of the miners, and in 1743 15 men who worked in the Gilmerton pits managed to make their escape. Their master, Sir John Baird of Newbyth advertised for them, that they might be arrested, and also to prevent any other master from breaking the law by employing slaves who were not his own property.

In the same year, three boys belonging to the marquis of Lothian ran away from the colliery of Newbattle, and took refuge upon another estate. The marquis wrote to Lord Orenfoord explaining that the boys were his property, "and if my claim is found to be good, shall expect the boys be returned without my being obliged to find them out."

The compensation that the miners had for this life of slavery was that the master was compelled by law to keep his serfs all their days, and to supply a coffin for their burial.

But gradually the public conscience was awakened, and in 1775 an act was passed to emancipate all persons who after that date, "shall begin work as colliers." The act also provided that the existing miners should be set free, some in seven years, and others at the end of ten years.

To many of the miners, the new act brought no relief, for its provisions were somewhat complicated, and quite beyond the comprehension of ignorant men whose intelligence had been sapped by generations of serfdom, and so they continued in the bonds of slavery till the end of their days.

But the year 1799 saw the dawn of freedom for the miners of Scotland, when a new law was passed which gave unconditional liberty to all who worked in the pits.—Weekly Scots

MANY WONDERS IN DEPTHS OF OCEAN

Strange Fishes That Climb Trees and Do Odd Things.

What are the greatest wonders of the sea? Ask Dr. Charles H. Townsend, director of the aquarium, New York city, and you will hear some strange and interesting things.

"What makes the public wonder most, and what is most wonderful, are not always the same," he says in an interview in Popular Science Monthly. "People who come to the aquarium are more interested in the little sea horse that climbs trees. He is among the few fishes with grasping tails. Like a monkey, he uses the tail to cling to seaweed and other marine objects.

"Our sightseers like little things and big things. After the sea horse, they like to look at the 200-pound grouper, one of the biggest of fishes, called Jewfish in the books. They like to watch the shark swimming about with 'shark suckers' fastened to his under side. These suckers attach themselves by air suction disks, like vacuum cleaners, on their heads. They are bluish fishes, shaped somewhat like the shark, though, of course, much smaller, and are 'commensals,' meaning that they eat with the shark. They take the scraps that fall from his table. The suction disks are among nature's most remarkable appliances. The whale, the shark and the swordfish are other of the big things which the public likes.

"But the wonders to scientific men who visit our aquarium are somewhat different. The two creatures that arouse their greatest curiosity are the horseshoe crab, or limulus, and the mudfish, or bowfin, known as amia. The horseshoe crab, which looks like a flattened beehive with a rat tail, is the only living animal related to the extinct trilobite, whose fossils are so well known. The mudfish, which looks like many other fishes to laymen except for a thickening of the tail, is a descendant of one of the early forms of fish life. It belongs to a line long extinct, dating back unknown thousands of years.

"In the eternal darkness, miles down, under terrific pressure and intense cold, nature has evolved some of the strangest creatures. There is the 'blind ipnops,' for instance. It has no eyes, but carries a searchlight on top of its head. Now, what does a blind fish want with a searchlight? Nobody knows, but perhaps the light attracts smaller fishes when the ipnops is hungry. It is brown in color and of rather small size.

"Then there is the stylophthalmas, a silver-colored, eel-like fish with two long stalks sticking out from its head, and eyes at the end of the stalks. Also, he has a string of lights along either side that makes him look like a subway train.

"Many deep-sea fishes are luminous—"lit up"—to illuminate the surrounding gloom. There is the lantern fish, two inches long, yet with nearly a hundred lights. These he can turn on or off, as he wishes. They lure small fishes and help him escape his enemy, the astronestes, eater of stars, whose favorite meal is a well-lighted lantern fish."

Perfected Barge Service

Those who have tried to trace a freight car containing a shipment of goods will envy the man who sends his wares in a towboat on the Mississippi. An interesting feature of the barge service there is its radio equipment. Towboats are provided with both sending and receiving sets, and the operator is in constant communication with a conveniently located central station on land. The system has been fully tried on the lower river and found to be of great service to shippers as well as to the operators of the line. It will now be used on the upper river, from St. Louis northward to the Twin Cities, says an article on the revived interest in inland waterways in the Review of Reviews, by Wilbur F. Decker.

Airplane Devotee

The duchess of Bedford, one of the newest recruits to flying, threatens to become a rival of Mrs. Sophie Elliott Lynn, Britain's pioneer air-woman. The duchess does not have her own airplane, as she prefers to hire one for occasions. She makes frequent trips from London to Manchester by air, and also always goes to her seat at Newton Stewart, Wigtonshire, by the same method. The duchess contends that to keep pace with the times, it is much cheaper, in a way, to hire machines and thus avoid the expense of upkeep.

To Save Chinese Babies

Efforts to stop the abandonment of girl babies in China are being made by the officials of the public health demonstration station which was established in Peking a little more than a year ago. The doctors say that the greater part of the high death rate, which is three times that of the average city, is due to the traditional prejudice in the country against females, and that when a family is poor the parents usually abandon girl babies. It is hoped to establish free clinics which will help to educate the poor against the practice.

Took Cocklebur From Lung

A cocklebur, three-quarters of an inch long, was removed from the right lung of Ellis Halden, twenty-seven, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., at a St. Louis hospital. It was removed with the bronchoscope, an instrument that permits physicians to get at foreign bodies in the lungs and bronchial tubes. Apparently the cocklebur got into Halden's lung a week before, when he had removed a bunch of them from his mittens with his teeth.

Somnambulist's Luck

The story is told at Concord, N. H., of a somnambulist young man who walked calmly through a plate-glass window, and strangely enough did not receive any cuts of consequence. That he did not walk off into space was because of the fortunate circumstance that the window opens upon a second-story veranda, so that he suffered principally from suddenly emerging, thinly clad, into the chill night air.—Exchange.

The Good Fruit Is Soon Attacked; Just So Does One Decayed Tooth Attack a Sound One

That's why the earliest possible attention to a decayed tooth is advisable. Frequent brushing not less than twice a day is a wise habit and a thorough examination every six months at this office will prevent decay and loss of a single tooth.

Another reason why you should not neglect teeth is the longer you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything tooth, or the various diseases that develop from diseased teeth.
