

HEROINE FIGHTS BRUTE TO SAVE CHILD IN WOODS

Uses Small Hunting Ax to Down Angry Animal Threatening Infant.

Edmonton, Alta.—A girl wife's battle with a huge black bear, her only weapon a short hunting ax, and the life of her six-months-old child at stake, is the latest story of heroism which has come out of the Poicoupe river district, in the foothills west of here.

The heroine is Julie Lafamme, pretty, seventeen-year-old half French and half Indian wife of Jules Lafamme, trapper. Accompanying her husband on a trapping expedition, with her baby slung, Indian fashion, in a birch-bark cradle over her back, Julie later hung her precious burden from a low-hanging limb of a spruce tree, while she went picking cranberries.

Falls Into Bear's Den. Intent on her quest, the girl slipped into a cavernous hole at the foot of a giant spruce tree. Her moccasined foot touched something warm and soft, something which startled with a wild beast's rage, and two tiny bear cubs emerged from the hollow. A moment later a far more formidable figure followed them into sight—the mother bear.

Snarling and spitting, the animal mother, anxious for the safety of her cubs, advanced on the human mother, equally anxious for the safety of her babe; for within a few yards of the giant beast, the chubby papoose swung in its cradle, was worn of the bear's huge forepaw and it would be fatally mangled. Julie snatched from her a pitifully tiny hunting ax which there and hurled herself upon vanishing whirlwind of death bear's huge paw whizzed past her face, tearing out a wisp of hair, but missing the flesh by a fraction of an inch.

Kills the Bear. Then, with a lightning like the girl-mother struck with ounce of her strength. The deep into the skull of the bear and the huge bulk lurched to the within a foot of the papoose's Jules, wide-eyed with terror on hip, emerged from the brush by just in time to receive the form of his wife, as she collapsed, conscious, into his arms.

Chief Keeps His Word and Boy Gets "Wheel"

Portland, Ore.—One Oregon boy knows Chief of Police Jenkins of Portland as a man of his word. Over a year ago, twelve-year-old Melvin Hall of Gaston, Ore., was trudging along a deserted road several miles from his home when he came upon Chief Jenkins and one of his patrolmen out on a fishing trip. "Kinda late for you to be out, isn't it, son?" the chief inquired. "None; but I wish I had a bicycle," was Melvin's reply.

"Drop in and see me some time. Maybe I can find one." Jenkins handed the boy his card. Melvin called on Jenkins on the day Gertrude Ederle arrived in town. The chief took him down into the police station basement and picked out a bicycle that had stood unclaimed for many months. "Here is your wheel," he said.

Then the chief and the boy went out to see "Trudie," and afterward they guzzled 15-cent ice cream sodas and went to three shows before the boy started home.

Hoquiam, Wash.—A wrecking car rushing to a service call at Copalis beach struck a lagoon and sank in quicksand. The auto disappeared so rapidly the driver had barely time to escape. PARIS KNITTED MODES ACCENT BLACK AND WHITE TOPCOATS

ACCORDING to the opinion of a Parisienne one cannot paint the picture too vividly when it comes to knitted apparel. The startling knitted coats so often worn by madame and mademoiselle at the races and other society sports events, set a merry pace for all the world to follow. This season in particular bizarre as to color and design is the keynote to many of the knitted fashions.

Photographed in Paris, the coats pictured show the latest style trend of black and white for knitted topcoats. The model to the right is boldly patterned, black on white, with color and border of plain knit solid black. The coat on the figure to the left is primarily black and white with a dash of orange yellow here and there.

It becomes apparent that stripes, especially horizontal, are important throughout knitted designs. Of arresting color appeal is a knitted coat which is patterned with alternating jacquard bands, salmon contrasting mauve. The collars and cuffs are done in the favorite ridged construction in self colors.

Newest knitted items include cardigan jackets. Both sleeveless or with long-sleeves types are in fashion, and they accompany most sports outfits. One-piece frocks usually are complemented with cardigan jackets. Alpine skating suits sometimes include as many as seven pieces in an outfit. What a delightful dash of color on the wintry landscape must an ensemble be which consists of a knitted crystal-platted skirt in vivid blue wool patterned in orange, complemented with matching scarf, cap, hose, gloves and anklets.

Viennese knitted costumes for travel and motoring are exploiting definitely tailored lines. Both suits and coats to tempt the tailor. A patrician taste finds satisfaction in anything as faultlessly knit as a topcoat of jacquard checks in the slim silhouette model, colored with fur the same as if it were a coat of cloth. CLOTH GOWNS DEPEND UPON GAY EMBROIDERY FOR EFFECTIVENESS

A DRESS of navy twill, practically tailored, is all right for practical wear, but a frock of navy twill glorified with red and gold embroidery evening cunningly contrived sleeves and collar is a different story—a story of an intriguing gown, handsome as handsome can be for smart afternoon occasion. Look at this picture and decide for yourself as to the effectiveness of just such a navy cloth dress for informal daytime wear. What is true of this model is true of hosts of other cloth frocks this season—embroidery is "the touch, that tells" their chic and charm. Thus through the medium of fanciful sleeve and discreet touches of gay stitchery the erstwhile humble cloth frock assumes a position of importance among "classy" daytime attire. The decorative note for all costumes this season bespeaks metallic splendor. It is glitter here and glitter there and the daytime dress is no exception to the rule. In this ornate trimming class a new item has appeared—spangle banding. The favorite is peach or flesh tint, although metal effects are also good. A black or midnight blue frock of flat crepe with a simple finish of the new pink spangle banding at the throat and wrists is the last word from style headquarters. As to embroidery for the cloth daytime frock designers show a disposition to concentrate most needlework embellishment on the sleeves. It is quite inspirational to see what airs a simple cloth frock will take on when fancifully sleeved. Perhaps you have a "perfectly good" yet somewhat passe cloth straightline frock on hand and are wondering what to do with it. Try the effect of a new pair of sleeves in this dress. Designed after the unusually attractive bell sleeves in this picture they will modernize most any frock as if by magic. Of course the collar must show a bit of embroidery to match that on the sleeves. JULIA BOTTOMLEY. (© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

CHEVROLET MOTOR CO. EXPECTS GOOD YEAR

Increasing good business for the first half of 1927 is forecast by R. H. Grant, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, who declared recently that there is every reason to believe that the country will continue to enjoy the even prosperity that has attended general business in the last twelve months. "There is no evidence on the industrial horizon that would indicate anything but a promising outlook for the early autumn months of the new year," Mr. Grant declared. "Labor continues to be well employed, the national per capita wealth is the greatest on record, the agricultural outlook is improving and banks are acknowledging more cash than ever. "The motor industry is preparing for an unusually active year. The recognized advantages of automobile ownership and the fact that today's motor car offers the greatest dollar value in the history of the industry are giving a constant impetus to sales. As a result production this year should compare favorably with the output of 1926. "Replacements of old cars in the United States will require approximately 2,000,000 units in 1927. Export markets bid fair to take close to one million cars and trucks of American manufacture. New owners coming into the market in this country during the next twelve months will require a million cars or more. In addition there is a rapidly growing tendency toward the ownership of two or more cars in the same family. "Reports from the Chevrolet dealer and field organizations, from all quarters of the United States, reflect the optimism which we at home hold for the early new year. Acting on the belief that the year will be a highly profitable one for American business, the Chevrolet Motor Company is plan-

Strong Eleven Made of Gridiron Pilots

In contrast to former days when the dashing backfield stars had the call when it came time to elect a football captain, the first 20 major college eleven to choose leaders for 1927 have shown no favoritism for any one position.

more runs, just as tense. He took his place in the box and tweaked at that close-fitting cap. His tweak creased the crown. Eighty thousand eyes were glued to that cap.

The University of Pittsburgh will face Drake university on the gridiron this year, according to announcement by Graduate Manager Karl E. Davis.

Coach Wright Resigns

Joe Wright, coach of the Penn A. C. crews for the last two years and for nine years in charge of the University of Pennsylvania oarsmen, has resigned his position with the former organization, according to word received from his home in Toronto.

Sport Notes

The armistice started the fighting career of Gene Tunney and did not interrupt that of Jack Dempsey.

The report that C. C. Pyle is after English ping-pong players assures us that there are still ping-pong players.

A wrestler was arrested in New York for "assaulting" the man he defeated, which is a high compliment to pay a wrestler.

A three-team soccer league gave Sioux City fans their first real demonstration of the sport. They played every Sunday.

The University of California and Harvard university have finished the poorest season in recent years as far as victories are concerned.

With an average of three golf tournaments a month, Los Angeles and the surrounding territory leads the country in the number of golf events staged yearly.

The world's record football score was recently established by the Carbone County high school eleven at Price, Utah, when it defeated Ferron in a regular division game, 175 to 6.

The boxing championships in the heavyweight, light-heavyweight, middleweight, welterweight and lightweights divisions changed hands during 1926.

Suzanne Lengien, the tennis star, is now Princess Sparklingwaters. She was adopted into the Pueblo tribe in ceremonies conducted by Chief Evergreen Tree and Chief Lone Eagle.

British Professional Golf association will send over to this country a group of eight experts to engage in matches with the Professional Golfers' association of America this year.

Jerry Standaert, infielder, has been sent to the Memphis club of the Southern league, by the Brooklyn Robins. He goes as part of the deal by which the Robins acquired Pitcher Griffin.

Jockey Jimmy Butwell, who is still under contract to the E. F. Whitney stable, began his racing career in 1907 and has piloted 1,300 winners and brought in purses amounting to $1,500,343.

Fritz Crisler, one-time University of Chicago athlete, was an all-round star.

Crisler won nine letters during his career at the Midway institution, three each in football, baseball and basket ball.

Fred Fulton, the heavyweight pug, has been restored to good standing in Minnesota by the boxing commission of that state. It is sometimes quite a feat to get Fred back to stand after a fight.

Michigan's football team played to 387,911 spectators, most of whom could see the games.

Herbert Joesting, Minnesota's line plunging fullback, will captain the 1927 Gopher football team.

England has 990 affiliated field hockey clubs for women, while this country has 50 active clubs, mainly among colleges and schools.

Preston Gray, manager of the Rock Island team last season, has been engaged as manager of the Mobile team of the Mississippi Valley league in 1927.

Robert McPhall of Arlington, Mass., was elected captain of the 1927 Dartmouth football squad. He has alternated as regular halfback and quarterback for two years.

Norman Pitt, recruit, who deserted the Brooklyn Robins three years ago to play independent baseball, has been reinstated by K. M. Landis, commissioner of organized baseball.

A new world record for home runs when he hit over sixty in the East Texas league last season, has been released by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Frank Calder has been appointed commissioner of professional hockey by the National Hockey league of Canada to act as final judge of all disputes among the minor leagues and clubs.

Pit Mossman, world champion horseshoe pitcher, tossed rings blindfolded in an exhibition match during the national tourney in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mossman is eighteen years of age.

Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, has engaged in sixty-one contests, scored thirty knockouts, won fifteen decisions, lost one decision, engaged in fourteen no-decisions and one no-contest.

Fable: Fifty thousand spectators rose en masse as the quarterback threw the ball. A man in the thirty-second row shouted: "Down in front!" The 50,000 spectators immediately sat down.

TOPPIECE FAILS TO HINDER ALEX

Habit of Tweaking at Bill Cause of Much Comment.

When Alexander reported to the St. Louis Cards several weeks after the opening of the 1926 season, all the uniforms and caps in the clubhouse had been picked over by those players on hand when the season began. So Alex had to take what was left. He did very well with his uniform, but in the matter of a cap he did not fare so well.

He pulled at the bill of that cap until he copped the crown, but all to no avail. He stretched the cap until he could keep it on his head, but it was always a little small. It cocked awry. It had a leer and a twist and a look of being out of place.

This cap had already perked and sidled its way into a conspicuous place in the last world series before ever the stage was set for the seventh act in the drama. More than 100,000 people had peered at the crease in that cap's crown.

Came then the seventh act. The crisis when the culmination of all the summer baseball campaign hung upon one play. Seventh inning, two out, three on. A gray sky hung low over the field. Mists enveloped Harlan bats.

From the bullpen in a corner off from left field came a figure in answer to the Cardinal leader's call. It was Alexander coming in to save the game. He just shuffled along. Every step he took, every movement was watched tensely by 40,000 fans. His every gesture was radioed to 5,000,000

Fuel Engineering!

A REMARKABLE feature of modern industry is the extension of the use of gas in manufacturing processes where heat is required and efficiency, cleanliness and economy make for a more perfect product.

The use of gas permits a higher degree of temperature control than is possible with any other fuel and for that reason is in favor with a constantly increasing number of our more progressive manufacturers.

Public Service places at the disposal of plant operators who may desire to investigate the possibilities of gas as applied to their manufacturing problems the services of a corps of Fuel Engineers technically trained and experienced in their work, for consultation and advice.

A DECAYED TOOTH

IS LIKE A SPOTTED FRUIT The Good Fruit Is Soon Attacked; Just So Does One Decayed Tooth Attack a Sound One

That's why the earliest possible attention to a decayed tooth is advisable. Frequent brushing not less than twice a day is a wise habit and a thorough examination every six months at this office will prevent decay and loss of a single tooth.

Another reason why you should not neglect teeth is the longer you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything tooth, or the various diseases that develop from diseased teeth.

Free Examinations Daily We charge nothing for examining your teeth, telling you just what is needed, if anything; how long the work will take and what it will cost.

RETURN OF MODERN ARDEN IS TRAGIC

"Other Man" Kills Woman and Himself.

Leominster, Mass.—When he returned unexpectedly after a year in Florida, Constantine Leger completed an "eternal triangle" which sent his wife and the "other man" to their deaths.

Upon arriving in Leominster unannounced, Leger knocked on the door of his bungalow, bent on pleasantly surprising his wife.

"Who is it?" asked a voice which he recognized as that of his wife.

"It is Constantine," he replied.

"Well, wait just a minute," said his wife.

Leger waited several minutes, then pushed open the door and entered the kitchen. His wife faced him in silence. From another room came Don C. Clark, father of four children.

Clark produced an automatic pistol and told Leger he had better leave the house before he was killed. Leger dared him to shoot, then told his wife he would let her choose between them while he waited outside.

Instead, Leger called a policeman, and both entered the house. As they did, Clark shot and killed Leger's wife. He then killed himself.

Convict's Girl Wife Stays Faithful to Him

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Although her husband kept from her the knowledge that the long arm of the law constantly was reaching out for him, little Marie Branigan Pryde's love for the man 11 years her senior has remained constant and true.

Even now, with Pryde—or Houde as his real name is—in jail completing the sentence interrupted when he fled prison, Marie waits patiently with her two children for his return to them.

Marie lived in Brooklyn, N. Y., when Arthur Pryde entered her life. After their marriage, for some reason which she could not understand, Pryde insisted on moving from place to place—Buffalo, Cleveland, New York city, Waltham, Mass.

The blow fell while they were living in New York city. Detectives suddenly descended on their modest little home and dragged Arthur off to jail with them.

But this was a second and rather expected blow, for a few months before she had learned her husband really was Arthur Houde, who had shot his first wife in a jealous rage and had been sent to prison for nine years.

Now Marie is glad the suspense is over and that Arthur will no longer have to flee from the shadow of a prison when he rejoins her and the children after his sentence has been served.

FOR THE GOOSE—

You might not be able to talk more than your neighbor, but you can always console yourself by bein' able to listen more.

You don't know how much you can stand or how little you can live on, till you try.

"No" takes less writin' than "yes," but a whole lot more sayin'.

FOR THE GANDER—

You can tell the kinda stuff you are when some'n hits you. A clay pot is easy to break and hard to mend. A gold one is hard to break, but when it's mended it's as good as new.

Aprons Worn in Streets

About the time Shakespeare was a school boy, more than four centuries ago, it was a common or rather a stylish practice for women to wear aprons as part of their street attire. It was a day of ornamented dress for women, who also carried small mirrors attached by ribbons to their belts, which they used to see that their wigs were on straight.

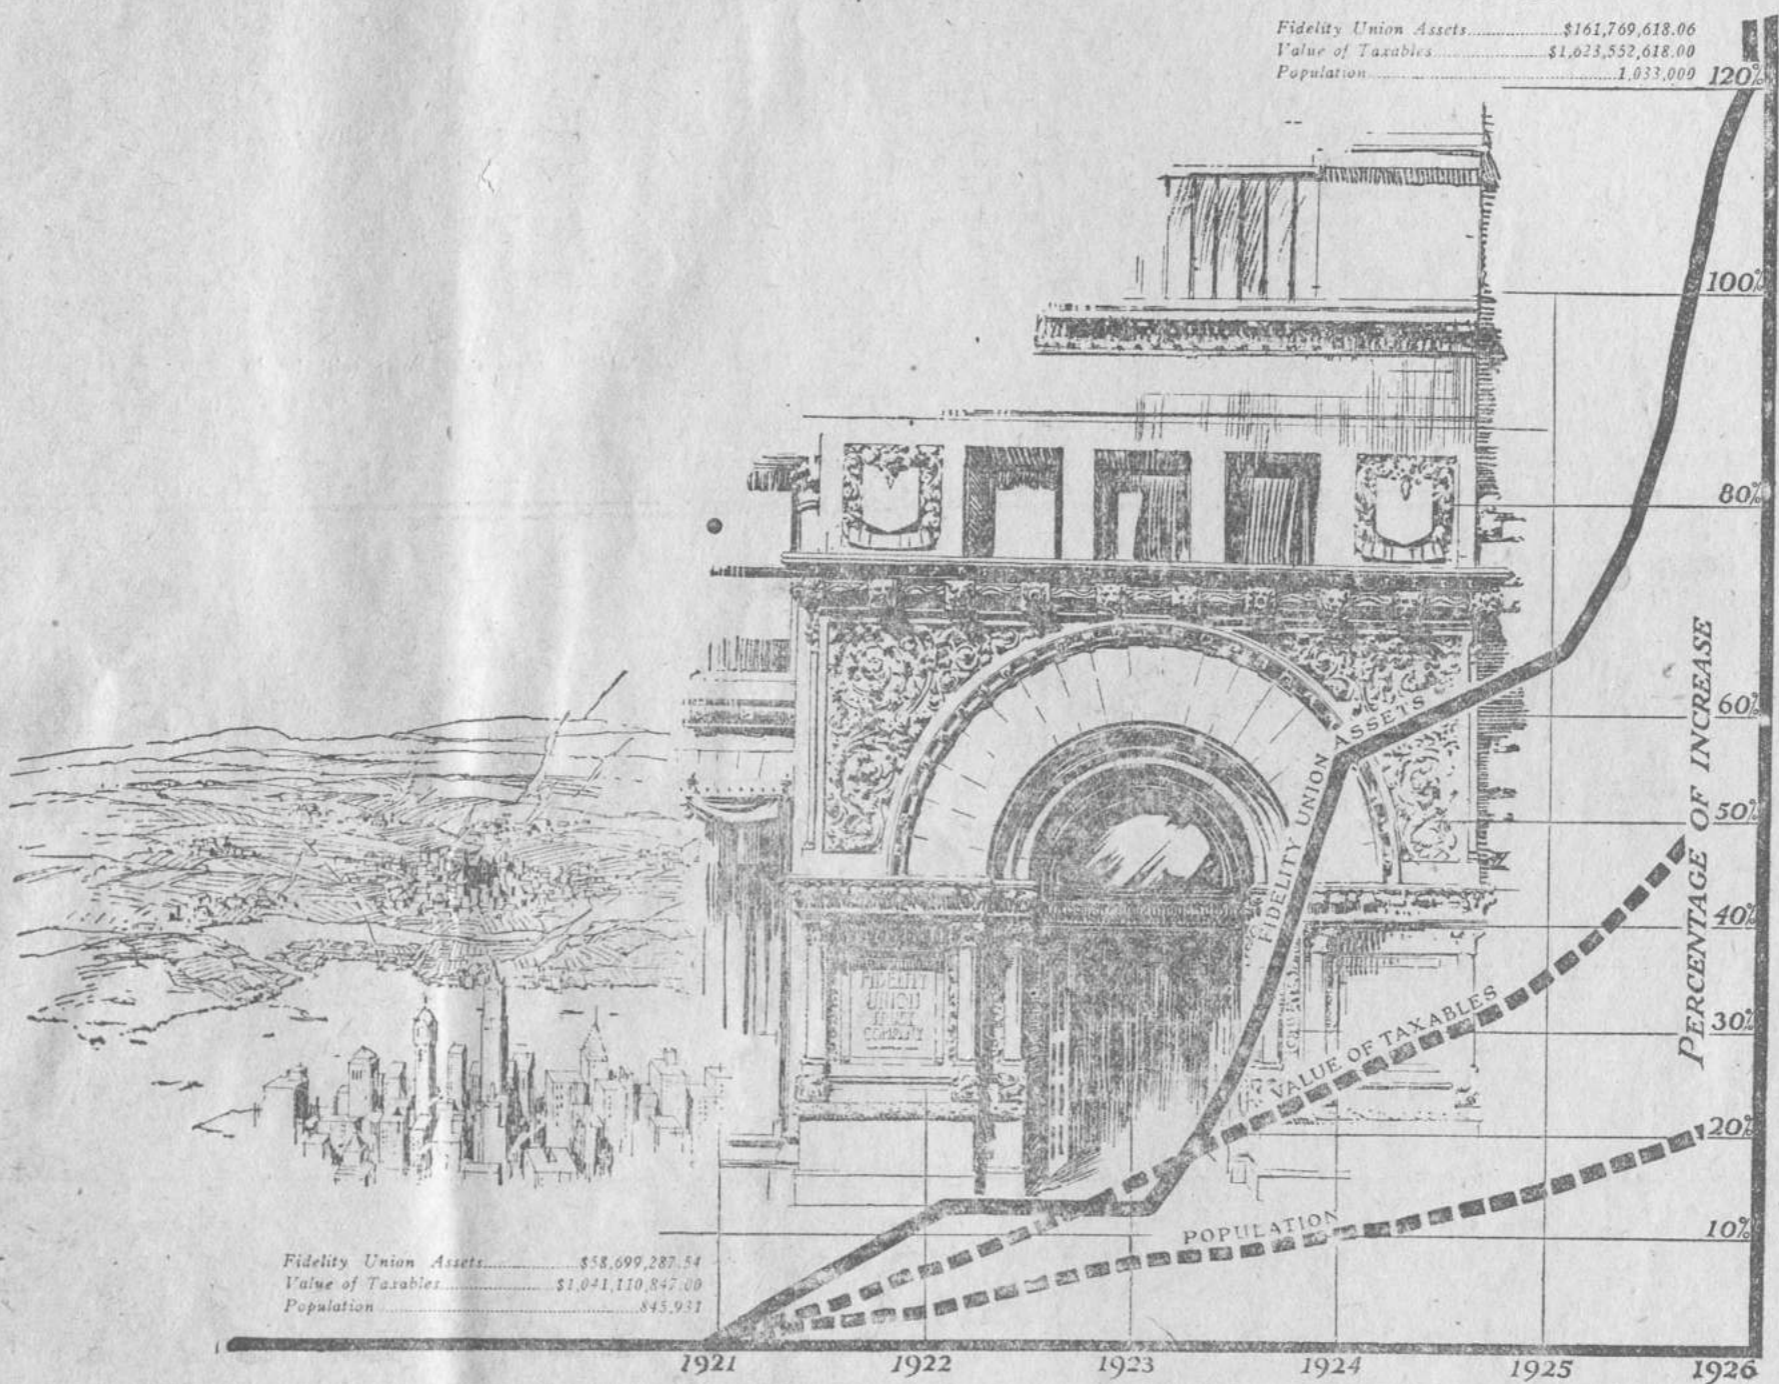

Long Labor Unfinished

Pierre de Ronsard of the Sixteenth century was the father of lyric poetry in France. To be a second Homer he undertook a long epic poem, which he worked on for twenty-five years, and left unfinished.

Would Be Popular Ruling

HOW the growth of the Fidelity Union Trust Company meets the needs of a large State

The growth of the Fidelity Union Trust Company has been steadily in pace with the growth of New Jersey. Figures on the population of the New Jersey metropolitan area embracing 38 cities and townships show a 22% increase over a period of the past five years. Tax payables show a 56% increase. Over a similar period the assets of the Fidelity Union, with its recently acquired affiliated banks, show a 175% increase.

TO businesses and residents of New Jersey, the Fidelity Union Trust Company affords banking and trust service in accord with their local needs.

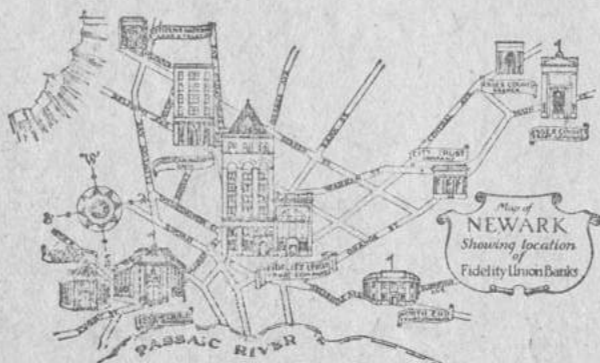

During this past year plans have been perfected establishing eight affiliated Fidelity Union Banks in the Newark territory. These banks afford relief from traffic congestion and bring the facilities of the Fidelity Union close to your home and factory.

A Large Bank Promotes Industrial Growth

With limited deposits, smaller banks are sometimes forced to curtail their credit lines. Concerns which should be financed by men who understand their needs and will stand by them, are forced into outside cities for additional credit lines. During such depressions, small concerns may be reduced entirely.

It is the record of the Fidelity Union that it has steadily promoted the growth of New Jersey. In 1920 and 1921 when banks were reducing their credit lines, it was able to protect its customers and meet their requirements.

For New Jersey Residents

A trust institution located in the testator's State of domicile enjoys considerable advantage as executor over an institution located in another State.

The trust department of the Fidelity Union was one of the first trust departments organized in America and has been in continual operation for over forty years. Many of its officers and employees have spent their entire business career in this department, and are preeminently trust men.

Write to Us

We invite you to place your company and your personal accounts with the Fidelity Union, and to investigate its trust department in connection with your estate.

Buick Ahead Again in the Yellowstone!

Again in 1926, more Buicks toured through Yellowstone Park than any other car except the one of lowest price.

Buick has held this same honor every year since the Park was opened to automobile travel.

This year there were 4,756 Buicks in a total of 44,472 cars registered. 101 different makes were represented in the registrations. One in every ten was a Buick.

Here is convincing evidence of Buick reliability—striking proof of the faith which Buick owners repose in their car.

They know Buick will take them and bring them back comfortably, safely and splendidly—across the Continent—or around the World.

Community Building

Small Towns Taking Pride in Appearance According to the municipal experts of various kinds the era of the small city and town is arriving. It is now seen that a city can actually grow bigger than is good for it, and some authorities are claiming that the great metropolis will in time arrive at the stage where it will be impossible physically to grow in extent of territory at least. There are perhaps many reasons why the smaller community is coming into its own. The city or town with muddy streets is rarely found in this day of good roads and automobiles. Civic pride has grown in the smaller as well as the larger cities. Ramshackle buildings are being eliminated everywhere, and the smaller communities now have fine public buildings, including adequate schools and libraries, up-to-date hospitals, and so on. They are all coming to have fine parks, too, parks that would do credit to some of the largest cities of the country. Yes, the era of the smaller city has arrived. Ours is one of them. It's one of the best places in America to live. Why not all pull together to make it even better? If it's good enough to raise our children in it's good enough to boost.—Rushville Republican.

Making Country Life Attractive to Youth Now that good roads are becoming more common and traffic between cities and country districts has become easier, it has been suggested that money should be set aside by the legislatures so that traveling motion-picture shows can frequently visit small places. The suggestion has also been made that the state ought to organize various country clubs in which young people can meet and enjoy the amenities of social life. Probably no other single agency is as likely to allure city people to country life as such an assembling of farm cattle and produce of the choicest kinds as was evident at the royal winter fair in Toronto. Certainly nothing is more likely to stir up country people to the emulation which is a full step better than contentment with their lot, than the view the royal fair afforded of what judges of the highest reputation have decided were the best of their kind in fruits, vegetables, grains, swine, poultry, sheep, cattle and horses. Half the time it is simply ignorance only dissipated by costly experience that keeps people off the land in, and sends others to the cities.—Montreal Family Herald.

Small Town's Advantage There is more than one privilege and pleasure about living in a small town. One of them is in going to your shirt sleeves; another is in sitting on the shady side of a business house in the summer time and the sunny side in the winter. If you want to speak to a friend three blocks away, you can yell and squal at him and you can carry on a loud, hollering conversation; you can always find a place to park; you can turn around in the middle of the block; you have a lot of friends, and when you are with one of them you can talk about all the balance; you can keep up with everybody else's business except your own, and many, many others, but they are too numerous to mention.—Gaffney Ledger.

Property Manager's Value "The Value of the Property Manager to the Community" was the subject of a talk before the property management division of the Detroit Real Estate board by Carlton Schultz of Cleveland, chairman of the property management division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. "The property manager," Mr. Schultz said, "through his knowledge of operating costs of any type of property, gives a service to the owner that in the end pays him a greater return on his investment than he can usually receive by personal management." If all properties were placed under the control of competent management from the public world find a more stabilized condition in rents.

Ever Think of That? There are two sides to every question, both of which are often entirely wrong.

LOVED BY NONE AND HATING ALL WOMAN ENDS LIFE

Leaves Note Cursing Her Abusers Before Leaping From Window.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Casting a cynic's farewell curse upon "a selfish, sordid world," a woman who registered as Mrs. A. Maurice, leaped to her death from the eighth floor of a downtown hotel.

Only a single dying request was made, that she be buried in her "little pajamas," the last tragic token of her "last party."

Police began an investigation on the theory that the woman's name was assumed and they will endeavor to establish her true identity and motive for her suicide.

The woman was about thirty-five years of age, apparently cultured and was inconspicuous, attaches declared, during her short stay at the hotel.

Excerpts from the two death notes follow:

"I took my life before and am doing it again because I was brought back to be kicked around and mistreated. I have no one to give me a boost or lift in any way.

"I have tried to make a living in every way, but no one will give me the right to live. The first place I worked, I was kicked out to the four winds. They didn't care what became of me. I was stepped on in every way.

Leaped to Her Death.

shape and manner for no cause whatever. And the second place I worked was the same. I have tried for all kinds of work, but could not get anything.

"No one cares for you when your money is gone. This sure is a cruel, cold and sordid world, I would rather be dead than live a dirty, cheap, trashy life. It means nothing to me. I have a heart and a soul for everything that is beautiful.

Her Dying Wish.

"This is my dying wish to those who have treated me dirtily. I wish them all the hard luck in the world. May ill health, misfortune and disaster come to them in every way, shape and form, and to their children. This I wish from the bottom of my heart."

Other passages of the bitter farewell messages indicated that the woman once was wealthy in her own right and a member of a socially prominent family somewhere.

"I have been used to the better things in life," she concluded. "Thank God, I can stick to death."

The woman's body was removed to the city morgue to await possible identification.

Pneumonia's Ravages

Pneumonia headed the list of diseases that caused the greatest number of deaths among our soldiers in the World War. More than 40,000 died from this cause. Of these, probably 25,000 resulted from the influenza-pneumonia pandemic which swept through every camp and cantonment in this country and caused thousands of deaths in the expeditionary forces.

Few "Wild" Horses

As a wild animal, the horse is found only in the open arid or desert plains of Central Asia and Africa. Those found in North and South America and Australia are not true wild horses. The mustangs and broncos of our West and of South America are domesticated animals that have run wild, or those descended from them.

Conditions in Alabama Will Apply Elsewhere

In no part of this country is it easier to have beautiful gardens than it is in Mobile county, whether in the city, or in outlying districts.

The lay and general character of the land is favorable, and the season for flowers and shrubs is all the year. Nor is landscaping difficult. It is never difficult where the land rolls, or in flat areas even where the soil is right and climatic conditions are favorable to the growth of plants.

Probably we are not making the best possible use of our exceptional natural opportunities in all cases; but gardens here have long been prime assets, and they are likely to become even more important as we make progress in beautifying plans and work.

Betty Booth Concert Company Has Treat For Monday

Betty Booth Concert Company

FEATURES POPULAR OPERETTA—Instrumental selections from the great masters, semiclassical instrumental numbers, costumed song presentations from light operas and other favorite vocal numbers given in costume, together with an original operetta, "A Master's Birthday"—all unite to make the program of the Betty Booth Concert Company a distinctive musical offering.

Miss Betty Booth, mezzo-soprano and pianist, who is the organizer and director of the company, studied in European music centers and appeared for two years with the Imperial Vienna Opera Company. Her voice is rich and vibrant, while her histrionic ability is intensely vivid and sparkling. In beautiful costumes, many of which she has personally secured in foreign countries, and with striking artistic background, she renders delightful song numbers.

Hugo Brandt, Polish pianist and composer of note, who received his training under the best European masters, is a valued member of this company. He has spent the past two years in continental European music centers, having previously toured America in concert performances, where he won most enthusiastic applause at every appearance. Many of his compositions have been published in this country.

Paul Clark, violinist with the company, has studied under the best masters of the day. He has appeared in concert performances in all of the large Eastern cities, and has had more than five years' successful Lyceum experience. His violin solos are a particularly notable contribution to the program.

Advertising in The NEWS is Profitable

Each Age of Mankind Had Its Collectors

It is always a matter of surprise to find what type of collector is interested in a particular subject. What- ever may be a man's profession, his hobby indicates his real self, says The Market for Exchange. A hobby should afford a complete change from one's workaday environment. For example, Lord Kitchener collected blue and white Chinese Kang-Ho porcelain. J. Pierpont Morgan essayed in vain to be as great an authority on mosque lamps as he was on railroad shares. The prince of Monaco, who derives his income from the green tables of Monte Carlo, expends it on deep-sea scientific research. That famous old character and king of collectors, Horace Walpole, turned his home, Strawberry Hill, into a museum that was the envy of museums.

But collectors are not the product of a recent age. They asserted themselves early in the history of mankind. It is to the collecting habits of certain ancients that we owe much of our knowledge of antiquity. Petrarch for instance, to whom each scrap of writing was as precious as a pearl, was an inveterate collector of classical writings. Domitius Tullius had such a collection of antique statues that a friend once said he bought a garden and was able to furnish it complete in one day from his store of treasures. Petronius, of Nero's court, amassed treasures that Nero longed to possess. There is a story that Petronius, before his execution by the command of Nero, broke into bits a precious goblet from which he drank in order that, upon his death, Nero might not have the pleasure of possessing it. Lorenzo de Medici immortalized himself as a collector; and to Cosimo, his grandfather, are due these priceless classical and Oriental manuscripts which form the nucleus of the Laurentian library in Florence.

Out of Bounds

Marcel Knecht, French delegate to the Philadelphia convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World, said in his excellent English to an interviewer:

"Success in all lines means resourcefulness. Your successful man is your resourceful man. Yet there is such a thing as being too resourceful—overstepping the bounds, you know."

"Tom Jones was too resourceful. He said to his partner, John Brown: 'Times are terrible. We'll bust in a week unless we have a well a burglary.'"

"A burglary?" said Jack Brown. "Why not the customary fire?"

"No, no," said Jones. "A burglary's best. You see, if we have a burglary and the insurance people don't pay up, why, anyhow, we don't lose nothing."

Bandit Bee Never Reforms

Bees have everything except hospitals and jails, says Mrs. Hamilton, bee woman, according to Capper's Weekly. They have no hospitals because illness is a crime punishable by immediate execution. There are bandit bees, but bee policemen guard the hive entrance and drive the robbers away. A bandit bee, says Mrs. Hamilton, never reforms—like some human bandits we know. Bees have storage houses, water plants and nurseries, where bee babies are fed on a special mixture of honey and water. Bumble bees, or other aliens that invade a hive, are immediately killed and the bodies thrown out. A noise is stung to death, but being too large to eject is sealed in a tomb more enduring than King Tut's. Honey is not sweet, says Mrs. Hamilton. It is an acid that seems sweet.

Marvelous Accuracy

Amazing records of accuracy in timekeeping are revealed in the Longines watch exhibit in the Palace of Foreign Exhibits at the Sesqui-centennial International exposition, now being held in Philadelphia. The display is that of A. Wittnauer, of Switzerland.

The exhibit includes a desk watch which was accorded official government honors at the Teddington observatory, England; the Neuchatel observatory, Switzerland; and Geneva observatory, Switzerland. In each test the timepiece was awarded first prize. The error in compensation after six weeks of observation was less than four one-hundredths of a second.

Many Sleep in Subways

There are just two short of 1,000 hotels in New York, where one may live comfortably at from $1.50 to $20 a day, according to Capper's Weekly. It is possible to find shelter in a subway for the price of a nickel or in a discarded elevated car for nothing—provided a guard doesn't catch you at it.

The all-night rider, by the way, is by no means rare in the elevated and the subways. He pays his nickel and boards a train. By getting off at the proper place he changes to another and, in this way, rides uptown and downtown, keeping warm and getting some sleep.

Volta's Centenary

It is now nearly 100 years since the death of Volta, the father of every volt, voltage, and voltmeter in existence. There is a proposal to celebrate the centenary by an international exhibition and congress to be held at Como, Italy, some time between May and October, 1927. Wireless, undreamed of by the great scientist, is to be well represented.

Patching Paper

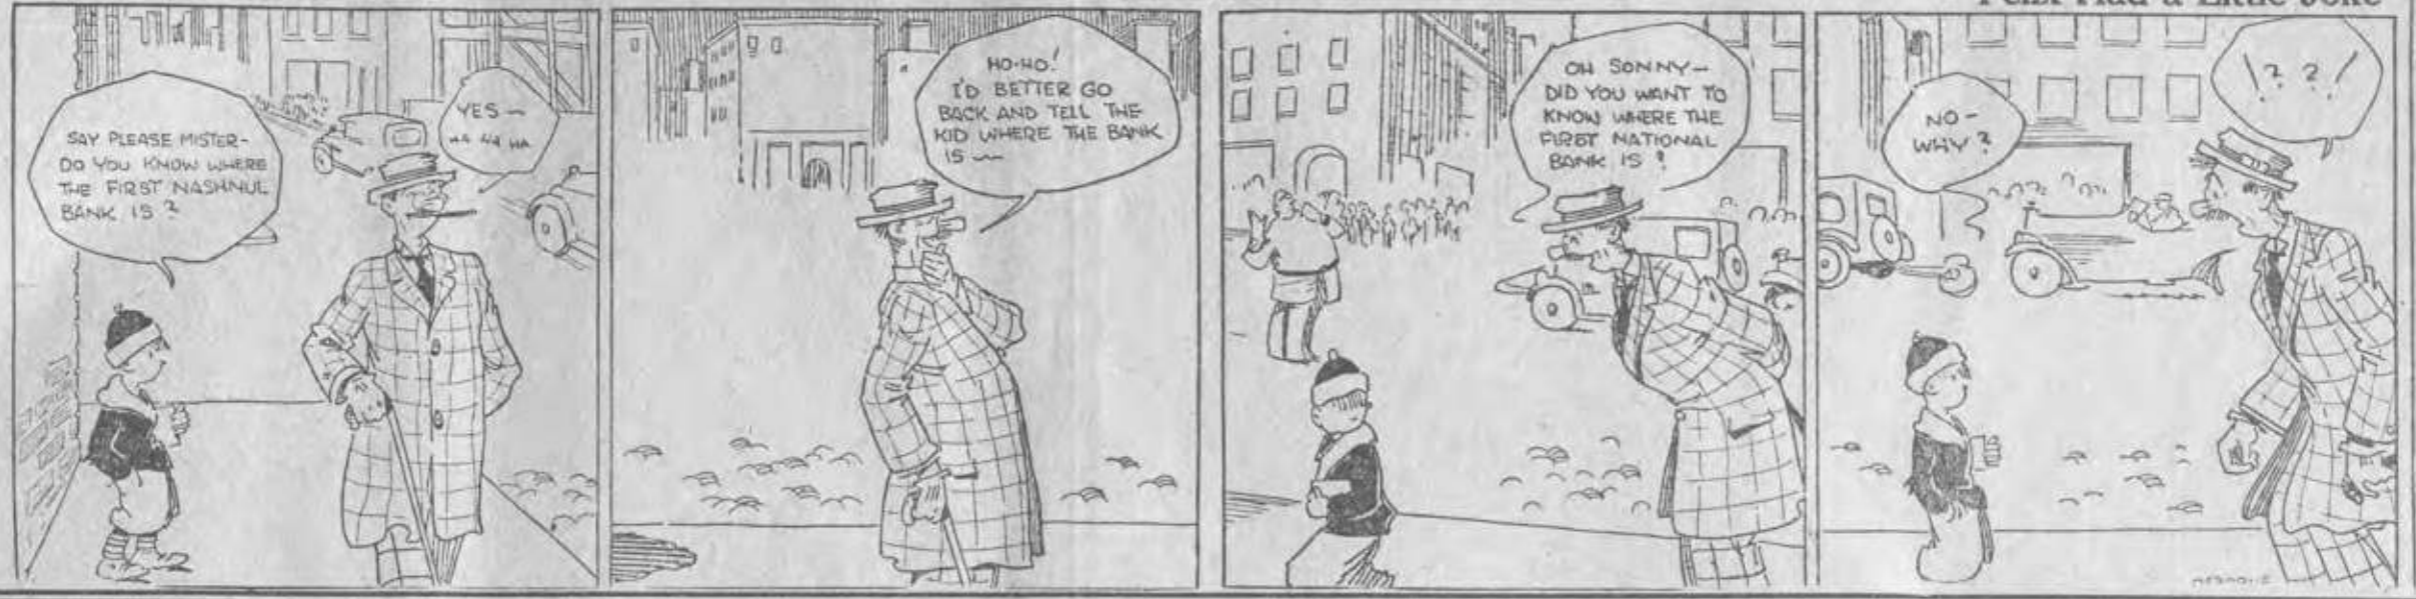

Save all pieces of wall paper for patches in case of accident. Often a new piece can be superimposed over a stained or disfigured section and be unnoticed.

Importance of Paint

Hard to Overestimate

Nothing fresher and beautifies the countryside more than paint. An improved road generally is the forerunner of a larger use of paint. And paint applied to the farm dwelling is just in the lead of better agricultural methods without, and a happier and better educated family within. A good coat of white paint has been known to raise the standard of living in an entire countryside.

A far-sighted banker in southern Arkansas, Carl Hollis, vice president of the Merchants & Planters Trust & Savings bank of Warren, has earned the title of "White Paint Hollis," because he refused a small loan to a farmer, but agreed to loan a larger sum provided the borrower would paint his house white. The farmer took him up. The example has been catching, and now there are many white-painted houses in that county. Our cities are growing at the expense of the country. The best way to keep the boys and girls on the farms is to make things there more attractive for them. Many a farm wife and mother has been praying for better things—more comforts and labor savers and education for her children—and maybe for herself. God has sometimes answered such prayers through the husband and father—and the banker—with a coat of paint as a starter. Paint preserves and brightens all it touches. New paint awakens a new spirit, new aspirations, stronger determination and fresh courage.

Front Yard Reveals

Character of Owner

The planting in the front yard of a city or suburban home occupying a rectangular lot of ordinary size is as much a part of the public street as is the parkway. It should be developed with this in mind.

While fault has been found with the Americans' method of discarding walls and fences and setting their homes where all may see, no defense is needed other than the example of the beautiful results which this practice has achieved in our garden suburbs.

But these results depend upon the extent to which the planting in front yards is in keeping with the nature of our front yards. The planting should harmonize with that in adjoining grounds. It should enhance the merits and screen the faults of the house architecture. And it should express the occupants of the home as their clothes should express them. The public aspect of the home grounds should not be out of keeping with the character of its occupants.

Attractive Small Homes

It is a common sight in residential sections of our cities to see unsightly rows of houses of the type which are built by the mile and sold by the foot. They are identical in design, planning and setting. If careful attention had been given to the fundamental principles of good planning and designing, these same dwellings could have been built with far more pleasing results, and at no greater expense. Those who build small houses become responsible not only for creating the desire to build attractively and economically, but also for preserving the ideals which lead people to build beautiful homes with loving hands and eager hearts.

Guarding Against Fire

One of the most useful safeguards against fire hazards in dwelling construction is the fire stopping of walls, partitions and floors. Fire tends to spread upward. Hollow walls and partitions, hollow spaces back of furcing on masonry walls, and even hollow floors offer inviting runways for the rapid communication of fire from cellar to attic and from side to side. The remedy lies in adequate fire stopping, which will make an all-lumber residence considerably safer against the spread of fire than masonry wall and the lumber floor construction without fire stops.

Shingle Thatch Attractive

To those who desire an unusual roof treatment, the shingle thatch offers many attractions. It has become very popular for use on country houses, clubhouses, mountain camps, etc., as well as city residences. It produces a remarkably effective reproduction of the old-fashioned straw thatch and is often stained the color of weathered straw.
