

BUSINESS MEN HOLD BANQUET

Largest Gathering of Local Merchants in History of the Borough

PRES. LEBOWITZ PRESIDED

The Business Men's Association entertained members and their friends at a Banquet Sunday afternoon and evening in the banquet rooms of the Pershing Restaurant. The affair was a decided success and conceded by many of those present as the largest gathering of business men of the Borough in many years. A marked feature of the affair was the good fellowship among the guests and that spirit accounted for the enjoyable time had by all those present.

Many of the guests arrived in the early afternoon and their numbers swelled as the day progressed, and promptly, at five o'clock President Lebowitz called the members to order for the special business session for which purpose the banquet was arranged.

Mr. Lebowitz opened the session with a brief resume of the past activities of the Association and specially cited the good will the Association fostered for civic matters, outlining the work already accomplished and the necessity of the close cooperation of members in future welfare work. Mr. Lebowitz closed his remarks with the subject of a Home suitable for meeting purposes and general social functions. On the invitation of the president several members were heard in reference to this matter and the trend of remarks favored the buildings of such a home.

Mr. Thomas G. Kenyon outlined to the meeting the mean of financing such a proposition and a committee consisting of the following members were appointed to carry out Mr. Kenyon's suggestions: Edward A. Strack, Thomas G. Kenyon, A. Christensen, Morris Hertz, George W. Enot, John Stelle, J. Schwartz, John Yuronka, Jacob Weiss and John Ginda.

After the meeting's adjournment the festivities of the evening commenced with a fine supper served by Max Cohen. Between courses Mr. Kenyon acting as toastmaster called on various guests and members for the usual after-dinner speeches. Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill gave a splendid talk as did Recorder N. A. Jacoby, J. Weiss, I. Brown and others.

Mr. John Boos, getting away from the speeches told some very humorous stories and was vigorously applauded by his audience.

The activities of the banquet ran well on into the evening, the last of the guests leaving after midnight.

Both Huber and Colquhoun are graduates of the recent Training Course for Scout Leaders conducted by the Raritan Council.

Through the efforts of District Scout Commissioner Edward A. Strack and Scout Executive Herbert W. Lunn, work is under way for the re-organization and the opening up of activities of Troop 81 under Scoutmaster Charles Rapp and as soon as definite arrangements can be made the troop will resume meeting and continue its old activities.

Scout Executive Lunn was the recent guest of the Carteret Lions Club and in conference with several members discussed the prospects of the organization of at least two more Boy Scout troops in the Borough, so that as soon as leadership can be secured work will go ahead in this direction and all boys of Carteret will have the opportunity of joining the Boy Scouts of America.

PREDICT FUTURE OF CARTERET PARK

SIDEWALKS ARE PLANNED

Carteret Park promoters predict a clean sell out of lots on their beautifully situated land, for the development of residential homes, that will give the Borough a real restricted section. Spring sales will open shortly.

William J. Grohman says that work will begin within a few weeks to side walk the property, planting of shrubs and trees and the beautifying of post boulevard, which will eventually be the connecting link between Carteret and Elizabeth.

Last Saturday Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill and members of the Borough Council visited Carteret park and Carteret Heights, looking over these sections with intentions of water, sewers and gas. They were of the opinion that these three public utilities are necessary and would give some real consideration within the next few months.

The officials could see that this section needed the stated improvements to expand the Borough in building in a fine select section.

John Lysek, leading business man of East Rahway section of the Borough purchased six lots on Roosevelt avenue of Carteret park for the sum of forty-five hundred dollars.

William J. Grohman said other sales have also been made.

Chest of Gold Believed Buried on Premises.

Baltimore.—Life in a house two centuries and a quarter old, with an iron chest full of gold popularly believed to be buried on the premises, is not all romance—in fact, it is downright annoying.

Miss Janet Ball lives in such a house on the outskirts of Baltimore. In 1771 an ancestor fitted together its hewn oak beams and raised its brick walls. In the Eighteenth century for two generations it passed from control of her family and Jean Champlaigne, French royalist, merchant prince and refugee, inhabited it—and planted both the gold and the annoyance.

Legend says that when he learned his fleet had been swept from the seas by privateers he retired into the snow and buried $50,000 in gold, the remains of his fortune, in an iron chest. Negro laborers, gypsies, "sorcerers" and prowlers in general have never given up hope of finding it; and that is the annoyance.

Miss Ball is called by police on an average of once a month "to ball out colored folk just arrested for digging up our front yard. We always do, of course, because the negroes, having grown up in the traditions of the estate, are subject to temptation that is too great for them." Some one is digging about the place most of the time, with and without permission.

The old homestead was built by Robert Teale on a grant of 10,000 acres given Edwin Dorsey in 1850 by Lord Cromwell. Champlaigne bought it in 1800 when he fled the guillotine.

Uses Cold Shower Baths on Lazy Boys

Chester, Pa.—Charging that Herman Hoopes, physical instructor at the Smedley junior high school, punished his twelve-year-old son by putting him under cold shower baths because the boy did not bring his gym shoes to class, William Mann of 624 McIlvaine street appeared before the directors of the Chester public schools with a complaint against the teacher. Mann added that his son, Elwood, a seventh-grade pupil, was made ill as a result of the punishment. The children claimed, according to young Mann, that they were forced to put on their clothes over their wet bodies, as they did not bring towels to class and were punished for failure to bring gym shoes after they had been warned by the teacher, they said.

Mann stated his son was told by the physical instructor that Dr. Norman C. Cameron, superintendent of schools, had urged the "cold shower" punishment. Doctor Cameron immediately denied having heard of the matter. The school board decided to investigate the charges promptly. Hoopes stated he felt the punishment was not above the ordinary and was justified as some of the children were lazy.

Poisons Daughter, Then Takes Rest Herself

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I gave my daughter cyanide because her illness was growing worse, and then drank what was left in the cup to kill myself," Mrs. K. B. Rigg, seventy-eight years of age, told Deputy Sheriff Croushorn and attendants in the psychopathic ward of the General hospital when accused of administering the poison which caused the death of her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Nation.

Mrs. Nation was found dead in her home, and her mother in an unconscious condition on the floor near the bed after Mrs. Nation's daughter, Mary, ran to a neighbor's house and spread the alarm.

Investigating officers reported Mrs. Nation had been ill with rheumatism for several months.

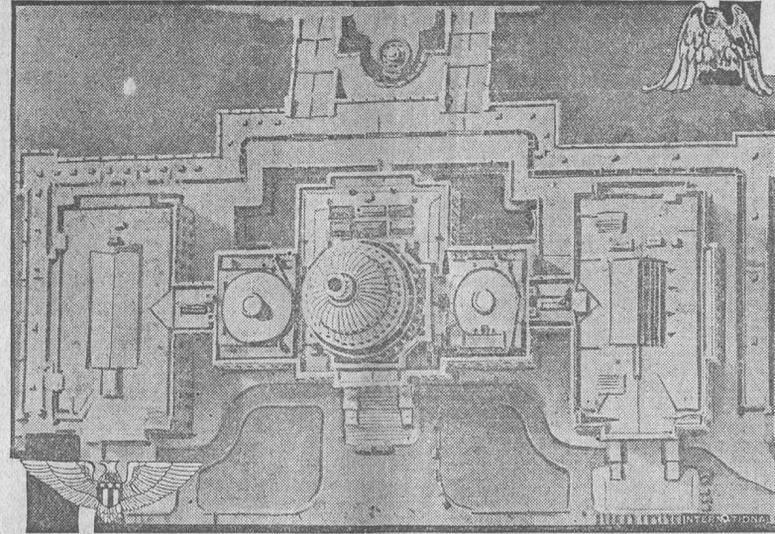

A coroner's inquest into Mrs. Nation's death resulted in a verdict of "death by cyanide poisoning administered by Mrs. K. B. Rigg, while in a despondent condition."

Suspected Slayer Held
After 13 Years' Search

Chicago.—By a mere freak of chance, a man identified as the murderer of a policeman in Mineville, N. Y., more than 13 years ago has been arrested in Chicago.

William James, chief of police of Mineville, was stabbed to death in 1913. Tony Gajdytz was suspected but could not be found. Thirteen years passed, and the murder was almost forgotten. Then a former resident of Mineville chanced to see Gajdytz in a busy Chicago street. The man was arrested and has been identified as the officer's slayer, police declare. He must face trial.

Remarks Rather Got Under Old Doc's Skin

Doc Henneberry found precisely the quotation he needed the other day at precisely the time he needed it. He was arguing with the young doctor he has taken into his office, and who has set Old Doc's teeth on edge by refusing to obey the conventions that seem so necessary to the older man.

"Yours," said Doc heavily, "is a perverse and forward generation." "Who made us that way?" asked the younger man. "What we are, you elders made us. It is absurd to suppose that the babies born into this world between certain early Twentieth century dates should have been prenatally disposed toward evil. If we do not believe what you believed when you were young it is because you elders have destroyed the foundations of belief. If we misbelieve it is because we see you misbelieving. If we are shameless about our misbehavior it is because we see you doing the same things and lying about them.

"Do not blame us. It may be that we are misapplying our knowledge. But at least we got the knowledge from you."

Poor Old Doc Henneberry was silent. It seemed to me that I could see into his mind, and watch with him the review of the years. Of his swaggering self when he first came to town, as a young doctor, a professed atheist, a humorist fresh from the dissecting room, who made the Bible his target, a loud, noisy, voluble, well-informed follower of all the ways of the flesh. As he grew older he mellowed. He had stood by too many deathbeds to dare deny the existence of a God. He found he must obey the conventions which today's Young Doc is defying, if for no other reason than that the old rules work.

"I wonder," said Old Doc, heavily, "how much harm I've done?"—J. P. in Kansas City Times

A Night Alarm

Gen. Sir James Willcocks, in his book, "Romance of Soldiering and Sport," records a startling experience while he was the guest of a native ruler in India, who invited him to a shoot. He was given a room to sleep in prior to starting at dawn the next day. "I went to bed, fortunately, under mosquito curtains; I say fortunately because an hour later I felt the curtains heaving about, and put my hand up against a horrid lump of cold stuff. Jumping out of bed, I ran outside with bare feet and shouted. One of my host's servants came and lit a light, when to my horror I saw two large pythons hanging from a beam above me, and actually touching the mosquito net. I forgot what I said, but the old man quietly remarked: 'Oh, these are quite friendly snakes; you can sleep without any fear.' I did not sleep any more that night; nor did he."

More Bunk

The people in Woodbridge, who are in the clutches of the Greedy Water Company, were treated recently to another deluge of company pamphlet propaganda.

Pity the POOR PIRATES!

They must have MORE money and MORE money. YOU must give it to THEM. WHY? Because THEY say THEY must have MORE water. More water for WHOM—for YOU? APPARENTLY NOT. Let us see what the RECORD appears to show.

According to the company's own reports on file at the Utility Commission for years the company has been SELLING THIRTY to FIFTY percent of its supply to other companies.

If that is so, then they do not need the water for YOU but for the OTHER COMPANIES. But they expect YOU to help pay for it for the OTHER COMPANIES.

Mr. Bergen, President of the Middlesex Water Company, is President of one of the other two companies and interested in the other for years. Fine for him, but what about YOU?

So much for needing MORE MONEY for MORE WATER for YOU!

Back in 1920 the Middlesex Company got a big increase in rates. In 1924 it got a further increase and in 1926 a still greater increase.

In 1920 the company's President said the Utility Commission substantially had a valuation before it a few years back and could bring it up to date. It did and the valuation was approximately $1,203,000 in 1920.

In 1924—four years later—without any real additions to property, the valuation was jumped ONE HUNDRED PERCENT. to $2,500,000.

And YOU are paying and have been paying a big interest return on twice the property's 1920 valuation.

Pretty SOFT for Mr. Bergen and his crew to make YOU pay on over a MILLION more for practically the same property for a WORSE service.

NOW the Middlesex Company, after virtually giving away the best part of its possession, its water, to other FRIENDLY companies, wants YOU to pay HIM more so he can get more water for his other companies, too.

And they—after making more than a MILLION on you in valuation in four years—and doubling YOUR rates, inferentially suggest that YOU do not protest while the crowd helps itself to MORE.

Forms of "Hookworm" That Are to Be Blamed for Farm Decadence

By PROF. CAMPBELL, Iowa State Teachers' College.

We need not be concerned about the departure of many young people from farm communities. That is a wholesome economic readjustment. There is not room on the farm for every boy and girl born there. What is of vital concern is the fact that it is the big potatoes that are going, leaving the little potatoes to be the parents of the next generation in the farming industry.

If the most capable young people are constantly drained out of the farming communities, leaving the inferiors to be the parents of the next generation, the race of farmers will deteriorate.

Rural life at present is pale and weak. It staggers. It is being bled white by hookworms—the hookworm of mortgage indebtedness, the hookworm of the depreciated farm dollar, the hookworm of absentee landlords.

An investigation I recently completed, revealed that 80 to 95 per cent of the young farm people of intelligence and enterprise, the cream of the young people of the community, quit farming because they can find better opportunity in other lines.

Education is a prerequisite of co-operative marketing. The problems of co-operative marketing are too big to be solved by ignorance. There is but one weapon against ignorance, and that is education.

Fundamentalism Cause of Lack of Religious Unity and Cooperation

By REV. JOHN HENMAN RENDALL, New York City.

If the Savior were to enter a modern fundamentalism church and hear the theological bosh preached in it he would wonder what the preacher was talking about. Sixty per cent of the population of this country never enter a church, and one reason for that sad state of affairs is that the living dogmas of the dead past have become dead dogmas to the living.

The present generation is not necessarily less religious than former ones, but it regards the old doctrines as "simply Greek."

Each religion started with the prophetic type of mind, and had a moral and spiritual message dealing with the kind of life to be lived, not with a creed to be believed. If the founders of all the great religions were alive today they would fraternize and say, "We all worked for the same thing"; but their followers have been intolerant toward each other and humanity has been kept apart.

Religion can exert real influence only when it rises again to the level of its founders and brings about some sort of unity and co-operation within itself.

Work of the Health Department Hindered by Unprogressive Public Opinion

By DR. ARLINGTON AILES, Illinois Health Officer.

Public opinion that is "almost medieval" harasses too many health departments. Frequently in smaller cities the health department is given niggardly support financially; the health officer is harassed by the force of almost medieval public opinion, the relatively unimportant health hobby of some social leaders and the short-sightedness of his city council or commission in the relative value of health expenditures.

The health officer, of course, must decide what he can accomplish with his resources of personnel and money, more or less regardless of this pressure. He must then collect, compile and use his vital statistics with a view to changing this public opinion and presenting cold facts to the sometimes so-called hard-headed board of aldermen, which make the city's appropriations. To them, what happens elsewhere has little weight, but definite figures of their home town have a fascinating tune.

Vital statistics, properly collected, compiled and used, are probably the most vital function of a health department. It is to the preservation and progress of official public health—that bookkeeping is to business. Both must fail without it.

OPINION

A Worthy Organization. Carteret and Germany. The Observer is Wong. Cheer Up Boys! Dignity Not Sacrificed.

FIRE CHIEF WILHELM, of Company No. 2, recently displayed in behalf of the local fire fighting corps, an eagerness to protect the people against losses. His interest is not new, for the two companies have always done valiant deeds in times of fire danger. They have always endeavored to uphold public safety. In this regard they are to be congratulated.

Within a few days Company 2 will hold an election of officers. It is hoped that the organization will choose men who can keep the spirit alive, as the spirit is a good one.

Moreover, the firemen have served the Borough as a chief exponent in spreading good cheer. Only a few months ago they held a gala celebration on Labor Day that will be remembered for a long time.

JOHN BRUSKIE, Carteret bike rider and an idol, starts Sunday at midnight on a six-day grind in Dortmund, Germany. Almost a dozen other formidable teams will compete, thus offering the local man an opposition of high calibre. He will have to ride his usual worthy race, indeed.

Bruskie will enter the event with considerable experience, for he has already taken part in two similar events in Chicago and one in Boston. There is no doubt that he will need all the knowledge he possesses.

Thus, Carteret will be represented in one of the finest sporting affairs of the season. Surely the local man is to be praised for his success on the track.

IS IT TRUE that shiny shoes are no longer regarded important by school teachers? Observers have pointed out a difference between the modern school teacher and the former school master. They say that no longer do we find instructors calling for heels to be shown to see if the polish goes all the way round. Is it really a fact that nowadays shoes seem to hold a place in school as distant as the arctic?

Fogies have been decrying conditions of the present budding generation for so long that it seems they have only the shoes left to hit at. Surely teachers in Carteret schools are just as strict as those of by-gone years, for seldom does any one notice boys and girls with dirty shoes.

Parents, too, are almost always certain to see that their children leave for school with shining shoes.

All this leads us to decide not to take too much stock in what the OBSERVER "SEES."

MR. H. W. LUNN, of the Boy Scouts of America, has aroused an unusual amount of interest in Carteret as regards boys activity. His talk to the Lions Club served as a helping hand to the urging of this paper for better organization of scouts here.

Scouting has decayed discouragingly in Carteret in the last year or more. E. A. Strack, new commissioner, in co-operation with many business men and other residents, is making an effort to have at least four troops established before summer starts. In this way a splendid revival of enthusiasm among boys is anticipated.

Boy Scout work calls for an extraordinary amount of attention of men, who act as masters. It has been because of the difficulty to keep one man regularly at the head of the movement that has caused the decay in interest. Such a cause could not be helped, as there are very few men who are able to give all the attention that is needed.

It appears that Troop No. 2 is the best managed at present. Scoutmaster Merril Huber and his assistant Walter Calquhoun have been active. They should have a fine outfit for the coming warm season, when boys are attracted by the lure of the outdoors.

DEAN INGE, popular feature writer of London whose articles appear abundantly in the United States press, said that he was not harming his dignity by becoming a journalist. A bishop had cautioned him, but he merely remarked, "there is no great distinction between writing for the press, read by all classes, and preaching to a similar audience from the pulpit."

The dean writes because he needs money to send his children to school. Apparently the bishop would rather have Mr. Inge preserve his dignity than educate his children.

At any rate, one who contributes to the right kind of newspaper need not fear sacrificing his dignity.

Students on Ships

Several of the trans-Atlantic steamship lines, during the past summer season, carried in the quarters usually occupied by steerage passengers hundreds of men and women, classed as "college tourists," who were accorded an exceptionally low rate. The same service will be continued this year, probably with increased numbers taking advantage of it. There was a time when most "college tourists" worked their way across. First, the hardest of them used to go on cattle boats as, one might say, "deep-sea cowboys." Then they found openings as deckhands, kitchen (or galley) helpers, "hoots," bath stewards, jazz orchestra men, etc. Now the United States shipping board has issued an order to stop all this. It claims that experience has shown that the practice of engaging collegiate tourists for such jobs has tended "to demoralize the permanent force and interfered with the policy of building up American crews for our merchant marine."

Whether or not this is true, we cannot quite understand how the shipping board hopes to discourage college tourists who prefer to work their way across, says the Philadelphia Record. The same sort of young men will grab the jobs when they can, merely refraining from admitting that they are "collegiate."

The age of jazz has raised the age limit for marriage among the feminine contingent, according to those who have studied the tendencies of the times. These authorities agree that no girl should undertake the management of a home until she is ready to give up her financial independence and accept the role of home-maker. In these days, that age is seldom reached until a girl is in her twenties, sometimes it is much later than this. The modern girl has established a reputation for irresponsibility, and lack of self-sacrifice. She is accused of being a jazz devotee with no serious attitude toward life. Until she has outgrown these tendencies, she is unfit for the role of wife and home-maker, and nothing but unhappiness can come of a marriage under such conditions, they say. In grandmother's day it was different, says the Detroit News. The home was the main idea, grandmother didn't do the Charleston, and was content to spin and attend to her home duties. That is why she could marry young with safety.

Credit Not Johnson's

When Doctor Johnson's "Rambler" was first published, the sale was decidedly disappointing. In fact the only paper, curious as it may seem in the light of his reputation today, which might be said to have been popular, was No. 97—the only one Doctor Johnson did not write. This paper, says the Market for Exchange, was said to have been written by Samuel Richardson.

Thomas Paine was born in 1737 and died in 1809. Of his work called "Common Sense" it is said that it was "the first open assertion of American independence, and was probably the most powerful pamphlet that ever influenced a nation's history." In this sense Thomas Paine may be said to have influenced the preparation and adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

COUNCIL MINUTES

Carteret, N. J., Feb. 21, 1927. A regular meeting of the Council of the Borough of Carteret was held Monday, February 21st, 1927, at eight o'clock p. m.

Present: Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill. Councilmen: Andres, Brown, Coughlin, D'Zurilla, Ellis and Vonah. The minutes of previous meeting, February 7, 1927, were approved as printed, on motion by Vonah and Ellis.

A letter was received from the American Legion in reference to children playing on the streets at night, roller skating, etc. The Mayor complimented the Legion on their interest in this matter, and also on the need of a curfew ordinance. Ellis spoke on the same lines saying that he and the police chief had talked on this, and on motion by Coughlin and Ellis this was left in the hands of the Police Committee.

The Recorder's report for January was then read, showing total collections of $274.00, expenses $15.50, leaving a balance of $258.50, accompanied by a check in like amount. On motion by Vonah and Ellis the report was turned over to the Police Committee and the check to the Treasurer and his receipt taken for same.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes items like N. Y. Telephone Co., John Brechka, Luke Kelly, etc.

COMMITTEES

Finance—Ellis spoke of back taxes due, of a tax sale and of a delinquent list of personal tax bills past due and not paid.

Streets and Roads—Andres spoke of Roosevelt Avenue above Brady's Corner being in very bad shape. On motion by Andres and Ellis the Clerk was instructed to write Freeholder Quakenbush and ask that this be remedied as soon as possible.

Mr. Trefinko was then heard wanting something done to Frederick Street. Mr. Weisman then spoke of the poor condition of Lafayette Street. Paul Hilo was then heard on damage to sidewalks on his property.

The Street and Road Committee was instructed to place fill on Frederick Street. The removal of snow from the streets was left to the Street and Road Committee.

There was some discussion on the petition for sewer for East Rahway. On motion by Andres and Vonah the Mayor, Council, Engineer and Attorney were to meet with the property owners of East Rahway on Saturday, February 26th, at 2 p. m., at Frederick Street, above Roosevelt Avenue.

The Mayor then spoke of changing the name of the upper part of Roosevelt Avenue as it was confusing at times having been known for years as Rahway Avenue. The Mayor then spoke of water collecting at the foot of the hill at Carteret Ferry; as this is a county road, the Clerk was instructed to write Freeholder Quakenbush and ask that this be remedied.

Police—Ellis said that he would see and talk with the Chief of Police about the children on the streets at night. He also spoke of some cleanups that had been made.

Fire and Water—Andres spoke of wires being down, probably affecting telephone calls in case of fire, also of water for East Rahway. Attorney Stremiau stated that nothing definite had been decided by the company on this matter.

Law—Progress. Mr. Maxwell Sosin was then heard on sidewalks for Harris Street, as to his property valuations, etc., saying he thought the Borough should issue ordinance on this at once. There was considerable controversy on this. Coughlin spoke in favor of laying sidewalks. On motion by Andres and D'Zurilla the matter was left to the Council as a whole.

William Grohman was then heard on sidewalk grade on property of the Carteret Park Realty Co. He also spoke of the proposed meeting on the sewerage question in the East Rahway section and thanked the Council for the interest taken by them.

The following resolution was presented by Ellis: RESOLVED, That the bookkeeper in the office of the Collector of Taxes be paid an annual salary of Nineteen Hundred Dollars, payable in equal semi-monthly installments, to take effect on March 1, 1927.

On motion by Andres and Vonah the resolution was adopted, all voting yea on roll call.

The following ordinances were introduced by Andres:

Dignity Not Accorded Its Meed of Respect

When the Romans wanted to compliment a man they spoke of his dignity. At one and the same time they implied worth, value, excellence. The esteem in which dignity was held passed from the Romans to the barbarians who conquered them and so through the ages.

Of late something has happened to dignity. It has come under suspicion as being a cloak for rascality on the one hand and stupidity on the other, a writer in the Baltimore Sun asserts. It is regarded not as inherent in a man's nature, but as something assumed. Hence an affectation. The contempt in which it is commonly held is evidenced by the application of the slang expression "stuffed shirt" to almost any man who endeavors to maintain an air of dignity.

No doubt dignity, as commonly practiced, deserves much of its condemnation. An instance is recalled some fifteen years ago when a certain man was proposed for senator on the mere ground that he looked like a senator. Almost anyone with a frock coat and a loud voice could in those days utter an hour of platitudes and get the credit for wisdom. To heckle him was to offend against his dignity.

Now we have gone to the other extreme. Not only do persons without dignity guard against assuming it but those in whom dignity is inherent make every effort to conceal the fact. They have themselves photographed in unconventional poses, they make a desperate effort, and usually an unsuccessful one, to be the life of the party. Their idea is to impress the public as being what Will Rogers terms "a regular guy."

For the man who has a natural dignity to pretend that he hasn't is as much of an affectation as for the man without natural dignity to pretend that he has.

The "regular guy" has his place. So has the man of dignity. When each attempts to assume the clothes of the other it is time for the public to turn thumbs down on both.

Medical Research Work

Thirty-seven research students are devoting themselves to the pursuit of the medical sciences on the material sustenance supplied by national research fellowships, according to an announcement recently made by the national research council. These fellowships were established to help graduate students of proved ability to complete their training in specialized lines of medical research from funds provided by joint contributions from the general education board and the Rockefeller foundation. Seventy fellows have already completed their training and most of them have gone to academic positions, where they are engaged in medical research and teaching.

Thoroughbred Horses

The bureau of animal industry says that as far back as it knows there are no race-track regulations requiring that only thoroughbreds enter a race. However, a horse that is not a thoroughbred, unless he is exceptional, would stand little chance against a horse who has been bred from racing ancestors. Thoroughbred horses, in this country are registered solely on the thoroughbredness of their ancestors. Registration is a thoroughbred society necessitates that both the sire and the dam be registered or eligible for registration in the society, which means that their sire and dam were registered.

The Necessary Requirements Of A Theatrical Success

As Revealed By An Extensive Study of the Theatre

Eleanor Painter as "Jenny Lind" and Thos. A. Wise as "P. T. Barnum" in "The Nightingale"

IT is a curious fact that every time a new play on Broadway makes a big success many persons endeavor to ascertain what elements have been responsible for it. Theatre-folk are constantly striving to develop a formula which might act as a guide in presenting for the public just what most people want.

If any person invariably could determine in advance whether a play would succeed or fail and what degree of either it would meet with that individual would find himself or herself the most sought person in existence. And yet it one takes the outstanding musical successes of the last ten years and analyzes the features of each it would be found that in all there is a striking similarity of popular elements. For instance glance back at such "hits" as "Maytime," "Blossom-Time," "The Student Prince," "Countess Maritza," and now "The Nightingale." The same features may be found in each. A bright story, pretty music which sends the audience out humming, attractive girls, smart dancing and good, clean comedy, framed in a gorgeous production.

"The Nightingale," now playing at Jolson's 59th Street Theatre in New York, is the latest of this category and even more pertinent examples these elements than the other great successes. And as if to emphasize the ordinary popular features embodied in it the Messrs. Shubert have presented the play with a cast that has been unmatched in excellence in recent years.

The cast is headed by Eleanor Painter, the operatic and musical comedy star, as Jenny Lind, upon whose life the play is based, supported by Tom Wise, the genial dean of straight comedians in the part of P. T. Barnum. Mr. Wise looks so much like Barnum that when you place their pictures together, it is difficult to tell them apart. And as if this wasn't enough, the Shuberts have augmented the comedy by putting Stanley Lupino, the famous Englishman, into the play with a role slightly baroque.

And like its predecessors, "The Nightingale" has a strong dramatic story, full of heart throbs which can bring a tear to the most stoical, and then in the next moment its sparkling comedy just as simply sends one into convulsive laughter. Back these elements with the other popular features of the majority of Broadway's biggest successes and you have the reason for the popularity of "The Nightingale" and why its being hailed as the current success of those few beautiful musical plays which always linger in memory when the subject of popular plays is discussed.

Their Philosophy

"In these days of short skirts we look back with amusement to the time of the crinoline and hoopskirt," philosophically said Professor Pate. "When bangs were in vogue we smiled at the remembrance of the chignon and waterfall, just as today we find the recollection of the Grecian bend highly diverting. At any date, from the present back to the time of Godley's Ladies' Book, we can pick up a fashion publication of a few years before and enjoy a hearty laugh. And thus it will ever be; the correct thing of yesterday is the laughing stock of today, just as the modes of the present will be either humorous or pathetic, a few years hence."

"Yes," returned J. Fuller Gloom, the human hyena, "except in politics—the Hon. has always been a nuisance, and always will be."—Kansas City Star.

Removing Ink From Prints

Books of 25 years ago asserted that milk would take ink out of prints, but the directions would not apply today, for the reason that milk is not what it was, nor is ink. Milk consumed in cities is freed from lactic bacteria, which were once depended on to perform the necessary chemical action, and ink today has multiplied into 150 varieties, so that no general household directions can be considered safe to remove ink from fabrics. A spotter is required to determine the formula to apply to the removal of each type of ink since a remedy for one might make another indelible.

Valuable Radio Beacon

A mobile radio beacon has been invented to prevent collisions at sea in foggy weather. It is described as a low-power automatic radio transmitter which sends out a characteristic signal over a short distance. It is installed in the pilot house and operates independently of the ship's wireless apparatus. In foggy weather the device is turned on. The radio signal it transmits is heard by any ship within ten miles, which, by the use of the radio compass, or direction finder, can determine the position of the approaching vessel.

Archeological Treasures

Golden relics of the Fifth century were recently discovered by Professor Mora, director of the Municipal museum of Szeged, Hungary, according to a dispatch in the Frankfurter Zeitung. The professor saw a group of children playing with something that looked like a copper baton. It turned out to be a portion of a finely chiseled scepter found in a garden. Digging there, he came upon 92 gold coins and several gold cups and dishes, believed to be treasure from the tomb of one of the kings of Gepidae, an early Germanic tribe.—Chicago Tribune.

Weather to Order

Weather is made to order in Pittsburgh, where researchers of the bureau of mines have fitted up special rooms to study the influence of weather on respiratory diseases. Electrical ice machines, capable of making five tons of ice per day, are hooked up with steam heat to produce temperatures ranging from zero to 180 degrees above. Other apparatus produces fog, rain and the entire scale of humidity from 15 to 100, the saturation point. Miniature storms can be created by a battery of 20 small, airplane propeller type of electric fans.

Cinnamon Lasted Long

Twenty-four years ago, a few days after Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Steuerwald of Ghent, N. Y., were married, the bride wished to pickle some pigs' feet, but found that she had no cinnamon. She asked her husband to get a supply and he returned home with five pounds of stick cinnamon, which, in those days, was the only kind used in pickling. The package nearly filled the rear part of the Steuerwald buggy. Mrs. Steuerwald has just used the last stick of the twenty-four-year-old cinnamon at buckering time to flavor a batch of hockies.

BUICK UNIFIED LINE

THE Buick Motor Company has announced the completion of its new, efficient assembly system, the Unified Line.

It is capable of turning out thirteen hundred complete automobiles a day. The plant engineers who planned and built the system say that their purpose was to obtain the most speed and economy in the assembly operation consistent with the rigid standards of quality maintained in the past.

That this purpose has been accomplished is demonstrated by the fact that between 885 and 900 men, with the aid of the new system, are able to turn out the normal output of eleven hundred cars a day. This places the actual cost of assembling each car at a figure less than the wage of one man for one day, as far as the labor item is concerned.

There is no interruption in the assembly of the cars from the time the bare frame starts at one end of the system until the finished car is driven away at the other end. It consists of three assembly lines located in a building 64 feet wide and running parallel. This economy of space is possible because all materials and parts are brought to the three lines by gravity or power conveyors at exactly the time they are needed for assembly. This eliminates the necessity of keeping racks of stock on hand.

Buick builds chassis of three lengths and two engine sizes. There are eighteen domestic body styles, several export right hand drives, many different paint combinations of bodies and wheels, and practically all parts are in two sizes. A frame for a chassis of 128 inches starts at the riveting bays. Throughout its long journey through thousands of assembly operations, it must in every case receive exactly the right part for this particular chassis. This is accomplished by the Unified Line.

Cady B. Durham, vice president and assistant general manager of Buick, conceived the Unified Line and built it with the assistance of his staff of plant engineers. Its purpose is to build Buicks to the same high standard of quality which has been maintained for twenty-three years, and yet to eliminate the costly items of delay, handling costs, duplication of effort and unnecessary labor expense. The system as it now stands is second to none in the industry.

WOMAN BANDIT RULES HER BAND BY LURE OF SEX

Polish Woman and Gang Starved Into Capture After Many Crimes.

Berlin.—American women gangsters might well take lessons from Franziska Tyka, notorious Polish bandit. The Bobbed Hair Bandit was a piker compared to her. But ambitious American women criminals who might like to receive instruction will have to wait. She has just been sentenced by the Criminal Court at Rybnik, in Polish Upper Silesia, to seven years' hard labor. It was proved that in the last five years she and her gang of about 20 men committed 31 robberies, and they are suspected of countless more.

Franziska was no ordinary robber chieftain. For her life was a pleasantly varied but closely interwoven round of love and loot, or, rather, loot and love. Franziska's motto was "business first, pleasure afterward." During the last ten years she and her gang were the terror of Upper Silesia, and she was both the terror and idol of her gang.

A False Halo.

A false halo of wild romance surrounds her crimes, which outshine the most imaginative efforts of the writers of the most lurid fiction. When Franziska stood before the judge in Rybnik

She Undressed Completely.

she lifted her small, soft hands—an alluring figure for all of her forty-one years—and begged for mercy for those of her band who were captured with her. Coquettishly throwing back her golden blond bobbed hair, she told him: "I committed all these robberies in the full confidence of the unshakable love of my men and in the belief that they were loyal to me to their death."

Her life of crime began 22 years ago, when she was nineteen. She said she was driven to commit her first breach of the law. She conceived an intense hatred of society, which she indulged by her crimes. She led a life in which no demoralization was strange to her. Yet still she retains her feminine charm. No judge would have suspected, without the evidence submitted, that with those small and soft hands she had horsewhipped bandits, had led them in crime after crime, and had herself thrown the torch into peaceful farmhouses to start the fire which preceded the pillage.

Twenty men, between the ages of twenty and fifty, followed her command in the forests around Pless and Rybnik. A word from her and they would sally forth to attack and plunder peaceful settlements. The terror done, they would hasten back to their encampment. For ten years they worshipped her—her courage, her criminal brain and her sex. For Franziska had been mistress of them all in turn. That was her ultimate power over them.

Led Band In Person.

The fact was fully established at the trial that before she and her gang started on their raids, after all preparations were completed, she undressed completely and thus led her band to battle. Jealousy between the members of her band she kept down by feminine tact and kindness.

But fate at last overtook Franziska through one of her oldest lovers, one of her gang who was fifty. For some time he believed he was unduly neglected by her. At last his jealousy drove him to betray her to the Polish police. Surrounded by a cordon of police and soldiers in their forest retreat, she and most of her band were starved into surrender.

With this capture the robberies around Pless and Rybnik have ceased. Those few of the band who escaped have scattered to the four winds. Without their sweetheart and captain they are helpless. They are waiting impatiently the end of the weary seven years to come when she will be restored to liberty and to them. But will she be able to charm them seven years hence?

Shocked the Judge

Gratz, Austria.—Brought into a courtroom as an exhibit, an African parrot addressed the judge in such a way that the court refused to proceed with the case.

Vanity and Exercise

Mix as Death Potion
Paris.—Vanity and fondness for indoor physical exercise spelled death for Raoul La Chapelle, government employee in Paris, France, police have decided after dropping suicide and murder theories in his unusual death.

After Chapelle disappeared mysteriously police broke into his apartment to search for him. They found his dead body, dressed in a clown suit, suspended by the neck from gymnastic apparatus attached to the ceiling.

Piecing together evidence, detectives found that the man had dressed for a masquerade party. He had apparently stepped on a stool to get a full view of himself in a mirror. While on the stool he began exercising, police say, and the stool slipped, his neck caught in the ropes, and he was choked to death.

Odors of Fish Kitchens

Stir Berlin Shopkeepers

Berlin.—Popular fish kitchens, recently installed in Berlin after the model of London, may be all right, but a number of business men have launched protests with the police against the odor.

They approve the idea underlying the recent erection of fish kitchens in all sections of the city, namely, that of enabling even the worker of moderate means to get a warm meal at midday. But, they ask, why must these fish kitchens be domiciled on the main business streets, next to fashionable shops?

Among the most vociferous objectors are the owners of flower shops and perfume stores.

Golfer Falls Dead After His Best Drive

Miami, Fla.—After making what was said to be the best tee drive of his life, Thomas Wood, aged sixty-seven, of Orange, N. J., fell dead on the eighth tee of the Country club course here.

Wood led off in the driving from the tee, knocking a straight and far ball, and exclaimed that it was the best he had ever made. His companion drove and, turning to speak to Wood, found him lying dead on the grass.

Voice of a Snake

Besides the little hiss that seems to be common with most snakes they are generally incompetent to make any noise. There is one snake, however, the big water python or anaconda of Brazil, which gives a peculiar piercing cry at night.

Long Names Common

Long and intricate names for Hawaiian children are not uncommon. A baby girl has been named Kalepaulau-ohasanaupalimilialakawaloone Juliet Naki, the first name meaning "the flower wreath and leaves are cherished by the waters of the god Lono."

For instance—family ties can be strengthened by frequent telephone calls—particularly when distance makes personal visits difficult.

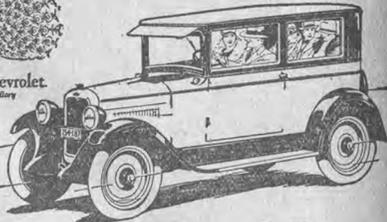

You can call your friends in a neighboring town before driving over to see them. It may save your time and shows consideration for their convenience.

Social affairs always run more smoothly when last-minute arrangements have been made and co-ordinated by telephone. The joy of entertaining would be handicapped indeed without the facility and elasticity that the telephone affords.

IS LIKE A SPOTTED FRUIT
The Good Fruit Is Soon Attacked; Just So Does One Decayed Tooth Attack a Sound One

That's why the earliest possible attention to a decayed tooth is advisable. Frequent brushing not less than twice a day is a wise habit and a thorough examination every six months at this office will prevent decay and loss of a single tooth.

Another reason why you should not neglect teeth is the longer you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything you delay the more the repair bill is bound to cost. So it is anything tooth, or the various diseases that develop from diseased teeth.

He Was a Two-Time Winner

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

PAUL VINTON had made the rash statement that he was not dependent on the fortune his father had left him—that had he not been left a penny he would be able to make his own living. He made this statement at the club and Gifford Briggs and Sam Burke laughed at him.

"Just what could you do now?" asked Sam, "to earn your bread and butter?"

"I can drive a machine," said Paul, "and I'm pretty good at mechanics generally; I can repair almost any sort of car—if the trouble isn't serious."

"Poof!" cried Gifford, "you are a fair amateur, I'll admit; but as a professional—I'll bet you five hundred you could not get a job off your own bat as a chauffeur and keep it three months."

"Done," said Paul. And thereafter for some time his place at the club was vacant.

Soon after Paul's disappearance from his accustomed haunts a young man presented himself before Mrs. Richard Charteris of Beacon street, Boston, and applied for the post of chauffeur in that lady's establishment, which, he understood, had become vacant. Mrs. Charteris looked him over and questioned him; Mr. Charteris did the same as did their daughters, Penelope and Barbara. He was asked for a recommendation from his last employer and presented a most laudatory one. Paul had written it himself and signed his own name to it. The name he gave to his employers was one which he had chosen after much worried cogitation—it was John Snooks.

"Dear me! What an awful name," cried Mrs. Charteris. "We generally call our chauffeur by his last name; but Snooks?—never! Suppose we call you Harrison."

Barbara, the younger of the Charteris girls, regarded Paul with a suspicious look.

"Father," said she, "do you know anything of this Paul Vinton from whom this person professes to bring a recommendation?"

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Charteris, "I know of him. He's old Hard Pine Vinton's son. He inherited heaps of money."

"I rather think I've heard of him," said Barbara. "He's a dissipated youth, I understand; not over bright. Do you think a recommendation from him is of any value?"

Paul tried not to glare at Barbara while she was trading his character. The girl was just spiteful. But how had Barbara come to hear anything of him at all? As far as he could remember he did not know a soul in Boston.

All the family liked "Harrison," as they insisted upon calling him, except Barbara. And for some reason, which he could not comprehend himself, Barbara was the one person he laid himself out to please. There were times when the girl's manner underwent a complete change. She would speak to Vinton, even smile upon him.

For two months Paul stuck to his job. "One month more," he meditated, "and then I'm going to stage a dramatic climax to my little adventure." He pictured himself disclosing his real identity before the whole family and demanding of Barbara—who would, of course, be overwhelmed with astonishment—her authority for the aspersions she had cast upon his character. And then? Why then, having convinced Barbara of his worthiness, he would approach the young lady from another angle.

Then one day when, because of thinking too much of Barbara, he had been guilty of some little dereliction, Barbara said to him coldly: "Your training with that rather disreputable Mr. Vinton has, evidently, not fitted you for the position of chauffeur in a family such as ours."

Paul lost his head and began an energetic defense of his "late employer."

"Really," said Barbara, "I had no idea that Mr. Vinton was such a paragon. Your able defense of him would lead one to believe, almost, that you were Mr. Vinton himself."

Paul looked at her with a start and an expression on his face that was a confession.

Barbara broke into a peal of laughter. "Oh you guileless youth," said she. "I have known who you were all along. When you applied for the position of chauffeur I saw at once that you were no professional. And that little 'recommendation' you presented was a trifle too flattering. I suspected some mystery and made my attack upon Mr. Vinton's character as a chance shot. The way you looked at me confirmed my suspicions. I wrote to my cousin, Tom Perberton, in New York, asking him if he knew one Paul Vinton. He replied that he knew you well, belonged to the bet you had made. The mystery was cleared up. But I determined to make you really earn your five hundred—it was such fun. If you really want to stay on another month I think I can keep your secret just about that much longer."

"I do want to stay on," replied Paul. "Let's take your blue runabout and go for a drive in the country—and talk it over."

Paul won his five hundred and about two months later put the money into a wedding present for his bride—whose name was Barbara.

Foresaw the Telephone

The possibility of telephone or wireless telegraph was evidently in the mind of Galileo, for in 1632 he referred to "the secret art" by which through the sympathy of magnetic needles men might converse at long distance.

WINTER SPORTS IN SUMMERLAND

Countries of the Tropics Have Games and Fetes Peculiarly Their Own.

By T. A. KEAN
Chicago.—While winter sports in the North are confined largely to affairs that are concerned with ice and snow, the tropics and the West Indies boast winter sports some of which are peculiarly their own. Golf, to be sure, is popular there as a year-round sport. Water sports, however, hold chief place, but there are other athletic diversions strenuous enough to appease the appetite for excitement.

All the diving champions are not known to the athletic world. In the harbor of Bridgeton, Barbados, are some of the most expert divers to be found anywhere. On a recent visit of the Canadian Pacific steamship Mont-royal to that port some of the native boys dived from the top of the ship, 75 feet above the water, down to the bottom, got a handful of mud, swam under the ship, about thirty-five feet, and came up on the other side through about forty or fifty feet of water. Quite some feat, if you should ask us. This is only one of the many equally thrilling water stunts performed by the natives of the Bahamas.

Unique Swimming Pool.
On the island of Gasparas, Trinidad, is the most unique swimming pool in the world in a fairyland cave 200 feet underground and 45 feet deep, but the water is so clear that it appears to be four or five feet deep. The cave is a bewildering fantasy of colors, spotlighted with sunshine from a break in the roof far overhead.

In Havana, there is horse racing in winter, and the visitor to this city should not miss a jai alai (high low) game. This is the Spanish national ball game, handball, but our way of playing it is mild in comparison. It is played by two-men's teams on a paved cement court 210 feet in length by 16 feet in width. In a sort of grooved and curved basket, strapped to their hands, the players catch and throw the ball much like a boxer giving a full arm swing blow. The players, professionals most of them, are on their toes all the time, and if you think of any existent game to compare with it, for strenuousness of action, let me know of it. There are no innings and time is only called by the referee who is in charge after about thirty minutes of the fastest volleying ever seen. The spectators around the court shout and clamor for their favorites to win, and the wagers made with "bookmakers" almost rival those made at the race tracks in the United States. Society attends in full force.

Variety of Sports.
The Bermudas are a cluster of islands lying in the path of the Gulf stream, with an even temperature rarely descending below 60 degrees. Water polo and golf are the most popular sports.

Golf under smiling southern skies is a most pleasant part of a West Indies cruise.
Soccer football, as we know it, is an autumn or winter game, too active for summer. Imagine getting off the steamship on a Sunday morning in February or March, wearing summer sports clothes, with the temperature between 90 and 100 in the shade, and no shade, and finding two teams of colored men playing soccer football. This will greet you at Port au Prince, Haiti. The whole town will seem on a holiday and will be found on the side lines rooting for their team and having as much fun as we do at a world series baseball game.

Regular British sports, football, cricket, etc., are engaged in at Jamaica, but at Caracao, Dutch West Indies, if you inquire what the greatest sport on the island is, the natives will tell you with a smile, selling the "forbidden" to visiting Americans.

Luque's Way
Havana.—Anybody who casts aspersions on the baseball integrity of Senor Adolfo Luque of Havana and Cincinnati should be beyond his reach. A bleacherite yelled that a game was being thrown and the senior climbed right into the grandstand after him. His climb was stopped by the police.

Huge Sawfish Caught on Beach at Sydney
Sydney.—While Manly beach, Sydney's beach resort, was crowded with bathers recently, alarm was raised from the shore that a shark had been cruising just beyond the breakers. Voluntary life-savers who patrol the beach immediately put out a surf boat, and captured a giant sawfish.
Sawfishes are not common round the Australian coasts, but are occasionally brought down off the coast of New South Wales from the tropical haunts by a warm equatorial current.
Sometimes small ones are brought up in trawling nets, but the Manly capture was the largest of his species ever landed here. He was 18 feet 2 inches from the tip of his five-foot beak to the end of his tail. The beak itself contained 54 teeth.

The "Little Three" among the New England colleges, Williams, Wesleyan and Amherst, have agreed on a no-scouting policy next year in connection with their football games.

Westminster college in Pennsylvania claims it has a football player with the biggest feet of any varsity player in William Crowell, an end, who wears a number 12½ shoe.

OLD SLAVES ARE FAST DYING OFF

Kentucky Has Few Left of Those Once Distinguished by Their Politeness.

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky, having lost at least one of the attributes upon which part of its charm formerly was based—good, old "likker"—retaining, however, its fast horses and beautiful women, is witnessing the passing of just about its last link to the old South—the negroes who were born in slavery.

The "old marster" has long since passed on; the broad-brimmed hat and the gray goatee are more plentiful among the "professional southerners" in various big cities than they are in the land of the "kunnels"; the soft drawl is becoming a more snappy affair, and even the great colonial homesteads with far-flung porches and spacious grounds are giving way to the smart smaller home, and the wear and tear of the family automobile is destroying the need for a stately avenue of trees leading up to the old-time mansion.

There are very few—probably not over half a dozen—left in this city, and it is believed there are not over a hundred in the state. Those still here can easily be distinguished from those negroes almost as venerable, but who were born free.

Former Slaves Polite.
The former slave, if a man, approaching a white man, will have his hat in his hand and greet the white man as if the latter were of the elect of all those who roam the world. The old negro remembers, probably, when he stood at the door, or waited at table, for his "marster," whoever he may have been, and greeted the great one of the universe as he rode horseback, or perchance came in carriage, to the big house.

If a woman, the ancient crone who once was a slave is just as respectful, as all were taught to be by their owners, but she has more intimate reminiscences of "old miss" or "young mistis." And nothing gives these venerable dames more pleasure than to recall times of the "befo' de wah" days, when "their" young women were the pick of the world and the "belle of the ball," when there were such things.

The "last surviving servant of Henry Clay" has died for about the nineteenth time in Lexington—this was some time ago—the claim was becoming rather threadbare, anyway, but there are those who "remember Abraham Lincoln." The real old-time negro is scarcely seen; he or she is too feeble to get about much, but when one is encountered there is no tale of woe—this old retainer of an era that is gone is a thoroughbred, trained by the old-time southern families to accept what comes for better or worse and make no complaint audible to the populace.

Loved Their Owners.
The slave owner is gone, and only legend tells of him. But his sons and their sons will recount stories of how the slaves of ante-bellum days loved their owners and their families, and the offspring of these former arbiters of the very lives of their human chattels have a deep affection for the old-time negro of either sex who lived and worked and sorrowed, sometimes, in the days of which Stephen Collins Foster wrote. The cabins are gone, too, so it is no longer that—

"Young folks roll on the little cabin floor,
All merry, and happy and bright."

The one-time slave quarters have disappeared. Only here and there in the cellar of a great house will be found huge fireplaces and small rooms which one is told is where the slaves once gathered and rested and kept warm and played when their day's work was over.

The affection that existed between owner and slave or the former's family is shown by the fact that within comparatively recent years, two Kentuckians, noted far and wide at their deaths, left negroes, former slaves, fortunes of ambitious proportions even in a wealthy community, because these negroes and their families had watched over and cared for the white men and looked after their comforts when gray shadows of years crept down about them.

MAYOR DEMANDS SOME ACTION IN WATER DECISION

Asks Council to Adopt Resolution to Prompt Supreme Court

NEW ROAD DISCUSSED

Heated Argument Arises Over Harris Street Curbs and Sidewalks

Mayor Mulvihill derided the Supreme Court for their inactivity in handing down a decision in the case of the Middlesex Water Company, which is before them for consideration, at a meeting of the Council, Monday night. The Mayor said the matter has been in the court for the past year and that nothing has been done about the matter. "The people of the East Rahway section are clamoring for water and they should have it and it is up to the Council to see that they get some action," said Mr. Mulvihill. "The Council should adopt a resolution to that effect and see that it is placed in the proper channels to reach the Supreme Court," he added.

The Council as a whole were in sympathy with the Mayor in the matter and remarks supporting him were heard from each Councilman. Attorney Stremiau voiced his protests against any immediate action by the Council without considerable deliberation and asked that the matter be laid over. This on motion was done.

The request of the Board of Education for $35,000 to be used for School purposes was received and on motion was granted. The Overseer of the Poor report was read and ordered filed as was the Chief of Police report which was turned over to the Police committee.

A petition was received from property owners of Warren street asking that their street be paved. This was turned over to the Street and Road committee. An Ordinance for the construction of sidewalks and curbs on Emerson street, between Washington avenue and Noe's Creek was passed on its final reading. Also the passing of an Ordinance changing and establishing the grade of Post Boulevard on its final reading. An Ordinance was introduced by Councilman Ellis. This Ordinance amended an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to Regulate and Equip a Police Department in the Borough of Carteret." The amendment being to change the duty periods of the police to eight hours.

Mayor Mulvihill complimented Councilman Ellis for the initiative shown by him in Police work. The Mayor lauded the police department for their fine work and hoped that the eight-hour day the Council are granting them will inspire every member to keep up the good work.

Councilman Coughlin introduced an Ordinance to grant The Wheeler Condenser & Engineering Company permission to construct steel supports to carry pneumatic pipe lines and conveyors across Roosevelt avenue, in the vicinity of their plant. Mr. Elmer E. Brown, representing The Wheeler Co., in his request to have this Ordinance passed spoke of the number of men employed at the plant and the general increase that has taken place in employees in the past. Mr. Brown said that the permission of the Council in erecting the bridge will make the enlarging of the plant possible and thereby more men would be employed.

A lengthy discussion arose over the proposed new East Rahway road which the Middlesex County Board of Freeholders intend building this Spring. Mayor Mulvihill said that Mr. Quackenbush and he had gone over the present condition of the road and their opinion was that the new road should be laid on top of the old road thus securing a more solid foundation. Most of the Councilmen did not approve of this plan as the road would be raised about 8 inches above the present grade and water shed by the road would overflow the sidewalks.

The Mayor said that that proposition was optional and the County

UPSETS POT OF BOILING GREASE IS BADLY BURNED

Lunch Wagon Proprietor Scalded About Face, Neck and Shoulder

Rushing about, behind the counter of his lunch wagon during the noon-day meal Wednesday, John Dolan, the proprietor slipped and in falling caught the sleeve of his shirt in a pot of boiling grease, that was heating on the stove, upsetting the pot over himself and severely burning himself about the face, neck and body.

Dolan was picked up by his assistants who were also behind the counter and removed to his home where he is under the care of a physician. After an examination it was learned that he was burned badly and will be confined to his bed for several weeks.

Due to a previous injury Dolan walks about with a decided limp and is known to his friends as "Gimp" and it was due to his bad leg that the accident occurred.

STEAMER HILTON IS PRISONER ON MUD FLATS

Lack of Government Pilot is Thought to be Responsible for Accident

The steamer Hilton, of the A. T. Bull Line, engaged in the transportation of fertilizer rock from Florida to one of the local fertilizer plants, ran aground on Saturday in the Staten Island Sound on the mud flats off Sewaren.

It is a rule or rather an understanding that all vessels operating in coast trade between ports in the United States are not required to have government pilots to guide them to their piers, or in and out of different ports, the pilot or skipper of the vessel doing this work.

The Hilton, did not have a government pilot on board and this probably accounts for the fact that it is high on the mud flats today. It is believed that the vessel can be floated on a high tide.

Unproductive Land

Pontine marshes form a part of the district known in Italy as the Campagna di Roma, which is situated between Rome and the coast. Efforts have been made to drain the district, but without much success, and at the present time the district is used almost exclusively as a grazing ground for cattle.

Built Great Aqueduct

Archelaus built a splendid aqueduct to supply Jericho with water, some of the arches carrying it over valleys still existing in ruined condition.

RARITAN COUNCIL BOY SCOUTS OF A. FUND CAMPAIGN

Have Secured John Pfeiffer as Gen. Chairman; Opens on April 1st

The Executive Board of the Raritan Council, Boy Scouts of America, at their meeting this week started active plans for the annual campaign for funds to meet the needs of the council during the next fiscal year, opening April 1st, 1927. President A. B. McDowell announced today from scout headquarters that the executive board have been successful in securing John Pfeiffer as general chairman of the campaign for this year. Mr. Pfeiffer was interviewed by a delegation of representative men of the Raritan Council which included President McDowell, Arthur E. Hall, M. E. Magee of South Amboy, John M. Kreger of Woodbridge and Dr. C. W. Naulty, Jr., and was very pleased to accept this opportunity of leadership of the campaign.

The campaign will be conducted for the purpose of securing memberships in the territory of the Raritan Council which includes Woodbridge Township, Carteret, Perth Amboy, and South Amboy. The definite date for the campaign has not yet been set but it is expected to come about the first week of April.

All members of the executive board and men who have been identified with the Boy Scouts of America in this territory are convinced that the campaign this year will be more successful than ever on account of the growth of the Movement during the last six months. A year ago the council had 17 troops of scouts but on account of a leadership training course given last October, there are now in the process of formation today six additional troops and plans have already been started for still further organization. The newest troops to be chartered are those of Troop 7, Perth Amboy, at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church under Scoutmaster John T. Tetley. The other troops which are ready to apply for their charters are Troop 10 at the Simpson M. E. Church, Scoutmaster Harry A. Crouse; Troop 14 at the Hungarian Reformed Chapel, Scoutmaster Stephen Bodnar; Troop 15 at the First Baptist Church, under Scoutmaster Fred C. Wilshere. Contacts have also been made for the formation of troops in other churches in the city and in Carteret and South Amboy.

This growth of scouting has been due to the funds which were made available during the last campaign and the further growth of the Movement will depend upon the approaching membership campaign. President A. B. McDowell of the Raritan Council, together with Vice-Presidents John M. Kreger of Woodbridge, M. E. Magee of South Amboy, and H. W. Thorn of Carteret, expressed the hope that the number of those enrolling in the council membership will be well over a thousand individuals, organizations and industries in all parts of the council territory.

LARGE FUNERAL HELD WEDNESDAY

Death of Mrs. Harry Heim is Shock to Many Friends of Young Woman

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Cecilia Heim, age 27 years, of 80 Locust street, who died Saturday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, was held on Wednesday, March 9th, at 9:30 o'clock, and then to St. Joseph's Church at 10 o'clock, where a requiem high mass was offered. The Rev. Father Cosgrove, of St. Mary's church, Perth Amboy, was the celebrant. Following the mass the Rev. Father Cosgrove paid a beautiful tribute to the soul of the departed and said that all should remember her in death as they did in life.

The church was crowded to capacity, it being one of the largest funerals held from Carteret. On Tuesday night the Lady Companions of Foresters, No. 365 held their ritual services. Mrs. Heim was very popular among the people of Carteret, while her body lay in state at her home, there was crowds continually pouring in to pay their last respects. The home was packed with floral tributes, it requiring two open barouches to convey them to the cemetery. Among the floral tributes were pieces from employees of the Liebig's A. A. C. Co., from employees of Smelting Dept. U. S. Metals Co., Fire Co. No. 1, Companion Foresters No. 365, and many friends and relatives.

Mrs. Heim was born at Lehigh Tannery, Penn., and came to Carteret at the age of seven and had been a resident of Carteret for the past 20 years. She was the daughter of the late Francis and Letitia Scally. She is survived by her husband Henry James, one son Henry James, Jr., four sisters Mrs. James Kelly, and Miss Catherine and Anna Scally of Carteret and Mrs. Nicholas Christie of Newark, N. J. Four brothers Thomas and John Scally of Carteret, Joseph Scally of Elizabeth, N. J., James of Pittsburg, Pa.

The pallbearers were: Louis Seitz, Cornelius Sheridan, William D'Zurilla, James O'Donnell, Adam Winters, William Lannery. The funeral was handled by Undertaker Frank T. Burns.

Interment took place in the family plot in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Newark, N. J.

CUSTOM OFFICERS TAKE THREE INTO CUSTODY AS ALIENS

Came Here on Steamships as Sailors; Desert and Find Refuge With Friends

INVESTIGATE FOREIGNERS

Interest Aroused Over the Increasing Number of Latins in Town

The arrest of three Spaniards by Immigration Officers last week, who came into the country without passports on ships that dock here, is arousing considerable interest in town as to how many more Spaniards, Portuguese, Mexicans and South Americans have obtained entrance into the country in the same manner and settled here. Some have been seen leaving town with suit cases.

The three taken into custody Friday evening by Inspector A. S. Hebler were Jesus Perez, Manuel Castro and Joseph Garcia, all of 57 Warren street, where they have boarded for some time. It is said that the three men came into the country on a ship that docked at one of the plants here. They deserted ship and remained hidden by friends till the ship cleared port.

A feeling of hostility and resentment has been felt here against the Latins by the other foreign classes who claim that the former work for small wages and make it difficult for the Polish, Hungarian and other Europeans to secure employment. It is rumored that an investigation is to be made to determine if there are other foreigners in town who have gained entrance into the country without the proper credentials.

Game is Played Before Record Crowd on Last Monday Evening

Many of the spectators were handed a surprise at the basketball game between the Carteret High Alumni and the varsity teams Monday night at the High School Auditorium when the varsity came out on top in a see saw game winning by the score of 25 to 22.

A splendid gathering of basketball fans turned out and each team was applauded as the timekeeper's whistle blew at the close of the game. Much praise was given Phil Chodosh for the fine manner in which he refereed the game.

Two members of the Alumni team, Wexler and Rosenbloom, are letter men at Rutgers in their Freshman year and the other three players Bexton, Nadel and Abrams are fine basketball material.

The game was nip and tuck all the way and with the score tied and only a few minutes to play a point scored on a foul and a basket by Comba put the game on ice for the varsity as the whistle ending the game blew. The respective positions of the players were as follows:

SCHOOL BOARDS FINAL SESSION TUESDAY NIGHT

To Meet March 15th for the Purpose of Organizing New Board

CONRAD & CSELLE ATTEND

Reports of Various Departments Received for the Month of February

The re-organization of the Commissioners of the Board of Education will take place at a special meeting, as was decided at the meeting of the Board at their regular meeting Tuesday night at the High School, on Tuesday evening, March 15, when two of the old commissioners, Mr. Bradford and Mr. Bishop, will be succeeded by the Commissioners elect Charles A. Conrad and John Cselle, who were interested spectators at Tuesday's meeting.

The report of the Supervising Principal, Miss B. V. Hermann, was received showing an enrollment of 1,389 boys and 1,271 girls with an attendance average of 97%. Mr. Kurt Grohman, Truant officer, reported 114 doubtful cases of truancy. Miss Elizabeth Fezza, the school nurse, reported that there were 719 children who were underweight for the month of February as against 916 in November showing a much better condition in the children's weight as a result to the activities of the School Health Department.

Considerable discussion took place when the assessment bills of the Borough were read, calling for the payment of $2,165.22 and $621.22 for sidewalks and curbs on Haywood and Washington avenues. President Heil and Commissioner Coughlin were of the opinion that the Board had no authority to pay these assessments. Commissioner Bishop advanced a resolution that the bills be paid and the matter be referred to the attorney for investigation.

A communication was received from Edward Livingston reviewing the Assembly Bill No. 417 which read as follows: "Many unfavorable criticisms have been voiced on Assembly Bill No. 417 which would give the Mayor of Municipalities with a population of over 10,000 the right to appoint a school board, in view of which we feel that this bill should be opposed." Mr. Livingston is Chairman of the legislative committee of the State Federation of District Boards of Education.

A petition coming from the teachers of the schools asking that the Easter vacation be extended from April 19 to the 22nd. This was laid over for consideration.

The Junior Hadassah in a communication asked the board for the permission of the use of the High School Auditorium for a benefit performance.

Present at the meeting were Commissioners Bradford, Bishop, Lebowitz, Dalrymple, Jeffreys, Coughlin and Schwartz with E. J. Heil presiding.

Swindled by Message From Dead Husband

Turin.—A single egg containing a supposed message from the other world, was the device used to swindle Francesca Pellissero, widow, of 11,000 lire, her entire wealth.

The widow was approached by a man and a woman who told her that they were bearers of a message from her dead husband. They broke an egg, from which they extracted a piece of paper signed with her husband's name. The husband communicated that she was to do explicitly as his representatives, the bearers of the message, instructed her.

The rest was easy. The couple asked for a loan of all the money she possessed, in order, they said, to release her husband of obligations incurred in the other world.

MENTAL RATING OF GENIUS IN YOUTH

Intelligence Tests Made by Psychologists.

Giving 301 of the geniuses of history an intelligence test is the latest feat of psychologists at Stanford university. The test was given to John Milton, Michelangelo, Napoleon, Samuel Johnson and 297 other famous men and women born between the years 1450 and 1850. Results of the investigations have just been published by Dr. Catharine M. Cox, who was assisted by Dr. Lewis M. Terman and Lela Gillan and Ruth Livesey.

Historical records showing childhood traits and mental talents of the geniuses were used as a basis for giving out the intelligence ratings. John Stuart Mill, celebrated English philosopher and economist, was awarded the highest rank of all the 301 famous children. His intelligence quotient was placed at 190, which is 90 points higher than average mentality. At six years of age Mill wrote a history of Rome, and at eight he gave Latin lessons and was held responsible for the errors of his pupil.

Three children were given intelligence ratings of 185, Doctor Cox reports. These were Goethe, famous German poet; Grotius, who became a Dutch theologian, and Leibnitz, who won fame as a mathematician. Napoleon and Beethoven got ratings of 185 on their childhood mentality. Byron was given 150. Michelangelo got 145; Lincoln, 125; Mme. de Stael, 155; John Q. Adams, 165; Coleridge, 175; Washington, 125; Raphael, 110. Doctor Cox explains that there was a tendency for characters whose childhood has been reported more fully by historians to get higher ratings, because full accounts brought out more evidences of precocity. The ratings are in many cases far too low, she says.

The investigation was conducted to shed light on the early mental traits of geniuses. Doctor Cox finds that generally eminent men and women show signs of superior mentality in early childhood.

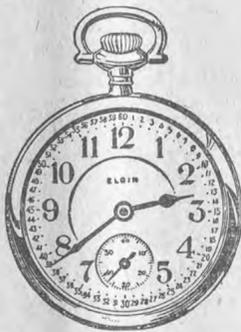

"We are probably warranted in expecting superior adult achievement wherever in childhood the intelligence quotient is above 150," she states. "But we may not be warranted in expecting a world genius if the 200 IQ is reached."

Patience of Job

This expression appears in the New Testament in James 5:11: "Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have seen the end of the Lord; that the Lord is very pitiful, and of tender mercy." This, of course, is in allusion to the patriarch whose history is given in the book of Job. He has become the personification of poverty and patience. Job was a pious and prosperous patriarch. Satan insinuated that he was pious only because God had hedged him in with prosperity. Remove these worldly blessings, declared Satan, and Job would curse God to his face. To prove the falsity of this charge Satan was permitted to strip the patriarch of all his earthly possessions and children and to afflict him with a loathsome disease. Job bowed uncomplainingly to his fate and because of his faith in spite of adversity was restored again to all his wealth and happiness. — Pathfinder Magazine.

GIRL BABIES NOT WANTED IN AFRICA

Joy in Moslem Household Is Reserved for Boys.

When a son is born to a North African Moslem, joy reigns. Every one says to the father: "God has increased thy good." If it is a daughter, the father cries: "A misfortune is born to me." But, in spite of that, the birth is celebrated on the seventh day in the presence of God, the parents and their friends, and the baby is named Zohra, the flower; Saadya, the happy; Zina, the beautiful, or Aziza, the beloved.

Yet over it all hangs the prophet's dictum: "Men are superior to women," and it is this phrase that stops all civilization and checks all progress. While his daughter is a child her father troubles himself not a whit about her, and she is lucky if her mother, his instrument for pleasure and for work, finds any time to watch over her.

As the girl grows up she is trained, taught silence, discretion—and coquetry. Poetic phrases about beauty are sung to her. Later on, in spite of the Koran, which describes tattooing as "the devil's writing," she is tattooed.

When the girl is of marriageable age she is also ready for her prison. Her father begins to think about the dot—which he will get back—and the gift he will receive from the husband, which practically amounts to a price for selling his daughter. At ten or twelve, then, the girl is handed over to her husband, whether she likes it or not. For a father can impose marriage on an unmarried girl. It is what is called the right of Djebir, which is recognized by law and custom.

The father may consult his daughter, but she must not reply except by a smile or by tears. If she smiles it is because she is glad to be married; if she weeps it simply means that she agrees to the marriage, though regretting to leave her father's house—a convenient bit of duplicity. If she should categorically refuse the man who bought her, the father would apply the law of Djebir by blows of the matraque, or Arab club.

The consent of a widow or a divorced woman is necessary, though that does not prevent her being sold by her father or her brothers, or even by her children; for in all these relations of her civil life she is represented by a proxy or oaul, who is practically her master.

The same law also permits polygamy, which is often necessary, especially among the poor; though they usually have only two wives, who are used for all kinds of work, relieving one another, since one wife would hardly be enough for the day's tasks.

Meanwhile the husband does his bit by putting on a more or less torn burnoose and going—very much like an ancient Roman senator—to drink his kaoua at the Moorish cafe or to discourse at the Djema or else to look for news in the market. It is not unusual to see old men of sixty marrying girls of twelve.—Colonel Godchot in La Revue Mondiale.

Gold of the Ancients

The supply of gold in ancient times was derived mostly from surface sands and gravels which yielded their values by simple processes of washing. Gold was thus mined at a very early period in India, Central Asia, the southern Urals and in the region bordering the eastern Mediterranean. Apparently the discovery of gold is not attributed to any one person. The ancient workings for locating gold have been ascribed to the Egyptians and have been found in the mountains of Nubia, and Dr. Karl Peters has described extensive mines in the interior of South Africa, not far from the gold fields of Rhodesia—a locality believed by Doctor Peters to be the Ophir of the Israelites. The Romans operated mines in Hungary, Spain and Great Britain at various periods. During the Middle ages the mining industry seems to have made little progress.

Waited Long for Notice

Not until 14 years after the completion of her masterpieces, "Pride and Prejudice" and "Sense and Sensibility," were the novels of Jane Austen read outside her own admiring circle. Originally called "First Impressions," the novel "Pride and Prejudice" was refused by the publishers, who in the latter part of the eighteenth century were making money by the distribution of books depicting "romantic horrors and extravagance." When it was finally accepted and published 14 years later, it was immediately acclaimed by the reading public. During her creative period it was the fashion among wealthy persons to cultivate not refinement but the refinement of cruelty, and Jane Austen attacked this fad with all the power at the command of her genius.—Hartford Courant.

Poetic Justice

Ralph Jones, a lawyer, tells this story at his own expense:

He was employed to defend a man charged with issuing worthless checks. Jones and his client succeeded in convincing the judge and jury that the man was not guilty. He was discharged.

"How much is your fee?" the man asked Jones.

The attorney named the figure. The client wrote a check for the sum named, and Jones accepted it. The next day he learned from the bank the check was worthless. The signer had never had an account at that bank, Jones was told.

Consolation

The journey through life goes through many dark tunnels, and the darker and longer they are the more we appreciate the glory of sunshine afterward and the grandness of the view.—A Woman's Confessional.

Red-Faced Babies

The more one contemplates the world the better one understands why new-born babies are red in the face.—Bakersfield, California.

Machine Guns to Fight Bandits

Equipping the United States marines who are now guarding the government mails with the latest Thompson machine gun, capable of firing 400 aimed shots a minute, is Uncle Sam's answer to the mail bandits. This photograph shows Col. R. M. Cutts, U. S. M. C., demonstrating to Postmaster General Harry S. New how easily this latest type of firearm can be handled.

Record Hailstones

Hailstones are sometimes bigger than oranges. A case has been described in which hailstones buried themselves to a depth of more than half a yard in the soil of a meadow.

Scots Early Builders

The first concrete pavement known was built in 1805 in Inverness, Scotland. The oldest one in America is in Bellefontaine, Ohio. It was built in 1822 and is still in use.

Agricultural Research

The foreign agricultural experiment stations are quite different from those in America. They select certain well-defined lines of work and continue it for years. These experiment stations do not possess the equipment for distributing their information among the people. Their reports are issued in limited editions and are not always easy to secure. Bulletins of information are not issued to any extent, as they are in the United States. The work of the stations appears to be largely investigation, control of fertilizers, feeds and seeds, but not distribution and dissemination of agricultural information.

While the European stations are doing careful scientific work, authorities believe that our experiment stations are doing better work for the advancement of practical agriculture.

Old Cannon Recovered

Two cannon, said to have been thrown overboard from a Russian man-of-war when she went aground in the year 1808, have been discovered in Haleiwa bay near Honolulu. The guns, which were discovered lying in 15 feet of water, are deeply encrusted with barnacles and other sea growth.

The discovery was made by an army officer from Fort Kamehameha. The probable history of the cannon is given by Albert P. Taylor, librarian of the archives of Hawaii, who says that at the time several pieces were thrown overboard to lighten the weight of the ship. One gun was recovered several years ago and is now on the grounds of the Haleiwa hotel, a beach resort.

Tree's Leaves Trap Cattle

Stock owners around the Australian coast swamps in southwestern Victoria run a novel risk with their cattle. Grass trees in this vicinity grow to 10 feet high and in their spring frolics cattle often play around these and their horns become entangled in the trees' long, rope-like leaves. Cattle, in attempting to free themselves, break their necks. Also, cattle frequently starve to death, being unable to break their natural tethers so that dried carcasses, still tethered, are not uncommon in this district.

Wrong Ideas About Death

Lecturing on death and the hereafter, the scientist, Sir Oliver Lodge, advises the English people to forget the grave. Death, he tells them, is only a sort of emigration with the natural feelings of sorrow at parting, but such sorrows tempered by the future hopes of the emigrant. "I have never been able to see the grave of my boy Raymond in France," he told the audience. "He asked me not to. He says 'I take no interest in that grave. I never was in a grave in my life.' If people would get over that terrible idea of interment and of lying there for centuries awaiting the general resurrection," he added, "they would begin to see death more as it is—an adventure, an episode that is bound to be welcome when it comes and as something not to be afraid of." . . . We are taken care of when we are born. Then why fear death?—Cap per's Weekly.

Two Ways Of Looking At Advertising

The fool or the inexperienced man considers advertising a waste of money---a "hold up" on the part of the newspaperman. "Throwing money away" is what he stupidly calls it.

But the wise man knows that every dollar properly spent in advertising brings back a whole line of other dollars. That advertising makes sales---and profit!

And we know how to properly advertise your goods. Advertising is our business just as retailing or manufacturing is yours. And in addition we have the most wonderful service of artistic cuts and effective type matter ever brought together. This service and ours are at your command---for better business and bigger profits!

East Rahway Road

It is understood that the Board of Freeholders at last plan to reconstruct a section of the East Rahway Road. The entire road was supposed to have been on their construction program four years ago.

In the meantime Carteret has paid the County over $400,000.

The road is in a dangerous condition from Brady's corner to the tracks of the Fast Line and in none too good shape beyond.

It is to be hoped that the Freeholders will reconstruct the balance of the road next Spring without fail and not merely promise to do it.

Carteret has not been near as well treated in the past several years as the importance of its highways and their condition require.

Mr. Coolidge Not a Dodger

In a message to the Senate returning the McNary farm relief bill without his approval, the President declared that the chief objection to the measure was that it would not benefit the farmer. He also expressed the opinion that it was unconstitutional and that it would subject the agricultural industry to the tyranny of bureaucratic regulation and control.

Political prophets were almost unanimous in the opinion that with his pronounced convictions it would be impossible for him to approve the bill, and it is stated that this certainty determined the action of many members of Congress who voted for it.

Mr. Coolidge must be given credit for not dodging the issue. His veto message emphatically asserts that the measure was unsound in economic principles, would not accomplish its purpose and would result in serious injustice to consumers and taxpayers. He assumes the responsibility thrust upon him regardless of threatened loss of political support throughout the West. In fact most of the opposition centered in the Eastern states, being composed of bankers, business men and farmers.

St. Patrick

The birthday of St. Patrick is not known, but it is known that he was born near Dumbarton, Scotland. His baptismal name was Succoth, and at the age of 16 he was captured by Irish pirates and for six years was a slave of Ulster chieftains. He then escaped, went to Rome, studied for the priesthood and was ordained a Bishop. He returned to Ireland as a missionary in A. D. 432 and until his death 31 years later zealously combated heathenism and idolatry in Erin. He founded over 300 churches and personally baptized over 12,000 converts. He used a small hand bell to call the people to service, and also utilized the three points of the shamrock to typify the Trinity.

The anniversary of his death is celebrated as a fast day in all parts of the earth where Irish have penetrated, and is generally observed as an occasion for renewal of acquaintances and for keeping the history, poetry and traditions of their ancient homeland fresh in mind.

Prosperity purchased at the price of mortgaging future income is simple inflation of credit, sure to react sooner or later. The old-fashioned system of living within your income, and buying only what you can pay for is the real basis of prosperity and happiness.

Parents' Duty to Guard Youth Against "Strange and New" of Modern Times

By DR. W. P. DEARING, President Oakland (Ind.) City College.

The greatest need of youth today is just simply their parents. There are certain forces "strange and new" of modern times that the youth must oppose and that parents must watch and train their children to stand against. The child may ask when a problem arises, "Which way is the gang going?" or "Which has the most kick?" or "Which has the most money in it?" but it is the parents' task to make the question "Which is right?" a habit with the son or daughter.

The undertow has many cross-currents. Waste, for instance, America is a nation of prodigals. Think of how our boys and girls live and spend now. If the boys and girls start where we left off as they do, where are they going to stop? Ease is a dangerous current. Taking it easy, the line of least resistance taken by the children, while the parents try to make things as easy as possible, smoothing the rough spots. Strong men and women are not built in a hothouse.

Then there is the present dark shadow of lawlessness over America. Let us see to it that we don't breed it in our homes and schools. All anarchists are not shipped in; some are being bred unconsciously in homes.

Life Objectives That Should Be Understood by All, Old and Young

By REV. M. C. PEARSON, Detroit Council of Churches.

The secret of power and nobility lies in the mastery of personality and in the realm of personal achievement.

William J. Kitts, a teacher of more than usual insight and ability, has uncovered the secret of an achieving life in the following life objectives:

- To be so strong, that nothing can disturb your peace of mind.
To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet.
To make all your friends feel that there is something in them.
To look at the sunny side of everything and make your optimism come true.
To think only of the best, to work only for the best, and to expect only the best.
To be just as enthusiastic about the success of others as you are about your own.
To forget the mistakes of the past and give every living creature you meet a smile.
To give so much time to the improvement of yourself that you have no time to criticize others.
To be too large for worry, too noble for anger, too strong for fear, and too happy to permit the presence of trouble.

OPINION

Roosevelt Avenue. Justice for the Wife. A Big Business Man. Are People Friendly? Words of a Pessimist.

NAMING STREETS has caused much trouble for many cities. In Chicago visitors enter a virtual maze; the Loop is very confusing in itself. But, Chicago is an over-grown city and there is an excuse.

But for small towns there is no justification. To see a borough like Carteret with streets forming a network that would baffle anyone is indeed discouraging. True it is that officials have other duties besides taking care of street names; but small things well done, at least make a good impression.

Roosevelt Avenue is finally being considered as a nuisance; that is, it is so long that it intersects Pershing and Washington avenues twice each, thus forming corners with identical names. Really, the condition should have been altered for the better long ago.

The present administration in power had no hand in such naming, however; yet it should not be guilty of neglecting a reformation, which in the end would relieve bewilderment not only for local residents, but also for visitors.

A GOOD plan has been formed for husbands who fail to support their wives and children. An Ohio judge sentenced an offender to prison for a good long term and at the same time got him a job working for a coal company. An agent for a philanthropic society collects his wages and turns them over to his wife, who is thus able to keep herself and their household of children.

The justice of this arrangement will not be questioned. Once a man enters a contract with a wife, he must support her and their children. The experiment may be observed with interest. Carteret police could easily encourage such a beneficial plan.

OTTO N. SZANTO, twelve years of West Orange, needed $5 for a dog kennel. He had saved three dollars and wanted two more. His shortage was bad news. But he then remembered how big financial deals are handled.

"This is a bank," he told the teller. "How about a $2 loan?" The boy was taken to the bank president, to whom he explained his appeal for a loan and the reasons. A 90-day note at six per cent interest was drawn up; Otto signed it; and later took away with him a two dollar check.

Most boys have an eagerness to do business, but Otto seems to have stepped a notch above the rest by having the confidence to really talk business. In him we see a PUSH, as one would remark, that makes for eminence—SUCCESS. Do not discourage a boy who shows Otto's zeal.

ARE PEOPLE as friendly as they might be? A reader of this paper asked this the other day. One could easily give an answer to the question, but an answer alone is not enough. In our case a reason is necessary.

People in Carteret are not as amicable as they should be. In every town conditions are the same.

Why? Because of factions, political, social and whatnot. Two groups opposing each other are inevitable. It seems as though the earth would stop spinning if there were no friction.

Politics plays a great part in creating dislike among residents. Some republicans curse their democratic townsmen, and vice versa. Religious conflicts are not uncommon. Start with one cause and end with another; one will find a thousand.

What people need to do is realize the futility of such disagreement, which only breeds HATRED. A little common sense, the philosophy of the plain man in the street, should tell them that their abomination leads to naught—and that it is NOT THE TEACHING OF CHRIST.

Perhaps this paper also should realize the FUTILITY of asking people to be amicable, for human frailty persists in the rut of unfriendliness.

DOES SPRING make you recall annual "Clean-up Week"? Schoolboys will soon have the "delectable" job of cleaning out the yard, the cellar, getting rid of some of the furnace ashes, and other odd duties.

Spring fever, too, will play its tricks upon us all, and breathe a lazy spirit into almost everyone.

But, above all, do not regard each cheerful day at this time of the year as the first day of spring, for many an Easter has been spent under a foot of snow. WORDS OF A PESSIMIST, who is safe from the wrath of the optimist.

As a time-saving device, says the Milwaukee Journal, this "Wait a minute, please," that so often comes over the telephone isn't all that should be desired. If there is a saving at one end of the line it is at the expense of some one else at the other. Bill Jones, one of the busy men of the town, wants to communicate with John Smith. So Bill passes the word out to his clerk or stenographer: "Get Smith on the line for me." Smith's phone rings and he breaks off from his own work to answer, only to hear that sweet feminine voice telling him to please contribute his own time while she gets her employer on the wire again. In due time the connection is made and Jones says his say. In making a call that was of his own initiative, he has saved 80 seconds by the simple expedient of making Smith lose half a minute. "On the line" is right, for the fellow who is at the hooked end of it feels fully the part of a resentful fish.

An Italian in Chicago, friendly to grand opera, would have a screen by the stage on which the words of the opera of the evening could be projected as a motion text. The scheme has possibilities. Properly developed, it would provide not only the words to let the audience know what they were hearing, but also selected pictures of like and charming citizens of Hollywood to explain what the more weighty individuals on the stage were trying to represent.

The thousands of bills before congress would be rather disturbing to the voters were it not so well understood that most of them by far are not necessarily evidences of good faith, but merely designed to give the impression that something is being done for constituents.

There is no such thing as "sleeping like a top" for eight hours—the period of slumber generally supposed to be necessary to the average human—if we may believe Prof. H. M. Johnson of the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, who has been making experiments with sleeping persons whose rest was recorded by apparatus attached to a hanging bed on which they slumbered. But if the sleeper upon awakening in the morning is convinced that he has had eight hours of continuous sleep he has had it, for all practical purposes, and that's all there is about it.

Learn Something New

Misunderstanding is frequently the cause of war and many lesser human evils. And now we are being told with increasing frequency that it extends to other fields as well and that our misjudgment of forms of life below our plane often is unfair. William Beebe, for example, declares that the shark does not eat human flesh and that the unpleasant reputation we have given it in that respect is unjustly bestowed. Comes now an official of the health department who says that the mad dog does not bite indiscriminately, but that it uses its rabid teeth only when it is frightened. Next, perhaps, we shall be told that the mosquito is really a friendly little fellow who is trying to kiss us, and that the snake, when it shows its fangs, is just waving us a merry greeting. Yet the news about the shark and the mad dog is interesting and important, says the New York Post. The study of animal psychology has been neglected. It has been left largely to the writers of bedtime stories, who deal lightly with it for the purposes of their young audience. Further scientific research may clear other names and, in addition, give a few clues as to what is the matter with the strangest of all animals, man.

War, pestilence, accident (as we call it) by land and sea do not pick and choose with any regard to character and dessert, says the London Times. But while some people suffer such blows with courage and endurance, others live in a daily round of great or petty misfortune. And it is these who reveal anew the old truth that luck is the result of character and that there is no such being as an unlucky person, in the common usage of the word. In one sense it is not their fault that it rains at their tennis parties and that their motor cars break down; and yet in another sense it is their fault, since they have set themselves at loggerheads with the law and live in a spirit of accusation against it. Certainly in one capitally important field of human life this spirit has a direct and visible action upon circumstance. Nothing kills human affection so quickly as the "nobody loves me" attitude; and when supposed bad luck includes the loss of friends there is no need to look far for the cause.

A correspondent's description of an abandoned New Jersey town in a district once dotted with big iron furnaces, which made America the world's leading pig iron producer a century ago, illustrates vividly the progress in this industry. Sir Henry Bessemer's discovery of the blast process and the substitution of coke for charcoal revolutionized manufacture and smelting. When the United States Steel corporation was formed a quarter of a century ago, three-fourths of the steel made in America was Bessemer. Now open-hearth steel has practically supplanted Bessemer. Steel today is undoubtedly the world's most valuable metallic product, since it is practically indispensable to modern civilization. And there still remain opportunities for inventive thought to improve its methods.

"In the matter of parental education," said one of the principal speakers at the Child Study association convention, "America is probably ahead of the rest of the world." This is good news, particularly in view of the reputation of American children as being more spoiled and impertinent than those of any other country. But if we have erred with our children, we can at least claim that our parents are preparing to make their own second childhood innocuous.

Radio broadcasting, while a more complicated problem in Europe, is better regulated, thanks to the agreement for distribution of wave lengths reached at the Bern conference. Roosevelt's Little Joke

An incident illustrative of the human side of the late Theodore Roosevelt, and showing his fondness for practical joking, is related by Billie Burke in an interview in Liberty. "Theodore Roosevelt once played quite a joke on Flo Ziegfeld, my husband," she says. "Knowing Flo's fondness for ease, he invited him and Charles Dillingham to take a little walk with him after a banquet late one night. They were happy to join him. Do you know where he took them? He made them walk in evening clothes all the way out to Oyster Bay with him. Flo came back on a train about daybreak, and hardly moved for a week."

Criticism's Object

The legitimate aim of criticism is to direct attention to the excellent. The bad will dig its own grave, and the perfect may safely be left to that neglect from which no amount of present undeserved popularity can rescue it.—Bovee.

NEWARK THEATRES

Jeanne Eagels at the Shubert
Jeanne Eagels, starring in "Her Cardboard Lover" at the Shubert Theatre, Newark, for the week beginning Monday, March 14th, returns from a nation-wide triumph as the star of "Rain" in a characterization altogether different from any she has assumed in recent years.

In the hole of Simone Massabre, chic Parisienne, Miss Eagels is the center of a comedy of the ternal triangle, which has two new angles; a husband who is not a husband, and a "cardboard lover." It is a love story told in dialogue as keen as a rapier, set against the background of fashionable Biarritz and Paris.

Leslie Howard, last seen as Napier in the dramatization of Michael Arlen's "The Green Hat," heads the supporting cast, which includes Valerie Wyngate, Terence Neil, Ernest Stallard, Charles Esdale and Arthur Lewis.

Testimonial for A. Johnny Mack

On Monday evening, March 14th, A. Johnny Mack, the popular Manager of Miner's Empire Theatre, Newark, N. J., and president of the Theatre Manager's Association of Newark and Essex County, will be tendered a testimonial by his many friends. Large delegations from East Orange Lodge No. 630 B. P. O. Elks, Bloomfield Lodge of Elks No. 788, Irvington Lodge of Elks No. 1245, The Fraternal Order of Beavers No. 172, The Shark Fishing Club, The Quarter of Ten Club, The Fred Hartley Jr. Association of Kearny, will attend.

"Powder Puff Frolic" will be the attraction, and it is considered one of the best burlesque entertainments on the Columbia Wheel. Miss Belle Brooks the popular radio entertainer will act as Mistress of Ceremonies. Miss Brooks is a "Crooning Contralto" and her present song successes are "If My Baby Cooks As Good As She Looks" and "I Never Thought That You'd Do That To Me." Her programmes are always varied with novelty piano solos. Mr. Nat Morton, well known to all Keith and Proctor patrons, will be Master of Ceremonies. Mr. L. Wolfe Gilbert, America's foremost writer of popular songs will render his latest compositions. The Two Kiever Kiddies, Ruth Robbins and Olga Berkowitz will entertain, and Mr. Eddie Quinn, who is featured in the forthcoming Bloomfield Elks' Frolics will round out the bill.

Those who were fortunate in attending last year's testimonial, have secured their seats, as they know that this will be a wonderful night's entertainment.

"Abie's Irish Rose" at the Broad St. "Abie's Irish Rose," the mirthful play by Anne Nichols, which has become the most outstanding theatrical hit as regard protracted popularity the stage has ever known, starts the second week at the Broad St. Theatre, with matinees Wed. & Sat. The company which plays here comes directly from twenty-two weeks at the Adelphi Theatre, Philadelphia, and is the same company that played Boston with a new production. This same play has hung up a record of nearly five years of consecutive performances in New York City and has broken all records for runs wherever it has been presented.

Miss Nichols' play contains all the elements that make for worth-while theatrical entertainment. It has an interesting story in which the love theme has not been overlooked, and throughout the unfolding of this story there runs, as it were, an undercurrent of a philosophy of life, a pointed lesson in tolerance toward all religious beliefs and races. "Abie's Irish Rose" abounds in real comedy, in fact so much so, that to say there is a laugh a minute is no exaggeration. The characters are real types and the audience recognizes them immediately. Miss Nichols was the first to treat the subject of race and religious prejudice and hatreds from the humorous angle, and that she has scored is evidenced by the fact of the play's history of long popularity. To see "Abie's Irish Rose" is not only to enjoy an evening at the theatre to the fullest, but to leave with a more kindly and tolerant feeling toward our fellow men.

The piece, which is built around the secret marriage of an attractive Jewish youth and a pretty Irish colleen, is excellently cast, including such players as Ted W. Gibson, Patricia O'Hearn, Phil White, Dan Moylan, George W. Callahan, Harvey Hayes, Edward Pascal, Ida Singer and others.

Bear With Human Brain at Miner's Empire Theatre Next Week

"Big George" has been featured with Irving Berlin's Music Box Revue for the past two seasons. 780 pounds and 7 foot 10 inches high, dances the Black Bottom and Irish Jig and is somewhat of a wrestler.

PIRATE'S LOOT STILL IS LURE OF CREDULOUS

Fabulous Gold of Jean Lafitte Spurs Searchers in Louisiana.

New Orleans, La.—The fabulous pirate's gold of Jean Lafitte, notorious buccaneer, still lures treasure hunters to the marshes of southern Louisiana.

A century has not diminished the search for Spanish doubloons and pieces of eight supposed to have been cached by the freebooter somewhere along the great coastal stretch southwest of New Orleans. So avid have been the diggers on the plains from Saratoga and Grand Terre to the Texas border that in several sections plots of land resemble deserted shell-holed battlefields.

Mary Reports of Treasure.
On Pecan Island, in Vermilion parish, six miles from the Gulf of Mexico, trees have been uprooted and bones, pottery, arrowheads and other relics removed from the Indian mounds there, but no treasure has been found. Excitement prevailed among residents of the Vermilion bay section a little more than a year ago, following the report that a treasure trove had been unearthed, but the find never materialized.

Lafitte, most authorities agree, died in Silan, Yucatan, in 1826, although some say he perished at sea nine years earlier.

The romantic figure of gulf-coast tradition always contended that neither he nor his men were engaged in prayer. He claimed that he had authority from the Republican party of Mexico to cruise southern waters and make life hard for opponents of the political body.

Given Ship for Pirate Raids.
General Morales, president of a revolutionary party, is reported to have given Lafitte a ship to aid him in obtaining assistance for the "patriotic" cause. The vessel was said to have been presented by Col. Ellis P. Bean, acting in behalf of Morales.

Lafitte, according to tradition, dealt in slaves in Louisiana and Texas. He also smuggled goods, including silks and liquors, which were transported to the interior in wagons and by boats that plied the rivers and bayous. Tangible evidence that Lafitte and his men ever buried any treasure is lacking.

Los Angeles.—V. R. Wilkinson, Los Angeles salesman, appeared in the office of Dr. E. J. Dickley, chief complaint deputy in the district attorney's office, demanding a complaint against a man who, he asserted, had stolen his office furniture.

"What did you say your name is?" Doctor Dickley asked.
"Wilkinson," the man replied. "I tell you that man walked right into my office."
"Yes," the deputy interrupted. "You are just the man I've been looking for. You are under arrest on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses."

Mrs. Schlumbohm's total weight of 576 pounds presents an ever-present problem to dozens of doctors and nurses. To date she has broken down half a hundred hospital chairs, rockers, and stretchers. The strongest bed in the hospital was reinforced before she was placed in it—but it continues to sink and will likely be junked when she leaves—if not before.

WIFE IS PRICE OF WINNING MILLIONS

Hungary's Richest Nobleman Shoots Self in Despair.

Budapest, Hungary.—In a sumptuous apartment in a hotel here, Count Joseph Daun, Hungary's richest nobleman, heard that a court had decided a lawsuit involving $30,000,000 in his favor.

Within an hour in his room a shot rang out. Employees of the hotel found the count with a bullet wound in his chest. He had shot himself. Count Daun's wife was Emma Lovelady, whose blond, pearl-like loveliness was the toast of Hungary. His two uncles, Count Nicholas and Count John, died and left him their combined fortunes, equivalent to $30,000,000.

Count Daun had to sue to obtain possession of the estates. A long struggle ensued. During five years the case passed from one court to another. The count's time was so taken up that he seldom saw his wife.

When Count Daun learned that the fortune was finally in his possession his first thoughts turned to his wife. She must be the first to know, he told himself.

He telephoned her the news, but she interrupted him coldly. "I am not interested in your millions," said the wife. "You can have your victory. You may have won your case, but you have lost me. I don't wish to see you again."

The count fell into an hour of black despair, at the end of which he turned his pistol on himself. When his wife learned of her husband's deed she hurried to him. She wept and forgave him.

Steal Only Nightgowns Then Burn Buildings

McAlester, Okla.—Citizens living in the vicinity of Alderson, Okla., are terror-stricken and using the old war-time method of standing guard over their property at night as the result of a number of mysterious fires which have taken a toll of six or seven houses and barns during the last five months.

Before the burning of the buildings, the homes of the owners have been entered some time prior to fire, but only one time was anything taken except nightgowns.

From the home of George Smith the arsonist took two nightgowns and a shogun. Two days later Smith lost his barn and five stock by fire. The barn of John Jones was burned to the ground. The day before the fire his home was entered and a nightgown stolen. The gown was found later cut to shreds in a field near the house.

On the night of December 16 Morris Hillyer was guarding his barn armed with a shotgun. He lay down for a few minutes' rest, and almost immediately his barn was afire all over.

Berlin.—Advertising columns in the local newspaper of Kalkberge, a suburb of Berlin, displayed the following announcement.
"I warn everybody against lending money to my wife Helen, as I refuse to meet her obligations. (Signed) Fritz Woratschek."

On the following day the same column contained another announcement reading:
"Dear Fritz—Don't worry. I've already borrowed all I need. All you need to do is to pay up. (Signed) Helen Woratschek."

Forgot to Tie Homes; Wind Blew 'Em Away

St. Michael, Alaska.—Natives on St. Lawrence island, in Bering sea, who last summer brought a number of knockdown houses in Seattle, forgot to fasten them down. This week the winter's first severe wind storm started the light wooden structures skidding over the level frozen surface, several families suddenly finding themselves in strange neighborhoods. To forestall another such violent move the houses are stayed by rawhide lariats thrown over them and tied to huge boulders.

OLD DOWER HOUSE HAS REAL CHARM

Handsome Colonial Home of the Lords Baltimore.

Relic of the early days of American colonization and reflecting the architectural types of the pre-Revolutionary period, "Dower house," the colonial home of the Lords Baltimore, one-time great land owners and lords of what is now Maryland, is one of the few remaining historical old manor houses of that intensely interesting period. It stands beside the road to Rosaryville, some 25 miles from the national capital, and is owned by Percy Duval.

The hunting lodge, the first unit of the rambling old homestead, was built by the second Lord Baltimore in 1643 from plans made by Sir Christopher Wren of London, when he was but a fledgling architect dreaming of the fame which ultimately he won. In its construction was used a peculiarly tinted blue brick imported from Holland, of which these seem to be the only remaining examples in use. In general effect the type was Dutch colonial, as it is known today, but unique in that it was composed of three sections.

Virtually all of the lower floor of the center section was taken up by the dining and lounging rooms, the latter being a sort of combined lounge and library. A feature of the dining room was the huge fireplace, six by eight feet, in which it was customary not infrequently to barbecue an entire deer. The section at the right, with the porch, comprised a kitchen below with sleeping rooms on the upper floor. At the other end was the parlor on the lower floor with Lord and Lady Baltimore's sleeping rooms above. Sleeping rooms also occupied the upper floor of the main center section.

Through the period of settlement in the Maryland and Virginia territories the second and third Lords Baltimore lived in the original hunting lodge without adding to it in any substantial way. Mostly they were engaged with the affairs of their extensive landed interests, the troublesome periods of the several Indian outbreaks and their early colonial responsibilities of government. The later additions were made by the fourth Lord Baltimore in 1689 and completed by Lord Baltimore V in 1720. The great wing which in the later years became the manor house proper and the scene of many brilliant social events was built of native brick in the type that later became the accepted standard of the South.

This portion of the building was later covered with a coating of cement, after the Spanish fashion, in that day a decided innovation for that region and very striking in effect. With its sturdy brick columns supporting the second story porch it was one of the early examples in that particular section of the southern colonial type of architecture which was later to come into such popular favor. Thereafter the old hunting lodge underwent some considerable revision. The dining and lounging rooms were converted into one large dining room, more efficiently to meet the increasing demands of the times. The little living room at the end became a library. But sentiment still retained the master's quarters on the second floor.

Elaborate landscaping eventually added greatly to the attractiveness of the old homestead. Two rows of tall, stately trees flanked the approach across the terraced lawn from the roadway to the main entrance of the mansion. Guests left their carriages at the gateway, which was in the midst of a widely spreading bed of lilies of the valley. Evergreen hedges, the boxwood for some of which had come from Mount Vernon, skirted the grounds. In season flowers added flashes of brilliant coloring everywhere. It was perhaps the outstanding manor house of its day.

Washington supplied from Mount Vernon the cuttings for the ivy growth which still clammers over the walls of the old house. Major L'Enfant, who laid out the national capital, directed the later landscaping changes. The "Dower house" was in high favor.

Something of its ancient charm still clings about those rooms in which the furnishings, draperies, antique furniture and old paintings still remain, virtually undisturbed in more than a century. In these rooms little, if anything, has been changed. The walls are streaked with the stains of time; the plastering is discolored and cracked and disintegrating; in some places it has fallen away completely from the ceiling. But one sees none of this. Only the picture of what it was a century ago.

The Old Man in Spats

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright)

THERE was once a young woman named Margaret Abadie who grew weary of paying half her meager income for the rent of an ill-ventilated studio apartment in the big city, and went to live in a nearby village. Margaret had a deft hand with paint-brushes but no decided talent, so she made her small income patiently decorating lampshades for a large gift shop in the city. The village she chose was a small one with a wide-shaded main street on which were huddled the few shops that supplied the villagers' needs. Most of them were combination shops that carried on oddly assorted lines of business. The little shop where you bought newspapers, magazines and tobacco was furnished with a long oilcloth-covered table and six wooden chairs where ice cream was served at all hours—as well as "hot meals."

At about six o'clock every evening Margaret went down to this little shop to buy the evening paper, and it was there that she noticed the old man in spats. He seemed always to be sitting there at the oilcloth-covered table at that time waiting for his evening meal. His hands were well cared for. That, the immaculate spats and his polished rimless eyeglasses struck Margaret as rather odd. It seemed odd that a man in such apparently good circumstances should have to eat his supper every night in this rather disgusting spot.

Seeing him there every evening and pitying his loneliness emboldened Margaret to how to the old man. One evening feeling lonely herself she sat down beside the old man and told the rather unkempt Italian woman who waited on table that she would have her supper there. She had hoped to find out something about the old man to satisfy her curiosity. But she learned nothing, only as she sat close to him she realized that he was old indeed.

One evening after that she asked the old man if he wouldn't like to come and have supper with her. She had made up her mind that he was a sorry old widower who preferred eating these untempting meals to sitting alone at home. The next evening the old man in spats came to her little old-fashioned cottage. There was no doubt as to the old man's enjoyment of the meal. He came again a week later and soon after that he asked Margaret if he might come every evening. He offered her a dollar for each supper and would agree to no less. Margaret was delighted with the arrangement. First it provided this homeless old man with a really good meal once a day. Association with her for that hour every day seemed to break the spell of his loneliness. Moreover, it broke the spell of her own loneliness. Naturally shy, Margaret had met with no great cordiality on the part of the villagers among whom she lived. Lately they seemed to have grown even less friendly toward her. Margaret became really very fond of her old man in spats. He never spoke of his own affairs. All that Margaret knew of him was that his name was Mr. Baker. Once she asked a neighbor about him.

"Oh, Mr. Baker," said the woman with an unpleasant note in her voice. "I dare say you know a great deal more about Mr. Baker than we do. It's quite true that he has a pile of money—which is no doubt what you want to find out."

Then one day a young man in an expensive car drove up to Margaret's cottage. A tall, well-dressed young man; he was Mr. Charles Baker. He said he thought it was fair for him to talk with her. It was a matter of neighborhood gossip that—here he hesitated—she, Margaret, had become very friendly with his grandfather. Of course it was none of young Mr. Baker's business what Margaret did nor in a way what his grandfather did. But his grandfather's wife—his own step-grandmother—a woman some years younger, had got word of the gossip, and had worried herself quite ill over the matter. Of course they all realized that Mr. Baker was not quite responsible. If he had been entirely normal he would never have gone to Vamoss's to get his meals. Annoyed at some trifling remark of his wife's at dinner some months ago he had stalked out saying he would never eat at home again.

"You mean that you and your step-grandmother think that I am trying to vamp Mr. Baker?" Margaret at last managed to ask. She laughed at the very absurdity of the thought and then explained exactly what had happened. Margaret and the young Mr. Baker talked then of a number of things. Charles from the first admired her, and when he left Margaret made a promise. "Not only will I give up my nice boarder but I'll get him to leave Vamoss's, too. I'll persuade him to eat at home tomorrow." Charles suggested that it might be easier to accomplish that if Margaret promised to dine with them, too.

Mrs. Baker was a good actress. When she met Margaret she never showed that for a while she had felt nothing but jealousy for her. Frankly she liked Margaret from the first—and by this time Charles was in love with her. Old Mr. Baker found it rather pleasant to be home again—but he found it even more pleasant when a few months later Margaret took a permanent place at his board as the young bride of his grandson.

TEN YEARS AGO THIS WEEK IN THE ROOSEVELT NEWS

ISSUE OF MARCH 9, 1917

A general strike in the Fertilizer plants such as played havoc a little over a year ago was threatened as more than 1,000 men of the various plants walked out yesterday.

The general demand of the workers is either an increase of 5c an hour or to reduce the working day one hour a day at the same pay now received. There has been no disorder among the strikers.

Chief Harrington has stationed police at the striking plants to prevent any unlawful assemblages and to preserve order.

Members of two families and roomers numbering about ten persons were overcome by gas fumes, which followed a water pipe line into the house occupied by the two families and owned by Max Glass.

The victims include Mrs. Wargo and daughter Elizabeth who lived on the ground floor, and Mrs. Bobenzik and her children, Julia, Annie, Mary and John, ranging from one to seven years of age. Men who were roomers in the house are reported to be in serious condition.

Chief of Police Harrington sent a hurry call for Dr. J. J. Reason and Dr. Mark, who gave first aid to the victims.

Mrs. George L. Bracher, of New Dorp, S. I., is visiting her sister Mrs. Thomas Burke.

Miss Catherine O'Brien, of Perth Amboy, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. R. J. Murphy, of Atlantic street.

The Flinch Club held a meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Carrie Drake and ten new members were elected to the Club. Those elected were the Misses Regina Lehrer, Blanche Gillespie and Hilda Johnson. Messrs. William Clifford, Sager Bonnel, Harry Yettman, Paul Ohlott, William Colgan, Ernest Johnson and Louis H. Yorke.

Mr. Eugene M. Clark, cashier of the First National Bank has been appointed as Park Commissioner of Perth Amboy by Mayor John F. Ten Broeck on the resignation of Joseph Clark at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen of the City of Perth Amboy.

The Borough Council at a meeting Monday night held a lengthy discussion over the Dock situation. The Inter-Ocean Oil Company have some time ago promised the Council the reservation of part of the waterfront owned by them, which was to be bought by the Borough for a Public Dock site, in exchange for permission of the Council granting the Inter-Ocean Oil Co. the right to lay pipe lines and to construct a R. R. crossing across Woodbridge avenue.

This agreement was not fulfilled on the part of the Oil Company after they had their crossing and pipe lines laid. The matter was referred to the Law Committee for investigation and condemnation proceedings.

Quick action on the part of both of the local Fire Companies when they were called out on an alarm, Monday night, from Robert street, saved the building under construction by John Giada. The fire was reported to have started from a small stove that was used in the building to keep the green plaster from freezing. Damages were estimated to be about $200.00.

Avoid Disappointing It

"The immoderate use of chewing gum may lead to stomach disorders," says a physician. This is easily understandable. When the jaws begin to work the stomach naturally looks for something to come down, and gets peeved if it doesn't.—Boston Transcript.

Sizes of Continents

Europe totals only about one-fourth of the land surface of the globe. Asia extends over nearly one-third of the land surface of the globe. Africa has about three times the area of Europe. North America is a little less than twice the size of Europe; and South America is a little more than 1 1/2 times the size of Europe.

Baptism by Sprinkling

The rite of baptism by sprinkling or pouring is supposed to have originated either in the Second or Third century and is alluded to in the writings of Cyprian, who gave his opinion that in the case of those who were sick or unable to endure the rite of immersion it was a lawful baptism.

Andrew Jackson's Politics

Andrew Jackson is popularly supposed to have started the modern Democratic party. It was to a large extent the successor of the Jeffersonians. But Old Hickory himself did not apply the name "Democratic" to his followers. During his Presidency and after his retirement to the Hermitage, in all his correspondence he called himself a Republican and one of his party was the Republican Pathfinder Magazine.

CONVICT FLEES THE ARGENTINE PENAL COLONY

Travels Desolate Land and Endures Untold Tortures for Brief Freedom.

Buenos Aires.—After five months of freezing cold, hunger and exhaustion, Horacio Silvapolas, escaped convict, must go back to Ushuaia, Argentine penal colony in Tierra del Fuego. His was not a feat of strategy or ingenuity; it was one of herculean endurance.

Ushuaia is a hundred miles farther south than Punta Arenas, which is the southernmost city of the world. It is a settlement in the Argentine portion of Tierra del Fuego on the north shore of the Beagle channel. Edging closely upon Ushuaia are somber forests of evergreen in whose depths prowl abject, half clad natives. They have lived there for centuries, but are so primitive that—in a land where the mercury never reaches 20 degrees above freezing point at high noon in midsummer—no form of shelter has been evolved by them. When they saw the fugitive Silvapolas they would scurry into the undergrowth with grunts of bewilderment, mistrustful of this strange creature.

Little Hope of Freedom.

Eighteen months before Silvapolas had knifed another to death in a quarrel in Buenos Aires and had subsequently been sentenced to eight years at Ushuaia. There he was a wood-cutter and sometimes helped in the prison kitchens. Almost every month somebody would try to escape only to stagger back, starving, begging for mercy.

Long Months of Hunger and Cold

"Just the same," Silvapolas told newspaper men, "I found every convict obsessed with the idea of escape. But there was no co-operation."

Every chance Silvapolas had he would steal a can of condensed milk, the only imperishable food available, and would hide it in the woods when he went cutting. An unexpected opportunity came when the guard was distracted and Silvapolas made the break for liberty with bullets flying about him before he had run a hundred yards. After that it took him five days to find his way back to the condensed milk he had cached. The milk lasted him ten days and he ate what wild berries and herbs he could.

With the sun for his guide he was twenty-two days reaching the swirling snow of the mountains, the whip-end of the Andes. Then followed long months of hunger and cold. A chance stone aimed with the accuracy of desperation stunned a wild sheep and furnished him with raw food for a few days. Then there were nights when little icy whirlwinds sought him out on the glaciers and drove him to seek unfound shelter in utter darkness. One night he stepped off a cliff and was saved by a fall into a snow-drift.

Finally Reaches Chile.

Exactly 159 days after making his escape he reached Punta Arenas, that is Chilean territory. In a straight line he had covered a hundred miles, but he is quite sure that he traveled three times that distance. In Punta Arenas he found assistance. No one there even dreamed that this man had come on foot from Ushuaia. By easy stages he worked up the coast and in Santiago de Chile he had little difficulty in hiring out as a baker's apprentice, being only twenty-eight years old. But a friend in whom he had unwittingly confided betrayed him to the police.

But now he must go back to Ushuaia. And he knows best whether he will again attempt to travel the road to freedom in Tierra del Fuego.

Will Provides Her Rings

Be Thrown Into the Sea
New York.—A strange clause in the will of the late Mrs. Gertrude Woods provided that her rings be thrown into the sea after the diamonds had been taken from them. Mrs. Woods, wife of Prof. James H. Woods of Harvard college, disappeared last June, and six weeks later her body was recovered in the ocean.

Toll Taken by Hail

It is estimated that throughout the world hail extracts from the human race in one year a toll of something like $200,000,000.

Light Beam

In large electric searchlights the light beams visible for 50 or 60 miles on clear nights, the carbons are not like those of ordinary arc lamps. Instead, the electrodes are cored carbons containing chemicals in the cores. The main source of light is a small body of gas contained in the crater at the end of the positive electrode. This crater of gas quadruple the strength of the beam.

POOLROOMS ARE GIVEN JOLT IN RECENT SHAKEUP

Police Authorities Investigate Emporiums Following Out Mayor's Orders

MOONSHINER'S RAIDED TOO

Many Taken in Raids; All Heavily Fined; Police Court Has Busy Session

Heavy fines for liquor violations and a shakeup in pool room circles came with hearings in Police Court Saturday. Five men found guilty of making moonshine in their homes were arraigned and fined. One pool room proprietor who was conducting the place without a license was fined and others were ordered to appear at further hearings this week.

In recent raids Police visited the homes of Mike Deprowolski, 60 Charles street, Benjamin Pantof, 43 Charles street, Steve Lokotus, 1 St. Anne street and Mike Cirvinak, 11 Hudson street, where stills were found. Some were in full operation and in all cases evidence that the stills had been in recent use. The four offenders were fined $50 each and all moonshine making materials destroyed except the liquor found on the premises which was kept as evidence.

Mike Deprowolski did not have $50 with him, but promised to bring the money in if he was released. He was let go with this understanding. When he failed to appear Saturday or early Sunday morning an officer was sent out to bring him in. He explained that he had had enough money to pay his fine but that he had to pay his dues to the Russian Church, and that after that was paid there was not enough left to cover the fine. The arresting officer said he saw Deprowolski turn over some yellow-backed bills to an official of the church. Deprowolski was locked up.

While the Police Court was in session on these four cases, Lieutenant Donovan accompanied by Detective Sergeant J. J. Dowling and Motorcycle Policeman Robert Shanley, brought in Walter Akacki, of 87 Warren street together with his equipment of large stills, cooling pans and other moonshine-making gear and a quantity of mash and "white mule." Akacki was arraigned at the same session of the court and fined $100.

Louis Bodnar was arraigned for operating a pool room in Hudson street and was fined $25. He did not have a license and is not a citizen as required by the pool license ordinance. The pool room in question had been disguised as a club room for foreign born.

Francisco Perez, a brother of Jesus Perez who was deported a week ago for entering the country without a passport, was arraigned on a charge of operating a Pershing avenue pool room without a license. The pool room had formerly been conducted by the deported brother.

Francisco admitted that he was not a citizen. He had been running the poolroom, he said, since his brother, Jesus, was deported. Francisco said he would leave Carteret in twenty minutes if he could sell out the pool room. He was given thirty days to dispose of it.

Several other pool room cases were on the docket, but were laid over.

SCOUT ACTIVITY SHOWS INCREASE IN CARTERET

Membership Campaign Well Under Way; John Pfeiffer in Charge

Under the leadership of John Pfeiffer, general chairman, the 1927 membership campaign of the Raritan Council, Boy Scouts of America is being prepared. At a dinner meeting held at the Madison Hotel, Perth Amboy, last Tuesday evening, at which were present representatives of the various communities of the Raritan Council, local chairman were named as follows: John M. Kreger, Woodbridge; Edward A. Strack, Carteret; and Marshall E. Magee, South Amboy; and the organization of teams is already going ahead in these communities.

Chairman Pfeiffer is very actively engaged in recruiting team captains and in securing the co-operation of the various officials and leading citizens of the council territory. In every case he has met with favorable response for the Scout Movement is becoming exceedingly popular in the Raritan Council territory.

Scout headquarters is preparing a special campaign folder which will be mailed to all prospective members. This folder briefly sums up the achievement of the Raritan Council during the past year, especially pointing out the growth of new troops as a result of the Leadership Training Course conducted last fall. There are at present six troops in the process of formation in Perth Amboy and one in Woodbridge and plans are under way for the organization of additional troops in Carteret and South Amboy after the next Training Course which comes in May.

Another notable achievement has been the organization of local Courts of Honor in Iselin, Colonia, Woodbridge, Perth Amboy, South Amboy and Carteret, whereby the scouts of those respective communities may receive their badges as soon as they have qualified for them. This policy is a very decided improvement over the old scheme of one central Court of Honor and has made for more efficiency in the administration of the Movement.

Scouting in Carteret has been going ahead after some local readjustments and Troop 82 had an enthusiastic meeting last Friday night under the leadership of its new Scoutmaster Merrill B. Huber. At this meeting District Scout Commissioner Edward A. Strack was present and presented the commissions to Scoutmaster Huber and Assistant Scoutmaster Walter Colquhoun.

Scout Executive Herbert W. Lunn of the Raritan Council headquarters was also on hand on this occasion and made several interesting announcements to the boys and left a message of encouragement to them all in their scout work. He paid a compliment to the work of Commissioner Strack in heading up the Scout Movement in Carteret and announced that as soon as leadership is available additional troops will be organized in the borough. The troop officially adopted a new neckerchief and decided upon the red with the black border as distinctive for Troop 82.

At the meeting held at the Madison Hotel Commissioner Strack was accompanied by James Dunne who will assist him in conducting the financial campaign here. The campaign will take place during the week of March 28 to April 4 and arrangements are being made for the opening dinner at the Masonic Temple, Perth Amboy, at which will be present all the teams of the council. Further announcement will be made later.

Eastern Star Bazaar at Woodbridge

The "Eye of Apis," and magic Egypt, the land of the myth and mystery, the land of the ancient Osiris, Harus and Isis, has allowed one of its most precious possessions, "The Wishing Eye of Apis," to leave its confines for the benefit of the Grand Bazaar of The Order of The Eastern Star, American Chapter, to be held at the Craftsman's Friday and Saturday, March 25th and 26th.

Arrangements Will Also be Made for a Bazaar to be Held Sometime in May

A Bazaar, under the joint auspices of The American Legion and the Auxiliary, was discussed at the meeting of the local post, held in their rooms in the Municipal Building on Wednesday evening. The affair will be held sometime in May.

A Committee was appointed to arrange the details, consisting of Harvey Young, J. Johnson, F. Ruekreigle, Mrs. William Hagen, Mrs. J. Johnson and Mrs. Joseph Weissman. A meeting of the committee will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Johnson of 89 Washington avenue to further discuss these plans.

An effort will be made to have all Spanish War veterans take part in the Parade on Memorial Day.

HEALTH PLAY AT CARTERET HIGH SCHOOL

Middlesex County Reports Increase in sale of Christmas Seals this year

Middlesex County is one of the few counties reporting an increase in the Christmas Seal Sale this year. This year the Seal Sale in Middlesex County was increased from $12,500.00 to $15,200.00. Several hundred dollars more is expected from communities which have not made a final report.

The entire Seal Sale for the State this year is about the same as that of last year, $260,000.00. The following high schools in the country are taking part in the Health Play Contest of the National Tuberculosis Association: St. Mary's, Perth Amboy; Carteret High; Junior High, New Brunswick; Junior High, Highland Park.

The Middlesex County Tuberculosis League is making plans for the annual meeting to be held in Metuchen during the latter part of April. The program will have special reference to the Health of the School Child and the program will include: A Health Play, Fifteen Minute Talk by a Child Health Expert, Discussions by some of the School Men in Middlesex County and the Annual Election of the Officers.

To meet the increased program of work of the League, two people are being added to the staff this year, an office worker and a Public Health nurse.

DEBORAH REBEKAHS HONOR MEMBER

Aunt Sarah is Surprised on Birthday; St. Patrick's Day Also Celebrated

The Deborah Rebekah Lodge No. 59, I. O. O. F., at their meeting held in their lodge rooms on Wednesday evening, honored Mrs. William Donnelly on her birthday and also celebrated St. Patrick's Day.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the dual occasion, fittingly the color scheme was green. The evening was spent in playing games and some fine prizes were awarded. Refreshments were served at a late hour, after which Aunt Sarah was wished many more happy birthdays.

FOOD SALE

The Mission Band of the First Presbyterian Church will hold a Food Sale tomorrow at Lebowitz Bros. Meat Market on Washington avenue, between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m.

LADIES' REPUBLICAN CLUB

The Ladies' Republican Club will hold a Social and Business Meeting at Fire House No. 1 tonight. After the business session, cards will be played and refreshments will be served. All Republicans are invited to attend.

Both Fire Companies Called Out to Battle Volumes of Smoke

Dense clouds of smoke pouring from every opening in the building, located on the southeast corner of Hudson and Union streets and owned and tenanted by Charles Mittleman, was the scene which confronted the firemen when they answered an alarm today at about 12.45 p. m. It was almost impossible to enter the building and most of the work of the men had to be done from the outside. After a hole had been hacked in the east side of the building and the seat of the fire located, which started in the cellar and worked up between the walls, the density of the smoke decreased and some of the firemen gain entrance to the top floor to work inside for only short intervals, when they would rush out for air.

Several attempts were made to recover valuable papers and money belonging to the Mittleman's and finally William Rapp succeeded. The fire was in due time extinguished with considerable loss to the owner.

LIONS DISCUSS HOSPITAL FUND POSSIBILITIES

The Commonwealth Fund Offers Chances of Hospital to Local Community

INVESTIGATE CONDITIONS

Lions Entertain Guests From Out of Town at a Very Successful Meeting

The regular weekly luncheon of the Lions Club, held Tuesday in their rooms at the Pershing Restaurant, was done in real Lion fashion, a large Lions banner decorated the banquet room and each member sported their new emblematic buttons.

The guests, Mr. Stephen Somogy of Perth Amboy, Mr. Emil Stremmlau and Mr. Oliver were introduced and after a fine luncheon the business routine of the meeting opened, Mr. Thomas G. Kenyon presiding.

Dr. H. L. Strandberg outlined, the meeting, a Hospital proposition sponsored by The Commonwealth Fund of New York and founded by Mrs. Harkness, the well known philanthropist. This Fund was created to help rural communities in the building and maintaining of hospitals.

According to the general opinion of the members present their remains some doubt as to whether Carteret can be classed as a community that can benefit by the Fund inasmuch as the restrictions and conditions set down by the Fund can be waived by them, should local conditions warrant it.

Following are the conditions:
1. The local area shall extend in all directions not less than 35 miles unless the Fund expressly waives this condition, and shall not contain an urban center larger than 12,000 population.

2. The local area shall not contain a general hospital affording reasonably adequate and accessible service.

3. The local area shall provide a site, one-third of the total building and equipment cost, and guarantee to furnish funds necessary to assure continued operation and upkeep of the hospital.

4. The hospital shall admit to its service all persons residing within the area without respect to creed, color, race or economic condition.

5. The hospital shall be open to all reputable practicing physicians residing within the area.

6. The hospital shall be administered by a non-governmental body, incorporated under state law.

7. The hospital shall contain not less than 40 nor more than 60 beds, unless this condition be waived by the Fund; and not less than 25 percent of the beds shall be available, if needed, for the care of free patients and patients paying less than the cost of their care.

8. The hospital shall include within its activities out-patient service, and shall so far as possible serve as a means of advancing health standards in the community.

In making this application the signers—

1. Certify to the accuracy of the data submitted herewith under the title "Data Supplementing Hospital Application."

2. Pledge themselves to lend active support to the project.

3. Express the conviction that the area can and will afford the necessary financial support involved.

After considerable discussion the matter was laid over.

Husband Selected Poor

Theme for Kind Words

We walked into a little East side grocery store, my companion and I, and heard the sound of raucous quarreling. The proprietor and his wife were glaring at each other across the counter, but they abandoned their sharp words momentarily, upon our entrance.

And then the wife's emotions got the better of her.

"I'll just leave it to these people here," she told her husband, flourishing an arm in our direction. "We've been married seven years and in all that time he's never said a kind word to me until tonight. And now—yes, this is his idea of kind words; listen—he comes in and tells me I done well in ordering his shipment of clean potatoes."

"Well," the husband asserted, sullenly, "you did."

"Sure I did!" his wife returned. "And for seven years I been dressing the way you liked and doing everything you wanted me to do, and keeping house the way you wanted it kept, and now the first time you show any appreciation you thank me for ordering clean potatoes!"

But, my goodness, we thought, as we got outside the store and the hysterical voice of the ill-treated wife was left far behind, how like life that is! And how many times we get thanked for just such dumb things as "ordering clean potatoes," when our really worthy achievements are overlooked.

I don't doubt that seven years of marital strife do a lot toward stifling the desire to bestow mutual compliments, but it seems a pity that such a state of affairs has to exist. I suppose, for instance, that this storekeeper's wife would have swooned with joy had her stern-visaged husband remarked in an offhand manner, "Seems to me you look awfully pretty tonight in that dress." But no—she would pick on the potatoes.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Diplomatic Magnate

A theater magnate of the west coast has won the reputation of being a great diplomat and a smart politician on account of the friendly meeting and entertainment provided for all visitors of importance. Anyone of any consequence in the film industry who enters his office will find a picture of himself or herself in a neat gold frame on the theater magnate's desk. The magnate has worked out the following system for putting himself in the good graces of important callers: He has in his private office a complete file of photographs of all the leading movie people. When any one of several hundred stars calls and is announced from the outer office, a quick transition of pictures is made. As the star walks into the inner sanctum his own picture is prominently placed on the desk of the magnate, who boasts of never having any friction with the temperamental film artists.—The Outlook.

Strength of Rings

Some elaborate calculations backed by experiments have been made to determine the "breaking strength" of rings. It appears that a ring of ductile material like malleable iron will be pulled out into the form of a long link before it breaks, and that the ultimate strength of the ring is virtually independent of its diameter. Fracture finally occurs as the result of almost pure tension, and the resistance to breaking is a little less than twice that of a rod of the same cross-section subjected to a straight pull. As the ring increases in diameter there appears to be a slight approach toward equality, with double the strength of a bar. Thus a 3-inch ring made of three-quarter inch iron broke at 19½ tons, a 4-inch ring at 19.9 tons and a 6-inch ring at 20 tons, the strength of a bar of the same metal being 10½ tons.

Few Actresses Rich

Although many actresses make huge salaries during their careers, most of them do not have the necessary foresight to lay any of it away for the inevitable "rainy day," points out Billie Burke, the well-known former actress. In an interview with Miss Burke in Liberty Sidney Sutherland reports her as saying:

"Many actresses have made enormous sums and died penniless. They play the stock market," she explains, "usually on a tip whispered by some friend in Wall street; they invest foolishly in real estate; they purchase wildcat stocks in mines and oil fields; they spend huge sums on jewels and clothing and travel. And some have a boy friend. This last investment is a costly one—and you can't go to a bank and borrow very much on great memories, which are about all this investment brings."

House of Sinister History

The little villa at Gambais, France, where Bluebeard Landru murdered and burned at least five of the eleven wives for whose deaths he went to the guillotine in Versailles, is falling into ruin. Nobody wishes to live in the place of gruesome memories and the proprietor refuses to go to the expense of demolishing it. Tourists traveling in the neighborhood sometimes desire to look over the place, but they are not permitted to enter. Automobileists turn their eyes for a few seconds from the road ahead to look at the grim dwelling. The villagers who knew Landru slightly do not believe that the mild-looking bearded occupant of the villa can possibly have been guilty of the frightful series of crimes for which he suffered the death penalty.

End of an Elephant Hunt in Kansas

When a circus elephant escaped at Garnett, Kans., and roamed over the adjacent country for several days the farmers engaged in an exciting and unusual hunt. Finally the pachyderm, with many shot wounds and with frozen ears and toes, was caught, chained and led back peacefully to his owners.

Young America Armored in Its Sophistication

Left to fend for himself, as he usually makes sure that he is left, the average young American is surprisingly precocious in getting his sea legs. If he has had free rein through his last years in high school he has an armor of hardness and sophistication by the time he reaches college which his father probably did not possess at thirty and his mother may not yet possess.

If he doesn't have it at the beginning of his freshmen year, he will by the end of it. People who still talk sentimentally of "the tender years," meaning the late teens, should read from sixty to one hundred themes a week for five years as I have done, and should hold three hours a week of conference over anything from the placing of commas to the expediency of booze parties.

At the end of a regimen like that one feels that he knows what is in the heads and hearts of young people. And except for the rare young person who has come up in a home where the right-and-wrong standard was still rigorously applied, and whose case, just because he is not armored like his fellows, is very sad indeed, I do not worry greatly about the mere wastefulness of the standard which finds its sanction in experience.

I am still awed by the sureness and the level-eyed poise with which sorority pledgers steer in waters their mothers never dreamed of trying to navigate. They know, these rouged and marceled seventeen-year-olds, that there is a definite margin of "stuff you can't get by with," and they are careful not to allow any pretty sentiment or rash impulse to take them beyond that margin.—Avis D. Carlson in Harper's Magazine.

Trade Dollars

The trade dollar of 420 grains troy was authorized by the act of February 12, 1873. It was intended for circulation in oriental countries as a substitute for the Mexican dollar, which it slightly exceeded in weight, but by the terms of the authorizing act it was made legal tender in the United States in sums not exceeding $5. This legal tender quality was withdrawn by the joint resolution approved July 22, 1876, and the coinage was limited to such amount as the secretary of the treasury should consider sufficient to meet the export demand. The act of February 19, 1887, provided for the retirement of trade dollars or subsidiary silver. For six months after the passage of the act they could be exchanged at the treasury or any sub-treasury, dollar for dollar, for standard silver dollars or subsidiary coin. The total number of trade dollars coined was 35,965,924.

Telescope Warmer

There has recently been invented a method of keeping telescopes and surveying instruments from sudden changes of temperature which are apt to contract or expand the metal parts of the instrument and may spoil the accuracy of measurements made with it.

These delicate instruments can now be provided with a tiny electric stove made in the form of a heating coil wound round the tube containing the lenses. An automatic regulator makes it possible to keep the instrument at exactly the same temperature no matter how the weather may change from day to day, and prevents moisture from condensing on the lenses and blurring the image.

Book Borrowers' Reviews

Persons borrowing books from a new type of circulating library being tried in Germany are required to write a review of each volume taken out before it can be returned. These reviews are arranged and analyzed and charts prepared which will form a valuable index for the librarians. Under this system it will be possible to determine the subjects most in demand by the reading public or by special groups. The director of one of these libraries will be able, ten years from now, by looking at his charts, to tell the subjects in which, for instance, women between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five were most interested in reading in 1923.

Money in Rabbit Farm

Lady Rachel Byng four years ago gave up her millinery shop in London's west end to establish the first rabbit farm in the British Isles, and has found her business so profitable that she has been obliged to transfer it bodily clear across England to larger quarters. Sage, Mrs. Henry W. Monroe, Mrs. Haley Flske and Mrs. Lewis B. Cawtry, gave the lace pieces, the intrinsic value of which alone is placed at more than $100,000.

Riches Mock Woman; Lonely, Kills Self

Waterbury, Conn.—Lulu Morden, who came East alone ten years ago with a determination to succeed in the business world, and who accomplished her desire to the extent of some half-million dollars, is dead by her own hand because in her eagerness for financial independence she neglected to make any friends.

Loneliness developed into despair, and so the president and treasurer of the Morden Manufacturing company, doing a business of $150,000 a year, turned on the gas in one of the 16 rooms of her large home here.

Miss Morden lost her business of making loose-leaf books and stationery appliances with almost nothing, and when she died the business was employing 300 men, and she had accumulated a fortune of about $500,000.

"DEVIL" LETTERS TRACED BY LAW

Defective Letter in Machine Reveals Writer.

Danville, Va.—A local committee of investigation has established the authorship of nine anonymous letters signed "The Devil," which were sent through the mails to the nine Danville ministers who recently voted against extending an invitation to Evangelist M. F. Ham to come to Danville.

The development is likely to add to discontent between laymen and the organized ministry in Danville and is upsetting the movement started by older churchmen who are trying to relegate to the background an issue in which they see danger to the church generally.

The anonymous letters, typewritten, express to the ministers the keen appreciation of "his saturnal majesty for promoting his kingdom on earth," and contain unflattering references to the ministers' character and religion.

A professional man who was suspected denied that he wrote the letters, but one of the investigators secured entry to his office, took a specimen of work from his typewriter, and found that one of the letters had the same flaw as that appearing in all of the anonymous letters.

The professional man was shown "the proof." He excused himself by saying that he had not "written" the letters but had dictated them. He said that he was laboring under high religious strain at the time. His name has not been made public.

Picks Bear's Hollow Log for a Sleeping Place

Holland, Mich.—Dr. Willis Geerlings tried to spend a night in a bear's home when lost in the northern woods. One experience is sufficient, Doctor Geerlings said, after an argument with a 220-pound bear. On a deer hunting trip in the upper peninsula the physician became lost in a swamp with darkness coming on. He picked out a hollow log and decided to enlarge the opening and spend the night.

Suddenly hearing a noise, he turned and saw a black bear approaching. The doctor realized then that he was disturbing the home of the bear. The hunter fired and toppled the bear, which jumped and ran. Meantime, Doctor Geerlings' brother, who was searching for him, arrived. By the light of a lantern the two tracked the bear.

They came on the wounded bear, which showed fight but was killed by a second shot. The doctor brought his bear home with him along with a deer.

Dove Found in Ice Cake Recovers When Thawed

Platteville, Wis.—A dove found frozen in a cake of ice has been sufficiently revived to again forage for itself, according to Ben Davis, who found the bird in its peculiar trap. Davis, employed as guard at the ruins of the $150,000 city hall here, heard a fluttering in a cake of ice formed by water which had been poured on the building when fire broke out in sub-zero weather. He broke the ice cake with an axe and took the dove uninjured, but weak, to his home.

Nitro-Glycerin Filled Dog Falls and Explodes

Irvine, Ky.—With an explosion of nitroglycerin within the body of a dog a short season of fright in a section of Lee county oil fields near here came to an end. The dog drank about a pint of the explosive and oil men tried to capture it, but the dog ran away.

The workers cleared out and the owner of the dog moved his wife and ten children from their home.

Later the dog chased a rabbit over a 50-foot precipice, fell, and exploded.

Bacon's Genius Hailed by Scientific World

Five years ago Dr. Wilfred M. Voynich, a collector of old books and manuscripts, brought to this country a set of volumes written on vellum and constituting a sort of encyclopedia of scientific knowledge. At the monastery from which he bought them there was a tradition that they were the work of Roger Bacon, a Franciscan friar who lived in the Thirteenth century and has long been regarded as one of the great scientific minds of the Middle Ages.

The books were written in a strange tongue and a complicated cipher, which no one had been able to solve until Doctor Voynich submitted the volumes to Dr. W. Romaine Newbold of the University of Pennsylvania. He found the key and translated at least a part of the manuscript.

It was announced at the time that they show Bacon to have had knowledge both of the telescope and of the microscope. Doctor Newbold is even reported to have said that when the time came he would prove to the world "that the black magic of the Middle Ages consisted in discoveries far in advance of Twentieth-century science," and that the books contain "information on the origin of life and other mysteries that will stagger the scientific world."

Last September Doctor Newbold died, whether with his task of translation completed or not we do not know; but at a recent memorial meeting in his honor a most interesting announcement was made. Among the formulae in the books was a rule for making salts of copper. Doctor Newbold submitted it to a chemist, who said he had never heard of it; but he tried it and found that it works, though it is too complicated to be of commercial value today.

The incident is interesting for two reasons: it shows that Doctor Newbold's solution of the cipher is correct, and it shows that the friar of more than six hundred years ago had knowledge not common to the men of his day, and that he knew how to set that knowledge down. It whets the appetite of the scientific mind for other secrets that the books may contain.

There is a sort of archeology of learning, of knowledge, as there is of archeology of the more material aspects of civilization, such as architecture, household utensils and armor; and out of its dust heaps long-buried jewels flash from time to time a ray that broadens the horizon and grips the fancy.—Youth's Companion.

"Time"

Observance of the advent of 1927 excites this comment by the modern world:

The idea of "absolute" time has, of course, passed. We see now that what we called "time" is merely a name for our own human reaction to varying aspects of the environment in which we find ourselves. Nevertheless, the thought of time enormously influences essentially modern thought. When our minds reach back with sufficient imaginative concentration through the millions of years of organic evolution which have led up to us, we realize how relatively unimportant are the human stupidities against which cynics rail, how infinitely important is the indubitable fact of our increasing capacity to shape our lives and our world according to our will and desire.

There was a vast desert of time behind us. There is a great stretch of time ahead of us.

Humanity could consciously shape the happenings of 1927 if it sufficiently desired. Humanity can shape its near and remote future when it so desires.

Working Through College

Hundreds of college girls are earning their way through school by doing housework in the private homes of local residents. The duties vary from kitchen work to care of the children, and the usual requirement is four hours of work a day in return for board and room. Overtime is generally paid at a rate of about 35 cents an hour. If a girl is experienced in domestic work and is physically strong, housework of this sort will pay the largest item of her college expense, and at the same time lend a feeling of security for her college career. Some college men do the same kind of work, including cleaning. They usually receive about 40 cents an hour.

Athletic Interests Lead to Increase in Morality and Moral Standards

By STEPHEN E. KRAMER, School Supervisor, Washington.

IMMORALITY is not found among the athletic boys and girls but among the bespectacled bookworms. The boy and girl who take active interest in athletics and participate in the games have too much to think of, too much demand on their energy, to have time and surplus energy to devote to immorality.

The finest thing which is said of athletics is that it tends to increase morality and moral standards among our young people, gives them a better and cleaner outlook on life and a better appreciation of the advantage and desirability of having clean, wholesome minds as well as clean, wholesome bodies.

There will be no effort to force girls back into costumes which have become passe because of their cumbersome. There is a great deal more harm in suggestiveness than in frankness. No encouragement to immodesty will be tolerated, but immodesty must be judged by the consensus, conditions at the time, the appropriateness of the costume and demeanor of the wearer.

We are going ahead with the development of interest in clean wholesome sports among our boys and girls because we are convinced that not only are such things good to help build clean, strong bodies but are of material help in building clean, strong minds, and whether a knee shows or not is regarded as of little consequence by our boys and girls.

Too Little Attention Given to the Great Problem of Heredity

By C. H. ANDERSON, Iowa Alienist.

The span of life is shortening through neglect in the improvement of the race, while criminality, delinquency, disease and insanity are on the increase and public institutions and hospitals are growing more crowded.

The social fabric is steadily and rapidly weakening and unless this downward plunge is halted the race of mankind is destined to completely collapse. Even now it is stretched to the breaking point.

There are two chief factors which influence our lives. One is heredity and the other environment. Upon the improvement of the latter by schools, colleges, churches and social centers, we spend millions of dollars every year, but to heredity we give scarcely a thought, and as a result there is scattered over the state of Illinois, as in every other state, institutions for the crippled, the blind, the deaf, the dumb, the epileptic, the diseased, the insane and the criminal.

The laws of heredity are as inexorable as the laws of gravity. Tell me what your ancestors have been for two or three generations, and I will tell you what your children will be. Now and then an individual rises like a meteor to new heights, but it is rare. Heredity is one of the most difficult social problems of this age.

This Mortal Life Merely Qualifying Ground for the Life Hereafter

By REV. DR. BENNETT, Dean Chester Cathedral, England.

UNLESS man qualifies himself during his sojourn on earth he cannot hope for any sort of life in the world to come. The outstanding lesson of the whole organic process of life is that any organ which would enrich itself must first qualify itself, and, therefore, if we who are here are to have any life at all hereafter we must qualify ourselves. And that is the sole purpose of the life we spend here—to qualify ourselves, to save our soul, that bundle of our doings and our thoughts which we create for ourselves.

Since man must qualify himself for life hereafter, he can merit only complete destruction if he does not tend his soul, as is the purpose of life. I do not believe that there is any such thing as "eternal punishment," because if there is to be punishment there must be life, and that life is to be attained only by man's efforts to qualify his soul here, and such qualification merits not punishment or destruction but the reward of an eternal life.

Voice of World War Veterans Potent in Policy of Nation's Protection

By HANFORD MAC NIDER, Assistant Secretary of War.

THE American Legion has fought its way to recognition as the voice of the great war veterans, overcoming "indifference, misunderstanding—even organized opposition.

As our generation becomes the active generation in American affairs, so will the legion become the dominant voice concerning all those things on which experience qualifies it to speak.

On all questions of proper national defense, the voice of the generation which fought the war will be final. Only the men who fought have the necessary background to speak authoritatively. It is logical to presume that the nation will be glad to take advantage of their experience and abide by their advice.

They know what war is and they have no desire to see it again. They do not want it for themselves and certainly they do not want it for their sons. Men who have seen their comrades maimed and killed about them know what sacrifices have been made to preserve American citizenship. They have no intention of allowing that hard-won heritage to be dissipated or left at the mercy of a still unsettled world.

Unfortunate Social Conditions Traced to Ignorance of the Bible

By BISHOP MANNING (Episcopal), New York.

Neglect of the Bible has a great deal to do with unfortunate social conditions today. Ignorance of the Bible is an incalculable loss from the standpoint of education and culture, but morally and spiritually the loss is still more serious. How much of the present lawlessness, how much of the present lowering of social and moral standards, how much of the present increase of crime in our land can be traced to and accounted for by neglect of the Bible and by absence of religious teaching from our schools?

Research of modern scholars has not hurt the validity of the Bible. I say without hesitation that no fact or truth which Biblical scholarship has established conflicts with, or tends to weaken, full belief in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, in the fact of his birth to the Blessed Virgin Mary, in the reality of His resurrection from the grave or His ascension into heaven.

OPINION

A Hezy Question Best Wishes for Homes A Record

THE POST BOULEVARD—what does it mean to Carteret people? Perhaps nothing at present, because the boulevard has not been mentioned many times. In fact, it is a new idea that has grown out of the minds of those realtors who are developing Carteret Park.

They intend to make a beautiful boulevard along their property. They say it will connect Carteret and Elizabeth, but they do not say when.

At any rate, we hope the realtors succeed as prophets, because a short route to Elizabeth would be a great time saver and incidentally a MONEY SAVER.

During the last ten or more years leading men in borough affairs have cited the need for a shore road. The matter at times received unusual attention, but always dropped back into obscurity.

Last year the Lions Club took up the idea only to let it go again.

When will the plan reach the final stage of maturity? It will some day, but WHEN? We believe that Carteret has grown large enough to merit a shore road. Probably the Post Boulevard will in the future lead to Elizabeth.

The depressing fact is that we might have to wait too long to find out definitely.

MR. ALEX LEBOWITZ tells the Business Men that they need a home. He is not sarcastic; nor does he make an attack upon the comfortable abodes of his friends—he merely suggests that the organization make a home for itself. Mr. Lebowitz, in so doing, shows his propensity for constructiveness.

But, the plan is not a new one among organizations. The Elks have long thought of it. The Foresters have looked into it. And many others have discussed it.

What was needed in every case was a punch to carry plans over the final lap into completion. This they all seemed to lack.

Perhaps it is well to remember that big things are not done in a day. The epigram is a consolation, therefore, and gives everyone patience along with the hope that all those organizations who have thought of a home might succeed in getting one.

How will the Business Men fare in their endeavor? Will they have the necessary driving power? Our good wishes are extended to them, as well as to all the others.

IF VITAL STATISTICS have any significance, Roxbury, N. H., stood stock still in 1926. A year without a birth, a death or a marriage is the record of this little town.

Apparently, however, the town is making progress, for none of the thirty-three taxpayers would live elsewhere.

A death, a marriage, or a birth in Roxbury must cause considerable excitement. Roxbury has its "thrills."

Better think too much of yourself than too little. Better yet, of course, to estimate yourself for what you really are. But do not let the charge of egotism lessen your endeavors to accomplish.

Voltaire tells us that up to that moment he had been a king only in name, like his father and namesake. But although he spoke the words of defiance, dressed not in robes of office, but in the garb of a huntsman, he established then and there his right to be known as a real king and furnished France with one of the most brilliant administrations in all its history.

He reached up to his full height when he made his mark for others to look upon.

"Egotists" the world would call him, but he spoke only the bare truth, he was a genius. It is only egotism without basis of accomplishment that should disgust and tire us of self-appraisal.

But to come back to the bear. He sets us a splendid example. He makes a high mark and then endeavors to live up to it. He strains every muscle and nerve when he puts his individual imprint where all his companions may read it.

We can do a great deal worse than to imitate the grizzly—be a bear and make your mark.

A new whistle as soft as the woodwinds of a symphony orchestra has been installed on the locomotives of the Milwaukee railroad. Henceforth, the great black monsters, as they plunge through the darkness, will send forth "sounds and sweet airs that give delight and hurt not": the babe will soo at the music made by the night express; and in the lonely fields and woods a thousand-voiced natural chorus will be left in the train's wake, as the birds, beasts and insects respond to the dulcet notes of the steam whistles. This is all very pretty, and brings upon the railroad company the blessing of all insomniacs. Yet there are some of us who are uncertain about the artistic accuracy of the innovation, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The modern locomotive is the very embodiment of massiveness and power. Should it not have a voice commensurate with its dimensions? We submit the question. There might be something lacking if the giant of the rails should give forth arias in the manner of a coloratura soprano.

Scientists Baffled by Mystery of Crystals

Although the comparatively modern science of crystallography has now satisfactorily explained the formation of crystals, and mathematics has charted their innumerable "faces" in respect to the angles, very little is definitely understood concerning certain conditions, as for instance the reasons for the pellucidity of crystals, or under what circumstances the ancients were led to use crystals, or beryls, in their practice of divination by means of "gazing."

The beautiful "glass stones" were for centuries considered to have supernatural abilities, and even today a large crystal is a part of the paraphernalia of most magicians, so-called. Spirits were supposed to make crystals their habitat, and Andrew Lang, famous British author, once declared that there might be something more than superstition attached to the reports of amazing things said to be read within the crystals of even the moderns.

Although the origin of crystallography is somewhat obscure, both Prof. M. Dumas of the College of France, and the eminent savant Prof. F. C. Calvert, credit Swenson, the extraordinary universal genius of the eighteenth century, with having been the first to comprehensively set forth the reasons for crystalline formations, and with having computed and characterized the arrangement of crystal spheres and angles. Nicolas Steno, fifty years earlier (1686), was probably the first of the moderns, at least to give public utterance to some aspects of this subject.

Crystals, apart from their precious value, have been in commercial use in optics and for watch glasses, etc., while there is always some demand among jewelers for certain types. Recently, two magnificent imported Burmese crystals, cut by natives with small steel hatchets, were sold at a New York auction room for $50,000.

Beards of Indians

J. P. Harrington, in a statement prepared for the Pathfinder Magazine, explains why the American Indians always appeared to be clean shaven. "The beard of the American aborigines," says Harrington, who is an ethnologist on the staff of the bureau of American ethnology, "was sparse, like that of the peoples in the adjacent parts of Asia, and the straggling beard hairs on the faces of the man were habitually pulled. While sitting around the Indian was continually running his hands over his cheeks and chin, feeling for hairs. These were pulled out by the roots, a good hold being gotten on the hair between the fingers. It hurt, and sometimes made the Indian wince. Occasionally a piece of mussel shell, a thin chip of flint, or the like, was held in the hand in order to better grasp the hair. Some Indian women also had hair grow on their faces and extracted it little by little the same as the men. Of course, some Indians were taller than others in keeping the hair from their faces."

HERE IS RING THAT ALWAYS COMES BACK

Fish Brought It From Sea and Parsnip Rescued It From Earth.

Chester, N. S.—This is a story of buried treasure, of sparkling gems and gold lost and buried for many years near Chester, N. S.

Nearly thirty years ago the British sailing ship Cromartyshire and the French liner La Burgogne collided off Sable Island. La Burgogne sank in a few minutes and hundreds of people lost their lives.

At this time Lorne Nauss, a native of Chester, was dorymate with a man named Young, sailing in a bank fisherman out of Gloucester, Mass. While dressing fish one afternoon, the schooner being anchored at the time somewhere on the western bank. Young picked from the maw of a large cod an object that gleamed and sparkled in the sunshine. It was a man's ring of heavy yellow gold, set with two fine rubies, one oval-shaped, one square, cut in that smooth rounded polish that gives the best color effect.

Ring Given Up for $20. Of course it was a nine-day wonder among the crew and the ring was greatly admired. When the crew were paid off at the end of the trip Young proceeded to celebrate as soon as he got on shore, and in consequence found himself without sufficient funds to pay his way home. He borrowed $20 from his dorymate and gave him as security the ruby ring.

Nauss kept the ring for years, but it was never redeemed. In the course of time he quitted the sea, married and settled down in Chester. Occasionally he wore the ring which had such an unusual history; but about twenty years ago it mysteriously disappeared. Diligent search was made for it without success; finally it was given up as lost and was forgotten.

Finds It in Parsnip.

Nauss devotes his leisure time to a fine vegetable and flower garden. One day not long ago he was busy pulling parsnips to store for winter when his attention was attracted by a gleam as of metal half-way up the root of one of the plants. Examination disclosed the long-lost ring, firmly imbedded in the vegetable.

The square-shaped ruby was missing, and a tiny crack was beginning to show in the narrowest part of the ring, due to the growth of the root it encircled; but otherwise the ring was in as perfect condition as when lost twenty years ago.

Woman Cuts Her Throat, Increasing Life Weeks

London, Eng.—When Mrs. Jemima Thomas, sixty-three years old, near here, cut her throat in an attempt to end her life she prolonged her existence.

This curious fact developed at the inquest on the woman, who died in a hospital two months after she cut her throat. She suffered from nephritis, physicians revealed, and this disease prompted her to attempt suicide.

In cutting her throat she missed the main arteries, and the resulting hemorrhage reduced her blood pressure. This relieved pressure on her brain that would have killed her in short time, doctors said. The loss of blood kept her alive six weeks.

Loses Fortune, Then Win Wife and Seven Children

Rochester, Minn.—Within two weeks Ray Stiffler lost a fortune of $200,000, married a widow with seven children, and was sued for $35,000 in a breach of promise suit. Now he is trying to figure out whether he is lucky or unlucky.

Stiffler did not really lose the fortune. It never existed. There was a mistake in the figures, and it turned out to be just $9,000. Then he married his cook, who had seven children by a previous marriage. His honeymoon was interrupted by a girl who demanded $35,000 saying that Stiffler had promised to marry her.

Important Waterway

The Suez canal, opened in 1869, has a length of 101 miles, and a minimum width of 147 feet, 8 inches. The maximum draught of water allowed for vessels using the canal is 32 feet. The average time for transit through the canal is 15 hours 20 minutes. The canal is owned by a company, and Great Britain holds a controlling interest in the company.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH NOT HARD TO FIND

Seeker Can Locate It in Any Spot Desired.

Ponce de Leon crossed the high seas and traveled thousands of miles in a fruitless search for the fountain of youth when he might have found it in his own back yard—so to speak. Like wealth and happiness, health is something that depends quite largely upon the little daily habits of mind and body, and these the individual carries with him even to the ends of the earth.

The doctor, he never so skillful, has no health to give to another any more than a priest can dole out happiness or a lawyer blot out a crime. The most that a doctor can do is to prescribe and advise and then it's up to the individual to find out health for himself.

The fellow who inherits wealth has to hustle to keep it and he has to guide his transactions by economic laws in order to protect his bank account. Physical health is tied up in the same sort of a bundle. Most everybody inherits a reasonably healthy body, but there are a lot of prodigal sons among these heirs.

Some young fellows find it pretty hard to work when their bank books show a balance of a few thousand dollars. Likewise the youth with an abundance of health fairly bursting from his body sometimes feels that his physical resources are interminable. Three or four nights out per week, a trifling cold, a mild attack of "flu," a few "manly" drinks of mean whisky, and the old man with a wicked scythe sends his messenger, Pneumonia, to announce that this man's health account is closed, maybe a bit overdrawn.

Lots of people who sends an S. O. S. to the doctor are like the victims of wildcat investment schemes who hold post mortem conferences with bankers. A prescription on how to keep well may seem quite commonplace and require one to avoid some of the thrills of night life, but then a real banker never advised any depositor to look for long-chance bargains on the theory that big stakes await the winner, while the loser enjoys the experience of the venture.

Fifteen minutes of physical exercise and a one-mile walk per day coupled with a moderate diet made up of meats, sweets, dairy products, fruits, vegetables, especially the green leafy ones, six or eight glasses of water per day, a bit of sunshine, eight hours' sleep, eight hours' work and eight hours' play, constitute a pretty fair idea of what the ingredients of the fountain of youth are. Ponce de Leon didn't know that, so he looked the world over for what the modern man may find within the threshold of his own doorway.

Appropriate Name

The baby's name was George Homer, and in the vestry the clergyman who had performed the baptismal service was making the usual entries. When writing down the second name he paused thoughtfully.

"Strange," he thought, as he recalled the original Homer, the great Greek poet. "It's the most curious name for the son of a gentleman in this position."

Then he turned to the proud father. "Your favorite poet?" he asked, pointing to the name.

"Poet, sir?" repeated the man, with a surprised look. "Poet, sir? No; I keeps pldgins!"—Stray Stories.

Grass Woven Into Cloth

The secret of turning tropical grasses and other fibrous substances into clothes to wear is believed to have been solved by Dr. Dinshaw Nanji of Birmingham university, relates Science Service. Chemical processes are said to have been perfected for separating the fibers from the raw materials and preparing them for spinning. The fabrics, if commercially successful, may take the place of cotton in the regions where large supplies of grasses are available. It is thought that new and interesting materials may be developed for wearing apparel and for other uses.

Ban Put on Dancing

Dancing has so far come under the displeasure of the Catholic government of the Swiss canton of Ticino that a law has been passed prohibiting dancing except during the first three months of the year. Every ball must receive police authorization and it is expressly forbidden that youths under sixteen years of age dance at all. Between the ages of sixteen and twenty dancers must be accompanied by their parents.

The Hermit of Appledore

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright)

"FANCY!" exclaimed young Mrs. Peterby to her husband. "I have heard the strangest thing. Dick—but, perhaps you'd rather not hear it."

"Guess I can stand it," and Mr. Peterby smiled at their guest, an old college friend of Millie Peterby's, Grace Chame. "Can't scare us, eh, Miss Chame?"

"Well, you know that old camp up on the side of the mountain?" began Mrs. Peterby. "Well, a man is living there—and people say that he is a hermit, but Mrs. Wellminder told me yesterday that he is a well-known author who is living there, writing a book."

"I met him yesterday," Mrs. Peterby continued, "and although he did not see me—I am sure that he did not—I recognized him at once as some one I used to know in Kerryville—I never encouraged him, so our acquaintance was very slight, but he looked so distinguished, Dick," she sighed rapturously.

"That's a very pretty story, my dear, but don't dare try to get acquainted with this beautiful youth."

"Want to go nutting today, Grace?" asked Mrs. Peterby.

"Yes—it will be heaps of fun—I haven't been for years."

"We will have to climb the hill first—it is on the land of the old Porter estate—rather wild up there."

It was after eleven o'clock when the two girls started out with the big dog. Mrs. Peterby's little car carried them part way up the side of the mountain, and they left it at a small cottage.

The two girls kept on the upward inclining road for another mile, and then they stopped breathlessly and sat down to rest outside the gate of the old Porter residence. Don ran hither and thither, stirring up a rabbit or frightening the birds, but after a while he disappeared.

They wandered along the mountain road, picking up nuts from under the broad chestnut trees, and from under a black walnut tree that grew near the Porter place. In the distance they heard Don's glad bark.

"Is he calling for us to come along?" asked Grace Chame.

"I am not sure," admitted Mrs. Peterby, "that sounds just like his family bark, doesn't it? He is your dog, Grace, you ought to know his speech!"

Grace listened intently. "Why," she spoke in surprise, "it sounds just as though he had met some one that he knew."

"Perhaps he is acquainted with the hermit," said Mrs. Peterby carelessly.

"What is his name?" asked Grace.

Mrs. Peterby was silent, then she admitted with a silent smile, "To tell the truth, darling, I haven't the least idea!"

They could not hear Don barking now, and in the mountain stillness, there was only the music of the wind in the trees, and the song of a belated bird. Their baskets were filled with nuts, so they resolved to follow the dog, and learn his whereabouts.

They had not gone very far when Miss Chame spoke rapidly. "Wait here, Millie, behind these bushes—look straight ahead—Isn't that darling?"

They could see a spreading knoll where there were scattered birches and oaks—there was a flame of color from every tree—but it was not the scenery that mattered much, excepting that huge log on which lay Don, the great dog, his happy eyes lifted toward the artist who painted him.

"Good dog!" said the big man behind the easel. "Just five minutes longer, Don, old man, and then you may lead me to the loveliest lady in the whole world."

Don barked ecstatically.

"An artist?" whispered Mrs. Peterby to Grace Chame. "Why—why—he might be the young man whom you quarreled with, Grace!"

"It is!" exclaimed Grace.

"Are you no longer in love with him?"

Grace was so silent that her hostess guessed the answer. Just at that moment the painter spoke to Don.

"Now, Don, we will go and find our sweetheart!" and just then Mrs. Peterby stepped forward and Grace Chame slowly followed.

"Ah, Don!" called Mrs. Peterby, and as the dog came bounding, she nodded at the handsome young man who hurried forward to explain. "Just tell Miss Chame all about it—Don and I must hurry on ahead!" and so she fled with happy Don to lead the way.

Grace Chame's eyes glowed with a soft fire as the artist stopped beside her. "I did not know you were here until Don came bounding upon me," he explained. "I have been making a good sketch of him. This is a wonderful country."

"I am spending a month with my old classmate," murmured Grace blushing beneath his ardent eyes, "Mrs. Dick Peterby. Do you know them?"

"Yes, indeed—it was through Dick that I heard about this mountain, and came a-running! I hope you will let me come and see you—sometimes, Grace."

What Grace told him made him the happiest man in the world at that particular moment, and all reports say that he is the happiest man in the world now, long after they are married.

Varsity Cagers Again Victor in Exciting Game

Wexler Stars for Alumni

Three Members of Alumni Are Rutgers Freshmen Letter Men; McCarthy Referees

The High School Basketball team again triumphed over the fast Alumni team, consisting of three of Rutgers Freshmen lettermen, Rosenbloom, Wexler and Daniels and that trio coupled with Sexton and Abrams make a mighty fine team.

Alumni came out on the floor with the expectations of avenging themselves for last week's defeat, confident of winning by at least 10 points. Much to their chagrin, the high school lads held their own throughout the entire game and in the last few minutes of play forged to the front winning by the score of 28 to 27.

The game started with the Alumni going into the lead when Wexler made a foul and a field goal followed by another field goal by Rosenbloom. Harris then came through by scoring one of two free tries. On the tap off from center to Medwick to Currie two more points were added. At the end of the first quarter Alumni was leading by 5 points.

The second quarter found the high school fighting hard and after several fouls had been called on Alumni and field goals by Currie and Medwick, high school still remained on the short end at the end of the first half, the score being 11 to 10 alumni favor.

The second half started with high school again losing ground, Sexton, Wexler and Rosenbloom making field goals at three free tries made good for alumni, while Currie and Comba made field goals for high school.

Beginning the last quarter, the high school was 5 point behind. Mullin substituted for Medwick at forward and Medwick for Harris at center. Morris Chodosch opened this period with a field goal, then Comba made three free tries good tying the score. On the next play Comba was put out of the game and was replaced by Rubel who also made good three free tries. Sexton then made a long field goal and a free try bringing the game to a deadlock again, but it was broken when Mullin on a set shot from the center of the floor succeeded, making the best shot of the game. Harris then came through with a field goal and on the next play a double foul was called. Currie was successful in his try and Rosenbloom missed. The score at this time was high school 28 and Alumni 23, and only three minutes to play.

High school tried to freeze the ball and succeeded for a time. With the ball in Alumni's possession Wexler made a field goal and immediately afterwards Abrams made a field goal as the game ended.

Europe's Mystery Man

The so-called "Mystery Man of Europe," Sir Basil Zabaroff, is spending his thirtieth winter at Monte Carlo enjoying his sunny outlook over the Mediterranean from his suite in the Hotel de Paris. But he still has his eye over the world and keeps well posted. He says that he always did business for fun and that since the departure of his beloved wife last spring he does not find so much fun or play in business.

Big Cigarette Factory

A contract has recently been let for the construction of what will be one of the largest cigarette factories in the United Kingdom, according to Assistant Trade Commissioner James Somerville, Jr., London. Located not far from the heart of the city, the building will have a floor space of some nine acres, will be 75 feet above the pavement, 800 feet long and 200 feet wide. The building is expected to cost about £500,000 and will be completed within eighteen months.

Chinese Build Highways

Szechuan province, China, at last is capitulating to modernity and is building highways. Funds for their construction were obtained from the sale of unused temple lands. One of the most populous and wealthiest provinces in China, it long resisted the introduction of modern ideas. The opposition of the Szechuanese to the proposed great trunk railway in the Yangtze valley, which was to have been built some sixteen years ago, led to the revolution.

Buddy Gillespie, serious minded and earnest, had attended Sunday school, where he listened attentively to the Christmas story his teacher told.

When he came home his father, by way of interest, inquired, "Well, Buddy, what was the Sunday school lesson about?"

Buddy thoughtfully pondered, then remarked, "It was something like 'Mary had a little lamb,' but it was—was—it was 'Mary had a little baby.'"

SURVIVOR TELLS OF CANNIBALISM ADRIFT AT SEA

Fisherman Makes Compact With Comrade Who Died in Helpless Craft.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Eli S. Kelly, sixty-nine-year-old fisherman, gaunt and feeble, told a coroner's jury a stark story of adventure at sea. He was exonerated of responsibility for the death of his companion, James S. McKinley, sixty-three years old, with whom he made a cannibal compact to sustain life when the two drifted more than eight days in a 21-foot boat. The younger man died of thirst and exposure.

Kelly, himself near death, was picked up on Santa Catalina island, where his boat drifted three days after McKinley's death, and taken to a hospital. His clothing hung loosely on his big frame, for he had shrunk from 210 to 120 pounds since he and McKinley set out on their first and last fishing trip together.

Engine Dead, Storm Breaks. His son, Kelly testified, purchased the yawl, which had been a lifeboat aboard the yacht of Zane Grey, novelist. With McKinley's assistance, a motor was installed, a license obtained and the two embarked December 8 from Redondo Beach.

When they got 16 miles from shore the engine went dead and they were never able to start it again. A storm which developed several waterspouts on Santa Monica bay broke over them before they were able to hoist sail, and huge combers deluged the small craft.

"McKinley was a clumsy man—a big fellow, and he couldn't handle himself very well," Kelly said in explaining how his partner had fallen in the boat and broken one of the gallon water jars.

"I knew our life depended on the little water we had in those jars," he continued, "but I couldn't convince McKinley of that. He drank on the first day out all but one pint of the water we carried."

One Drinks Salt Water, Goes Mad. Kelly described the days that followed and said McKinley insisted on drinking salt water. He added: "On the third day the old man went stark mad. I had to fight him—not to hurt him or anything, but just hold his hands—try to keep him from hurting me. Twice he was washed overboard, but I reached him and pulled him in."

"After that I guarded the little pint of water which I had saved. I'd stick my finger down into it and rub it across my lips. The other man was pretty bad then. I put him in the cabin and lay down on some sacks."

"After four days of storm we were out of sight of land. McKinley got the idea that I was going to rob him, and I had to fight him off some more. He got better after that and helped me with the sails."

The Agreement. On the fourth day they made their compact that the one who died first should provide food for the survivor. Kelly said the two stood in the little cabin and shook hands solemnly in agreement.

"I lost the next five days," Kelly continued. "It seemed to me later that we had been out seventeen or eighteen days in all. McKinley died on the morning of the eighth day, I think. I had put him in the cabin, and lay down beside him. I couldn't throw him overboard because he was my friend."

"Yes," Kelly said in answer to a question, "I carried out our agreement." Kelly could not continue his narrative after reaching the point at which he sighted the rocks of Santa Catalina island.

Robbers Are Peeved. Buenos Aires.—Oswaldo Pizzurno called at the nearest police station here recently and filed a complaint that burglars had entered his house and left without taking anything. They turned his house topsy-turvy, he said, and then made sneering remarks about his belongings.

"No, sah," said Sam, "but Ah hopes yo-all won't think Ah busted this monument."

Yes, Where? "What part of the body is the fray, teacher?" "Fray! What are you talking about?" "This book says, Ivanhoe was shot in the fray."

The Fun of It. "Now run—along to church, Johnny, and the vicar will tell you all about heaven."

"I don't want him to tell me. I want it to come as a surprise.—Passing Show.

TIME FOR CHANGE IN MENTAL HABITS

Simple Rules for Guidance of Middle-Aged.

Many persons who have managed to get through the years of childhood and youth fairly well find that their mental habits are not adequate for the demands and changes of middle age. The unhappy are always wrong, says Dr. Alice E. Johnson in the Survey. So if one finds oneself middle aged and unhappy, the only thing to do is to change one's mental habits.

Of course this is easier said than done. Yet it is not impossible, for while childhood is the ideal time to establish right habits of thinking and reacting, the laws of mental hygiene are valid at all ages and need only be applied. Frankness and courage will be needed for the task. Sentimentality and vanity must be thrown overboard along with worn-out ideals. One must learn to discriminate between reasons and excuses and to discard the excuses. Only in this way can a life of reality be submitted for one of mere wishes.

To aid in this readjustment of mental life, four rules may be followed. Rule 1 is "Do not say yes and no at the same time." The wobbler is always unhappy and so are his friends. It is better to make mistakes than to do nothing. If a person can learn to see a thing as a whole, he will easily decide what is good. He should remember that everything has its price and that vain regret is self-indulgence.

Rule 2 is "Do not allow an accumulation of unfinished business." Each problem should be answered as it arises. Questions that are postponed, evaded and repressed return in a dozen forms to destroy one's peace, and they soon develop into the excessive fears of the neurotic.

"Keep your mind open to new aspects of truth" is rule 3. By the time middle age is reached the hypercritical, fault-finding attitude of childhood should be left behind. Freedom, that special gift of the middle years of life, can only be achieved by letting go of the past. The open mind sees the good and bad in everything and looks for the ultimate meaning of things. Those who disregard this rule live a narrow, sterile life with the prospect of an irritable, unlovely old age.

"Disregard what is merely personal," rule 4 reads. Most of the destructive emotions such as fear, hatred, jealousy and envy are personal, and since no life is lived alone, these should be discarded. The same is true for granches and moodiness. The reason for moodiness is not temperament, but self-love, and there is no excuse for it. Unless a feeling can be translated into useful action it need not be considered.

By following these rules, by learning if one cannot get what is wanted, to accept cheerfully what comes, by saying yes to life, one may be free from the uncertainties of youth and will see no catastrophe in the passing of the years.

Heavy Hangar Doors

The cost of opening the doors of the hangar of the Los Angeles at Lakehurst, N. J., has been greatly exaggerated. The doors are the counterbalanced, sliding-leaf type, approximately 150 feet high and 136 feet wide. Each of the four leaves weighs about 300 tons. In order to open, each door must travel approximately 136 feet. They are operated by electric motors of about 200 horsepower or alternately by hand. By use of motors each door is opened in about five minutes. The cost is probably that of the electric power, and is not more than a few dollars.

Commercial Peers

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., was talking to a New York reporter about Madame Jacques Balsan and the recent annulment by the Catholic church of her marriage to the duke of Marlborough.

"On her father's part," he said, "this was a marriage of worldly and snobbish ambition. On the duke's part it was a worse thing still, a thing of sordid commercialism."

"The duke reminds me of the little girl whose school teacher asked: 'Minnie, what is the feminine of peer?'"

"'Helress,' answered little Minnie."

Artist Prodigals

Isadore Duncan, the famous dancer, is in want in Paris, and a collection is being made to set her on her feet again. Otto Kahn, one of the most liberal supporters of this movement said in New York the other day: "Isadore Duncan, like most artists of genius, is too generous, too generous altogether. Her prodigal, reckless generosity once caused John Drew to say about her in a slack season: 'I think I'll dress up as a beggar and go to Isadore's house, and what I collect may keep her till she gets another engagement.'"

Firemen Refused Job

The fire alarm sounded from the outskirts of Ward 7, Bangor, Maine, and when the firemen arrived after a hard run in deep snow, they found no sign of fire, nor could any one in the neighborhood explain why the alarm had been turned in. Finally an old woman appeared and said that her family was in great distress. A skunk had fallen into their well and she thought the firemen ought to pull it out. But the firemen did not.

Famous English River

Caesar said that at the time of his invasion of Britain the River Thames in England was called "Tamesis." Other early writers call it "Tamesa." In early Saxon times the river was called "Thamis." The Thames above Oxford often is called "Ista."

Lengths of Famous Canals. The length of the waterway opened up by the Suez canal is 100 miles; the length of the Panama canal waterway is 50 1/2 miles. The Manchester canal in England has a length of 35 1/2 miles. The Welland canal, in Ontario, has a length of 26 1/2 miles.

PARKING ORD. FOR ROOSEVELT AVE. IN CHROME SECTION

Matter Brought Up For Discussion at Council Meeting; Ordinance Ordered

TAX SALES AUTHORIZED Council to Meet With East Rahway Residents To Go Over Sewer Proposals

The preparation of an ordinance, regulating the parking of motor cars and vehicles on Roosevelt avenue in the Chrome section of Carteret, has been authorized by the Mayor and Borough Council at a meeting held in the Council chamber of the Municipal Building Monday night.

This action was brought about by an accident which has proved fatal when a young man was instantly killed, last Saturday, although the accident occurred when traffic happened to be very light, the borough officials feel that something should be done to overcome the congestion that prevails in this part of the town.

Residents on Union and Passaic streets petitioned the Council to give them some relief on those streets as their condition was at times impassable. They complained that bakers, grocers and milkmen refused to give them service due to the bad condition of their streets.

Councilman Andres spoke of the bad condition of Roosevelt avenue, from Brady's corner to East Rahway and that some effort should be made to have the Freeholders make temporary repairs.

An effort will also be made to have one-half of the new road laid at a time so as to keep the road open to traffic.

A motion was made to have the clerk write the contractor who was awarded the contract for the paving of Lowell and Randolph streets, asking him to start work on those streets and to advise the Council when he would do so.

Some discussion took place over a communication received from representatives of the Mexican Petroleum Corporation, stating that the maintenance of the ditch, which takes off the sewage from the north side of the town and empties into the Rahway River, was not their obligation and that there was never an agreement made to that effect.

Mr. Coughlin suggested that the Mayor and Council meet on the ground of the sewer outlet and to make arrangements to have Mr. Patterson of the Mexican Petroleum Corporation present.

The subject of a small car for the use of the Police department was brought up by Councilman Ellis, who said that the large car now used was quite expensive to operate and that it should only be used on out-of-town business.

WHEELER CO. TO ISSUE INSURANCE TO EMPLOYEES

Over Nine Hundred Workers Included in Group Plan Insurance Recently

The Wheeler Condenser and Engineering Company, local manufacturers of machinery and brass parts, has offered its 900 employees over a million dollars of group insurance under a co-operative arrangement. According to information confirmed today by John J. Brown, President of the Company, the program includes life insurance, total permanent disability insurance and weekly indemnity for temporary disability.

The contract was drawn up and the protection is now being installed by Thurmond Brown, who is connected with the Bayliss Agency of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The coverage is obtainable without medical examination and at a low cost which will be shared by the Company and the employees.

"This insurance arrangement," Thurmond Brown pointed out, "is a little unusual in that the Company has undertaken to advance the entire first month's premium for every employee in the organization. It is only necessary for the employee to signify his willingness to continue the protection, which is already in force at the time he is offered participation."

This manner of inaugurating the co-operative group program has been used by a number of Equitable-insured companies and has been found very satisfactory. In fact, its advantages are so pronounced that I believe it will eventually supersede the method now in general use."

SCHOOL BILL IS AGAIN SQUASHED IN THE ASSEMBLY

After Bill No. 9 Was Pigeon-Holed in Assembly Substitute Bill Was Voted Down

INTRODUCED AS NO. 417 SC

Much Opposition to Both Bills Shown by Assembly; Cannot be Revived this Session

The second defeat of two Bills in the Assembly, of a similar nature, Senate Bill No. 9 and Assembly Bill No. 427SC, prove the unpopular attitude taken by both houses to any measure that will give the Mayor of any municipality the right to appoint his own School Board.

The first Bill was introduced by Senator Larson of Middlesex County and was known as Bill No. 9, February 1 and was given a first reading. A week later the Bill was brought up for final reading and after a test vote when only five senators voted which was six votes short of the required number for passage. The Bill was then laid over till the following day and passed on the roll call having the eleven votes necessary. This Bill was fought vigorously by Senators Mackay, Stevens and Simpson.

The Bill on the following week came up in the Assembly and after its first reading was referred to the Committee on Education where the measure died.

After several attempts, with no avail, to bring the Bill out of the hands of the Committee. A new Bill was drafted in the Assembly by Assemblyman Hanson and was called Bill No. 417 SC. Here too the Bill was unpopular and on the first roll call only one vote was cast in the affirmative and 51 negative votes were cast.

BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN OPENS NEXT WEEK

Raritan Council is Publishing Interesting Annual Report; Teams Appointed

Plans for the 1927 membership and financial campaign of the Raritan Council, Boy Scouts of America, are being effectively carried out by all the men identified with this event. General Chairman John Pfeiffer was very much enthused about the spirit being shown by the local chairmen and team captains in all parts of the territory of the Raritan Council which includes Woodbridge Township, Perth Amboy, Carteret and South Amboy.

The campaign this year is for an objective of $11,000 for the purpose of maintaining and extending the scout movement so that it will reach a still larger number of boys in these communities. The budget has been very carefully considered and includes appropriations for camping activities at Camp Burton which is to be conducted this summer by the Raritan Council, training courses for scoutmasters to be conducted in May and October so that more men may be recruited for scout leadership, and other items which include the headquarters rent, telephone, bulletins, office supplies, etc., and appropriations for transportation to cover the entire territory and the National charter fee and quota. A special feature of this year's budget is an additional $1,000 as a special fund to purchase a permanent camp site for the troops of the Raritan Council and it is hoped that the total amount will be raised so that this sum can be put aside for this purpose.

The Raritan Council are publishing an annual report showing the progress made during the past year and includes a roster of twenty-three troops of the council, showing those which have been organized this year. It also includes a roster of members of Courts of Honor which have been organized in Woodbridge, Colonia, Iselin, Carteret, South Amboy and Perth Amboy, and a report of the scoutmasters' training course, 1926 camping activities and the progress made in scout advancement.

Under the leadership of District Scout Commissioner Edward A. Strack the Carteret organization for the campaign is as follows: Team No. 1, James Dunne, Captain, Edward Casey, Fred Colton, Joseph Child; Team No. 2, Nathaniel Jacoby, Captain, Julius Klaus, Elmer E. Brown, Rev. Carl Krepper; Team No. 3, Abraham Glass, Captain, William Greenwald, Edward Walsh; Team No. 4, H. W. Thorn, Captain, Merrill Huber, Walter Colquhoun.

These teams are all planning to be in attendance at the opening dinner meeting when the campaign will officially open next Monday evening at 6.30 at the Masonic Temple, Perth Amboy. The speaker of the evening will be County Prosecutor John E. Toolan who has endorsed this campaign and is an enthusiastic backer of Scouting. Mr. Toolan states "In my experience as Prosecuting Attorney, I have never had occasion to proceed against any Boy Scout, nor have I ever heard of a member of a Boy Scout troop being prosecuted in the lower courts—their training precludes this possibility." Scouting is going ahead in all communities and the funds which are being raised will carry it to still higher standards and a greater number of boys will be enrolled.

Headache 12 Years;

Surgeon Forgot Needle Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—Alvin Volderberg of Reinbeck has no headache today for the first time in 12 years. He blew his nose and found a half-inch piece of needle in his handkerchief. Twelve years ago, when a soldier in the Philippines, Volderberg was kicked in the head by a horse. A surgeon operated and presumably left part of a needle in the man's head. Recently physicians diagnosed his affliction as brain abscess and forecast his early death.

GIRL SLAYER HAPPY; SWEETHEART LOYAL

Waitress Wronged Twice Kills Her Attacker.

Stanley, N. D.—Shooting to death the man who attacked her and hounded about it, Alice Holtz, twenty years old, a pretty waitress, is happy in jail here awaiting trial because her tragedy has not shaken the faith of her sweetheart.

Alice was engaged to marry Jack Hardwick, a former farmhand of her father's farm and now owner of a barber shop and restaurant. Alice was employed as a waitress in the restaurant.

Late one night Willie Nafus, twenty-three years old, of Stanley, N. D., waylaid Alice while on her way to her lodging from the restaurant. Afterward Nafus returned to the restaurant and spoke slightly of the girl in the hearing of Hardwick.

Hardwick did not believe the story was true, but cautioned Alice about being friendly with Nafus. Unnerved, the girl cried for hours. Then she became desperate. In Hardwick's barber shop she secured a revolver. Following Nafus to a billiard hall, she jerked the revolver from her coat and shot the man through the heart.

She is now being held on a charge of murder while prominent citizens are urging authorities to dismiss the case. But no matter what her fate may be, she is happy, for Hardwick is standing by her.

"I don't want to talk to anyone except my folks about this," she says. "I was afraid I would break down, but now Jack still believes in me and loves me, so I am contented. His love is all that counts with me."

"I didn't believe Nafus but I believe in Alice," Hardwick says.

Dog Braves 40 Below to Carry Plea for Help

Little Squaw, Alaska.—Carrying a scribbled note from two miners crippled by an explosion, a malamute dog crossed a 3,000-foot pass in the Brooks mountain range at night, with the mercury 40 degrees below zero, to his master's cabin here. The injured men have arrived here.

Oscar Ottersoniz, Little Squaw miner, was awakened at 2:30 in the morning by his dog, Nigger, whining and scratching at the door. A note on the husky's neck read: "Come, both seriously injured. Explosion."

Ottersoniz had lent the dog to J. S. Shaw and C. Dunlap, who were mining on Tobin creek, beyond the pass. Two men, hurrying over the pass with a sled and a team of dogs, found Shaw and Dunlap badly injured by the explosion of a box of detonators. Dunlap was blinded.

From the Little Squaw radio station, established December 13 by the United States signal corps, 90 miles north of the Arctic circle, word was sent to Fairbanks, Alaska, to rush an airplane to take the patients to a hospital.

Decides to Live While in 175-Foot Death Leap

Philadelphia.—Half way down in a 175-foot drop from the center of the Delaware river bridge to the water is no place to change your mind, in the opinion of Walter B. Church, who attempted suicide from the span.

"I wanted to end it all," he said in a hospital here. "I thought my life was useless."

"When I was in the air, half way down, I changed my mind. But I was in a bad place to change my mind."

"I was a good swimmer and had no fear of the water. I remember hitting the water. I went under, I don't know how far. It was just a repetition of the fall. Down, down, down, then everything went black. I don't remember being picked up."

Pie and Pastry Hurlers Smear Lancaster Store

Lancaster, Pa.—Five men with a grudge against one another entered a store operated by Andrew Cogley and purchased his supply of pies and pastries. Lined up on opposite sides of the store, the men began hurling pies, ladyfingers and buns. Many of the missiles missed their marks, landing on the walls.

Cogley summoned the police. They arrived before the ammunition was exhausted and arrested the combatants, Michael and Ralph Staffiere, Richard Dommell, Lewis Foernerster and Moses Haldeman. Having spent all their money, the prisoners were committed to jail in default of bail to await a hearing on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Priceless Oil Painting

The oldest oil painting in existence today, says the Market for Exchange, is believed to be one of the Madonna and Child marked with the date DCCCLXXXVI, which in Arabic numerals is 886, or about the time of Charlemagne. The painting once formed part of the art treasures of a Florentine palace and was purchased by Benicveni from a broker in the street for a few livres.

Fort's Discovery Adds to Britain's History

New pages can be added to British history books as the result of archeological discoveries in the island of Bute, which lies in the Firth of Clyde, on the west coast of Scotland, according to experts who have been examining the finds.

The period covered by the relics, which were found in the vitrified Dunagoll fort, in the south of the island, is from about 200 B. C. to 100 B. C., says a special dispatch from London to the Philadelphia Record, and hitherto little has been known of the origin and habits of the islanders in those far-off days.

The finds, however, throw a flood of light on the life of this early race, for they indicate what food the islanders ate; how and what they wore; how their women were bedecked, and the nature of their houses and industries.

Prof. Ludovic McL. Mann, Scottish archeologist, says the relics have filled a gap in what was hitherto an "almost entire blank" in the student's knowledge.

Ancient Archives Saved

European merchants economize by wrapping their merchandise in old newspapers or any other paper which can be easily obtained. In the little Rumanian town of Nagyvarad (formerly Hungarian) this custom led to the discovery of some old documents of historical importance. Students bought fruit from a street vender and examination of the connoisseurs showed that the paper came from old Hungarian documents. One document contained an official account of the battle of Magenta (fought in Italy in 1859). Another was an original decree of Franz Joseph, dated 1780, permitting the Protestants of Nagyvarad to sing their religious songs when conducting burial services. According to reports, the documents in which the fruit was sold came from the local archives, the Rumanian authorities having sold them for old paper.

One Woman's Way

"I wish, John, that I had had more sense when we were engaged," said the wife, thoughtfully. "Then I wouldn't have destroyed all the letters you wrote to me during our courtship."

The husband smiled in a gratified way.

"I knew you would be sorry some day," he said.

"Indeed I am," was the reply. "I need a little extra money just now."

Sardonic Old Toofus

"Toofus," asked his friend, the post trader, "what about this proposed pageant?"

"What about it, sar?"

"It is proposed to stage a battle. The Indians say they have permitted the whites to be victorious in many a former pageant. Now they claim it is their turn to be victorious. Both sides are waxing warm."

"Let 'em stage a battle then and see who are victorious," suggested the Fort Mink philosopher and guide. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Origin of "Niagara"

The first mention of this name was in the Jesuit Relation of 1641 in which it was written Onguiaahra, which is supposed to be a misprint for Ongniabra. The word is of Iroquois origin and was applied by that people to a place where Youngstown, N. Y., now stands. It was probably originally an Iroquois sentence-word meaning "hitched-bottom-land." There is nothing to the notion that Niagara originally was an Indian word meaning "thundering water." —Pathfinder Magazine.

Never Make a Golfer

"Sandy," whispered the club "pro."

"What's up now?"

"Him," indicated Sandy. "He'll never mak' a player!"

"Not so sure," said the other. "He's doing rather well for a beginner."

They watched him miss his stroke in heavenly silence.

"I tell ye," snorted Sandy, "that you'll never mak' a player. D'ye ken what he says when he misses his ba? He just says 'Tut-tut!'"

Dark Story

Two men who had traveled were comparing their ideas about foreign cities.

"London," said one, "is certainly the foggiest place in the world."

"Oh, no, it's not," said the other. "I've been in a place much foggier than London."

"Where was that?" asked his interested friend.

"I don't know where it was," replied the second man. "It was so foggy!" —Youth's Companion.

Edith's Unusual Inheritance

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright)

WHEN Edith Martin's bachelor uncle died and bequeathed to her the nearly three thousand books of his library instead of a few thousands of his dollars, she sat down in a corner of her room and cried.

"What in the world can I do with three thousand books?" she asked herself, over and over again. "And, added to my own five or six hundred volumes—dear, oh, dear!"

A relative who rather envied her the possession of so fine and varied a library, remarked, with apparent casualness, that it was a pity the books were to be in hands that could do so little with them.

Edith's eyes had flashed fire at the remark but, true to the self-discipline that she had acquired, she held her tongue. But—there were no more stupid, useless tears over her legacy.

It took time and effort to formulate her plans even after the inspiration she sought had come to her. The library was catalogued but in having it moved she found a great deal of material that she could not—and some that she would not—use for her new enterprise. Therefore, all books that she considered available had to be placed and arranged on the new shelves she had had built in the great, old-fashioned living room of her father's home. She had made it into a most attractive studio-library with her own desk tucked into an alcove and the windows subtly curtained with a fabric that made all light from out of doors seem like sunlight.

In these surroundings, Edith established a sort of library that she felt there was a need of in her community. She selected books for people who could not get out. She had a telephone and mail service to which she attended personally and with the assistance of schoolgirls she delivered books and called for them. The charge was nominal but the advantage of being a member of this library was that your books were selected for you with a personal understanding of your taste. Edith conducted a circulating library also, on the usual plan, but the main feature of her work was the attention to those who could not get about to choose their own reading matter. She made arrangements with a publishing house to let her have books at cost and by letting them out ten or twelve times they soon more than paid for themselves.

Once a year she planned to have a rummage sale of much-used books and at this sale she arranged to give employment to two old maiden ladies to whom she had suggested a plan. They were to be present at the sale to offer to cover the old books for those who bought them, in any kind of cretonne that might tone in with their decorations. Altogether, Edith found herself suddenly very busy, very happy and very successful in her newly found work, and every night she was thankful that she had discovered a use for her legacy.

Warner Dickson dealt in rare books and he had made more than one visit to Edith's attractive library to try to buy some of her good volumes. She refused to sell her precious editions for, always, she had been a book-lover herself and now that she did not need to sell them, she would not. "Books have always meant so much to me," he was telling her one afternoon, at twilight, "that a romantic fancy has possessed me all through my life that one day I should find my greatest happiness through them—and their contacts."

"You knew my Uncle John?" she asked.

"Yes, he had gathered his books about him from everywhere and often, because of his wealth, he was able to buy the very books I was trying to get. Needless to say—I envied him."

"And now," laughed Edith, "you are trying to get them away from me!"

"Oh—only as a matter of business. I did not even know you the first time I called. Now, did I?"

Edith continued to smile. "Who says you do now?" she asked, lightly. The man was silent, a trifle hurt. He wondered if she suspected him of trying to get her books away from her by this more than friendly attitude, this frequent visiting?

"Miss Martin—"

"Now—that's nice. It sounds like a perfectly proper school teacher or librarian."

He was annoyed. But he went on. "You have never asked me to come to see you, in a friendly way, and so,

In order to be with you at all, I have to pretend a sustained interest, a vain hope, that by persistence I may get possession of those rare volumes."

"Oh—and if I should ask you to come to see me out of library hours, so to speak, you would still come?" she asked, naively.

"Try me," he retorted, boyishly.

With so vivid a common interest, so broad a meeting ground and temperaments that seemed to be harmonious from the very beginning, it was not surprising that Warner Dickson and Edith soon discovered their love for each other.

And instead of being a detriment to the success of the library, their partnership only made it a greater institution for they worked together for the same common cause—that of spreading good literature into fields where it was almost inaccessible.

COME LPL JOE!

Alabama Prisoner Rolls the Bones for Liberty by Court's Order.

Birmingham, Ala.—The bones shook, rattled and rolled. One stopped with two dots up, while the other spun for a seeming eternity on a corner. Two wide, staring eyes bored holes through the spinning cube. Huge drops of perspiration rolled down the black forehead of Wilkes Booth Hanky, a negro man.

The monstrous dice hesitated and settled. Another two was up. "Gimme liberty," Wilkes wailed. "Lil' Joe. Be good to me, lil' fellow." He didn't speak aloud, but his lips moved in a rapid frenzy.

The cubes were so large he must hold one in each hand. He gripped them convulsively before rolling them a second time. Four was the point he must make. Suddenly, in a moment of nervous abandon, he tossed them out a second time. One skidded to a two, while the other jumped over to four.

"Roll 'em. Be sure they roll next time," he was admonished.

Made His Point.
For five successive times Hanky hurled them out. And then came a combination of one and three. He had made his point. Hanky, to all intents and purposes, had been "shooting" for his liberty.

Some weeks ago Hanky was jailed by county police on a charge of "gambling," a polite word for African golf. Unable to make bond he had waited in jail for a hearing before Judge Abernathy of the Court of Misdemeanors of Jefferson county. A week in jail is some punishment for a penny session with the cubes. So the judge gave Hanky a real stake to shoot for. "Make your-point and get your liberty," Judge Abernathy told the negro. Hanky made his point.

Baby Frees Father
Jailed as Bigamist

Philadelphia.—A baby less than three months old brought about the release of its father, Edward J. Ireland, in City Hall police court, after he had been arrested on charges the outgrowth of his having married two women.

Wife No. 1, Mrs. Willa Abernathy, announced she would drop her charges against the man out of consideration for the infant, born to wife No. 2, Mrs. Susan Gay Ireland, on December 12 of last year. She said she will institute divorce proceedings against Ireland.

For several months Ireland had kept both women ignorant of the other's existence despite the fact that he had rented apartments for both within four blocks of each other.

The birth of the baby, Rose Marie, and the interest of a kindly friend, who congratulated the wrong wife, started a chain of circumstances which finally resulted in Ireland's arrest on February 2, while he dined with wife No. 2, mother of the infant daughter.

Waits Ten Years for Wedding, Then Sues

Milwaukee.—For ten years, according to her complaint, Emma Pommer has waited for Fred Heelzer to marry her, in accordance with his alleged promises. During that time he has proposed many times, but each time has delayed the ceremony, she charges in a breach of promise suit started in Circuit court.

Although she is still willing and ready to be married to Fred, she is convinced that he does not intend to perform his part of the alleged contract, she says. To compensate her for such disillusionment she asks for $15,000.

Fred first proposed in December, 1916, and intermittently since that time until July, 1926. Since then, he has made no more promises and does not intend to keep the others, she says.

Kills Self to Show
He Has Sense of Honor

Berlin.—Because he got bad school reports and was reproached by his teacher as "dishonorable," eleven-year-old Franz Zoelner, of Frankfurt, shot and killed himself with his father's revolver.

Franz, who was a backward child, found it hard to keep up with the strenuous regime in German schools, where the pre-war stuffing system, so much criticized in America, has not been radically reformed.

His backwardness led the teacher to reprimand him and the boy was ordered to tell his parents they should come to the school for a conference. Franz could not summon the courage to tell his parents, so they were informed through a classmate.

During the parent-teacher conference Franz was reproached by the teacher as dishonorable for not informing his parents as instructed, whereupon the child said grimly, "I will show you I have a sense of honor."

A few hours later he was dead.

RAT TERRIERS ARE MOTHERED BY HEN

Eggs, She Takes Puppies.

Kingston, N. C.—Mrs. A. T. Edwards, residing four miles from here, reports a remarkable baryard family at her home. A white Wyandotte hen is mothering seven rat terrier pups. She is making a good job of it.

The hen is merely a pullet in age, a flighty, rattle brained fowl. A few weeks ago Mrs. Edwards put a dozen eggs under the broody bird. She sat on the eggs a short time, then left the nest in disgust.

"The mother of the puppies, the prettiest animals imaginable," made them a home close by the hen's nest," says the owner. "When the pullet sallied off the nest, tired of setting, she discovered the puppies. She may have been near-sighted and thought they were fluffy chickens, but I am inclined to think she didn't care what they were just so she could hover them."

"The mother of the pups was a gentle little beast. The hen picked a row with her and eventually chased her away. Then she started hovering the doggies.

"She leaves them only a few minutes at a time, just long enough to eat and get an occasional drink of water. When she runs out of the shed with her wings spread and clucks to the brood they run to her on their bowed legs and the result is laughable.

"Of course, they will not eat what the hen scratches up for them. I get the food for them and place it before them. Then the hen stands off, surveys the situation and decides it is all right. After they have eaten she herds the whole bunch back into the box and settles down over them."

Takes 30-Mile Swim in Tank of Engine

Yazoo City, Miss.—Bill Baxter of Kokomo, Ind., holds the railroad swimming record of the world.

No cheering throng greeted Bill as he arrived at Yazoo City after his 30-mile swim from West, Miss. In fact, he would have arrived unnoticed except for an Illinois Central yardmaster.

"How did you get so wet in a box car?" the yardmaster asked as he stopped Bill from leaving a freight. "Box car! I've been in the dark and damp interior of that big 2,000-gallon tender and I've got a world record for long-distance swimming," Bill replied.

Bill related how he boarded the train, but was forced to drop through the manhole of the tender to escape a brakeman. He found the water too low to reach the top and a little too high to reach the bottom. Accordingly, he enjoyed a 30-mile swim until the water became low enough for him to reach the bottom.

"Now I guess you will turn me over to the bulls," said Bill.

"No, you must have a Wrigley prize, and here's a half dollar," said the yardmaster.

Starved for Love, She Rode With Postman

Detroit, Mich.—Starved for affection and accepting the postman's offer for rides in his "chariot" seems to be half of the woe in the life of Mrs. Irene Bailey, thirty-six years old, who is suing Wray Bailey, a farmer of near Wayne, for divorce.

Wray is asking a decree on a cross bill.

Mrs. Bailey testified to having endured her husband's bitterness for nearly sixteen years, and under cross-examination admitted having become infatuated with the neighborhood postman and having accompanied him along his route. But Mrs. Bailey condoned her action.

"My husband has had affairs with a number of women. I needed a friend and I found one," she testified.

The postman was not named. Mrs. Bailey is seeking the custody of their four children.

SONS OF PREACHERS

Figures Show Most of Them
"Make Good."

A society of Methodist preachers' sons has been formed to combat the old myth that preachers' sons are bad and never amount to much. Just how this myth originated is not known, but probably at a very remote time some minister's son, whom everybody looked to as a model for the other boys of the village, so departed from the path of virtue as to shock the entire community and to cast a shadow of suspicion on the offspring of every other person through succeeding ages.

At any rate, the idea has long prevailed that preachers' sons are a bad lot—a conviction that exemplary conduct could not entirely erase.

The names of some of the eminent men who are officers of this organization constitute positive proof that not all clergymen's sons are scapegraces. Melville E. Stone, founder of the Associated Press, is one of its vice presidents, the other vice presidents being Paul H. Helms, president of the General Baking corporation, and Emory R. Buckner, federal district attorney of New York. Fletcher H. Montgomery of New York is president. But, some may protest, these may be the only preachers' sons among many thousands who ever made a name for themselves—a few white sheep among a vast herd of black sheep. How about the remainder of parsons' progeny?

"Who's Who" supplies ample data with which the newly formed organization might explode the myth, not only as it applies to the sons of Methodist ministers, but to the sons of clergymen of other denominations. All persons sketched in the 1922-23 edition of this reference work of eminent men were asked to indicate the occupation of their fathers. It was found that no less than 2,695, or 11 per cent, were preachers' sons. Still others mentioned that their father combined preaching with some other occupation. The census for the year 1870, the year nearest the birth of these notables, shows that clergymen comprised less than one-half of 1 per cent of all men. Upon this basis, it is calculated that clergymen fathered twenty-eight times the average number of notables, one Protestant minister in each fifteen having a child whose name later appeared in "Who's Who."

Butterfly's Long Trip

Opening a newspaper sent him from Honolulu, Thomas Combs in cold Manitoba, was surprised to see a beautiful blue-and-white butterfly drop out and fly around the room. It seemed none the worse for its perilous journey of 4,000 miles through the mail. But of course it didn't find its mate and its soul eventually went to the place where good butterflies go. Then its host impaled its body on a pin as a curiosity.

Washing White Woodwork

Enamel paint is dulled by soap. Such paint may be cleaned by rubbing first with a woolen or cotton flannel cloth, wrung out of hot water, and then with a clean dry cloth. Spots, stains and dirt that will not yield to hot water alone may be removed with a fine scourer. This must be applied lightly in order not to scratch the surface.

Right a Wrong

The night of April 25th, 1926, was a sad one for the communicants of the FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH of Carteret. On that night the church was deliberately burned by a mob and the members of the church, who came to worship God in their own way under the Constitution of the United States, were routed from their devotions and otherwise maltreated. Bad as it was for the First Baptist Church, it was a good deal worse for the municipality of Carteret. It advertised to the whole world as nothing else could that Carteret at the time was lawless. Carteret now has a black eye that will take a long while to live down.

Generally speaking, we have the kind of government we want to have. If we want law and order and have courage enough to see that it is maintained, we will have law and order. If we do not care a tinker's dam about what happens to our community, in which we live and bring up our children, then we will have just the opposite of law and order.

It is time for the people in Carteret to put themselves squarely behind the Constitution. Incidentally, the present drive of the general citizens committee for a fund for the rebuilding of the First Baptist Church gives the people of the town of all religious and political faiths a chance to publish to the world that Carteret as a whole does not approve mob law and particularly the burning of the house of worship of any faith.

Let us show we believe in God and the Constitution. Give what you can and feel that you are helping in a small way to blot out the bad effects of this episode.

United States Must Be Ever on Guard Against Propaganda of "Reds"

By CURTIS D. WILBUR, Secretary of the Navy.

America now is enjoying peace and prosperity, but abroad there is a new peril declaring spiritual warfare and ready to declare material warfare upon the people of this nation.

Where our children are willing to listen they are taught the ways of the Third International. We find its hand clutching at the heart of our sister republic on the south. We find it stirring up trouble in Asia, in China, in Nicaragua. This government by the people, it is said, has become imperialistic.

Knowing ourselves as we do, knowing our form of government as we do, and the purpose of its people, we are inclined to take lightly this new form of attack which seeks to destroy the foundations of this government, namely, the home and sense of religious obligations. It would destroy home and government and God.

In the face of this insidious propaganda within our own territory and in other nations, it behooves us to be vigilant, in the training of the young and in answering the misstatements and the misrepresentations put forth to destroy this government.

We owe it to ourselves to be strong, to maintain an adequate army and navy. Yes, we owe it to others to be strong in order that if there is to be a world revolution, we may, by our example, if not by our army and navy, assist weaker nations to maintain free government.

Standardized Studies Not the Best Form of Education for American Youth

By DR. C. W. BURR, University of Pennsylvania.

The schooling of all boys more than ten years old should be entirely in the hands of men. One fundamental error in our public schools is the effemination of our educational system. This is true not only in things intellectual but in character formation.

All education above the elementary school should be given only to those worth while. About the twelfth or thirteenth year a split occurs toward "hand-mindedness or book-mindedness." And the "hand-minded" boy should be put to work as soon as he shows his trend, instead of being kept in school.

The primary purpose of education is to prepare the child for the battle of life, to make him a worthy citizen; scholarship is secondary. The two aims are moral training, to form character and intellectual training—training in straight thinking.

Is the American public school system the best possible for this purpose? I doubt it. It offers to all children the same mental food prepared in the same way, and assumes, what every clear-thinking man knows to be untrue, the mental equality of men.

It also assumes that character depends on environment, that every child comes into the world a piece of wax, as far as the moral sense and mind are concerned, and can be molded as those who have the care and teaching of him desire.

This is also untrue. Conduct and behavior, which are the test of character, depend fundamentally upon heredity and congenial influences. Environment may be good for good or evil, but cannot alter inherent qualities; can destroy, but cannot create.

Agriculture the Basis of the Greatness and Stability of Modern Nations

By FRANK O. LOWDEN, Ex-Governor of Illinois.

The common dirt from which vegetation springs becomes the measure of the growth and greatness of any civilization. And in less than half a century Americans will have reached the saturation point of 200,000,000 in population, when we shall be pressing upon our own means of subsistence at the present standard of living.

The present difficulties of England are due to the fact that she is a country overindustrialized and unable to feed itself, with no more virgin spaces in the world from which she can import unlimited cheap foods in exchange for her manufactured products.

In the early days of what we now call the industrial age England was supreme. She was producing more economically than any other nation in the world. And yet, after the lapse of a little while—for what is a century in the life of a nation—the most thoughtful men in England are today wondering if that policy was not a mistake.

If England, with her unrivaled advantages, already has come upon evil days as a result of her policy, would we not in America do well to stop and reflect before we adopt a similar policy?

The problem of today and tomorrow is to balance agriculture with industrial progress. It becomes more and more apparent that a nation is only secure in time of peace, as well as war, when it is able to feed itself. Agriculture, therefore, henceforth must be the chief concern of any nation which would flourish and endure.

OPINION

An Eye For Beauty. Ah, Just the Place. Thank You! Harbor For Bad Men. Yes, More Hard "Food."

MR. FRANK ANDRES, one of our able councilmen, has revived an age-worn proposal. Like any citizen with homely interests, he wants to have this town looking more beautiful. And a park, he says, is just the thing.

If we are right, which no doubt we are, Mr. Andres has always had an eye for the aesthetic. He addresses beauty. Yet, he is not alone. Other men are like him, and many councilmen, too. These members of our Council Chamber have spoken of beauty and the good it would do in making Carteret more pleasing to the eye, as well as inviting. It is because the proposal has been given so much time both in discussion and thought that we say it is age-worn. And the fact that the idea has lived and died many times without success leads us to remark that it has been revived.

Really, this is a great town for resurrections. Is there any man in our midst who can count the number of deaths the shore-road plan has suffered? Our copy boy offers a hint—supposed to be an aid. He says, seriously or not we don't know, that the plan has died as many times as it has lived. With his characteristic sneer, he says, "Figger it out fer yourself."

For the time being, we'll forget the shore road. It has been done so often that there won't be any trouble now. But, as regards the public park. Everyone with natural instinct craves beauty, and every worthy citizen here has just enough natural instinct to want Carteret more beautiful than it is.

But do people want a park? That is a question worth considering. There are many conservative residents who are prone to say, "the money could be spent in a better way." This time, perhaps, they are right.

THE GREATEST DELIGHT comes now that the trunk sewer is being carried through the last stages of completion. When the work is done the first greatest step of all time will have been made toward beautifying Carteret. The initial move has been made to clean the central section of the borough of foul and filth which have been only a hindrance to growth.

The trunk sewer will do more good than any park—unless the park be made over the location of Noe's Creek near the municipal building. Now that an effort has been materialized as far as the trunk sewer is concerned toward wiping out a menace, Mr. Andres should urge for beauty right in the center of the borough. He should plead for a more beautiful Carteret center. Whether he continues his plea along the line of his original idea (about the need of a park), we do not care. As long as BEAUTY is restored, we shall be satisfied.

PEEVED AUTOISTS, who have gotten that way because of the wretchedness of the East Rahway road, have been given an emotional shot in the arm, if you please, by the County Freeholders. It has been finally decided—at the request of Mayor Thomas Mulvihill—that a mile of concrete be laid, beginning at Brady's corner.

Is any comment necessary? Yes—Carteret is grateful!

WHY IS IT that outside police seldom fail to scour this precinct after the doings of evil men have been committed in other parts?

New York agents paid a visit to Port Reading the other day to see what they could learn about a kidnapping case, in which a four year old boy is involved. He disappeared from South Brooklyn on February 11.

In the eyes of New Yorkers—and many others—this region has a bad reputation. There have been several incidents in recent times notorious enough to give the place anything but a good name.

The waterfront has been a great asset to Carteret and Port Reading. But it has been a detriment, too. As a rule seaport towns are unassociated with good morals, because the flotsam and jetsam can drift into them so easily. Yet, Carteret has only to put up with little crime. This is an encouraging fact, and by no means depressing.

A NEWSPAPER headline reads like this—"Average Hobo East About Five Times a Day."

Quite often! But it must be remembered that the hobo seldom gets solid food to eat, unless some vexed housewife throws the coffee pot or a wooden soup ladle at him. Housewives, instead, generally fill knights of the open road with rich pies and cakes when the recipients would much prefer a good thick sandwich.

What a pity! The lamentable condition is that women are tender-hearted. They should hand out more "food" of the hard, substantial kind, as pots and ladles, and not be so free with pies and cakes.

TEN YEARS AGO THIS WEEK IN THE ROOSEVELT NEWS

ISSUE OF MARCH 23, 1927

Frank Born, Jacob Levinson and Charles Morris were re-elected without opposition as members of the School Board at the annual district meeting Tuesday. The appropriations for school repairs, current expenses and Manual training were also adopted.

Slight disorder resulted at the plant of the Wheeler Condenser and Engineering Co. Thursday morning when some of the striking laborers made a vain attempt to pull out other laborers who were at work. The police quelled the impending trouble and order was restored.

Two local residents had their cars stolen in the last week. Samuel Shapiro in Newark on business, left his car parked at the curb on Market street and when he returned it was gone. The car was found a few days later in Keyport, abandoned but undamaged. E. J. Coughlin was not so fortunate his car was stolen while parked in the neighborhood of 39th street and Broadway in New York City and no trace had been found of the car.

Thomas Croke of Brooklyn and a former resident here, is spending a few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Simons and renewing old acquaintances.

Mr. William J. Coughlin, suffered a severe sprained wrist when he fell from the cab of an engine while at work in the Chrome Steel Works.

The girls of the Chrome Cigar Works are still out on strike, having been out for the past week, and according to the feelings of both employed and employee there is no immediate prospects of a settlement.

Mr. Edwin S. Quinn, assistant superintendent of the Elizabeth district of the John Hancock Insurance Co., is confined to his bed with a bad attack of grippe.

Joseph and William Higgins were Borough visitors Wednesday visiting their brother Thomas.

Big Job for Woman to Handle Grown Man

"Man has always wanted a listener since the beginning of things, and when he comes home he wants it still. . . Listen for all you are worth; it is your job. I can tell you, to handle a full-grown man properly is a full-grown woman's job, and don't you forget it." "Anyone can be charming when the evening falls and the stars twinkle in the sky, but give me the man who can be charming at breakfast without being offensive."

"It is the things of the spirit more than those of the flesh by which love is preserved. A woman may not trouble to powder her nose, nor manicure her nails, and yet she may have that subtle flair for loving well which turns life into a constant adventure. That is the woman of whom a man will never tire, and who will adapt herself to his mood, even when he wants to kiss her while the bacon fat is still congealing on the dish."—From "Sugar and Spice," by Lady Kitty Vincent.

Modesty in Wisdom The wisest man is generally he who thinks himself the least so.—Boileau.

Five Points of Success An enthusiastic Iopeka poultryman observed that to make a success in such work a man must possess five qualifications: First, desire; second, patience; third, determination; fourth, management, and fifth, work like a son-of-a-gun.—Carper's Weekly.

Moses' Long Fast In the Book of Exodus it is recorded that Moses during his interview with God on Mount Sinai, where he recorded the Ten Commandments on tables of stone, fasted 40 days and nights. His abstinence, however, was from both food and drink.

Two Ways Of Looking At Advertising

The fool or the inexperienced man considers advertising a waste of money---a "hold up" on the part of the newspaperman. "Throwing money away" is what he stupidly calls it.

But the wise man knows that every dollar properly spent in advertising brings back a whole line of other dollars. That advertising makes sales---and profit!

And we know how to properly advertise your goods. Advertising is our business just as retailing or manufacturing is yours. And in addition we have the most wonderful service of artistic cuts and effective type matter ever brought together. An ordinance to amend an ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to Equip and Maintain a Police Department," was passed on final reading. An ordinance granting The Wheeler Condenser and Engineering Company permission to construct a set of steel supports over Roosevelt avenue, was passed on final reading.

An ordinance to change and establish the grade of Emerson street, was passed on final reading. An ordinance to change and establish the grade of Harris street between Pershing avenue and Leick avenue was passed on first and second reading. An ordinance for the paving, repaving and curbing of the south side of Harris street, was passed on first and second reading.

A resolution was introduced by Councilman Ellis authorizing the Tax Collector to hold a Tax Sale for delinquent taxes.

Mr. Sam George was heard in reference to the Public Utilities Commission refusing him the right to extend his bus route from Washington avenue along Roosevelt avenue pass the Wheeler Condenser & Engineering Company on the complaint of the Perth Amboy Bus Co. that there was not enough passengers for another bus to be added. After some discussion the clerk was instructed to write the Public Utilities Commission on the matter.

Telephone Companies Plan Consolidation

To Improve Service by Having State Supervision Under One Head

The New York Telephone Company and the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph & Telephone Company, today filed with the Public Utility Commission of New Jersey at Trenton, N. J., joint petitions asking the approval of the sale by the New York Telephone Company of all its property in New Jersey to the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph and Telephone Company. The latter company to issue approximately $73,000,000 par value of stock in payment for the property.

According to G. W. McRae, General Manager of the New York Telephone Company, the petition states that the object is to consolidate all the property of both companies in the state of New Jersey under one corporation, which will be devoted entirely to the telephone interests of the state of New Jersey and thereafter, there will be only one Bell Company operated in the state.

The New York Telephone Company which is incorporated in both New York and New Jersey owns and operate the telephone property in the northern and eastern parts of the state. The Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph & Telephone Co. is a New Jersey Corporation already operating in western and southern Jersey exclusively. If the plans are approved, it will change its name to the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. or some similar appropriate name.

The principle effect of the transaction is the localizing to the State of New Jersey of the executive management of the property and service. At the present time the headquarters of the New York Telephone Company is located in New York City with a General Manager of the operating department located at Newark. The headquarters of the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph & Telephone Co. is in Philadelphia, and its general offices and part of its engineering and supervisory organization are common to it and the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania and the Diamond State Telephone Co. With the rapid growth in the telephone business which has taken place throughout the state during the past several years, it is felt that the telephone property in New Jersey has reached a size where material advances can be realized by establishing an organization whose attention will be devoted entirely to the management of telephone affairs in New Jersey. After the plans are approved by the Commission, it is expected that the official staff of the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph and Telephone Co. will be expanded to meet these increased responsibilities and that the new organization will locate its headquarters in the State of New Jersey, the exact location to be determined by the new management.

Chevrolet Motor Is Used on "Snowmobile"

Faced with the necessity of making long trips through a territory frequently covered with snow drifts 20 feet deep and where temperatures often hover around 38 degrees below zero, Charles Surrall, of the firm of M. Surrall & Son, Chevrolet dealers at Newberry, Michigan, has constructed a novel Chevrolet "snowmobile," utilizing a Chevrolet motor and chassis.

The front end of the queer looking vehicle, which attracts unusual attention wherever it appears in the snow-covered upper peninsula, is fitted at the front end with wooden skis, attached to the regulation Chevrolet axle and steering knuckles. The car is easily handled despite the heavy snow drifts and the average depth of 30 inches of snow encountered in his daily travels, Mr. Surrall says. The rear end of the car is fitted with two sets of Chevrolet wheels, set tandem style, over which an endless tractor belt equipped with flanges operates.

So powerful is the special tractor equipment when powered with the standard Chevrolet motor that Mr. Surrall has often been called upon to tow heavy cars out of snow drifts where they have become hopelessly stalled. The extensive alterations required to transform the Chevrolet into a snowmobile were all made in the service station of M. Surrall and Son. The Chevrolet motor had already put in four years of active service on a Chevrolet touring car before it was utilized for special winter service, Mr. Surrall says.

Anglers' Patron Saint

Izaak Walton was born at Stafford, England in 1593. He became a linen draper of London, and amassed a modest fortune, retiring from business early in life in order to enjoy the society of several of the most cultured men of the time. One of his recreations was fishing, and he is remembered by his book, the "Compleat Angler." He also wrote admirable biographies.

Good Word, Anyway

A little girl in one of the Kansas City grade schools misspelled the word, "immense." She was detained after others were dismissed and instructed by her teacher to write 100 sentences, using the word she misspelled. This was her first sentence: "This is an immense job."—Exchange.

NEWARK THEATRES

Greenwich Village Follies at Shubert

Mirth and gaiety above all else, it is stated, is stressed in the alnew seventh annual version of the Greenwich Village Follies, which comes to the Shubert Theatre, Newark, for a week's engagement, starting Monday night. To assist in carrying out the droll and comic maneuvers the cast, it is reported, is top heavy with expert comedians and comedienne. Proceeding on the theory that wit is the one essential in a revue, the producers of the fair and famous "Follies" have given the buffons free rein.

"Abie's Irish Rose" in 4th Week at Broad St.

With the regularity of passing time, comes the announcement that "Abie's Irish Rose" remains at the Broad St. Theatre, for another week, the fourth week. Apparently, every resident of Newark and its surrounding towns, has made up their individual and collective minds to see "Abie" before it leaves the Broad. Its advertising slogan: "You'll see 'Abie' eventually—why wait?" is an apt admonition, for come heat, rain or cold weather, come strong opposition attractions, even "The Miracle" itself, Anne Nichols' "miracle play" in reality carries on triumphantly to capacity audiences, who shake the walls of the theatre with their unrestrained laughter. "Abie's Irish Rose" is a clean, clever comedy of every day American life between intensely Irish and intensely Jewish families, whose children, Abie and Rosemary, have gummed up the whole works by getting married, not once but three times for good measure. Anne Nichols' has provided some of the best spontaneous humor that has ever come across the footlights, and the idiosyncracies and foibles of the orthodox Jew and high strung Irishman, is unfolded by a cast that has been splendidly selected for its types, and for its simple, straightforward acting. In addition to its humorous complications, there is a lot of genuine human nature, and at times a bit of pathos to the story of "Abie," that satisfies every angle of the theatre fan's nature. And underneath it all, a broad spirit of love and tolerance which warms the heart and induces thought long after the laughs have ceased. These factors are probably the cause of "Abie's" undoubted success and popularity wherever presented.

Next week's attraction at Miner's Empire theatre commencing Sunday, March 27, will bring a temporary change from prevailing purpose to present Columbia Burlesque. "Give and Take," with Abe Reynolds the star, will be a farce comedy calculated to win and retain the interest of those who will find enough change from the usual routine of attractions to whet the appetite for light entertainment.

Carries Bullet in Brain

Four Years; Dies

Philadelphia.—The victim of a hand-dropped bullet who was wounded in Canada in 1922 and who died in this city January 8 last, was found to have carried a bullet in his brain for almost four years, it was revealed at an inquest before Coroner Schwarz. The dead man is Joseph Bernstein, twenty-seven years old.

According to an investigation made by Deputy Coroner Melett, following the death of Bernstein in the University hospital, Bernstein was seized with an illness at his home the evening of New Year's day. At the hospital his complaint was diagnosed as an abscess of the brain, and while physicians made valiant efforts to save his life he died a week later.

An autopsy revealed that a bullet had lodged at the base of the brain and caused the abscess. Members of Bernstein's family told of the shooting of the youth by bandits in Montreal, Canada, in January, 1922. For several weeks Bernstein was a patient in a Montreal hospital and eventually recovered and returned home.

The bullet was never extracted and it is believed that it later worked into a vital part of the brain and caused death.

Wins Suit to Recover for Loss at Cards

Springfield, Mass.—A decision in favor of the plaintiff for $1,200 alleged to have been lost at cards in the home of friends has been handed down by District Court Judge James E. Davis.

Leo Guertin, the plaintiff, testified that he played in the home of the defendants, Frank and Lea Lavole, with their full knowledge and consent on 12 occasions and that he lost on the average of $100 a night. Whether the defendants won the money or not was not the point at issue. The point stressed was that the game was played with their knowledge in their homes.

Counsel for the plaintiff explained that the suit was brought under a statute that says when a householder permits a gambling game in his premises he may be held liable for the amount lost by a plaintiff.

Every Car in Train Hits Auto; Driver Is Spared

Iron Mountain, Mich.—Pinned behind the wheel of his sedan, which was struck at a railroad crossing by a freight train while his car was being bumped by every passing freight car and expecting to be crushed to death any moment, was the experience of James McMahon, Sagola, traveling salesman. He escaped with minor injuries.

McMahon said he did not see the train in time to escape the crash because snow was falling heavily. His car was tossed to the side of the road and lay there while the passing freight cars bumped it repeatedly.

Collie Routs Bull

Face the Wind

Some men face the wind, some turn their backs to it. The former overcome obstacles and accomplish something in life. The latter merely drift, creating nothing, rendering no service and are frequently a burden to their fellows. Are you facing the wind?—Grt.

Biblical Character

The queen of Sheba was the sovereign whose visit to King Solomon is recorded in I Kings, Chapter X. The Sabaeans, over whom this queen reigned, were the inhabitants of southwestern Arabia, a country now called Yemen. It borders on the Red sea, and is noted for the superior quality of the coffee grown there.

Murals Centuries Ago

Archaeologists have found in southern Europe evidences of the first mural decorations, dating back, according to their compilations, to the Sixth and Eighth centuries B. C. These decorations were crude paintings on the walls of these primitive living abodes and depicted, for the most part, the live game on which these early peoples depended for food.
