

Move to Save Pearl

Divers From Sharks

Basra.—Elaborate precautions to scare away the sharks and swordfish which attack naked divers are being made by the great pearl fishery in Bahrain on the Persian gulf. The divers sometimes go as far down as 70 feet and the swordfish have been known to cut the helpless natives in two. The sheik derives two million dollars annually from the fishery. He is a picturesque figure in the town, as he walks about wearing his priceless pearl-studded dagger, gold-bound head dress, and flowing robes, with a hawk perched on his wrist.

PRIEST TOILS ALONE TO REBUILD WRECKED CHURCH

Padre Has Worked Eight Years on Job; Hopes to Complete It in Ten Years More.

Havana, Cuba.—Many a stout-hearted mason or skilled engineer would shy away from the task of rebuilding a huge church, yet that is the herculean job Rev. Reginaldo Sanchez, Dominican priest, has undertaken here. If only the physical labor of another decade of construction faced the little Spanish padre, his task would be amazing enough. But added to this is his knowledge that fate for 71 years has frowned darkly on all efforts to bring to completion the church structure known as Antigua del Carmelo. Yet for eight years he has toiled and he feels confident that ten years more will see his work crowned with success.

Few churches have had so varied and troubled existence. First begun in 1839 by the secular clergy, Antigua del Carmelo by 1891 had been abandoned and stripped of its images as work had begun on a new structure near-by. On June 25, 1897, a bolt of lightning shattered the uncompleted structure.

In 1898, the remaining parts were used to house volunteers in the war against Spain, and as a soup kitchen for the poor. On July 5, 1907, persons never identified exploded seven pounds of dynamite in the battered edifice. In 1912, however, the church was again blessed and in 1918 the Dominican fathers sent Sanchez from Spain to Cuba to take charge of the parish.

With indomitable courage he began his task of rebuilding, single-handed. Every day for eight years he has labored—cutting huge stones by hand, hoisting them into place with a crude windlass, and between times, turning out delicate ornaments and vessels of clay and hand-painting them.

Sand, rock, cement and lumber the white-robed priest trundled to the site of operations in a two-wheeled cart. Now and then a member of the church aids Father Sanchez for a day, helping him push the huge hand-saw back and forth to cut a slab of stone, but usually the little priest handles the job alone.

If all goes well, Father Sanchez will dedicate Antigua del Carmelo in 1940.

Railroad Plants Pines on Plains of Wyoming

Laramie, Wyo.—The Union Pacific railroad has established an experimental forestation project on its land south of the company's athletic club here.

The experiment is to determine the possibility of establishing a forest cover on the rolling plains region in that vicinity.

Although trees apparently have not grown here, there is a possibility, forest officials believe, they can be made to thrive and thereby improve the appearance of the region.

In the experiment, 500 trees each of western yellow pine and timber pine are being used to determine whether either of them can withstand the severe winds common to the region, the cold of winter and the limited amount of precipitation on the Laramie plains region.

Scotland Finds Way of Making Marriage Last

London.—Scotland has solved the problem of marriage—how to make it "take!"

A Sutherland couple, about to have the knot tied, were forcibly divested of their footwear before the ceremony, and their feet were smeared with soot and molasses.

By washing this mixture away and entering the church with clean feet they are assured of marital bliss—that is, according to an old Aberdeen legend.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

What Became of Harvey Wentworth?

THE Civil war brought about many very mysterious disappearances, but one of the most remarkable of them all was that of Harvey B. Wentworth, New Hampshire farmer lad who went away on a furlough one day in July, 1862, and was never heard from thereafter. Naturally, there were a number of cowards who deserted the colors either because of fear of dissatisfaction with the way in which they were treated, but everything pointed to the fact that this was not the case with young Wentworth and, as a result, all possible efforts were made to discover what had become of him. But in vain. He had apparently vanished as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed him.

Early in July, 1862, a new regiment of volunteers was mustered into service in the vicinity of Suncook, N. H., a regiment known as the Nineteenth New Hampshire volunteers. One of the most enthusiastic members of this regiment was young Wentworth, a private in Company D. He was a farmer boy of exceptionally good habits, intelligent and inquisitive. Therefore, when the regiment encamped on the Virginia side of the Potomac, near Aqueduct bridge, and Wentworth requested a furlough to see the sights of the Capital, it was granted without a moment's hesitation. In company with a number of others he left camp—and was never heard from again. At the next roll call he was marked "not present" and some days later, was entered as having "mysteriously disappeared."

No one ever believed that Wentworth had deserted. He was not built that way, and every circumstance in the case pointed away from such probability. A special court of inquiry was called and, after considering the meager evidence in the case, reported that Wentworth had "disappeared from mortal ken but, in view of his character and antecedents, we clear him from the charge of desertion and recommend that his military record be regarded as without stain."

This opinion was principally based upon the fact that Wentworth had never been heard to complain of the hardships of army life even during the forced march southward from New Hampshire. In fact, he had been too short a time in the service to tire of it and had been treated with the utmost consideration, his cousin being captain of the company of which he was a member. Moreover, there was plenty of evidence that the New Hampshire boy had been extremely anxious to reach the front and see something of real war.

When he left camp he was full of youthful enthusiasm over the prospect of seeing the sights of Washington and, apparently, had never left the city. Sentries had been posted at every road that led out of the Capital, as well as along its leading thoroughfares, and no one could get by them without having his pass recorded. The records of these guards showed that the missing youth had presented his pass on entering the western limits of the city, and they indicated his progress along Pennsylvania avenue to the Capitol. But, after that, all trace of him was lost.

The thorough investigation which followed his unaccountable disappearance showed that he had last been seen on the brow of Capitol hill, looking over the city spread out before him. All about him were masons and stone cutters, working on an extension to the Capitol. Below him was a labyrinth of partly covered excavations for the subbasement of the new extension.

What could have become of him? Did he meet with foul play, and if so, how was his body concealed? Did he fall a prey to the bullet of some Confederate spy? Was it possible that, while exploring the labyrinthine mazes of the new portion of the Capitol he was overcome by the heat and fell into some dark abyss, where his remains were later walled up and entombed?

Had he deserted, Wentworth would have eventually returned to New Hampshire, if only for the purpose of keeping in touch with conditions there. But nothing was ever heard of him in any section of the country, and the only mark to his memory is the monument in the little church yard in Suncook, New Hampshire, which bears the lettering:

"Harry B. Wentworth—Mysteriously disappeared from the knowledge of men—Washington, D. C., July, 1862."

Smallest War Memorial

It is still a moot point as to where in London one encounters the smallest war memorial, writes "Looker On" in the London Daily Chronicle. The smallest I have come across is a glass case on the front of a block of workmen's flats on Albert embankment near Vauxhall. It is a simple, home-made affair enshrining only about a score of names of men living in the block who served in the war, with a cross marked against those who fell. All these years—it was apparently started during the war—it has been carefully tended by the tenants; there are always one or two blooms in glass jam jars in front of it. A humble but faithful tribute of remembrance.

NEW VERSES OF OMAR UNEARTHED

Early Rubaiyat Has 135 More Quatrains Than Fitzgerald Translation.

Washington.—Another book of verses to be read underneath the bough with a loaf of bread and a thermos bottle of—well, lemonade—may be the product of the discovery in a Calcutta bookshop of an early volume of Omar Khayyam's Rubaiyat containing 135 more quatrains than Fitzgerald translated.

Only the volume in the Bodleian library at Oxford is older than the newly found illustrated manuscript which, according to news from India, bears the date 1555.

"Omar the Tentmaker fast in his grave on which the peach petals blow at Nishapur continues to be, despite the gap of 900 years, Persia's best ambassador to English-speaking countries," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society.

"Yet he who sang:

I sometimes think that never blows so red The Rose as where some buried Caesar bled; is little known... a poet in his own country. Abu'l-fat'h Omar, son of Ibrahim the Tentmaker of Nishapur, for such was his name, holds in Persia some modest fame as a mathematician, an ancient wise man, who, about the time William the Conqueror was conquering England, assisted in revising the Persian calendar. But Omar, a poet! We have far better poets than he, the Persians say. The western world will never believe it.

Reasons for Persian Neglect. "If Omar Khayyam's verses ran against the tide of opinion in Persia of his day and still run against the tide, he was a heretic; his verses are still heretical. So Persia continues to think that Omar as a poet was a good mathematician.

"Much of the geography, the climate, the flowers, the products, and customs of Persia can be found inlaid in Omar's verses which have become so familiar to English readers. His most famous quatrain:

A Book of Verses underneath the Bough, A Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread—and Thou Beside me singing in the Wilderness— Oh, Wilderness were Paradise enow!

surprises a thumbnail picture of what passes for a picnic, and the last word in holiday enjoyment throughout Moslem North Africa, the Near East and Persia—excepting the wine which is still forbidden. "From Tripoli to Cairo, to Bagdad to Teheran and Tashkent, 3,500 miles, a bough and the shade it gives are luxuries in a land of eternal sun. Grass is even rarer than trees; no such thing as an American or English lawn exists. So when a holiday comes the people leave the seclusion of their towns, wander down to the bank of a stream where there may be a few trees and there 'star scattered on the grass,' as Omar writes, they rest and gossip.

Women Picnic in Cemeteries. "Often the greenest spots are the cemeteries. To visit the graves women of the harem are sometimes permitted to go out once a week, an opportunity they seldom pass by, not so much to pay tribute to the dead, as for an outing under the trees. Graveyards are the favorite picnic grounds of the Near East.

"Omar sings of roses, tulips and the hyacinths of the garden; the peach and the pear trees in bloom. The brushes of artists have added some very definite ideas for us about Per-

SIAD KHAN... a traveler to Persia reports that although he searched high and low, he has yet to find a Persian garden. On that dry plateau there is no such thing as a garden in the American or English sense. "A garden to a Persian is a grove of trees kept alive by irrigation ditches that receive precious water from some creek fed by mountain snows.

"Persia is like a saucer. High mountains rim it. Close to the rim rise the principal cities hugging the mountains because of their dependence on the highlands for water. The center is an upland desert; the dead heart of Persia. Crossing Persia requires crossing the desert, so to a parched and sun-battered traveler any bit of green he comes upon toward the end of his journey seems a vision of paradise, a garden of unparalleled beauty to be praised and exalted in poetry."

Novice Peak Scalers Drowned After Fall

Tokyo.—Because one member of their party slipped from a log bridge while crossing a stream three student mountain climbers were drowned while attempting to scale Nekomata pass in the northern Japan Alps. Searching parties found the three bodies floating in the Katagai River. They were tied together, Alpine fashion.

MODERN PARENT TOO MECHANICAL

By MRS. HUGH BRADFORD, President Parent-Teacher Congress.

Education begins in the home and the training most important to a nation or civilization depends upon the proper technique of parenthood. Parenthood brings with it much responsibility and as much importance as business. The father must realize this and lend his co-operation to the spirit of home and life.

The whole family, in my opinion, should plan together, play together and progress together. The result would be much less crime and unhappiness.

We find ourselves forgetful of the finer human touches, human sympathies and human interests, while the objective world of action and achievement lures us on.

Really, the telegram and mail can wait until our children have received and welcomed us. They are material things which will not change after a little time.

But these children, these human personalities, have interests and feelings which normally are at their height when we come home.

Coldly met, these urges and emotions wane, and, as they weaken, they are not so likely to return so vigorously. The child enthusiasm cannot grow nor can it even live without some human warmth from us to keep it aglow.

CHANGE IN FEMININE MANNERS

By LADY ARMSTRONG, American Born Wife of British Peer

Women are softer and more feminine right now than they have been for more than ten years. During and after the war girls put on mannish clothes and did men's work. They accomplished something in business and art and it was all very well. But the reversion has come. They're back in frills—and glad to be there, in spite of the little fuss they seemed to make about it.

Are the present popular beach and lounging pajamas the forerunner of feminine trousers for street and evening wear? I hope I never live to see the day! And I cannot believe it will come in the near future. I don't believe the women themselves would permit it. They're happier wearing skirts. They fit their figures better.

To be sure, women will keep on doing things—they always have, for that matter—but they're really happiest as the complement of man. They've learned the value of frills and they'll cling to them.

And with the change they've made back to ruffles and trailing skirts there has come a definite change in their manners. The smartest, prettiest debutantes aren't smoking these days. They aren't drinking, either. By the scores I see them refusing cigarettes and cocktails.

NEED FULL TIME PARENTHOOD

By REV. E. R. DARIN, Milwaukee (Baptist).

Part time parenthood—that is one of the grave dangers of modern civilization. Full time functioning parenthood is needed if we are to have a generation that will be an asset in the progress of civilization. Within the last seven years apartment house dwellers have increased from 24.4 per cent to 48.8 per cent. Apartment house dwelling means a nomadic population. There is no stability of residence or church relationship.

The problem is complicated by 3,000,000 married women in industry. Not all are mothers; many do not want children because they can have more luxuries on two pay envelopes. Many who have children have to farm them out to nurseries for care while they work.

Homes are not what they should be unless a baby is preferred to a car. With each child there is born into the world a new opportunity for the betterment of civilization.

WORLD CAN DO WITHOUT WAR

By REV. DR. MINOT SIMONS, New York (Unitarian).

If new wars come a grateful people will honor their saviors, but new wars need not come. War is not necessary to human nature. All the primitive human passions that expressed themselves in blood vengeance and blood feuds, in dueling and in slavery still remain, but these institutions are gone. The human impulses which have led to war are likewise permanent, but they can express themselves in better ways. War can be discarded as a method and human nature can go right along as before.

This message of the social psychologist ought to be proclaimed from the housetops in order that all fatalism about war may be banished from the earth.

LAWYERS MUST "CLEAN HOUSE"

By CHIEF JUSTICE CHARLES EVANS HUGHES

Attempts by lawyers to thwart the administration of justice by delays, sharp practice and chicanery should be unsparingly condemned. They have no place in a profession where skill and honor should go hand in hand.

Even when purged, as it should be, of its delinquents, the bar is only at the threshold of its opportunity to devote its technical knowledge to the effort to adjust the mechanism of justice to the demands of a complex society to which old methods in many respects are unsuited.

While improvement in this direction is necessarily slow, bar associations may immediately perform a great service in strongly insisting on the selection of capable prosecutors, magistrates and judges.

PROGRESS MADE IN NATIONAL FORESTRY

A quarter of a century has brought an extraordinary change in the forestry policies of the government, marking notable progress in conservation, says World's Work. In 1905, when the forest service was created, there were 60 reserves, with an area of 50,000,000 acres. The area today is 164,000,000 acres, embraced in 150 national forests.

The physical development of the forests has progressed continuously in the last 25 years. In 1905 there were no fire towers or lookout stations; today 31 are maintained. As many as 1,180 public camp grounds have been improved during the period. Since 1907 the mileage of national forest roads has been extended from 330 to 16,734. Forest trails have increased from 5,644 to 47,175 miles. Mileage of telephone lines built for fire protection and administration purposes has increased from 539 to 35,926.

Receipts of the forest reserves in 1905 amounted to $85,000, all for timber sold. Receipts last year totaled $6,293,802. Of this amount more than $4,000,000 came from the sale of timber, cut under forest service supervision on a sustained or continuous "crop" basis.

Clockmakers' Art Shown in Budapest Collection

Unique timepieces have been placed in the museum of clocks and watches which has been established in Budapest by the guild of Hungarian watchmakers. The exhibition contains several hundred specimens, including a watch of crystal carved in the shape of the Cross, by Boule; a bronze clock, once the property of Prince Francis Ilokoczi of Transylvania, and several watches, the works of which, including the smallest wheels and springs, are embellished with microscopic engravings. Among the curios is a clock of cast-iron several centuries old, but still running. Another is a so-called "control" clock of the seventeenth century. The hands of this clock are fixed and the face revolves, the checking instrument being a spiked wheel with a lever and a cord which hung from a window down to the street. The night watchman had to pull the cord.

"Flappers" Ancient Lineage

The modern "flapper" in knee-high skirts was duplicated in her sisters that flourished 7,000 years ago in Egypt, according to the discoveries of Selim Hassan, a famous Egyptian excavator, who has just unearthed the tomb of Taso Ank, a prince and high priest of the Third dynasty, which ruled Egypt about 7,000 years ago. The discoveries include statues of the high priest, his wife and two daughters. The sky-blue dresses of the girls are low at the neck and short at the knee, and their throats are encircled with jeweled necklaces.

All Alike

Wayne, age six, was fond of wandering. He was picked up by a neighbor on the road and given a ride toward home. As they approached Wayne's house he asked the neighbor to drive on. "Don't stop," he said. "I'm going on into town. They're all gone from home. There is nobody there today except Edna and Lucille, Tom and Onie and Bud and Norma Jean. I'm lonesome and I'm going to town."

Not Quite

While Bobby's father had a wonderful disposition, a pleasing personality, and a keen sense of humor, he was not much on looks, as all his friends knew.

One day a college friend was visiting in the home. He observed Bobby for some time and later remarked to the child's mother that Bobby was just like his daddy.

"No, I'm not," said Bobby, "we don't have the same spreshun on our faces."

New Use for "Cops"

New Bern (N. C.) police have added a new duty to their routine. A burly up call sent three policemen to a home on the outskirts of the city. They found an irate father who informed them they were summoned to make his stubborn son take a dose of medicine. The boy took it.

Clock Made Trouble
Munch held its breath as the most perfect pianissimo was softly weaving through the hall at a concert by the New York Symphony orchestra under Toscanini's baton, when suddenly a loud, purring sound set in, and continued most insistently—until one of the musicians jammed his instrument against his side with fury. He had brought one of those small pocket alarm clocks which belong in the pocket of every real tourist who has seen Europe. He had forgotten all about it until the little clock did its duty, purring conscientiously, but at the wrong moment.

RECORD METEOR NOW IN CHICAGO MUSEUM

The largest single meteoric stone ever seen to fall is in the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago. It was purchased and presented to the museum by Stanley Field, the institution's president. The specimen is a fine addition to the museum's collection of meteorites, which, in number of falls represented, is the world's most comprehensive collection.

The new messenger from space, called the Paragould meteorite, arrived on earth February 17, 1930, at 4:45 a.m., according to Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of geology. It fell at Paragould, Ark., on a farm owned by Joe Fletcher. The stone weighs 820 pounds, being 175 pounds heavier than any previously recorded. In falling it penetrated hard clay to a depth of nine feet.

Wax-Work Show Mystery

Among the wax figures at Mme. Tussaud's in London, there are many of prominent politicians of today, and in one of these an old-fashioned hat pin was discovered embedded up to the head if was removed, but next day two others were discovered in the same position. At one time, when those who practiced "black magic" wished to destroy anyone, they made a wax figure in his likeness and stuck pins into it. This was supposed to have the effect of making the person concerned fall ill, and unless something happened to break the spell, the illness would have a fatal termination.

New Berry Resists Drought

Fruit growers are interested in a wild variety of black raspberry which was found in the Oregon woods. It thrived during a hot, dry season when domestic kinds languished, did not die down in winter and even produced berries in the late fall.

It is believed the specimen is a hybrid of the black raspberry with some species of blackberry. Its leaves and growing habits are much the same as those of the later. Experts are examining the fruit to determine if it is suited to commercial shipping and canning.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"Evil Spirit" Kills Seven

Superstition has gripped the people of Ailium Kara Hissar, in Central Anatolia, following the deaths of seven Turkish women in a ravine. The side of the ravine caved in burying the unfortunates under tons of stone and earth. They were part of a party who were collecting time to beautify the walls of their homes in preparation of the festival of Kourban Bairam, and as similar accidents happened in 1896 and 1923, the villagers are convinced that an evil spirit dwells in the ravine and at times demands women as victims to appease its anger.

His Business

Archibald, visiting his aunt, who lives on a public highway, was conversing with a pedestrian loitering near the farm. The aunt growing suspicious of the stranger, called the lad into the house and said: "What is the business of the young man you were talking with?" "Hitch-hiking," replied the animated lad.

Gardeners on the outskirts of London are using balloons in place of scarecrows. The bags are inflated and attached to sticks in the ground at certain vantage points. A thieving bird, thinking the balloons are delicious "bobby," pecks at one. The pistol-like explosion so frightens the feathered thief that it never returns.

Sign on Dotted Line

A northern Indiana lad is often an attentive listener to shop talk by a young lady selling books. One warm day recently the lad was eager to go to the swimming pool and receiving a vague reply to his request, said: "Mother, I wish when I ask you to do things you would sign on the dotted line."

Cities "Built" on Furs
Canada was at one time beyond all contradiction the land of fur. Churches and forts were erected at the cost of so many beaver skins. Three Rivers and Montreal might be said to have been virtually built on beaver skins, and intruding adventurers, out of favor with the monopolistic powers, frequently paid enormous fines with the same fur.

Not Worth the Price
If the diet isn't well planned, it just means spending money for the fun of getting sick.

Pole Star Long Known

Polaris was known to the ancients, and was spoken of as the "Star at the End of the Tail of the Little Bear." The constellation of Ursa Minor, which includes the Pole star, was mentioned by Thales in the Seventh century, B. C. The Greeks referred to it as the Cynosura and the Phoenicians as Phoenice. Observations of this constellation were used in navigation.

CATCHING STAFF BIG PART OF GAME

Backstops Do Much to Nurse Pitchers Along.

It has been often said by wise baseball men that pitching is 99 per cent of a ball club and that a team without a good pitching staff is never going to win a pennant in the big leagues. If that is so, or even if a pitching staff is only 75 per cent of a ball club, what about the catching staff?

While pitching is essential, nearly every team that has ever won a big league pennant had one or two great catchers. Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics was a "one-man" show last season and it was due to his great work behind the plate that the Athletics won the pennant in the American league and then beat the Cubs in the world series. No catcher ever nursed a pitcher along with greater skill than Cochrane did with Howard Ehmke in the opening game in Chicago.

John J. McGraw, the "master mind" of the Giants, won his first National league pennant in 1904 with two great catchers—Roger Bresnahan and Frank Bowerman. Today McGraw has two more great catchers in Frank "Shanty" Hogan and Bob O'Farrell and the "master mind" believes his two star backstops will get enough good pitching out of Walker, Hubbell, Genewich, Fitzsimmons and Donohue to win the National league pennant.

George Stosson of Boston, world's balkline champion of 30 years ago, and one of the few players to hold his own with the late Jake Schaefer over a period of 20 years in special matches, may celebrate his comeback to billiards through the medium of the cushion carom tomney which will be played in New York in the fall. Stosson, at the age of seventy-six, feels that his chances at cushion caroms are as good as any player in the game.

During his 12 years as a jockey, Earl Sande has piloted nearly a thousand winners, for nearly $3,000,000 worth of purses.

Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, believes that it is only a matter of time before night baseball will be a popular big-league caper. Baron Sam is prepared to move the earth in order to institute a lighting plant at Sportsman park next year or this year, if possible. Breadon is strong for the idea, because the Cards have not been a drawing card of late.

The City college of New York basketball team has listed Pittsburgh for a game February 16, 1931, at the Twenty-second Engineers' armory in New York. It will be the first athletic contest between the institutions.

Modera Lingo
Wonder how the Americanologists, a thousand years from now, will interpret some of the sports headlines. Probably as evidence that we still are in the savage state.

Herb Pennock Fights Off Age

HERE'S an old saying that youth must be served and that old age must fall by the wayside. Herb Pennock, the slender southpaw, is quietly and earnestly fighting to hold his own with Col. Jake Ruppert's ball club, and it appears as if he will succeed in his task of keeping youthful, for a while, anyhow.

Pennock has reached the heights of big league baseball more than once. He has passed the peak of greatness as a pitcher and is now on the road that leads to the way out or to the minors. The southpaw no doubt realizes this much himself, but he would like to have another season or two before he quits the game he loves so well and retires to his home in Kennett Square to give all his time to his family and the breeding of foxes.

Pennock believes that he will have a successful season and help the Yankees to overthrow Connie Mack and his world's champion Athletics in the American league race. Bob Slaty, manager, holds the same opinion as his veteran southpaw. According to Bob the "Gub" and "Doc" Painter, the trainer, there is nothing out of gear with Pennock's arm and Herbie should be able to take his regular turn on the mound, not every four days, but once in about every five or six days.

This is great news as there is no more likeable or affable individual in baseball than this same Herb Pennock.

Herb Pennock.

Book on Sports Reveals Few Causes of Fatigue

The athlete who has wondered about the tired feeling that follows unusual exertion is given the "inside dope" by Professor Elwyn of Columbia university in his new book, "Yourself, Inc." The runner or swimmer isn't simply tired; he has been poisoned—and the villain in the case is himself.

Research has shown that exercise develops in the muscles a poison called lactic acid, which must be slowly burned up by oxygen to effect recovery. In the few seconds of a 100-yard dash more than an ounce of acid is formed, requiring over an hour before the last drop is burned away. The heat generated in an active person's muscles consumes the oxygen and releases the carbon dioxide.

Experiments have shown that a swimmer exhales 12 times as much carbon dioxide as an idle person does. A marching man with a heavy pack develops sufficient heat every five minutes to raise the heat of his body one degree Fahrenheit; at the end of 10 hours, however, he does not reach boiling point, thanks to his wonderful automatic cooling system.

Son Making Good

Walter Johnson, Jr., son of the "Big Train," appeared on the mound for the Bethesda Juniors in the Capital City league for the first time since he was injured when struck by an automobile several months ago. His father, at the same time, was piloting the Nationals into first place in the American league. This photo shows Walter, Jr., warming up on the mound.

Harvard Pleased With Profitable Athletics

Harvard has closed one of the best of its post-war athletic years, especially so far as conflict with the Elis of Yale is concerned. The Crimson varsity took the wash of another great Yale eight at New London, but this was the only major sport setback of the 1929-30 campaign for the agile lads of Cambridge. Football honors rested with Harvard last fall and the Crimson track team beat Yale, beside furnishing the only Eastern challenge to the sweep of Far Western athletes in the Intercollegiate championships. In baseball and hockey Harvard tied the Elis. And up around the Yard at Cambridge they already are talking about what will happen next fall when Barry Wood starts riddling the sort of passes that baffled Yale, Michigan and Army last year.

Boy Was Old Enough to Call for a Close Shave

A woman, informed by telephone that she might bring her little boy to the ball park free on ladies' day, appeared at the gates, panting and puffing in her efforts to carry a boy, who appeared to be well past the infant stage. Upon being told by the gate tender that the lad was too large to be admitted free, she became considerably disturbed.

"I have always brought him with me," she cried. "What shall I do?" "Give him a quarter and let him get a shave," said a voice from some one behind the guardian of the gate.

Sport Notes

Granville Eush, younger brother of Guy of the Cubs, is pitching for a semi-pro club in Chicago.

Six of the first nine players on the University of Illinois baseball team this year were sophomores.

The Southern amateur golf championship has been undefeated by title holders three years running.

Pauline Uzcodum, Basque pugilist, wears gloves that weigh 28 ounces each when he is in training.

Orval Martin, Purdue distance runner, never lost a Western conference race. He won eight in six meets.

Schulmerich, bigger than Ruth, is starring in the Los Angeles outfield and the Cubs are watching him closely.

Billy Bayne, pitcher sent to Chattanooga by the Boston Red Sox, is making a bid to get back in the majors.

Three lacrosse players of Penn State college who have graduated will be represented next season by younger brothers.

Members of the football team of the University of Oregon will average 200 pounds or more when they take the field next fall.

Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland hurler, hopes to be able to win 30 games in a season. He won 21 last season, his first in the big league.

David Moose Tobias, La Crosse, husky tackle on last year's University of Wisconsin football team, will be ineligible for competition next fall.

Schools became empty when the management of the Sacramento ball club of the Pacific Coast league established a free "kids' day" each Friday.

Baltimore's municipal stadium will be the scene of ten college football games in the fall, Navy and Ohio State on November 8 being the star attraction.

Rob Russell, southpaw pitching star for the Chicago White Sox long, long ago, is still hitting home runs in Dixie. He plays first base for Chattanooga of the Southern.

Bill Slater, singles champion of the Northwestern International Bowling Congress, has been active in the alleys for 15 years, but has yet to bowl his first "300" game.

Football and baseball are becoming so popular in Mexico that on Sunday afternoons vacant lots in cities and towns are teeming with would-be Red Granges and Babe Ruths.

Gallant Fox Best

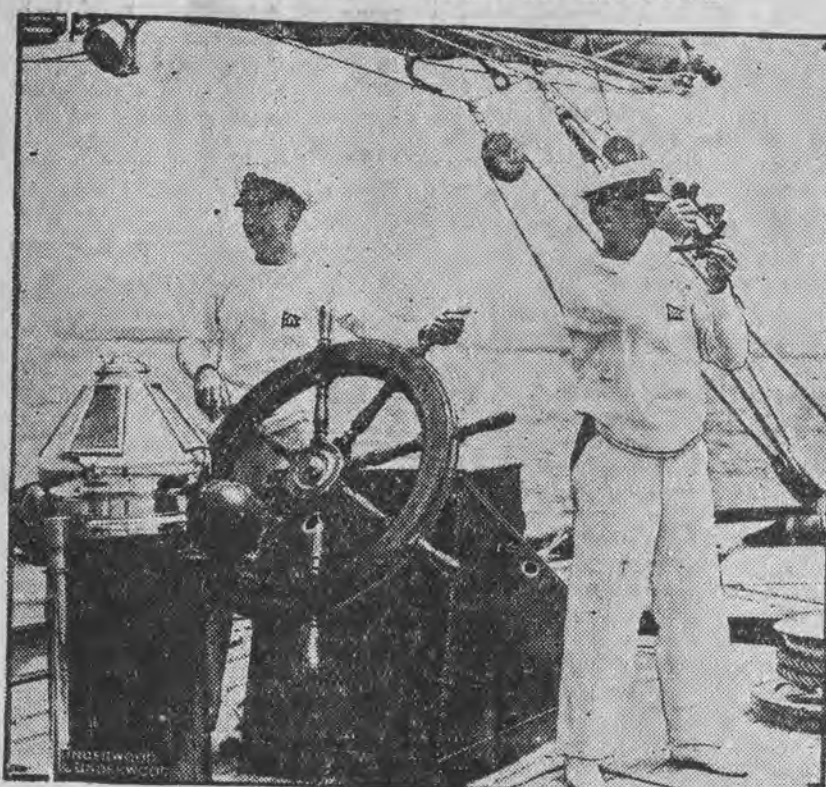

Earl Sande, premier jockey, who has ridden Gallant Fox to fame, paid the horse his respects. He said: "I think he is the best horse that I have ridden over a distance of ground for a number of years. He is better than Zev over a long route, but I believe Zev had more early speed."

Bad Leadership
"One who has led you into difficulty," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "cannot be depended on to straighten out the tangle any more than the cat who has been playing with a ball of silk."—Washington Star.

Boy Scouts in Jungles
Cannibals, who, a few years ago, were eating human beings in the tropical jungles of the Papuan mountains in Australia, now have Boy Scouts among them, who do a good deed every day.

Enchantress Is After Record

An interesting action picture of Commodore Adams' Enchantress with sails full crossing the starting line on her way to Hawaii—some 2,300 miles. This ship is expected to set a new course record.

Sport Notes

"Memphis" Bill Terry, first baseman for the New York Giants, is thirty-two years old.

The Cleveland Indians will have a new stadium to play in which seats 80,000 persons.

Pitcher Rodney Frey, a star of the Penn State college team, has been signed by the Reading Keys.

Lord Derby, who saw Gallant Fox win the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs recently, plans to raise his colors in America.

Jack Sharkey wears a small gold boxing glove on his watch chain for "good luck." It was given to him by Dartmouth students.

Nat Holman, famous professional basketball star, will not play again, he has announced. He has become a Y. M. C. A. physical director.

In the 1903 world series, Deacon Philpitts of Pittsburgh pitched five complete games, winning the first three and losing the last two.

Because the Philadelphia National league club refused to waive on him, George "Tony" Rensa, Tiger recruit catcher, is a member of the Phils.

Emile Barnes, former Washington outfielder, made his debut as a White Sox at Comiskey park, Chicago, by striking out with the bases loaded.

Public Playgrounds
There are 21 national parks in the United States.

Dollar Not Stable
The average individual fails to realize the value of a dollar is not fixed. Because gold is worth about $20 an ounce he considers the dollar stable. The price is gold is fixed only in terms of gold by weight, not in terms of things it will purchase. An increase of the amount of gold in circulation does not express itself in a lower price of gold, but in higher level of prices for all other things.

England's War on Wolves
When Caesar and his legions landed, England must have been ravaged by the dreaded wolf. In later times, when the English wolves were retreating to the mountains, Wales was so overrun that rewards were offered for their capture. A part of the tribute to the King of Wales took the form of 300 wolf skins to be paid annually. Rewards were also given to the inhabitants of England.

Lean Time for Butchers
In olden days Lent was a particularly lean time for London butchers. They were heavily fined if caught selling meat during the great fast, except to privileged persons. The aged and infirm were allowed to eat meat by special permits, and the parish registers of St. Margaret, Westminster, record the granting of many such licenses. The fees were devoted to the relief of the poor.

Goss Back Centuries
In 1633 the plague visited the valleys of the Bavarian highlands and finally claimed about 40 victims in the village of Oberammergau. The vow was taken that if the scourge was turned from their homes the villagers would give once in ten years a play commemorating the life and passion of Christ. The scourge abated, and since that time the "Passion Play" has been given.

The pope's title has been changed according to the last issue of the Vatican directory. Formerly, in addition to the numerous titles, the Roman pontiff bore the title "Sovereign of the Temporal Domains of the Holy Roman Church," referring to the papal territories taken from the Holy See by the Italian government. Now the temporal title is simply "Sovereign of the State of Vatican City."

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Javanese Dancer

HER true name appears to have been Marguerite Gertrude Zelle, though the one by which she was much better—and rather more notoriously—known was Mlle. Mata-Hari, the title which she took when she made her vows as a vestal priestess at the great Buddhist temple of Burma at a time when mixing in the affairs of the great nations of the West was as foreign to her thoughts as the World war was to the minds of the majority of people.

But Mata-Hari was destined to come intimately into connection with the conflict of nations, and finally, after a life of mystery, to face a firing squad in the fortress of Vincennes.

The child of a Javanese mother and a wealthy Dutch planter, Marguerite Zelle appears to have been given exceptional opportunities for education and training, opportunities far above those usually afforded to children of her race. Even before she entered the service of Buddha she gave signs of possessing more than an ordinary talent for dancing and, during the ten years which she spent within the walls of the annery, Mata-Hari perfected herself in the weird, barbaric measures in which the natives wooed the benefice of their deities.

Put the world stretched forth its first tentacle in the shape of a young and personable army officer who attended one of the Buddhist festivals and with whom Mata-Hari fell in love at sight. Less than a week later she escaped from the sanctuary and fled with her lover to Paris, where they were married and lived for several years. It was not long, however, before the French capital began to hear rumors of a beautiful and extremely graceful dancer who had brought with her all the sinuous sensuous movements of the East, presenting these before private audiences at special afternoon functions.

Society, ever watching for something novel, enthused over this new sensation and her fame spread rapidly to other parts of the continent. London, Madrid, Rome, Lisbon, Berlin and Vienna, all put in bids for her services and Mata-Hari found it hard to meet all the calls for her art. Apparently, she divided her time equally among the different capitals, but those who followed her career closely recalled later that she made a point of being in Berlin and Vienna at certain stated periods of the year—the time when the agents of the Wilhelmstrasse, the dreaded German secret service, were gathered together for their conferences behind locked doors.

However, no suspicion attached itself to the beautiful Javanese until some time after the outbreak of the war. She came and went, unhindered by any thought of treachery, and during the first two years of the hostilities she flitted through England, Holland, Spain and Portugal, undoubtedly in constant communication with Berlin but unsuspected by the authorities. How much valuable information she had gathered during these trips was never discovered, but the fact that she spent huge sums of money upon her personal adornment and the support of her large and imposing retinue is in itself proof of the fact that the German secret service considered her well worth her hire.

Finally, the combination of her friendship with a young officer of the British tank corps and the fact that the Germans had been receiving an almost constant flow of information about this most important branch of the service led the English authorities to place Mata-Hari under a more strict surveillance. Sensing this, the dancer removed the scene of her operations to France, but the instant she stepped ashore at Cherbourg the French officials took up the trail where the British had left off. Mata-Hari was a marked woman. Less than a month later she was placed under arrest and the verdict of the court martial was "Guilty and condemned to be shot for high treason."

Just what secrets Mata-Hari had discovered, how she managed to get them past the watchful eyes of the British and French censors, how she received the money which enabled her to live in almost regal splendor and the way in which she had secured admittance to the charmed circle of the Wilhelmstrasse are only a few of the mysteries which surround this remarkable woman—mysteries which she took with her when on the morning of October 15, she faced the rifles of the firing squad in the court yard of the palace of Vincennes.

Small Boy Disillusioned

To Stanley, aged four, Doctor L., as he drove about in his motor car, making his professional calls and curing aches and pains of little boys as well as grown folks, was a being worthy of profoundest admiration.

One day as Stanley and his mother waited their turn in the doctor's reception room, filled with patients, his mother remarked to a lady next her: "What a large practice Doctor L. has!"

"Practice," exclaimed Stanley, with amazement, disappointment and a shade of contempt registered in his voice. "Is he only practicing, mother? I thought he was a real doctor!"—New York Sun.

FIND YOUTHS BODY IN TREMLEY POINT

Seen Floating in Sound by Employees of Cyanamid Co. Was Drowned While Swimming

The body of Alexander Kocaba, nineteen years old, of Charles street, who was drowned in Staten Island Sound, near the dock of the Carteret Oil Company here on Sunday afternoon, has been recovered.

The body was found floating off the dock of the American Cyanamid Company at Tremley Point, about a quarter of a mile from where the youth was drowned. It was discovered by one of the workmen at the plant.

Officer Buckeyson of the Linden police department was called and after fishing the body out of the water had it removed to the undertaking establishment of A. F. Martin, of Elizabeth. It was there that Officer Freeman of the local police department took the youth's stepfather to identify the body.

The accident occurred while Kocaba and several companions were swimming off the Carteret Oil Company dock.

"Can you swim?" asked one of the boys along the shore. "Sure," replied Kocaba, diving into the water. Swimming for a few minutes, Kocaba became exhausted. Joseph Babicky, of 49 John Street, seeing the youth in distress about one hundred feet off the shore, went to his rescue. Babicky got a good grip on Kocaba but the latter fought with such force that Babicky went down with him.

In an effort to save both fellows Michael Babicky, of 13 Somerset street, plunged into the sound. He managed to bring Joseph to the shore. Kocaba was gone. Joseph Babicky was revived after half an hour. Other bathers dived for Kocaba, but without success.

Acting Chief of Police Joseph J. Dowling was notified of the accident and he organized a searching party which included Sergeant John Andrew, Officers Bradley and Freeman. Members of the marine division of the New York Police dragged the sound all afternoon without recovering the body.

Fire Chief William Tempamy will attend both the meetings.

"Blaze O Glory" Is a Late Release of War Drama Starring Eddie Dowling, Comedian.

Carteret Post, No. 236, American Legion will present a show at the Ritz Theatre on Monday evening, August 25th and through the efforts of Mr. Maurice Spewak have been successful in booking one of the latest releases in talking pictures "Blaze O Glory" a singing and talking picture of the stage and trenches, starring Eddie Dowling, the well known musical comedy star.

It was written by Renaul Hoffman from a short story called "Long Shot", by Thomas A. Boyd and the leading lady is Betty Compton, the outstanding hit of the talking screen Frank Darro, a star at the age of ten and Henry B. Walthall, famous stage and screen actor, has an important dramatic role.

"Blaze O Glory" has the late war as a background, but it is not a war picture. It shows the psychological effect of war upon some of its characters. Opening on the stage of the theatre, it takes the audience back into the dressing rooms, then into the trenches of the great war, back in a New York home and winds up with a terrific climax in a New York court room.

It has been endorsed by various patriotic organizations, churches and women's clubs and the following statement was made by the Secretary of the Bronx Chapter, Gold Star Mothers to go herself and send her friends to see "Blaze O Glory." "It is grand and thrilling entertainment and shows most vividly what war does to the sons of mothers. It is eloquent plea for the cause of peace and will help to awake America to the plight of its war maimed veterans"

The Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Benson, of Trenton, are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Benson, of Atlantic street.

Mrs. Walter Vonah, of Heald Street, spent Monday at Red Bank where she attended a birthday anniversary party in honor of her mother.

LOTTERY TICKETS SOLD HERE, FAKE

Dispose of Many Worthless Tickets on Strength of Fake Reports of Prize Won Here.

Following the fake report that George Mazola, of 65 Sharrow Street, was the winner of the Grand Prize of the Canadian Lottery, amounting to $50,000.00, a number of not too scrupulous young men have invaded the borough selling lottery tickets, many of which are a fake and not good in any lottery.

A big uprising was marked in the racket since Sunday. Some reports have it that one of the ambitious lottery boys telephoned in the fake report that Mazola won $50,000 on a Canadian lottery ticket. All the Metropolitan newspapers carried the announcement.

Aided by this report of the big winning, a swarm of the lottery boys made a house to house canvass and disposed of tickets to shoe repairmen, merchants, laborers, waiters, housewives and factory girls. With them they carried newspaper clippings to "convince" the buyers.

According to reports, the salesmen of the lottery tickets gets 35 cents from the "syndicate" which keeps the rest for the trouble in getting the small slips of paper printed.

It is said that some of the high powered "sales boys" have gotten wise to the scheme, form their own "syndicate", and by printing the certificates can coin all the money for themselves. One of the salesmen is said to have cleaned up several hundred dollars in the past two weeks.

Mazola, who gained fame over night, is busy opening his mail. All the real estate developers have sent him alluring circulars describing their properties, insurance agents advised him to put the money in insurance; boys have asked for a little help to finish their education and girls would appreciate a little money to fill up their hope chests.

Sensible Mazola did not take the report seriously, consequently when he found out that the report was a fake, he and Mrs. Mazola did not lose any sleep over it.

TIRE ROLLING IS NEW KIND OF TEST

Group of Six Boys Take to Tire Rolling as Endurance Test. But One Bike Team Left.

With the endurance craze at its height among the youngsters in the borough, one group of six boys have started a new stunt, rolling an automobile tire about the streets. The boys started their rolling yesterday morning and according to the enthusiasm displayed they intend to keep the tire going till school opens.

In this team are Walter Colgan, Stanley Hadyk, Walter Bezuplak, Frank Mihalko, George Waslyak, John Mihalko.

The Chrome avenue endurance bicyclists have the field to themselves and their manager, Stanley Smith, says they will keep at it until they have made a big record. They began riding on July 23, at 10 A. M. One bicycle only is used. Each rider is given a rubdown at the end of his trick and there are rigid rules regarding food and rest. Phillip Diederich is superintendent of the contest.

The Pershing avenue riders gave up the contest Monday when one of their members quit and left town. Their bicycle is also worn out. There was a rumor that Councilman John J. Lyman would provide them with a new wheel and that they would start a new test tomorrow. A team in Woodbridge quit last week as did another team in Perth Amboy. The withdrawal of these teams and the Pershing avenue group leaves the Chrome avenue team the only one in this section of the county. The members of the Chrome avenue team are Jack Smith, Frank Smith, Frank Sosnowski, Chester Kranzinski and Stephen Alec.

LADY DEMOCRATS TO MEET

Lady Democrats will hold their regular monthly meeting at No. 1 fire house. A big attendance is expected as the political activities for the fall campaign will soon start.

Charles Thatcher, Edward Kearny, Arthur Lyman and Thomas Donovan comprise the committee for the dance of St. Joseph's Athletic Club to be held on Saturday night, August 30.

Mrs. J. B. O'Donnell, of Carteret avenue, went to New York Monday to meet her sister, Miss Margaret Finn, who returned from Scotland after a visit of three months.

Mrs. John Medwick, of Leick avenue, returned home from Boston, Mass., where she visited for a few days.

William Staubach, of Pershing avenue, has returned from a tour of the New England States and Canada with the Crusader Boy Singers.

President Hoover recently signed the Rivers and Harbors Bill authorizing an expenditure of $1,500,000 for the execution of waterway improvements in New Jersey. In this program is included the provisions for a preliminary survey of the Rahway River from its mouth to the Milton avenue bridge in Rahway. Tentative plans to dredge the river to a suitable depth for navigation with a 35 foot channel and to straighten the course of the river will be included in the survey.

The provisions including the Rahway River project in the appropriations bill have been accomplished through the efforts of the Rahway River Harbor Commission, Congressman Harold Hoffman and Congressman Ackerman.

Members of the Rahway River Commission, who are directly responsible for all the preliminary work done, and who have met as far back as 1927, are today seeing the fruits of their seemingly useless efforts. It was through the tireless efforts of Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill, John H. Nevill, Councilman Frank Andres, Hercules Ellis, Walter E. Vonah, Samuel E. Brown, Edward J. Coughlin, William D'Zurilla, President of the Commission Jules Verne, N. A. Palermo, L. A. Watson, Attorney Emerson and Judge Whittamore. Rahway was represented in the Commission by Mayor Fyfe, George Beechle and H. Jardine.

Mayor Mulvihill's interest in the improvement of the Rahway River can be best told as he expressed himself at the last meeting held in the Commission in the Cross Keys Inn, in Rahway, on Thursday evening, June 16th, 1927. He said, "If the possibilities of a deep water channel in the Rahway River can be realized, it will mean more people for Carteret, more business for Carteret and more prosperity for Carteret. "Almost all the waterfront property in Carteret is bought up" he said. "Now we must look for the development of the Rahway River to afford suitable sites for new industries to settle in the borough"

Carteret has a waterfront property on the banks of the Rahway river as any of the municipalities interested in the Harbor possibilities of the river and with the already partial development of Carteret Park and private properties in East Rahway, the section has untold possibilities of becoming the borough's leading section.

CAPITAL STARTS VAST PARK PLAN

Preservation of Historic Sites Included in Project at Washington

Washington.—With the appropriation by congress of the first installment of an authorized total of $33,000,000 for park purposes in and around the National Capital, including the George Washington Memorial parkway, a long-cherished hope is being translated into a certainty.

Without further delay surveys now may be undertaken and preliminary work begun on a park project which will reward the efforts of those who have been urging for years completion of a program made years ago for the beautification of Washington and its environs.

Nothing like the proposed memorial parkway in natural beauty and historic charm, it is said, could be developed anywhere else in this country. No European city, according to the late Viscount James Bryce, has "so noble a cataract" in its vicinity as the Great Falls of the Potomac, which is the crowning glory of the 15-mile stretch of the Upper Potomac valley now forever preserved as a national monument.

Dedications Expected in 1932.

Included within the parkway is the Mount Vernon Memorial highway from Washington to Mount Vernon, authorized two years ago, now in process of construction, and completion of which is promised in time for the George Washington Bicentennial in 1932.

It is hoped that dedication at least of the memorial parkway, which ultimately will include also another highway, from Fort Washington to Great Falls on the Maryland side, and a bridge across the Potomac at or near Great Falls may be a feature of the bicentennial celebration.

The memorial parkway will extend from Mount Vernon to a point above Great Falls and will include both shores and the hill sides along both banks of the Potomac, the gorge in the vicinity of which Capt. John Smith 300 years ago found "beares, deere and other beasts" and argall, an animal which, from his description, probably was a bison.

Canal Built by Washington.

Within its limits are the site and remains of the historic "Powtomack" canal, built on the Virginia side of the river under the direction of George Washington, and traces of other engineering works of the young Virginian, as well as the spot where he camped with Braddock.

The scenery of the entire area is remarkable for its variety and grandeur. It is a region of crags and cataracts, rock cliffs surmounted by towering trees, wild valleys and waterfalls and runs, a roaring river and quiet pools, rapids and rocks, culminating far above the canyon's lower portal, in the Great Falls.

Then the Potomac plunges down in a series of small falls extending over a mile and dropping from terrace to terrace, the roar of the rushing waters contrasting with the broad and placid stream rippling past the Lincoln Memorial a few miles away.

"The Potomac," wrote James Bryce, "has two kinds of beauty—the beauty of the upper stream murmuring over a rocky bed between bold heights crowned with woods, and the beauty of the wide expanse spread out like a lake below the city into a vast sheet of silver."

The Great Falls he referred to as "a magnificent piece of scenery which you will, of course, always preserve."

Saving of Falls to the Nation.

Only within the last few weeks, however, were the steps finally taken to protect and preserve the falls from sacrifice to a power project, which was averted by passage of the Capper-Cramton bill providing for the acquisition, establishment and development of the George Washington Memorial parkway as a "requisite" to the "comprehensive park, parkway and playground system of the National Capital."

The act authorizes the appropriation of $16,000,000 for the purchase and development of lands within the District of Columbia, and of $7,500,000 to be expended on a fifty-fifty basis for land to be acquired in the adjoining states of Virginia and Maryland.

In order to make it possible to acquire with a minimum of delay properties which are daily and rapidly rising in value, it is provided that the money may be advanced in required amounts and reimbursed to the United States without interest at the rate of $1,000,000 a year by the district from any funds to its credit in the United States treasury, and also without interest, by the two adjoining states, within a period of not more than eight years, of any sums in excess of the contribution of the United States.

Cramton's Plea for Historic Sites.

The bill was ranked as an emergency measure by Representative Louis C. Cramton of Michigan, who first introduced it in the house in December, 1928. In urging its passage at the last session, he declared that it represented no new policy, but sought only to make effective plans long since prepared and approved, but "disastrously slow in realization."

"That which man made, man may replace, and when he will," Mr. Cramton said. "But the beauties of nature man cannot restore when once destroyed."

"Those woods which Washington loved are disappearing; those charming ravines are being leveled, those palisades of the Potomac are daily scenes of blasting that rob them of their primeval beauty. While we make a reality of the dreams of l'Enfante in carrying forward man-made beauties we must not permit the beautiful scenic realities of Washington's time to become only mourned memories."

He warned the house that the $16,000,000 estimated by the National Capital Park and Planning commission as the minimum allowance for the lands to be acquired in the District of Columbia should be made immediately available to forestall the erection of buildings which would bring the value of the properties far above the estimated figure.

Drive Linking Forts of 1851.

Perhaps the most important single project in the district plan, according to Mr. Cramton, is the "Fort Boulevard" following the hills and circling the city and connecting the Civil war forts, generally referred to as the Fort-to-Fort drive, and covering a distance of 22.8 miles from Conduit road to Blue Plains.

Of this proposed drive or continuous parkway, the commission reported in 1929:

"The Civil war forts around Washington were built on hills and ridges which commanded distant views. The historic interest attaching to the 'defenses of Washington,' and the remarkable views obtainable from the old forts has led to a demand that these sites should be held by the public for park purposes."

Delay already has considerably abridged the Fort-to-Fort drive, plans for which were made and approved as far back as 1901. Local real estate developments have made impossible the carrying out of the original plan but there is still the possibility of securing an unusual and interesting circumferential parkway joining a chain of local parks containing the old Civil war forts, "a very stunning park project," according to Col. U. S. Grant III, executive officer of the commission.

Problem of Rising Land Values.

The total cost of the lands required for park purposes within the District of Columbia was estimated by Colonel Grant in December, 1928, at about $10,000,000, and increasing at the rate of from $900,000 to $1,000,000 a year.

In emphasizing this feature of the problem, Representative Cramton reminded the house that Central park, purchased in 1857 for $5,000,000, and improved at a cost of $10,000,000, over the opposition of those who contended that it was so far out and the horse-drawn street cars were so slow that few people could go to it from lower New York, now is valued at "some where between the $590,000,000 estimated by the assessors, and $3,000,000,000, the selling price which would be asked by conservative real estate men if the property were for sale."

Maryland and Virginia authorities are co-operating with unanimity and enthusiasm in the program worked out by the National Capital Park and Planning commission for the acquisition and development of the George Washington Memorial parkway, the extension of Rock Creek park into Maryland and of the Anacostia river, Indian creek, the northwest branch and Sligo creek, and have raised funds considerably in excess of $100,000 awaiting the legislation just enacted by congress.

Try Out Six-Wheeled

Motor Busses in Rome

Washington.—Successful tests of a new six-wheel motor bus which may be used to supplant tram cars in Rome are announced in a report to the Department of Commerce by the American consul at Turin, William W. Heard. An authorized summary of the report follows in full text:

Fiat has recently placed on the market a new six-wheel bus which has a capacity of 55 to 60 seats in the single deck type and a capacity of 100 seats in the double-deck type.

The frame is exceptionally low and has special springs for the suspension. The four rear wheels provide the traction. The total length is ten meters (32.8 feet) and the width two meters (6.56 feet).

A number of the new busses have been tried out in the city of Rome where it is understood they will supplant the ordinary tram cars. Successful trials were held on Moncenisio, a road having a maximum grade of 14 per cent, the bus carrying a dead weight load of 70,400 pounds.

Remember When you change your oil TIMES CHANGE

Cars have changed . . . high compression motors, smaller cylinders, faster speeds, more revolutions per minute. And greater strain on your motor calls for tougher, longer-life motor oil. PAN-AM is first to bring it to you. A new triple-refined motor oil . . . new but already tested for over a million gruelling miles.

Hundreds of stock cars, lubricated with new PAN-AM motor oils, were driven in extremes of heat and cold. Every test gave proof that PAN-AM is today's motor oil . . . stands up under fire . . . fights heat and friction.

Triple-refining has removed impurities that stiffen up in cold motors. Triple-refining brings you a motor oil that cuts carbon in half and gives you extra mileage for every quart.

Prove it yourself in your motor. Drive to the nearest PAN-AM station today to have your oil changed. And remember times change . . . modern motors make terrific demands on motor oils . . . and PAN-AM keeps pace.

A MILLION MILES OF ROAD TESTS

Through Cold

Down to zero and below. PAN-AM gave instant, smooth lubrication.

Many motor oils thicken at freezing temperatures. PAN-AM's triple-refining process removes wax-like particles. No matter how cold, PAN-AM motor oil answers, "Ready!"

Through Heat

Test cars driven over scorching roads.

Down in the motor . . . greater heat. Up go the revolutions per minute. Up goes the temperature of every moving part. PAN-AM "stands up under fire" at temperatures far above ordinary motor-heat.

Stands Up

The long grind is over . . . long past the life of ordinary motor oil. Rigid examination showed that PAN-AM kept its full body and color.

PAN-AM motor-tested motor oil stands up like a soldier full of fight . . . and ready to "keep going."

Less Carbon

PAN-AM oils proved, in the motors, that they deposit 50% less carbon, by actual weight, than other high-class motor oils.

PAN-AM means cleaner motors. Less grinding of valves. Smaller repair bills. Longer life for your motor.

CONVICTS GOVERN SELVES IN ISLE OF PINES PRISON

Infractions of the Rules Are Investigated by Prisoners—School Maintained.

Isle of Pines, Cuba.—The "presidio modelo" or model prison here is well named. Many wardens and prison boards in the United States could well afford to see how Cuba maintains this prison for 2,800 men.

The five buildings housing these men are of unique construction, circular in design. Each cell opens into a court and the air is always fresh and pure as a large window allows the sunlight in each cell sometime during the day. Modern sanitary facilities, a cot and chair are the furnishings in each cell, which contains only one man.

No guards are found inside the buildings. The prisoners govern themselves. Whenever a prisoner breaks a rule, an investigator is selected by the prisoners from among themselves to investigate and report to a jury of five prisoners; who try the case and report to the warden, Captain Costello.

A wall about three feet high surrounds the prison. If any prisoner attempts to escape he is shot without warning.

There is no pampering nor prisoners' aid societies. A school is maintained, but attendance is not compulsory. The prisoners make all of their own clothes and shoes, raise all foodstuffs and build additional prison sections as needed.

It costs the government 20 cents a day to 1.40. Dinner, breakfast at 5 a. m. consists of bread and coffee. The mid-day meal at 11 usually contains one fresh vegetable, a thick porridge, bread and coffee. Supper is about the same with meat substituted for the porridge. The whole atmosphere of this prison is more like a training school than a prison.

Police Find Some Hot News in Laws of City

Colorado Springs, Colo.—Stodious members of the Colorado Springs police department have found several laws in the city code that were "news" to them.

When one member of the department discovered the city fathers in the old days had ruled it was illegal to throw old shoes at a newly married couple the search for antiquated laws started.

Other discoveries included:

- No man or woman shall carry fire or any kind of an open flame on any public street. (A person lighting a cigarette would be subject to arrest).
- No flag or banner, bunting, or like insignia and legend shall be placed in public parks. (The American flag is not excepted).
- Ladies' hats shall not protrude more than an inch from the head. (The police have found no violator of this ordinance.)
- No person shall cut his or her hair on the city streets.
- And, just to make the problem more perplexing—there is an ordinance requiring all officers to enforce the law.

Seven-Floor Fall Only Breaks Teeth

Stockholm.—Revising the case of Humpty Dumpty, a Stockholm roofer, recently fell seven stories to the street without causing himself more damage than a broken tooth. The workman, Tore Fredelin by name, was nailing plates on the edge of a mansard roof, when the plank he stood on gave away and he tumbled to earth.

He said later that he remembered striking many beams before he reached the ground, but he remained conscious throughout. Passers-by who had watched him fall could hardly believe their eyes when they saw Fredelin unconcernedly pick himself up and brush off his clothes.

Many Business Concerns Quit When Hit by Fire

Chicago.—Forty-three per cent of American business firms that suffer from destructive fires every year never resume business, according to a survey made public here by the American Research Foundation.

"Forty-four per cent undergo drastic reductions in credit ratings," the survey disclosed, "and 17 per cent no longer furnish statements after a fire. Only 26 per cent, who by safeguarding their property in advance by the use of fireproof precautions are not affected in their business rating by fire."

Crucifix 600 Years Old Found in Swede Church

Stockholm.—A six-hundred-year-old crucifix, the oldest in Sweden, has been discovered hanging behind the organ in the ancient church of Ovanstio, in the northern province of Gestrikland. The cross has just undergone a thorough repair at the hands of an expert here and has been subjected to a study by the government antiquarian, Sigurd Curman, who determined its age. It will henceforth occupy a prominent place in the church.

Russian Foreman Must Die for Hurting Tools

Tver, U. S. S. R.—Because he attempted to spoil the machinery in a textile factory where he was foreman, Peter Ivanov has just been condemned to die by shooting as a counter-revolutionist.

Workers in the factory testified that the foreman had deliberately disrupted machines in order to prevent production. The court held that his actions were not merely criminal but aimed ultimately to hurt the Soviet regime by tearing down its economic program. He was therefore sentenced to death.

QUAKES DUE TO SHAKE MIDWEST

Scientists Declare That the Floods Are Unbalancing Earth's Crust.

Washington.—An earthquake of perhaps catastrophic proportions may be expected at any time in the Mississippi valley, according to documents and testimony of leading scientists just made available through publication in the Congressional Record.

Constant erosion of the soil by annual floods is unbalancing the earth's crust and violent upheavals extending all the way from the mouth of the Missouri to the delta jutting out into the Gulf of Mexico are due, the scientists say.

Among the prominent authorities quoted are Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the United States geological survey; Myron L. Fuller, an associate of Dr. Smith; F. W. Sinton, S. J., of the Georgetown university geological observatory; J. A. Jollat, associate professor of the department of geophysics of St. Louis university; and Prof. William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan.

Much Earth Shifting.

Their views were placed in the Record by Representatives Garber and Stone of Oklahoma. In support of the reservoir system of Mississippi river flood control against the present levee system, Mr. Stone explained that the volume of earth now being carried down the Mississippi river and deposited in the Gulf of Mexico amounts to about 400,000,000 cubic yards each year, or a quantity equal to the total excavation for the Panama canal.

"You may consider this alarming," said Mr. Stone, "but if you study the question you will find the Mississippi valley is constantly threatened with a real danger, one that demands serious consideration. An earthquake is not only possible but very probable and may occur at any time."

It is a historical fact that the most severe earthquake ever recorded in the United States occurred in 1811 with its center near the mouth of the Ohio river. Scientists speak of it as the New Madrid earthquake. It was even more severe than the destructive shock at Charleston, S. C., in 1886. That the loss in life was small was due only to the fact that the country at that time was very sparsely settled.

"Today millions reside in this district and would be directly affected should a similar disturbance visit the Mississippi valley," says the geological survey. "The loss of life and property damage would be appalling."

There is an abundance of evidence, geological and otherwise, that similar earthquakes have been occurring in the New Madrid area about every hundred years. In fact, says the survey, "we have also subsequent to the shock of 1811 records of a long line of minor disturbances continuing to the present time, showing that the crust is even now in unstable equilibrium."

Visions Sea Menace.

Geological survey officials say that a quake of the intensity of the 1811 shock would be disastrous to a number of small cities in the New Madrid section; that the cities of Cairo and Memphis also would suffer probably severely; that St. Louis probably would be badly shaken.

Doctor Smith thinks it probable that an earthquake may take place farther down the river "in the vicinity of the Gulf coast." Congressman Stone interprets this to mean "the mouth of the Mississippi."

"Should the lower delta country be visited by an earthquake," says Stone, "the result might be compared to the great Lisbon disaster, which threw down the principal part of the city. The sea retired and instantly returned in a wave 40 feet high, engulfing the great marble quay. In the space of six minutes 50,000 persons perished."

Doctor Jollat announced that the University of St. Louis has undertaken an intensive study of the earthquakes in the New Madrid region. Three sets of specially designed seismographs are being set up to record earth tremors at close range. St. Xavier college, to the northeast of Cincinnati, is also operating a pair of sensitive seismographs.

Raze Hotel Famous in Alaskan Gold Stampede

Seattle, Wash.—Demolition of the West's most noted hotel has been started to make way for the new $5,000,000 federal building here. Constructed immediately after the fire of 1889, the Rainier-Grand has been the temporary home of many, including Presidents.

Among the furnishings to be saved are the mahogany bar, stained glass trimmings and scales on which was weighed much of the Klondike gold in the days of '98. Every prospector who came back with a poke of gold began to unload the yellow metal at the Rainier-Grand.

Arkansas May Lose One of Representatives

Little Rock, Ark.—Arkansas probably will lose one of its congressional districts under the reapportionment that will take place when the national census is completed. The growth of the state's population in the last decade was less than 6 per cent and a shifting population probably will reduce the congressional representatives from seven to six.

OIL FORTUNES FAIL TO SPOIL TEXANS

Old Cattlemen Build Up Ranches, Live Simply.

Odessa, Texas.—Production of oil has brought millions of dollars to land owners of Texas. In every oil field there is a fund of human interest stories on the effect which the unexpected acquisition of riches has had upon various landholders.

Although there are in Texas a number of multi-millionaires who were in poor circumstances until the black gold began flowing from wells upon their land, none of them has attempted a spectacular role, such as was credited to "Coal Oil Johnny" of Pennsylvania pioneer days, or to Governor A. W. Tabor of Colorado, silver king, or to the mysterious "Scotty" of Death valley fame.

Ira W. Yates, who owns the land upon which the famous Yates field in Pecos county is situated, during the last four years has piled up a fortune of more than $8,000,000 from oil royalties. Mr. Yates now makes his home in San Antonio, more than 400 miles from the scene of his 40 years of ranch labors.

Yates Interested in Cattle.

His primary interest since his wealth came to him has been to buy ranches and stock them with high-grade white-face cattle. He now has several ranches in southwest Texas to which he devotes his time. He was on the verge of going bankrupt in the cattle business at the time the discovery of oil was made upon his Pecos county ranch.

Tom Hendrick, of Odessa, is another outstanding producer who has not let money turn his head. Mr. Hendrick, like Mr. Yates, has been ranching in West Texas for more than 40 years. The deflation of the cattle business following the close of the World War brought disaster, and his ranch in Winkler county became loaded with debt. Then came the oil strike. In a short time he had piled up a fortune of more than $3,000,000. The Hendrick oil field is second in importance to the Yates field.

Travel and large cities have no lure for Mr. and Mrs. Hendrick. In his ranching days Odessa was his trading place, and it was to this town that he moved when fortune smiled upon him. He built a small home here. He has one outstanding hobby. It is that of creating a wild game preserve.

Creates Wild Game Preserve.

He recently purchased 5,000 acres of land three miles from Odessa and fenced it with closely webbed wire, so that no kind of animal could get out and no predatory animal could get in. He has already stocked it with a small herd of buffalo, and is now negotiating for a herd of antelope, Deer and other wild animals native to West Texas will also be obtained and turned loose upon the small ranch.

Many persons in Texas are land poor; that is, they own land which is non-productive and from which only a bare revenue can be obtained by farming. In practically every oil field in Texas, and there are more than 40 recognized fields or pools, there were many poor landowners, each of whom has acquired fortunes ranging from $50,000 to $500,000 from oil royalties.

Hornets Fly 6 Miles to Sea; Put Out Gas Buoys

Boston.—Hornets are doing off shore cruising this season, the gas buoys off Cape Ann and Nauset, Cape Cod, having recently been extinguished by the insects creeping under the hood and lenses.

The captain of the steamship Camden recently reported that the Cape Ann gas buoy was not burning and the lighthouse tender Azalea was ordered to investigate. When the first officer of the tender opened the hood hundreds of hornets flew out and he was severely stung. He caught some of the hornets and presented them to Captain Eaton, superintendent of lighthouses, as evidence.

The buoy is six miles off shore.

Newlyweds' Callers Stage Big Rat Killing Bee

Jonesboro, Ark.—You can fetch the pride of some people by entertaining with a lifeless party, but persons who attended a courtesy to a young married couple here recently were unbeatable. Aggravated with the routine of a social, the men folk hoisted stray clubs and chased rats about the barn and corn cribs at the home. In an hour 150 rats were dead.

Cat and Bird Call Truce

Middletown, N. Y.—A cat and a bird called a temporary truce here and amused passers-by who saw the bird alight on the cat's back for a short ride across a lawn. The bird appeared to take delight in flying back and forth from its unusual perch.

Lion Carrying Trap Killed by Hunter

Durango, Colo.—Eulick Maitlen, a trapper working in this vicinity, told of suddenly finding himself face to face with a huge mountain lion, infuriated after carrying a trap on his hind leg for two days. Maitlen sent two bullets crashing into the animal's skull, killing it.

FARM CENSUS TO COVER WORLD

International Institute of Agriculture at Work on Huge Task.

Washington.—At last the dream of David Lubin is coming true. For the first time in history a world census of agricultural resources, for the same year under the same plan, is now being taken. Some of the figures will soon be available, the others to be released as they are compiled within the next two years. For the first time comparable statistical data will be available for all countries.

This is especially important in regard to live stock, the numbers of which change greatly from year to year. It is obviously impracticable to compare the live stock figures for the United States in 1925, for instance, with those of Argentina in 1914, but that is what statisticians in the past have been doing, because there were available no figures for comparative purposes.

Cut Out Guesswork.

This remarkable counting of heads of all the live stock of the world and the totaling of all the bushels of grain and barrels of potatoes will mean thousands of dollars in the pockets of those who deal in such commodities. To the housewife it means that the prices she pays for meats, vegetables, fruits, other foodstuffs and for her cottons, linens and silks will probably be based more nearly on the relative amounts of those commodities available rather than on some dealer's guess or rough estimate of what is available.

In addition to serving as a guide to all public agencies engaged in encouraging the production of food and raw materials, the census and statistical data will give information concerning the supply and demand for food, clothing and many raw materials. It is recognized that the prices the consumer pays and the producer receives is largely determined by the relative supply and demand for any commodity.

Started by Lubin.

This census is being undertaken under the auspices of the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, of which the United States is a member. The director of the world census project is an American—Dr. Leon M. Estabrook, agricultural commissioner of the United States Department of Agriculture, who has been loaned to the International Institute. The countries which have participated in the census, or have promised co-operation, comprise more than 97 per cent of the earth's surface.

David Lubin of Sacramento, Calif., among the earliest to establish a fixed price for merchandise in America, projected the International Institute of Agriculture and spent many years of his life in getting his ideas before government heads.

Ficks Bride From Album; Crosses Sea to Wed Her

Blackpool, England.—Looking through the album of an English friend in Chicago, D. E. Goodrich of 6042 Kimbark avenue, Chicago, fell in love with the photograph of a girl. He obtained an introduction to the girl by letter. Photographs were exchanged. More letters followed.

Goodrich journeyed to Blackpool and saw the girl for the first time. Their engagement was announced. On June 24 Goodrich married Miss Doris Sudall at the Raikes Parade Wesleyan church, Blackpool.

The romance and wedding had been kept secret, but it eventually became known to a number of friends, who crowded the church and gave the couple a great reception. The home of the bride being opposite the church, the couple walked across the carpeted roadway, which was strewn with roses.

Drayman Loses Horses; Kills Self With Knife

London.—Walter Sharp, fifty-five, a brewer's drayman, was proud of the pair of horses he had charge of. They were always sleek, well brushed and well fed. Illness kept him away from his work for seven months. On his return he was offered a job with the same company but the work was inside.

Sharp walked slowly into the stables, stroked the noses of his former friends, returned home and committed suicide by slashing his throat.

Named for Battles

Doncaster, England.—Inkerman Se bastopol Alma Balaclava Cave, fifty found dead in his shop here, was named after battles of the Crimean war by his father, a recruiting officer.

Barber Shop Wrecked by Wild Automobile

Jackson, Ohio.—Luckily no one was getting a shave when Pat Duncan, baseball player, elected to visit a barber shop here. To escape being struck by an electric interurban train, Duncan drove his car through the front of the shop, wrecking chairs, stoves and the proprietor's nerves. Both escaped without a scratch.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Murder of Grand Duke Peter

SURROUNDED by a cloud of rumor and concealed in a haze of official secrecy, the murder of the Grand Duke Peter, husband of Catherine II of Russia, remains one of the many unsolved mysteries connected with that country, particularly since it is coupled with the personality of one of the most remarkable figures in the annals of royalty—Catherine the Great.

The story of Catherine II, the Semiramis of the North as her contemporaries delighted in calling her, is revolting not only because it is the story of a prodigious woman but its deepest horror is to be found in the extreme corruption of the age and people to which the empress belonged. Peter the Great said of his country: "Russia is rotten before she is ripe" and to realize the true meaning of these words and the fullness of their implication, one must study in detail the reigns of Elizabeth and Catherine II. Never was there such a mixture of squalor and magnificence as in the palace of the former. Filth and splendor alternated throughout the royal apartments and the vilest food was eaten from plates of gold.

The first question concerning Catherine, therefore, is whether she corrupted Russia or Russia corrupted her when, as a girl of eighteen, she came from Germany to marry the Grand Duke Peter, heir to the Russian throne. At the time, the Empress Elizabeth, who ruled Russia as a usurper and kept the rightful czar in prison, was morally as corrupt as Catherine became in later years and added drunkenness, gross superstition, cruelty and insanity to her other vices. Yet, at the mere word of this frenzied empress, torture or an exile that meant worse than death, could at any moment be pronounced as lightly and as easily against the heir to the throne as against the poorest peasant.

An even more revolting figure was that of the grand duke himself. "A half-crazed savage in a wig and lace coat," "a swaggering, ensign, brawling, punch-swilling ruffian," "a royal degenerate to whom nothing was sacred save his own wishes"—these are some of the descriptions of the man to whom Catherine was given as wife. Left absolutely alone in such surroundings and with such a husband, there is little wonder that Catherine not only became corrupted but outdid the corruptions in which she found herself.

In daily and almost hourly peril from the insane fancies of the empress, Catherine may well have experienced the deadening effects produced by the loss of all security and, with respect to the question as to whether she might justifiably be accused of the murder of her husband, it is only necessary to refer to the notes of Wallisewski, Polish historian who made a deep study of the facts in the case of this strange household. "Peter remains the same gross, extravagant and insupportable being that he has always been," says Wallisewski, "A strange brute streaked with insanity," according to St. Beuve's expression, and he still knows how to make himself thoroughly odious. Frequently he comes to bed dead drunk and, between hicoughs, speaks to his wife of his favorite topics—his amours with the duchess of Courland, a hunchback, or with Freiline Voronstaf, who is marked with smallpox. If Catherine attempts to go to sleep he pummels her with his hands and feet to keep her awake until sleep overcomes him. He is almost always drunk and becomes more and more mad."

The first step in the downfall of this royal brute was his removal from the throne at the undoubted instigation of his wife, a removal which was followed by his virtual banishment to his country home at Ropcha where he died, officially of "apoplexy" but in reality as the result of a direct plot against his life. The fact that the murderers dared to act as openly as they did and that no attempt was made to prosecute them indicates that Catherine had shown that the permanent removal of the grand duke would not be distasteful to her. The truth about the affair has, however, never fully come to light, for Catherine had no need even to defend herself. Her rule was absolute and she doubtless destroyed any records which would tend to implicate her with one of the not infrequent murder mysteries of the royal families of Europe.

Pilgrims Using Buses

Since religious pilgrims of Persia have been prohibited, for political reasons, from going to Kerbela, which is in Iraq, they must, if possible, visit Meshed or Kum, so they have abandoned the picturesque caravan for auto bus travel. Teheranis have found that they can make the journey and return home in ten days instead of two months as in the old way.

Obedience

Kathrine Kestksl, Red agitator, said, ament domestic relations: "I asked of a young American bride: 'Did not you and your husband have words over you coming to the beach alone? I understand that he did not want you to come.' " "Oh, no," said the bride, "we didn't have any words. I said I was going; he said I wasn't, and here I am."

Tree Grows From Tomb

The parish church of Kempsey, Worcestershire, England, contains a chestnut tree which grows from the tomb of Sir Edward Wilde. The school children of the village used to sit in the chancel. It is said that on one occasion the teacher found a pupil eating a chestnut and that he snatched it away and threw it behind the tomb, where it took root and flourished.

No Pockets for Money

The natives of New Guinea have no pockets in which to carry their pocket change. From time immemorial they have carried their money, consisting of shells and beads, on strings around their necks. Accordingly when the British government issued new pennies to take the place of the native money the coins were perforated so that the natives could carry their money on strings or wear it for earrings.—Pathfinder Magazine.

CLERK QUESTION IS STILL UNSETTLED

Coughlin and Bradford Insist On Acting While Board Is In Quandry--To Execute Writ To Compel Custodian To Honor Vouchers

At a meeting of the Board of Education Wednesday night, held in the High School, President of the Board Theodore A. Bishop reported that the law committee authorized legal steps against Custodian of School Funds, Charles A. Brady, to compel him to honor vouchers. A writ of mandamus was obtained in the supreme court which is returnable next Tuesday. This is sought as a relief to the clerkship wrangle which has existed since the present Republican majority have declared the term of William V. Coughlin, expired and named as his successor, Lewis N. Bradford, who was to have taken office on July 1st.

Coughlin, claiming the right to continue as district clerk sat on one side of the table, while Commissioner Lewis N. Bradford, Republican, named by the majority as clerk occupied the seat of that party.

When President Theodore A. Bishop brought the meeting to order, Mr. Coughlin called the roll. The Democrats of whom there are four, answered his call, while the five Republicans remained silent. A roll call was also made by Bradford to which the Republicans responded and the Democrats remained quiet.

Mr. Coughlin took notes of his own and so did Mr. Bradford. The latter, however, handled all papers, such as communications, bills, proposals, etc., Coughlin demanded that the minutes be read, wishing it to be on the record.

It was the contention of Coughlin that all actions pertaining to the bids for school fixtures were illegal. Receipt of bids were authorized at a special meeting of the board, at which Mr. Coughlin was not present.

Bids were received for the furnishing of 236 desks to the addition at the Nathan Hale school. Believing that the commissioners should closely examine samples submitted with the bids, it was decided to postpone the award until next Wednesday night at a special session to be held for that purpose.

Proposals were submitted by S. Rosenblum and Roosevelt Furniture House, of this borough; Royal Metal Mfg. Co., Chicago; Heywood-Wakefield Co., represented by Bernard Kahn, New York; Keystone Seating Company, Pottsville, Pa.; E. L. Grover Co., Trenton, N. J., and Allied Equipment Corporation, Trenton.

The Carteret Bus Service, Inc., received the contract for the transportation of 85 children from West Carteret to the public schools and 20 pupils attending vocational schools, to the station at Rahway, on a bid of $2,850. It was the only bid submitted.

Andrew Christensen, contractor on the Nathan Hale addition called to the attention of the board that the structure should be immediately insured covering to date $75,000. Commissioner J. W. Mittuch reported that the matter had been attended to. In response to questions from Commissioner Edward J. Heil, Mr. Mittuch said that $100,000 insurance was placed for one year; $50,000.00 with Miles and Nevill and a similar amount with William Greerwald.

In a communication to the board, the Hoboken Bank for Savings questioned why two $1,000 school bonds bearing interest at four and one-half per cent, were not paid when they became due on July 15. The letter was referred to the finance committee for a report.

In accordance with a report made by Commissioner Albert Weiblund, the board rejected all coal bids received some time ago and ordered re-advertisements for bids. Delivery must be made as required from time

The lease held by the local plant on property formerly owned by the Balbach Refining Company at Jackson Avenue, Newark, and which has been operating under the direction of the United States Metals Company, for the past three years, is soon to expire, and the addition at the local plant will be used to house machinery and equipment of this branch.

Work is well under way on a building 300 feet by 80 feet by the Foster Wheeler Corp., which when completed, will be used for a pattern loft.

The structure, modern in every respect is being built of concrete and steel. It is situated in the rear end of the Foster-Wheeler industrial site and adjoining the Central Railroad tracks. Iron workers were busy there yesterday placing the structural steel units in their proper places.

John Larkin, Attacked by Negro in Leibig's

While making his rounds about the buildings of the Leibig Fertilizer Works, in Leibig lane, John Larkin, a watchman for the company, was attacked by a negro at 10:20 o'clock Wednesday night.

Larkin was cut about the scalp with a razor. It required five stitches to fix the wound. He was attended by Dr. J. J. Reason.

Larkins told the police that he was making his rounds of the plant at about 10:30 P. M., and was passing through a department known as the bag house, when he was attacked from the rear. The razor, an off-fashioned straight blade without a handle, was found near the spot.

Police searched the borough and several negroes were brought in and questioned but no arrest was made. Larkins was unable to give a description of his assailant and was not sure whether there was only one. Mr. Larkins is about 65 years old and has been a resident of the borough for many years.

TRIES TO END LIFE BY CUTTING WRIST

Despondent Over Money Losses Man Unsuccessful in Attempt to Commit Suicide.

Worrying over the loss of some money John Myers made an unsuccessful attempt to end his life at his boarding house, 25 Hudson street, shortly after 6:30 o'clock Monday morning.

Myers slashed his left wrist with a razor. Blood streamed from the man's wounded arm when another boarder entered the room. Officers Connolly and Bango were summoned. They called Dr. Samuel Messinger, who attended the man and said his condition was not serious.

Myers told the police Monday night that he had paid $325 for a correspondence course in electricity. He was required to pay the tuition fee in advance, he said, and when he received the course he did not consider it worth the money. His injury is not serious, the physicians say.

MORE GOLF COURSES

Miniature golf has hit Carteret in the same manner as other sections of the country. The borough now has three golf courses, one on Longfellow street and two at the upper Roosevelt avenue section. Reports have it that one or two more are being considered. These miniature courses, will no doubt, produce many experts for the regular golf courses and perhaps opponents for Bobby Jones.

Bernard Kahn, local furniture dealer, left yesterday for a two weeks' vacation in Atlantic City and Erie, Pennsylvania.

A conference was held yesterday in Carteret between Mayor Mulvihill and the Borough council and the local plant managers in reference to general business conditions and employment.

The Mayor, acting as spokesman, mentioned the allegations made to him and the Councilmen that Carteret residents were discriminated against in hiring and said it had even been reported Carteret men would not be hired. He said it was his purpose to bring these reports first hand to the attention of the works' managers and also to ask if they had any suggestion as to how business generally might be revived. Councilman Young, Lyman, Yuronka and Vonah spoke along the same general lines.

Mr. H. I. Haskins, resident manager of Benjamin Moore & Company, a director of that company, vice president of the Industrial Association, and a former president of the Carteret Trust Company spoke for the industries. He called attention to the fact that the present depression is world wide resulting in general unemployment throughout the country and mentioned the fact that in Europe proper, without taking in Russia's great population, the figures from Washington show ten million unemployed. He stated that the steel industries, which largely reflect the business demand, were now on but a 5 per cent basis. He alluded to the great overproduction in agriculture and the flat condition of the copper industry citing figures.

As to when business would get back to normal, he would not hazard a guess. He pointed out there was nothing fundamentally wrong with the country except that those with power to buy things, that factories and farmers were able and willing to produce seemed a bit panicky. Here he pointed out that there was more money today in savings banks of the nation than ever and that as soon as real loosening of the purse strings began conditions would improve and everyone would be benefited.

Referring to local conditions Mr. Haskins pointed out that management always wanted Carteret residents hired when they were best qualified for the jobs that were open at the time they presented themselves. He made it clear that it was perfectly possible that at the time an opening occurs that must be promptly filled that no one from the town was available with the particular experience required.

He dismissed the allegation that no Carteret residents would be hired by pointing out that in some plants over ninety per cent of the personnel is from Carteret. He stated that Carteret is off the main line railroads and highways and depends on industry for its growth. He cited the fact that though there have been no new big industries since 1910, the population has increased over 123 per cent.

The present depression started to take hold in many industrial centers well over a year ago, Mr. Haskins said. In September when it was severely felt with shut downs and part time in many parts of the country more were employed in Carteret than ever in its history and that it was not until the last few months that any real signs of this depression that had so affected the country and the world at large made its appearance locally.

He said that the president of one big American Company had just discovered that by reducing the number of days in the week for operation that more could be employed. In this connection, he pointed out that the local industries long ago adopted the policy of parceling out the work in a manner that would keep the largest number employed. He cited the fact that due to its diversified industry Carteret was not hit as hard as many centers where factories all made the same kind of goods, so that when that trade was hit everyone was out of work. He stated that no such condition ever obtained in Carteret and for the greater part of the present depression practically all of the Carteret plants were going full time. Now, with the world wide depression at its worst so far as it has gone, most industries locally are on

U. S. CLAIMS POLAR LAND AND 50 ISLES

Will Seek Control of Byr's Antarctic Discoveries.

Washington.—The United States is planning to lay claim not only to the Byrd discoveries in the Antarctic but to various islands in the Arctic and to establish ownership to some fifty islands in the Caribbean and the South seas.

While it was stated that the Arctic and Antarctic wastes are of little value or concern to the United States, this country would claim certain portions by right of discovery. Senator Tydings (D.) of Maryland has a resolution to this effect pending in the senate.

Holds Rights in Islands.

About the islands in the Caribbean little is known, and the State department is to name a commission to make a study to establish ownership. Some of them are inhabited and of considerable value as coaling bases. Others are barren and little more than coral reefs. There are also islands in the South sea group which American mariners of former days laid claim to, but which have never been placed under the American flag.

An interesting instance is the island of Roncador, off the coast of Colombia. Two years ago it was discovered that the United States was the rightful owner. It developed, however, that it was populated almost entirely by Colombians. Although the United States established its ownership, Colombia was permitted under a treaty to retain its trading station there and the United States limited its rights to erecting a lighthouse for the safety of navigation.

Would Protect Canal.

There are several such islands in the Pacific and the Atlantic adjacent to the entrance of the Panama canal and the entrance of the proposed Nicaraguan canal, which later may become of great strategic value.

The United States archives, it was stated, contain many claims of discoveries, and they are to be carefully studied with a view to flying the American flag over any which may be desirable.

"Dead" Son Back Home; Surprises Aged Father

Rulesville, Miss.—Joe Conger, forty-two, who has been "dead" for 20 years, came home recently to visit his father, Ed Conger, eighty-seven-year-old mayor of Vaiden, near here.

Mourned for dead after wandering away from home, a boy in his teens, Conger was hardly recognized when he stepped on his father's porch here to announce that "I'm living and a husband and father." He had driven up to the old homestead with his wife and two children in a fashionable motor car from his home in Los Angeles, Calif.

Joe's return was the counterpart of the prodigal son, except that a mother, sister and brother, who died during his extended absence were not there to greet him.

Conger turned vagabond more than a quarter century ago, admittedly "to see the world at seventeen." He was reported to have wandered into Texas and died.

Chicago Woman to Boss Far North Trading Post

Winnipeg, Man.—Agnes Powers, twenty-five-year-old college-trained Chicago woman and former reporter in Des Moines, Iowa, has gone through here on her way to Mile 214 on the Hudson Bay railway, frontier rail line being built by the Canadian National railways from the Pas to Churchill at tidewater close to the Arctic circle. Miss Powers, who also has been a school teacher and stenographer, will take charge of a trading post at Mile 214. Later in the summer she will go out on a prospecting expedition.

Turkey One-Year Old Lays Her 87th Egg

Point Pleasant, N. J.—Nancy, a pure-bred Jersey turkey, celebrated her first birthday at the home of her owner, Mrs. George Eckman, by laying her eighty-seventh egg.

This reproductive activity of Nancy is said to be quite unprecedented, the usual laying power of a turkey hen being not over fifteen eggs a year; but Nancy's maternal instinct goes no further, for she refuses to set.

Many poultry fanciers have visited Mrs. Eckman's place at Spring Lake Heights, five miles north of here, and made large offers for the bird; but she is counting on boosting production next year.

WOMAN BACK FROM TWELVE YEARS OF "LIVING DEATH"

Victim Who Posed as Dead Regains Her Mind; Nosebleed Sign of Recovery.

New York.—For twelve years she believed herself dead. She acted as though she were dead. To herself, she was dead.

Now she has returned to the world of the living. Such is the story that Poe would have loved to write of Miss Ida Lebowski, forty-two.

Twelve years ago drums were thumping, hobnailed shoes were crashing along pavements and harried doctors were battling with a strange new disease.

The war was on and influenza was boring from within to add to the misery of meanness and wheatless days. Miss Lebowski tossed, fever ridden, and screamed, "I'm dead!"

For twelve long years she clung to the delusion that fever had tormented her into death and she held a tragic pose of lifelessness as she lay on a bed in the Manhattan State hospital.

She closed her eyes, she shut her lips, she stilled her body and no efforts could make her do otherwise.

A nose bleed which she suffered last February 22 seemed to clear her brain. Her recovery was rapid. A few days ago a board of 35 alienists pronounced her cured.

How will she start life over again? She has no idea. She is too excited at the sight of the rushing world which she renounced. Talkies, ice cream sodas, airplanes, skyscrapers—things new and things forgotten amid the stillness, are making each day an ecstasy. She said:

"Everything is too wonderful for me to even think. It will be days before I get my bearings. Pictures that talk! It's a miracle. And a greater miracle still is that I'm back with my relatives and friends. My one wish is that those other unfortunates in the hospital may some day, too, come back from their living death."

Rare Food Plant Is Found in California

Washington.—A food plant growing wild in quantity in the desert hills of southeastern California, where rainfall is as little as two to six inches a year, has been discovered by plant scientists of the Department of Agriculture.

The plant, known as ammobroma, or "sand-root," had not been seen by white man before 1928, according to information. Frank A. Thackery and M. French Gilman, of the department, at that time found it growing on an area of about 200 square miles on the east side of the Colorado desert in southeastern California, and on an equal area in Sonora, Mexico. They learned that from time immemorial the Papago Indians had been eating it either fresh or dried.

Ammobroma flowers, but has only rudimentary leaves. It saps most of its food from the roots of small desert shrubs and grows 10 to 20 times as large as its host, but does not stunt the host.

Firemen Rescue Cat in Fight With Robin Flock

Augusta, Maine.—The local fire department was called out to rescue a tomcat which had become embroiled in battle with a flock of robins.

Evidently the cat had climbed a tree to rob the robins' nest. When the birds resented the attack they swooped upon the feline, which retreated. Unfortunately the tomcat's retreat was not strategic. Instead of descending to the ground he climbed to the topmost branches and there became fair game for the enraged robins.

Norton H. Plummer saw his plight and called Fire Chief McCurdy, who summoned Lon Hill, another fire fighter. The three managed to rescue the dazed animal, its body covered with cuts from the robins' beaks.

Boy Causes Arrest of Pair to Hide Own Theft

Toronto, Ont.—Wrongfully accused of having injured a nine-year-old boy, William Ryan and Stanley O'Hara received the formal apologies and regrets of the York county police court.

Injured when some dynamite caps he had stolen exploded Robert Radford, nine, and his companion, George Spelman, described to police two men who they said had fired at them with a shotgun. After Ryan and O'Hara had been arrested on the boys' information, the lads confessed they had made up the story to cover up their own misconduct.

Husband Sues Wife Who Went Out Alone

San Francisco.—Charging that she urged him persistently to associate with other women, Fred E. McCutchan filed suit for divorce against Mrs. Meta Irene McCutchan.

During ten years of married life she refused to let him accompany her out at night, insisting that he remain home with their child, he asserts.

Saves Child; Suit Started

Southend, England.—After a park keeper had rescued a child from a lake the child's parents sued the corporation for damage done to the child's clothes when it was pulled out of the water.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

The Long Island home of a New York society woman is famous among her guests for the fact that all rooms are supplied with flowers from her garden and the manner in which they are arranged. There is a reason. At a certain fashionable resort hotel, some time ago, it was noticeable that one dining room table always had lovelier flowers than any of the others. This was peculiar, as the flowers came from the hotel gardens and were allotted by the head waiter. A watchman solved the mystery, when early one morning he discovered the waitress assigned to the table in question, in the garden picking the choicest blossoms. She had formed the habit of getting up at sunrise, stealing out of the dormitory which housed the female help and gathering the flowers she loved. The girl was discharged. The Long Island woman, who was among the hotel guests, happened to hear the story, sent for the girl, talked to her and hired her. Now the girl's chief duties are to keep the rooms in the Long Island place bright with floral decoration. The girl originally came from a section of New York where the only flowers are pine specimens in the pots on fire escapes.

Almost every one has a favorite game. Baseball, football, golf, chess, checkers, cross-word puzzles, poker, anagrams, hearts, backgammon, and solitaire all have their devoted followers, but the hobby of William P. Carey, head of Madison Square Garden, is pinochle. This is the game he is never too busy to play. Once when Carey was building a railroad in South America, he took a man all the way to the Argentine with him, just so he would have a pinochle opponent on the boat. The other day, Carey and a friend had been playing pinochle at the Carey apartment so long that they felt it might be a good thing to get a little exercise by walking in Central park. The friend kept insisting that Carey had been exceedingly lucky.

"Nothing of the sort," said Carey. "That was skill. If we had a pinochle deck here I could beat you right now."

"I have," his friend. "I put a pack in my pocket." To a couple of the best known men in New York picked out a nice spot on the park grass, sat down and commenced to play pinochle. In a few minutes they were surrounded by a ring of interested spectators which neither of them noticed. The president of the garden vindicated himself by winning again.

Arthur Houghton, who has managed amused comedy troupes for Dillingham and Ziegfeld, had a new experience last season. He headed a company which was largely English and seven of the chorus men had hypenated names. Houghton thinks the most unusual name he ever encountered belonged to a girl. She was programmed as Mwyafanwy Jenkins.

Apparently you don't have to be mad at a person to throw acid at them. One of our city boys explained that he heaved acid on his sweetie, because he was infatuated with her. It probably was just an affectionate gesture, but the judge couldn't see it. The girl will get out before the boy does.

A New York lawyer has employed in his household for several years a maid who was born abroad. Recently the domestic obtained a leave of absence to go back to the old country and see her parents. She came to her employer with a diamond ring, which she said belonged to her, and asked him if he would have it appraised, as she might want to sell it to get more money for her trip. He agreed and put the ring in his pocket. The next day he looked for it and couldn't find it. This worried him considerably; first because he had no idea of the ring's value, and secondly because he didn't very well see how anybody except the maid herself, whom the family always had trusted implicitly, could have known he had the ring. After he had worried about the ring for a couple of days, the maid's honesty was demonstrated. She brought him the ring for the second time, having found it in his handkerchief drawer, where he hasn't the faintest recollection of putting it. Now he is worrying about himself.

DEATH IS LAID TO ROYAL CURSE

Man Killed by Poison in Laboratory; Princess Bride Ends Life.

Rumson, N. J.—Did the sinister curse which for 40 years dogged romances of the royal Hapsburgs abroad span the Atlantic to strike down Donald Shields Andrews, brilliant and wealthy chemical engineer, in his elaborately equipped laboratory at Rumson?

Andrew's divorced wife, daughter of the former Crown Prince Rudolf of Austria-Hungary, ended her life by drinking a fatal potion at the second Victory ball in London on Armistice day, 1919.

Forty years ago her father, who was the son of Emperor Franz Josef, and his paramour, Baroness Marie Vetsera, were found shot to death in a hunting lodge deep in the royal preserves in Austria.

Truth Never Revealed. Suicide? Murder? The outside world has never learned definitely.

Donald Shields Andrews, son of Matthew Andrews, Cleveland ore magnate, from whom he inherited more than $1,000,000, found his death lurking in a glass containing cyanide of potassium.

The poison, deadly at rattler's bite, had been placed on a table in the laboratory alongside another glass partially filled with water. The supposition is that Andrews reached for the water, but instead grasped the cyanide.

Surely, said many, there was no motive for the suicide theory in this instance. It was pointed out that Andrews, who was thirty-six, had no business or domestic troubles and although he had been treated for a nervous disorder, was in good spirits only a few minutes before he drank the deadly poison.

But those acquainted with the curse hovering over the Hapsburgs and those close to them cannot but associate this latest tragedy with it. It serves to recall his romance with the princess.

She Was His Elder. Young Andrews, whose father was a business associate of Mark Hanna, was enrolled at the Sheffield Scientific school at Yale when he first met the princess, then known as Mrs. Alma V. Hayne. She had divorced a captain in the British Flying corps some time previously and was several years the senior of Andrews.

The young man's father objected strongly to the affair and it was said at the time employed detectives to prevent the marriage. However, Andrews and the princess eluded the sleuths, and the ceremony was performed on April 24, 1915.

The couple went to Europe on their honeymoon. A month later the husband returned alone. From abroad came a statement purporting to emanate from Mrs. Andrews, that she had married the Yale man only to keep him from carrying out a threat of suicide if she rejected him.

Andrews went into seclusion and from daylight until dark labored unceasingly in his luxurious workshop. On the day of his death he had gone to the laboratory at 4 a. m. In mid-afternoon John Ross of Red Bank, N. J., friend and business associate of Andrews, called.

A sinister silence enveloped the place. With some trepidation Ross pushed his way into the room where Andrews lay on the floor, dead. Chief of Police Joseph Herdon investigated, and because of the presence on the nearby table of the cyanide and water, decided that death had been accidental.

But others shake their heads and mutter of the Hapsburg curse.

How Electric Company's Load Dispatcher Handles System During a Thunder Storm

LOAD DISPATCHER'S CONTROL BOARD. (A huge blackboard, 24 feet long and 12 feet high, shows location of transmission lines connecting five generating stations, nine switching stations and eighty-three substations in Public Service territory as well as those which connect the Public Service system with neighboring companies. The board is dotted with red, green, violet, white and amber lights to indicate how the system is functioning. Red and amber show service normal; green and white indicate trouble on the lower voltage lines and violet, trouble on the higher voltage lines).

KEEPING tabs on the movements of all electrical storms within a hundred miles or so of New Jersey is one of the important jobs of the Public Service load dispatcher, for the approach of a thunder storm must be carefully watched by the operating men of any great electric power company.

As everyone knows an oncoming electric storm brings sudden darkness causing hundreds of persons to reach for the switch of their electric lights simultaneously. This results in an almost perpendicular increase in the load on the electric generators at the power station as hundreds of thousands of lights flash on.

This sudden increase in load must be anticipated by the load dispatcher and explains his keen interest in the weather. By means of direct telephone wires the Public Service load dispatcher is in contact with the load dispatchers of the Philadelphia Electric Company, New Jersey Power and Light and other companies with which Public Service is interconnected. These men keep him informed as to the direction and intensity of all electrical storms either in or approaching their respective territories. It is the load dispatcher's job to see that sufficient power is available at any point where needed, and that this power shall be made available without strain on any part of the distribution system.

But the problem of meeting the sudden demand for power during a thunderstorm is only part of the load dispatcher's worries. With hundreds of miles of open transmission lines extending in all directions heavy electric charges may be absorbed by any electric system during severe electric storms causing carefully designed protective devices guarding the system to momentarily cut certain lines out of service. The load dispatcher is made immediately aware of this fact by the lights flashing on his board and he must keep on the job until this line is either restored to service or he has arranged a supply of power for it from another source.

Such a condition as this may be noticed by watching your electric light during a severe storm. When a "hump," as the load dispatchers call it, occurs the lights will dip even though the electric charge may have been absorbed at some part of a power company's system with which Public Service is interconnected, more than 100 miles away.

TIRES OF NUDE LIFE EXPERIMENT

German Scientist Has Had Enough of Primitive

Los Angeles.—Primitive life seems to have palled on Dr. Friedrich Ritter, noted German scientist, although his affinity, Frau Doran, with whom he ran away, still clings to romance in the raw on the lonely Galapagos island off Ecuador.

This is the observation of Charles S. Howard, San Francisco globe trotter, who visited the couple in the course of his 65-day voyage from Florida on his yacht Sarah.

"The doctor and Frau were in the nude when we first saw them," said Howard, "but they donned clothes to greet us. They were so excited to see us they were almost irrational in their joy."

"I asked the doctor if they ever planned to return to civilization. 'Well, maybe, but she says no, never,' he replied. So I guess the doctor, at least, is kind of tired of the primitive life and of his dictum of denying himself all food except fruit."

"He wears long hair and talks as though he considers himself inspired; but you can't get a lot of folks like that without leaving California."

Ritter's trip to the island was promoted by a desire to escape the "boredom of civilization," and for the purpose of testing certain scientific theories relating to primitive nutrition and dietetics.

He left Berlin in July, 1929, with his woman companion, whom he had restored to health and who had expressed a wish to share his experiment. He spent his entire fortune on the trip.

The journey was made by way of Ecuador, where the couple bought a small boat to complete their travel to the Galapagos group—about 600 miles distant. Settling up a primitive domicile in the wilds of the island of their choice, the doctor and his companion engaged in testing the effect on their systems of a diet combining raw and cooked food, with raw cereals preponderating.

Shooting Bull Is Not Profitable, Man Finds

Burtonsville, Md.—Shooting the bull is all right if one uses no more dangerous weapon than the tongue, but when it comes to shotguns it's an entirely different matter. William Miles, farmer, discovered.

John Matthias, a farmer, possessed a bull he prized highly. Recently the bull soured his pastures and round them, so it is alleged, in Miles' cornfield.

Montgomery county police arrested Miles on a warrant sworn out by Matthias, charging cruelty to animals. The warrant set out that Miles lost patience with the bull, blazed away with a shotgun and then left the wounded animal to suffer.

Mosquitoes Gentlemen, They Prefer Blondes

Philadelphia.—Mosquitoes prefer blonds and will pass up a brunette nine times out of ten when there is a blond in sight.

This was the assertion of Herman Horning, city entomologist and an authority on mosquitoes and their habits. "Mosquitoes and flies are sensitive to light," explained Mr. Horning. "They are easily attracted to light-haired folks, both men and women, and seem to prefer fair people to dark."

"Another noticeable thing is that in fields where mosquitoes buzz around cows or horses it will be found that light-colored animals are the greater sufferers."

Salesman Kills Bear as Lumberjacks Hide

Longmont, Col.—Matching an old-fashioned rifle and his nerve against a huge black bear charging on a sawmill camp, Herbert Sullivan, Longmont salesman, killed the animal with his first shot.

Sullivan sells automobiles and has rarely fired a gun since his boyhood days on Fourth of July.

He had barely reached the sawmill in Big Elk Park, 30 miles west of Longmont, to deliver a new car, when a hatless lumberjack dashed into camp, shouting "The bears are after us."

Sullivan asked if they had any firearms and was handed an old-time 45.70 rifle. He went out alone.

A few rods from the camp he saw two bears. They saw him at the same time, and one, a female, charged down upon him.

Sullivan aimed at its head as it rose on its hind feet and let go. The bullet struck the bear in the jaw and passed through its head. The other bear fled.

Sullivan told the story to friends here and brought the bear home to prove it. The animal weighed 250 pounds.

FACTS

In the recent conference between the Borough officials and the plant managers, attention was called to the fact that the basic industries of the country such as steel, copper and agriculture are in bad shape. These industries of course are tied into the economic health and recovery of the nation.

We get nowhere by dodging the facts. One of our great troubles as a people is we try to bluff rather than get prepared to meet the situation and try to improve it.

The facts seem to be exactly as stated by the managers. If anything they understated, rather than overstated the situation. Their figures were based on last week's statistics.

On copper the New York Evening Sun in its financial column yesterday said "The copper statistics for July are disappointing. It appears doubtful, however, whether the curtailment has yet been sufficiently heroic to meet the exigencies of the situation."

The same paper quoted the car loading for the week ending August 2nd were, in fact, the lowest for any week since 1922.

On copper the same paper reports "The amount of copper refined above ground is now the largest reported since 1921."

The New York American on its financial page of yesterday says "Wheat values collapse" and the Times refers to the fact that corn is selling higher than wheat on the Chicago Exchange.

Thursday's American head line read "U. S. Foreign Trade With Most Nations Off." It quotes the Department of Commerce figures showing that exports to Europe dropped $165,000,000, in six months and that exports to Canada and Japan dropped $31,000,000 and $65,000,000 respectively.

We get nowhere by telling ourselves we are not sick when we are. We will never get better until we have the courage to see how sick we really are as a nation. The facts seem to indicate we have been sick for a long while and have been gradually growing weaker.

It is fortunate for Carteret that the industries here take the trouble to keep in touch with the various factors that affect business so as to try to be prepared ahead of time. Carteret was not knocked flat months ago as were many industrial centers.

Last January official Washington predicted business would be booming in thirty days. Instead it has gotten worse every thirty days. According to the New York Evening Sun though the drought, which means so much to the farmers, has been going on for three months none of the official reports in Washington seemed to know about it.

It did no good to pretend in December or January that business would be booming shortly. This creates false optimism and results in lack of confidence in all government reports. The government with its expensive machinery ought to be in touch daily with agricultural and industrial conditions throughout the country and to be in a position to advise people what to prepare for.

COLLEGE AND THE INDIVIDUAL

By ROBERT MAYNARD HUTCHINS, President Chicago University.

College educational methods have been reduced to a mathematical formula that defests what interest and ability a student may possess. The modern system is set up for the average student, with the result that in any well-organized university there probably is not a single regulation governing the curriculum that a really excellent student should not break.

The first duty of a college is to organize itself so that a student who wishes to become a scholar will not have insuperable obstacles put in his path. If we had time to think about education, instead of being forced to provide something that would look like it for the multitudes who suddenly demanded it, we should direct our attention first to the achievement of the individuals.

Instead of the present bookkeeping methods that put emphasis on time spent and courses passed, I would have the universities create new standards and measurements. They should develop a criterion of entrance, with a completion of general higher education and of nonprofessional and of professional specialized education; then at stages employ general examinations, with such other devices as might be necessary.

If then an individual remains at any level longer than the average student, it will be because he needs to remain there. If he goes earlier, it will be because he is qualified to do so.

PENENOLOGY NOT UP TO DATE

By JUDGE CHARLES W. HOFFMAN, Cincinnati.

The diagnosis and treatment of the behavior of criminals in concrete cases lags far behind the scientific knowledge and information now existing. We are sometimes led to wonder if decades will elapse before the public permits the use of the discoveries of modern science.

Intensive methods, physical and psychological examination of offenders after conviction could materially reduce the prison population. The sentencing of incurable defective delinquents and similar types to definite penal terms is a fatal policy and probably has done more than any other factor to bring about the present undesirable conditions in the field of crime.

Probation recognizes the importance of scientific treatment of offenders against the law and works to save individuals as social assets. There are thousands of young men today in penal institutions who could have been redeemed and reinstated in the community after conviction without endangering any interests or values.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

Without a Clue

IT WAS on Christmas night, in 1910, that the first news was made public of what is probably the most baffling and mysterious disappearance of its kind in the police annals of the United States—the unexplained and apparently insoluble vanishing of Dorothy Harriet Camille Arnold, the daughter of Francis K. Arnold, a wealthy importer.

The facts in the case were few and utterly devoid of sensationalism, thus making the climax stand out with all the force and contrast of lightning against a pitch black sky. On the morning of December 12, thirteen days before any inkling of the affair reached the newspapers, Miss Arnold had left her home at 108 East Seventy-ninth street, New York, supposedly for a morning's shopping. She was in the best of health and spirits and, among the errands which she intended to do, was the purchasing of a dress at one of the Fifth avenue shops. As soon as she found what she wanted she was to call her mother on the telephone and the final decision would then be made.

The thorough and searching investigations of the police and the reporters later developed the fact that Miss Arnold had walked from her home to a store at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, where she purchased a box of candy, which she charged to her personal account. The sales check showed that it was about noon when she left the store and, some two hours later, she was at Brentano's book store, Fifth avenue and Twenty-seventh street, where she bought a book which she stated was to be given away as a Christmas present.

Just as she was leaving Brentano's, Miss Arnold met a woman friend and, in response to the usual question as to how she was feeling, replied: "I never felt better in my life," and then, as she was leaving, she added: "I'm going to walk home through Central park. Want to join me?" But the friend declined and Miss Arnold continued on her way—never again to be heard of. Had the friend accompanied her it is possible that one of the greatest mysteries of modern times might never have occurred but, as it happened, Dorothy Arnold went on alone and vanished.

Wishing to avoid publicity as much as possible, the Arnold family purposely suppressed the news of their daughter's disappearance until, at the request of the police, it was given out in order that the publication of her picture and a full description might develop possible clues to her disappearance. But, although there were a number of apparent inconsistencies about the case—probably due to the natural shrinking from the nationwide attention which the affair attracted—nothing definite was ever discovered. The most striking point elicited by the investigations of the newspaper reporters was that, despite the Arnold family's definite statements that their daughter had had no love affairs, she had been carrying on a secret correspondence with a bachelor in Pittsburgh. But it was quite evident that the man in question could have had no connection whatever with the disappearance of the New York heiress and this lead was dropped both by the police and the press.

White slavery, which was at that time very much in the public eye, was popularly blamed for the unsolved mystery but when it came to details even the most astute detectives were at a loss to explain how a strong, athletic girl like Miss Arnold could have been kidnaped and concealed without leaving the slightest trace, while, if she had been made away with, it would have been practically impossible to hide all signs of the body and her distinctive clothing—descriptions of which were flashed to all parts of the world. That Miss Arnold had not planned to leave home was evident from the fact that she left all her jewels and a considerable sum of money in cash behind her and that, on the very morning of her disappearance, she had written several letters relative to a tea in honor of a number of her former schoolmates at Bryn Mawr.

The theory of suicide was untenable because her body would have been found. Premeditated flight was hardly to be considered, while sudden flight would have undoubtedly led to recognition somewhere in the country. Foul play was the only alternative remaining, but in the event that Miss Arnold was either kidnaped or killed, how did those responsible succeed in hiding all traces of their crime from the police of two continents?

This is the question which has puzzled the minds of master detectives like William J. Burns, Chief Flynn of the secret service, Sir E. R. Henry, chief of Scotland Yard, and hundreds of others who have endeavored in vain to solve the riddle without a clue.

HOD CARRIER'S SON WEDS WEALTHY GIRL

Family Accepts Youth From Humble Home.

San Francisco.—When Clifford Ellsworth Hoffman, known to football fans as the famous "Biff" Hoffman of Stanford university, became the husband the other day of lovely Claire Evelyn Giannini, the marriage ceremony marked the Horatio-Alger-like rise of the bridegroom from son of a humble hod carrier to son-in-law of a millionaire banker.

Five years ago Miss Giannini, who is the only daughter of Ameto Peter Giannini, founder of the Bank of Italy and Trans-America corporation and one of the noted financiers of the world, was moving in the best of San Francisco society when Hoffman decided that he would like to enter Stanford university. But Hoffman was a poor boy, living in Petaluma, a small town 60 miles from San Francisco.

His father, Edward E. Hoffman, was a hod carrier and unable to give his son much of a lift toward a college education. So the son, tall, handsome and blondish, decided to work his way through college. He did. He sold candy, peddled newspapers and took magazine subscriptions. It was a tight squeeze, but Hoffman made expenses.

"Pop" Warner Spots Him. One day Glenn Scobey ("Pop") Warner, famous football coach at Stanford, espied the tall, rugged Hoffman. "Go get him and pour him into a football suit," Pop Warner directed one of his assistants.

"Look at that guy Biff 'em!" Pop Warner's assistant yelled the very first time Hoffman got into action in a practice game—and from that time on the tall, rugged and handsome hod carrier's son was "Biff" Hoffman.

And now the plot begins to thicken: On the same football squad was Herbert Fleishacker, Jr., a big and powerful player, and son of Herbert Fleishacker, Sr., multimillionaire San Francisco banker. The poor hod carrier's son and the son of the multimillionaire banker became the best of pals, but "Biff" did not have the wherewithal to travel in the same social set with the multimillionaire banker's son.

Spent Four Busy Years. "Biff" went right on playing football so well that he developed into Pop Warner's star fullback and got his name into the papers all over the nation. And, in 1928, he was elected varsity captain.

It was a busy four years for "Biff," earning his way through college, bonding for his degree and playing the sort of football demanded by Pop Warner.

After he was graduated in a blaze of glory, Biff found it easy to get work as a bond salesman. And one day, Herbert Fleishacker, Jr., presented "Biff" to the lovely Miss Claire Evelyn Giannini, heiress to many millions—and the romance began to bloom and bloom fast, much to the annoyance of several young bloods in the social register.

There was an unfounded rumor that Miss Giannini's father did not look with favor on the romance. The rumor curled up and died when "Biff" led the heiress to the altar.

ESTABLISHED IN 1908 AS THE ROOSEVELT NEWS

CARTERET, NEW JERSEY, FRIDAY, AUGUST 22, 1930

FIVE CENTS

LOCKED IN ICE BOX AS CROOKS WORK

Daughter Rescues Father. Two Colored Bandits Make Get-Away With $40. No Clue

Two colored men walked into the butcher shop of Alex Gural at Pershing avenue and Union street, locked him inside the ice box, cleared the cash register of about $40 and vanished, shortly after 1 o'clock Monday afternoon.

A real effort was made by the police throughout the afternoon and evening, to find the bandits, but it was futile as there appeared to be no trace of them in any of the negro haunts here, or nearby municipalities.

Mr. Gural was behind the counter, when Mrs. Gural and their four children waked to the upper floor for their noon meal. No sooner did the family reach the rooms above, when the front door opened.

Two dark complexioned negroes walked in. One was short and the other about six feet tall. Both wore blue work shirts. The taller gangster ordered Gural to put up his hands, but he declined. The negro stuck a gun into his ribs, warning him to be quiet and not to move.

The smaller companion walked into the rear of the counter. He grabbed Mr. Gural by the neck and with force walked him into the large meat storage room at the rear of the store.

After locking the door leading to the ice box, the negroes walked over to the cash register and cleared all the contents.

The entire hold-up scene took up but a few minutes. Twelve-year old Olga came running down to get a bottle of soda. She opened a side door leading to the ice box and as she picked up her bottle of soda, she heard knocking in the ice box. She opened it to find her father in it.

An alarm was spread within a few minutes and Gural reported the matter to the police. Acting Sergeant O'Rourke flashed a report to Rahway, Woodbridge and other places. Motorcycle Officer Gustav Freeman dashed to main arteries of travel and terminals.

Gural was taken in the police car by Officer Harrigan to look over a few questionable characters. Chief of Police Henry J. Harrington, who had just returned from the convention at Duth, also joined the hunt.

Several suspects were taken into custody, but later released, when Gural failed to identify them. Chief Harrington said that he had obtained a good line on the men, whom he believes came to the borough, recently.

There will be no outside float division in the parade. The American Legion drum and bugle corps have volunteered their services for the parade.

MRS. C. H. BYRNE TO RECEIVE ARTICLES

To Be Awarded as Prizes at the Girls' Field Day, at Kiddie Camp on Next Monday.

County Prosecutor John E. Toolan, President of the Middlesex County Recreation Council which operates the Kiddie Keep-Well Camp for undernourished children, has sent out a request over the county for donations of small, inexpensive articles appropriate for distribution as prizes for the girls' annual Field Day to be held August 25th.

At this time awards will also be given to the best behaved girl the girl who has gained the most weight, the girl with the best sun-tan, etc.

Mrs. C. H. Byrne, has volunteered to accept any contribution for this purpose, or they may be sent to the office of the Council at 175 Smith Street, Perth Amboy.

The 105 girls at the camp this month, who were altogether 1218½ pounds underweight when they entered, have reduced this sum by 262 pounds. In other words the average gain for the first two weeks is 2½ pounds, and Dr. Rowland C. Merrill, resident physician is confident that it will reach seven or eight by the end of the month.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES GARBAGE PROBLEM

Councilman D'Zurilla Urges the Prohibiting of Women and Children Rummaging in It

Declaring that it was unhealthy and dangerous for women and children to go searching through the garbage in the borough dumps and an unsightly thing to see them there daily, Councilman William D'Zurilla urged that the council do something about it Monday night, at a meeting of that body. The women and children should be kept out of the dumps, he said. Other members of the council agreed that the spectacle of groups of women and youngsters digging in the garbage was not pleasant, but pointed out that it would require a policeman on constant duty to break up the practice.

It was suggested that an incinerator to burn the garbage was the only solution of the problem, but no definite action was taken.

The contract for curbs and gutters in Heald street, was awarded to John Almansi, of Woodbridge, who was the lowest bidder for the job. Councilman D'Zurilla pointed out that the bid of Hermann Brothers, a local concern, was only $100 higher than Almansi's and that in the past it had been the policy of the borough to award contracts to local men as far as possible.

At present, D'Zurilla said, it would be an advantage to have the work done by a local man, as it would give work to men here who are unemployed. He suggested that Almansi and Hermann might make some private arrangement whereby the work could be done by the latter. Almansi was present and said he would not give the contract to anyone. He intended to do the work himself, he said.

The Kiddie Keep Well Camp organization in a letter to the Council thanked them for the $500 appropriated this year. The council was invited to visit the camp.

Property owners of Katherine Street, petitioned for better because the thoroughfare is in bad shape. The matter was referred to the street commissioner.

Councilman Walter Vonah suggested early action on the extension of the Gantz avenue sewer. He also told of the work being done in patching up the streets. Mayor Thomas J. Mulvihill thought good work was being done in that direction.

The July report of the building inspector showed building permits for work to cost $16,400.

Councilman D'Zurilla voted in the negative on the payment of a bill to Trefanko Brothers, who are paving portions of four borough streets. He also voted against the payment of a bill to Borough Engineer F. Mitchell, in connection with engineering work done on the same streets.

Ordinances were passed at the first reading providing for the establishment of a grade, also sidewalks and curbs on Hermann avenue, between Wheeler street and Washington avenue.

A report on the recent employment conference held with the heads of local plants was given by Mayor Mulvihill. The council is satisfied, the Mayor said, that the plants are doing everything possible to cooperate and employ local labor.

COURT REFUSES TO ISSUE WRIT

Board's Application for a Writ Which Would Compel Custodian to Honor Vouchers.

According to a decision handed down by Supreme Court Justice Clarence E. Case, in Somerville, Tuesday the application for a writ of mandamus, compelling Charles A. Brady, custodian of the school funds, to honor the decision of the majority of the Board of Education, that Lewis A. Bradford is the district clerk.

The question as to who was clerk of the board arose at the hearing. Justice Case, listening to the arguments of counsel, came to the conclusion that the evidence presented was not quite clear as to who was the proper office holder—Bradford or Coughlin.

Unless it has been definitely established who is clerk of the board, the justice refused to tell the custodian of the school funds to recognize Bradford's signature on the vouchers. The application was dismissed by the Justice without prejudice.

Justice Case, refusing to issue the writ, warned members of the board that with the opening of school only a few weeks off, the situation might become serious. Teachers would not be able to receive salaries unless the affair is straightened out, he said.

The Justice based his refusal on the grounds that Coughlin was not legally ousted, because the resolution which was adopted making Lewis N. Bradford Clerk was not made out according to law, and that Bradford's claims to the office were not clear.

He hinted that if the members repeated the election in accordance with the law, he would grant the writ.

It was indicated that President T. A. Bishop may consent to sign the vouchers bearing Coughlin's signature, if the latter agrees to keep his name off the payroll.

"We want to see if Mr. Coughlin has the interests of the public or his own at heart," one board member commented.

BROKEN BICYCLE STOPS LOCAL ENDURANCE RIDERS

Carteret's only remaining bicycle endurance contest ended last Monday morning, July 18th, at 3 o'clock in the morning.

The five marathoners, Stephen Alec. Francis Sosnowski, Frances Smith, Jess and Krasnik, called a halt to the grinding pedals, when the front wheel of the team's only bicycle broke.

According to a report the boys had plugged away 617 hours, and had covered a distance of 4,319 miles. They made an official start on July 23 at 10:00 A. M.

TO REORGANIZE AMERICAN A. C. CO.

Move Will Place Williams-Clarks and Leibig Plants on a Production Basis Again.

A reorganization of the American Agricultural Company, is being considered, according to a report of Mr. Horace Bowker, president of the company. The corporation has two plants in the borough, the Leibig unit and the Williams & Clark unit. The Leibig factory has been operating on a small schedule, while the Williams & Clark shop has been practically closed.

In this move is seen, too, a somewhat greater activity at the local fertilizer plants, which for the past few years have been in bad shape.

Mr. Bowker in his report said that with a capital impairment, which has existed since 1923, no dividends can be paid even on preferred stock. The current earnings, he said, would be impounded until released by some readjustment which will avoid the capital impairment and permit of current earnings being paid out. To bring its properties more in line with their actual worth, the company set aside additional reserves of $10,297,293 against capital assets in the last year. This, with other reserves brought its deficit account, which amounted to $16,116,731 on July 1, 1929, to $29,837,406 on June 30 last.

The report of the American Agricultural Chemical Co., of Delaware and other subsidiary companies for the fiscal year ended on June 30 shows net profit of $1,507,366, after expenses, interest, depreciation and depletion, equivalent to $5.30 a share on the 284,552 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock, on which no dividends have been paid since April, 1921. This compares with a net profit of $703,778 in the preceding year, equal to $2.47 a share on the preferred stock.

TREE-SITTING IS NEWEST CRAZE

Recalls Other Freak Events That Have Stirred Your Imagination.

New York.—Boys and girls but recently graduated from the pinafore class are perched in trees or atop poles in public parks and backyards in all sections of the country. They are not viewing the scenery nor are they spying out the land. They and the youthful non-stop bicycle riders have been bitten by the craze for endurance records.

Freak contests such as these seem to run in cycles. Every few years an unusual stunt by some professional seeking publicity fires the imagination of thousands of people and thus a large number jump into the game striving to emulate it not surpass the achievement. A decade ago Charleston and Black Bottom dancing was the rage. This was followed by the dance marathon which became epidemic from Tangiers and Timbuctoo to Paris and Nome until state, county and municipal authorities interfered with drastic police regulations.

In grandfather's day it was considered quite a trick to eat a quail a day for 30 days and every now and then some daring soul, stoked by a reckless stomach, essayed the feat and gloried in the title of champion. With quails as scarce they are now, this seems today not only a harmless but perhaps a delectable pastime.

Records for Staying Aloft.

When the Hunter brothers broke the aviation endurance record, Western youths became ambitious to "stay aloft" as long as possible. Lacking airplanes the example of Alvin ("Shipwreck") Kelly, pole-sitter, occurred to them. There was nothing to do but sit still. Hundreds of boys and even girls immediately got into the game and many of them are at it today.

In some sections the pole and tree sitters have been driven from the parks and recreation grounds; but, aided and abetted by proud parents, they may do as they like on private premises. These youthful aspirants are dividing attention with the hike riders. The latter craze has broken out persistently in New Jersey cities and towns. Newark, Hackensack, New Brunswick and Jersey City have teams grinding away in non-stop contests that threaten to put to shame what only a few years ago was referred to as the "cruel" six-day professional bicycle races. These boys are everlastingly sticking to rickety second-hand wheels for from six to ten and eleven hours a day each until relieved by a partner. Some of them sleep a few hours out of every 24 in garages or sheds.

The tree-sitters may not know it, but they are up against a record that eclipses that of Shipwreck Kelly. Mr. Kelly regards 28 days as a wonderful performance, but St. Simon Stylites lived for more than thirty years atop a pillar—something of a mark to shoot at!

Many Freak Champions.

There is, apparently, no limit to the number of kinds of freak champions. Michael S. Pettilo of Nutley, N. J., won a radio-listening contest this year on March 6. He listened continuously to a radio for 155 hours without sleep, subsisting on eggs and black coffee and sustained by the knowledge that the prize money would enable him to marry the girl of his choice.

Charles Drovo of Leroy, N. Y., held the world's raw egg-eating championship with 40 raw eggs consumed in five minutes, until Max Hinel of Boston ate 75 raw eggs in ten minutes.

Bud Reynolds of Columbus, Ohio, played the piano continuously for 105 hours. He fainted once during the performance, but was revived and resumed playing in eight minutes. His bandaged fingertips were raw and his wrists and forearms swollen.

Antoine Loutze, a Frenchman, played the violin continuously for 30 hours. He is said to have played more than 600 pieces, ending with the Italian Royal March and the Marseillaise.

After establishing a beer-drinking record by downing 17 glasses of the brew, amounting to 10½ quarts, Donald Stephens of Colon, C. Z., collapsed. A few hours later he was able to sit up and challenge anybody to better his performance.

Cadarino Nazareno of Chicago claimed the catch-as-catch-as-can spaghetti-eating record after making away with seven feet of spaghetti per minute for 130 consecutive minutes, or 1,250 feet in three hours.

In Detroit, Mich., a marathon dance had lasted 106 days when the local authorities stopped it with five couples still on the floor. The dancers rested 20 minutes in every hour.

Other Strenuous Tests.

Harry Kantor of Bloomfield, N. J., burned out a bearing after eating 80 red peppers and had to quit, but he won a $50 prize and the "championship."

Alverado Fernando established a marathon dance record in Berlin in 1927 by remaining in motion 145 hours, except for ten minutes' rest every hour.

Former Representative Ernest Ackerman of Plainfield, N. J., has toted an umbrella for 45 years as the result of a wager made with a friend in Liverpool.

Gus Comstock of Fergus Falls, Minn., gulped his way to the coffee-drinking championship by drinking 85 cupsful in 11 hours and 15 minutes.

FRENCH YEGGS TURN TO AMERICAN IDEAS

Auto Thieves Are Widening Their Activities.

Paris.—French crooks are beginning to leave of family operations on which they have concentrated for centuries and are broadening the style conforming to new ideas adopted by their American colleagues.

Automobile thieves are now making their appearance in earnest, but the figures just issued by the prefecture de police reveal that the racket is still in its infancy in France.

In 1929, 3,000 automobiles were stolen in France, but all except 493 were recovered within a short delay, either being found abandoned in the streets or roads within a day or so, or having been discovered by the authorities after they were sold.

Generally the machines stolen are of well-known French makes, Citroens, Renaults, Peugeotts, and all small cars. In some cases the crooks dope up the machines, repaint them, and make other slight alterations to camouflage them, but generally they do not even bother to obliterate the serial numbers of chassis and body.

They rely on selling them quickly at a bargain, and generally the crafty purchasers ask no questions when they can buy a machine worth 15,000 francs in the open market for ten from an unknown character.

With a million and a half automobiles in circulation in France, last year's theft of 3,000, is less than two per thousand.

Until recently most owners did not include a risk against theft in insurance. Dealers assert that because the overwhelming majority of cars in service in France are closed, permitting them to be locked easily every time they are left, also has a large part to do with keeping down the losses.

The latest scandal is the syndicate to obtain driving licenses for applicants too timid or too backward to pass the tests. An official of the prefecture in collusion with one of the testers, stamped as passed examination the application of would-be drivers and sold them for 1,500 francs instead of the normal 30 francs charge. It is estimated there are 1,500 of these fraudulent licenses in existence.

The Carteret News will be sent to you by mail for one year for $1.50.

America Claims Grapefruit

Grapefruit is an American fruit, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, which states that the United States produces about 90 per cent of the world supply. The most important competitor, the Isle of Pines, a Cuban territory, produces but 2 per cent of the world crop.

43-Hour Trip to Moon Foreseen for Humans

Paris.—That human beings may be able some day to take a trip to the moon in 43 hours is predicted by M. Esnault-Pellerie, well-known French scientist and engineer, who for years has been carefully studying the possibilities of interplanetary communications by firing a rocket to the moon or other planets.

M. Esnault-Pellerie believes that as soon as scientists will have mastered intra-atomic power, the problem of "astronautics" will be easily solved.

According to the engineer, this fantastic dream could be realized by firing a rocket at an initial speed of seven miles per second. He recalls the huge projectiles thrown by the German "Big Bertha" into Paris during the World war and remarks that it had an initial speed of .875 miles per second and rose to a height of about 19 miles. To attain an infinite altitude it is not necessary for the projectile to have an infinite initial speed, he says, since the earth's attraction diminishes with the increasing distance, and the rocket at a certain moment would be influenced by the attraction of the moon.

With such a projectile a Paris-New York journey could be made in less than half an hour, and Paris, the moon and back in 96 hours.

Rich Deposit of Iron Found in Middle Volga

Samara, U. S. S. R.—Iron ore deposits estimated at 1,000,000,000 tons have been located in the Orsk-Khalila mountains, middle Volga region, near here.

The announcement by a scientific research commission which has studied the field for nearly a year indicates that it may prove one of the most important iron sources in the world. The ore contains an average of 50 per cent iron and lies near the surface, in some places even on the surface itself.

About fifty kilometers from the iron deposits have been found rich coal supplies and considerable stores of manganese, nickel and other minerals. Research is continuing and already plans are being made for exploiting the region industrially.

Britain Tests Planes That Carry Cannon

London.—Night-bombing airplanes carrying small rapid-fire cannon instead of machine guns are now being developed in Great Britain to add to the horrors of the next war. Tests are now being carried out with a multiple-engined night bomber and are understood to have been fairly successful.

The new guns fire explosive shells, and it is believed that not only will the shells prove a better defense for bombers against attacking aircraft than machine-gun defense, but that adapted to smaller fighters they will also prove more destructive in trench raiding and in attacking columns of troops on the march than machine-gun fire.

Boston Had Its Parking Woes Way Back in 1850

Boston.—Apparently they had their parking problems long before the automobile became popular.

An age yellowed copy of the Cambridge Chronicle, recently brought to light, contained the following item under date of May 16, 1850:

"The people of Boston have recently passed an ordinance to the effect that if any out-of-town carriage is left standing for over 15 minutes on the street the owner must go to the police captain's office and pay a fine."

Snaake in Mail Box

Sandusky, Ohio.—Earl Mischler, R. F. D. postman, is anxious to find the culprit who placed a snake in one of the mail boxes on his route. Mischler declares chills ran up and down his back when he placed his hand in the box and felt the slick, cool scales of the reptile.

Paisley, Scotland.—Edward Cochran of Paisley landed the largest salmon ever caught in Loch Lomond, weighing 44 pounds, in the Gartocharn waters of the Loch.

For today's new speeds

New higher speeds mean increased strain on your motor. More revolutions per minute . . . blistering heat. You need a tougher motor oil, built for today's driving conditions . . . PAN-AM's new motor oils are triple-refined to stand up under fire, fight heat and friction, giving your motor full protection, longer life. A million miles of gruelling road tests have proven them for your motor.

Drive today to a PAN-AM station. The PAN-AM man knows the "prescription grade" of PAN-AM motor oil tested for your car.

A MILLION MILES OF ROAD TESTS

Through Cold

Down to zero and below. PAN-AM gave instant, smooth lubrication.

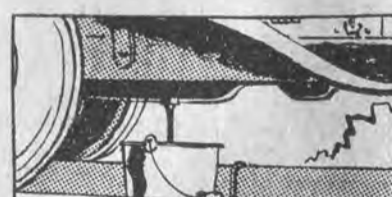

Many motor oils thicken at freezing temperatures. PAN-AM's triple-refining process removes wax-like particles. No matter how cold, PAN-AM motor oil answers, "Ready!"

Through Heat

Test cars driven over scorching roads.

Down in the motor . . . greater heat. Up go the revolutions per minute. Up goes the temperature of every moving part. PAN-AM "stands up under fire" at temperatures far above ordinary motor-heat.

Stands Up

The long grind is over . . . long past the life of ordinary motor oil. Rigid examination showed that PAN-AM kept its full body and color.

PAN-AM motor-tested motor oil stands up like a soldier full of fight . . . and ready to "keep going."

Less Carbon

PAN-AM oils proved, in the motors, that they deposit 50% less carbon, by actual weight, than other high-class motor oils.

PAN-AM means cleaner motors. Less grinding of valves. Smaller repair bills. Longer life for your motor.

PUSH RESEARCH WITH ROCKETS

Steel Towers Built at Camp Devens for Important Experiments.

Worcester, Mass.—From a small depression in a remote corner of Camp Devens, near here, where thousands of American soldiers trained during the war, there will soon echo sounds of explosions reminiscent of war-time artillery practice. But the sounds will not be of big guns, says the Chicago Daily News.

They will be from rockets sailing upward from a steel tower to heights that cannot be predicted with certainty. Perhaps their greatest altitude for some time to come will be measured in only thousands, or even hundreds, of feet, but from them scientists are looking forward to the time when they will be able to explore heights above the earth far greater than any reached by airplanes or balloons. Perhaps eventually travel to the moon or even to other planets will become possible by a development of such rocket experiments.

Backed by Guggenheim.

The Camp Devens experiment is part of the work of Dr. Robert H. Goddard, professor of physics at Clark university here. Doctor Goddard is one of the pioneer students of this form of locomotion. It was in 1912, while at Princeton university, that he began his researches. In 1914 he went to Clark, where he has worked ever since. Much of his work has been done with the assistance of the Smithsonian institution and later of the Carnegie institution of Washington.

So important have been Doctor Goddard's researches and so much do they promise that now a grant has been made to him by Daniel Guggenheim in order that he may continue them with adequate facilities.

The Goddard rocket is essentially the same as the Fourth of July pyrotechnic, in that it is propelled by the recoil from the discharge of gases.

Professor Goddard has perfected a liquid propellant for his rocket which has many advantages over gunpowder or similar explosives. As this burns up as it is used the rocket continually becomes lighter. In scientific exploration of the upper atmosphere above the present altitude records instruments would be carried up and a parachute would bring them safely to earth after the charge had been exhausted.

Hope for Results.

Doctor Goddard does not promise when he will be able to send rockets up to these great altitudes. The only ones he has fired so far are small affairs, which have only ascended a few hundred feet. Similar rockets will be fired from the Camp Devens station, though increasingly higher and higher altitudes should be attained. He compares his present experiments with the first efforts of the Wright brothers, who flew only a few feet but whose work laid the foundation for the development of the airplane.

After the rocket is perfected scientists expect many present-day puzzles will be solved. It will be possible to study the spectrum of the sun without the screening effect of the ozone layer 50 to 75 miles above the earth, which cuts out a large part of the solar radiation. Knowledge will doubtless be gained of the Kennelly-Heaviside layer, the ionized stratum in the atmosphere that makes possible long-distance radio.

Samples of the atmosphere from these high altitudes may be brought down for analysis, and it may prove that at these heights what rarefied atmosphere there is consists mainly of hydrogen and helium instead of oxygen and nitrogen. And then in the far distant future, perhaps, the scientists foresee the time when they can actually send a rocket to the moon, 240,000 miles away, or even to one of the other planets, millions of miles distant.

Tipping Evil Spreads to the Grave Diggers

LOVE PIRACY "MAN" EXPOSED AS WOMAN

Wed Girl When Her Brother Backed Down.

Minneapolis, Minn.—For 24 years Eva Mary Hotaling lived as a man because she could get better jobs and earn more money. She even married a girl to save the family honor when her brother fled to avoid responsibility. And now she has been named as the "man" who stole a married woman's affections!

The suit was filed in the shape of a divorce complaint by Edward S. Halstad, prominent and well-to-do jeweler, against Mrs. Maureen Halstad, who, he charges, treated him "cruelly and inhumanly" after she met "Donald Hotaling," which is the name under which Eva Mary has gone for almost a quarter of a century.

Secret Is Bared.

Halstad's amazement when he learned that his supposed rival was a woman—a fact that reached the authorities because some one close to Mrs. Halstad babbled—may be imagined. He and his wife have been estranged for some time as a result, she said, of threats which he made against her life.

When she sued for divorce he retaliated by naming the supposed man who had been a frequent visitor at his home and whose friendliness with his wife he believed to be due to a clandestine love affair between them.

Miss Hotaling, admitting she was the "Donald" named in the jeweler's complaint, expressed regret that she had been found out and her sex revealed.

"I was just sixteen when I first donned male attire," she said. "It was not done as a lark, but as the result of a deliberate plan when, seeking work, I discovered that it was very hard for a girl to get a decent job at living wages."

Saves Brother's Name.

To detectives she said that when her brother, Donald, refused to marry a girl who was in trouble through him, she took his place and led her to the altar. For seven years they lived together, she said, and not even the girl's own family knew the truth until she died in 1923.

After an investigation the authorities held that if Eva Mary chose to wear trousers and call herself Donald there was nothing that could be done about it legally and she was permitted to go about her affairs.

Madagascar's Converts Have Three-Day Retreat

Vatican City.—Three days' retreat shut off from all worldly influences, is the preparation made by the Roman Catholic converts in Madagascar before their baptism or confirmation, according to correspondence reaching the congregation for the propagation of the faith.

In the apostolic diocese of Madagascar, the new converts, the students of the school and the catechists perform their spiritual retreat annually. This retreat consists of a series of religious exercises that last a whole day. The inhabitants of distant villages bring their food and stay with the converts of the place.

The most important retreat is that of the catechists which takes place yearly at the beginning of January in every district. It is a completely shut-in retreat and the preacher is appointed by the apostolic vicar. The catechists also have a brief retreat the first Friday of every month.

The missionaries, according to their reports here, have discovered that to convert is one thing, but to instill into pagan or heretic souls the principles of Christianity is another matter. It is especially through tireless instruction that the necessary work of conversion is done, they state.

Wisecracking Peddlers Banned by Village

Little Falls, Minn.—House-to-house canvassers trying to sell everything from rugs to magazines, and all working their way through college, were escorted out of town by police after several youths had passed "smart" remarks to young women on the sidewalk. One periodic group of peddlers was given a particularly emphatic invitation to not come back.

Go to Church on Bikes; but Leave on Tandem

Poole, England.—It was a very stylish marriage, and they didn't need a carriage when B. S. J. Bennett and Miss Gwen Hawkins, respectively, vice president and woman champion of the Poole Wheelers, arrived at the church on single bicycles and rode away on a tandem.

Arboreal Hall of Fame

The American Forestry association says there are now nearly 300 trees which have been brought to its attention and found eligible to enrollment in its hall of fame, which is a register of trees of historical interest.

STATE IS ONLY WINNER IN WICKED GAME OF CHANCE

Stud Poker Players No Longer Friends and No Longer Play Stud Poker.

Boston.—Back in May of 1929, J. B. Novak and Louis Janty sat in, with others, in a little game; one of those friendly stud sessions where you drop ashes on your vest rather than take your eyes off the game and players long enough to shake your cigarette.

Janty had a most distressing evening. His hands were good, but not quite good enough; they were of the painful variety of "second best," an expensive experience.

And Novak was the one who topped him most regularly. When Janty had kings back to back, Novak would turn up the big ace in the hole to make a pair. Janty's nines and sevens would go down in defeat before Novak's tens and sixes.

And Novak grinned as he did it; some times he chuckled and chortled in a way that Janty considered inconsiderate, if not downright insulting.

Janty awoke the next morning, a dark brown taste in his mouth, and wrath and sorrow in his heart. He groaned when he realized that the $650 he had had the night before was gone forever. Tragedy had overtaken him.

He hid himself to the municipal court and there accused Novak. Novak was tried as a "common gambler" under a colonial statute passed in 1740. He was found guilty and was ordered to forfeit to the state $1,300; twice the amount he "sinfully gained in a game of chance" as the ancient law puts it.

He appealed to the Supreme court, which held that the law is just as valid and operative as it was 100 years ago.

Novak and Janty no longer are friends, nor are they stud players any more.

Title of "Safest City" Is Eagerly Sought For

Chicago.—With the coveted title of "America's Safest City" as their goal, 31 cities are struggling down the home stretch of a year-long contest to prevent traffic accidents. The drive is carried on under the auspices of the National Safety council.

One of them, the city which shows the best record for the year, will be awarded a banner by the Motor and Equipment association in Pittsburgh this fall at the Nineteenth Annual Safety Congress and Exposition. The contest, popularly known as the "no-death" contest, has excited much interest during the year.

In computing the records, the population of the cities is taken into consideration and multiplied by the number of days without a fatal motor vehicle accident. All "autocides" are included with the single exception of carbon monoxide poisonings in private garages. The contest closes August 31.

Baltimore, with a population of 780,021, was leading the contest as the "safest city" at the latest compilation of monthly figures by the National Safety council. Other leaders in the race follow:

- Rochester, N. Y., second (1929 winner).
- Evanston, Ill., third.
- Lawrence, Mass., fourth.
- Fitchburg, Mass., fifth.
- Boston, Mass., sixth.
- Providence, R. I., seventh.
- Louisville, Ky., eighth.
- Quincy, Mass., ninth.

When Bees Get Sick Fruit Crop Suffers

Rochester, N. Y.—The future lives of some 50,000,000 bees, a rough estimate of the number which now inhabit the hives of Monroe county, is in the hands of half a dozen human experts.

The apiairy kingdoms, which greatly aid the pollination of the trees in the county's famous fruit belt, have become weakened by a scourge, and a half-dozen experts from the State Agricultural Department at Albany are here to their rescue.

The men arrived several days ago.

and set out, armed with face veils, mufflers and gloves, to sack and burn the homes and members of the weaker tribes, and transport the stronger ones to new hives, with an eye to a heartier and more abundant fruit crop next year.

The disease, which has particularly affected the apiaries of this section, has been killing millions of the creatures, still in the larvae stage, and the fruit growers have become worried. However, farm bureau officials believe that before the summer is over, the bee colonies will be in strictly sanitary condition, and destined to be the forebears of a healthy generation.

Quebec's Name in Dispute

The origin of Quebec's name is interesting. Some claim that it is a corruption of "Quebec" (What a beak!) an ejaculation emitted supposedly by one of the followers of Jacques Cartier as they first set eyes on Cape Diamond; others claim that it comes from "Kepek," meaning "disembark," the greetings tendered by the natives to the new French arrivals.

"BAD BLOOD" NATIONAL BURDEN

By DR. BRUMBAUGH, Deputy Health Commissioner, Milwaukee.

Good blood and bad blood in the reproduction of the American stock has asserted itself and will continue to do so in future generations...

A human life in its most productive years represents a capital investment of $31,000. Of this $31,000, an average of $9,380 is spent in bringing the individual from birth to the age at which he becomes a productive member of society.

Yet millions of dollars are lost each year because society must care for its bad blood by maintaining public institutions. The capital investment of Milwaukee institutions is $41,000,000 and it costs $10,000,000 annually to maintain them.

The result through many generations of a union of two feeble-minded families in New York more than 100 years ago is known. Nearly 3,000 progeny of the family were studied. Three hundred died in infancy, 300 were beggars, 2,000 were cared for in almshouses, and several hundred became criminals.

"DOLLAR WISDOM" GREAT NEED

By ELMER BROWN, Chancellor New York University.

To use the dollar wisely is half the wisdom of our daily life. Money is a tool, a weapon, a power. In the rearing of children, we try to limit their possession of dangerous implements until they are old enough to use them with caution and foresight.

Similarly, it would be a gain to public safety if money might come into the hands of only those with the moral maturity and intelligence to use it wisely. The dollar is sifting out the souls of men, and on a gigantic scale, beyond all precedent, it is sifting out the soul of America.

Higher education is spreading abroad among our people at an unusual rate. In 1923, 11 per cent of the men and women of college age were in college, compared to 4 per cent in 1915.

Graduates have for four years or more been in daily contact with values that could not be measured in money.

They have dipped rather deeply into pure sciences, in which the interest lies in the discovery of truth regardless of its application to money-making inventions. They have made some acquaintance with beauty, as expressed in letters, music and the other arts.

TREAT CRIMINAL AS INDIVIDUAL

By DR. NATHAN CANTOR, University of Buffalo.

American criminology has failed to keep step with the rapid progress of psychology and related sciences. It has made very little use of our new knowledge of human nature and conduct. For the past 30 years or so a great deal of information has been laboriously gathered—much of which is uniformly accepted—by neurologists, physiologists and psychologists.

Instead, our statesmen, lawyers, clerics and respectable people in general ignore, overlook or deny the far-reaching changes implied by altered views of the growth of human personality.

Our treatment of criminals reflects this contrasting point of view. Instead of treating each defendant as an individual whose social, economic and psychological background is quite unlike every other defendant's, we convict and punish criminals according to the crime committed.

The prevailing psychological philosophy is the reform of the criminal, while practically it is the revenge of society against the criminal. It is punishment, not reform.

DANGER IN LEISURE HOURS

By DR. W. K. COOPER, Past General Secretary V. M. C. A.

Churches and other character-building agencies have not kept pace with commercialized amusements in making the most of youth's leisure time. The unparalleled resources of this country, together with the inventive genius of our people and their tireless industry, have produced two blessings which may carry with them elements of danger.

The church and the character-building agencies have quite overlooked this unusual opportunity to deal with youth at this most important point, while commercial amusements have taken full advantage of it.

PUBLIC OPINION NOT FOCUSED

By ALANSON B. HOUGHTON, Ex-Ambassador to Britain.

If children could pick their parents there would be no mental defectives. Child guidance should be called parent guidance because the fault is nearly always with the parents. Children get both their heritage and their environment from their parents.

Teachers must remedy the defects in children which occur through the faults of the parents. If they are successful in correcting mental instability before it becomes serious, the $32,000,000 appropriation Governor Roosevelt seeks to house the criminal insane and mental defectives would not be necessary.

TRIFLES OF TRUTH

Faith is the force of life. Tomorrow will be another day. Every life has losses and gains. A selfish man is never impulsive. The road to success has many buy ways.

Real heroes act as their own press agents. After lending an ear the charitable man lends a hand. Some men's honesty is a result of lack of opportunity.

A woman's ideal man is but a creature of her imagination. Usually a truly good woman has a sad look that is discouraging.

An old bachelor says that marriage is but another name for trouble. The dentist isn't a king-maker, but he can supply any man with a crown.

It's impossible to do a good job for a man who doesn't know what he wants. Life is seldom referred to as a lottery except by those who have drawn blanks.

Some love is priceless and some is content with as much alimony as it can get. Among life's bothers in which everybody shares is the left turn in heavy traffic lanes.

One kind of tolerance is not caring what a man does if he doesn't bother you or yours. Half the world doesn't know how the other half lives as it does without getting caught.

Those who are always looking after the welfare of others are those who never need anyone to look after theirs. If you have a dominating personality, somebody is always calling on you to dominate. "You never get no rest."

CRUSOE NOT IN IT WITH INDIAN WOMAN

The story of a woman "Robinson Crusoe" who lived alone on an island for 20 long years is told by Dr. Roy L. Moodle, who has been delving into the records of old native life in the region of Santa Monica, Calif., in his study of prehistoric diseases in America.

The feminine Crusoe had been a member of a small group of Indians which lived on San Nicholas Island, off the California coast, about 100 years ago. The Spanish fathers persuaded the group to leave their lonely island and find better protection at the Santa Barbara mission.

The island possesses many relics of aboriginal life, but none so romantic as the record of the last woman. Doctor Moodle said.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Value of Kindergarten Not Fully Recognized

Though it is estimated that 5,000,000 children are of kindergarten age in the United States, only approximately 750,000 are now in kindergartens. This indicates that the value of the kindergarten has been underestimated.

Work in pasting, cutting paper, coloring; in building with sand and clay; and in recognizing certain words encourages thinking and arouses interest in the constructive. The child is impressionable, and a trained teacher can do much to assist him in his way through the schools and life.

School superintendents and social workers are in agreement that kindergarten work cuts down on juvenile delinquency, and parents should be aware of that.—Des Moines Tribune Capital.

BOARD STILL DEBATING CLERKSHIP QUESTION

board is authorized and has the power to remove Mr. Coughlin and appoint Mr. Bradford. I am, therefore, more convinced than ever that Mr. Bradford is the duly appointed and elected clerk of this board.

"Justice Case thought that a sense of civic duty should lead us members of the school board in settling this situation ourselves so that the work of the board can go on and its employees and creditors be paid. Acting upon this advice, since I am possessed of a sense of civic pride and since I wish, in spite of my personal opinions, to make my opinions subordinate to that of the public, I am going to take the initiative in this matter and I have decided upon an action. Since Mr. Brady fears to honor the payroll and warrants certified to by Mr. Bradford, I will entertain the payrolls and warrants of both Mr. Bradford and Mr. Coughlin and submit both to Mr. Brady, provided that neither of them shall draw salaries until this controversy is settled.

"Mr. Brady then will be in possession of two sets of payrolls and warrants, one of which must be legal and he will, therefore, have no cause for fear in issuing checks so that the employees and creditors can be paid, and the work of the board go on."

No amicable arrangement was effected, with the result that the janitors who have been unpaid for the last six weeks and creditors of the board will likely be without funds for some time to come, or at least until a decision has been rendered in the courts. This may take months, it was hinted.

Then came a series of resolutions, one by Commissioner Yuronka, terminating the term of the district clerk, removing Coughlin as district clerk and pronouncing his office vacant. Heil said the resolution was illegal. Two roll calls were made and the resolution carried by a vote of five to four. Commenting on the resolution Mr. Coughlin still insisted he was the clerk, that he still has the right to the office and will refuse to turn over any books or records. He made a motion that Bishop be authorized to sign drafts made out by him. This motion was lost.

Another resolution by Commissioner Mittuch again reappointed Mr. Bradford as clerk at a salary of $2,200.00 a year. Heil again said the resolution was invalid, because the session began at 8:15, instead of 8 o'clock.

Heil charged Bishop with holding up the money due to janitors and creditors because of his refusal to sign the vouchers.

There was quite a stir when Commissioner Coughlin asked David Jacoby, counsel for the board, whether Justice Case did not hold that he was the legal clerk of the board. Jacoby in reply said that Justice Case gave an opinion granting the school board the right to dismiss Coughlin as clerk of the board. Jacoby's declaration was incorporated in the minutes by Coughlin and his remarks may be presented to the Justice when the matter is again aired in the fight.

Commissioner J. W. Mittuch introduced a resolution providing that all bids received recently for fixtures at the Nathan Hale School addition should be rejected. "All the business done here is void," declared Heil. Mr. Bishop held a different view point. There were more tilts. More fireworks. More shouts between the members, practically drowning out their voices. Coughlin said that "Amos" was there, so was "Andy", and the "Kingfish", "Lightning" and deplored the absence of "Madame Queen" to stage the show, as sarcastic remarks flew thick and fast. Bids were then called for coal. Coughlin read the advertisement. So did Bradford. The former, however, said he does not recognize the notice. Heil asked Bishop who is the clerk, or asked the attorney to give the information.

John Skiba furnished the lowest bid on coal, asking $13.45 per ton for stove coal and $9.45 for pea. The other bidders were: Lenart & Kazmer, pea $9.56, stove $13.78; Chodos Brothers & Wexler, pea $9.59; stove $13.81; George Chamra & Sons, pea, $9.55, stove $13.70.

Bishop questioned whether Skiba was in a position to handle the job. "I can furnish all the coal you want. But if you wish, I will agree to split four ways with the other coal dealers," Skiba said. The competitors told the board they would not seek the business at the price bid by Skiba. On Mr. Heil's motion the contract was awarded to Skiba. He will be required, however, to furnish a bond providing for the faithful performance of delivery. In case he fails to do so the contract will be given to the next lowest bidder.

Heil objected to a bill of Woglom for $4.08 for a record book purchased for Mr. Bradford. He also objected to a bill of $216 of Morris Cohen, inspector on the Nathan Hale school addition. Coughlin asked whether Cohen worked to warrant the $216, saying that he was away a month. He charged the appointment of Cohen was unnecessary and a burden to the taxpayers, but probably was made to keep a political promise. Commissioner Welblund, replying to Mr. Coughlin's remarks said the Democrats kept many political promises including giving the district clerk job to Coughlin. Welblund explained that Cohen was sick and was treated at the U. S. Government hospital. Mr. Heil wanted an affidavit showing that Cohen was at the hospital.

AMERICAN LEGION VS. COPPER WORKS

What should prove to be an interesting battle is the game scheduled between the American Legion, Carteret's representative baseball team, and the cream of the Copper Works, in other words a nine made up of the best players in that very successful Copper Works' Twilight league. The contest is slated for this Sunday afternoon at the high school athletic field and undoubtedly a large crowd, mostly of the factory team's supporters will be present.

Not only will the tilt be a corker but it will also be a good ball game, which is bound to be, when eighteen good players get together. The Copper Works' players have been picked fairly, being judged on their first half performance. Many good players who otherwise would not be able to show their baseball ability against a good semi-pro team will be able to do so Sunday.

According to reports, Curley Lomax, colored mound artist of the Tank House, is slated to do the pitching for the Tank House. Others sure of gaining a position on the factory team are Bill Casey, third sacker, Bryan, shortstop, and Joe Ginda, second baseman. Larry Rack, left handed first baseman, will most probably be stationed on the initial bag. Rack is the leading home run hitter in the league. Thatcher, Eck, Zullo, and the Mullan brothers, Bert and Buddy, will see service in the contest. The Legion will surely put their strongest team on the field. They're taking no chances.

NINETEEN AND GOING STRONG

Ernie Sabo is still showing the players in the Blue Ridge League how to hit home runs. The industrious Carteret youth manufactured his nineteenth four base blow just a week ago from Wednesday. Ernie is poison to the Blue Ridge hurlers, not many having escaped pitching to him with success worth while mentioning. Sabo is setting the thirty home run mark as his goal for the season and if he accomplishes this he is sure due for some advancement.

We must remember that Sabo is the property of the New York Yankees and his every home run is watched by the Yank's scouts.

BILL D'ZURILLA QUITE A GOLFER

Although many people residing here may not know so, this town possesses a very fine golfer in the personage of Bill D'Zurilla. D'Zurilla, although he has only been golfing four years, is one of the best golfers in this county. Incidentally the former well known ball player approaches par at any of the numerous courses spread over this section of the state. He is known as the best golfer playing at the Sunnyside Club in Linden and not infrequently does he hand a thorough beating to that club's professional.

D'Zurilla was entered in the best ball competition of the State Open tournament at Asbury Park this year, having as his partner Mike Elko. The pair made a very creditable showing at the tough Asbury Park course. They finished with a score of 146 for the 36 holes, but ten strokes behind the leaders. In the first round, D'Zurilla-Iko handed in a remarkable 71 and in the second round the marked up an impressive 75.

The local Councilman is still improving his game in leaps and bounds and at that rate he will most certainly win an assortment of prizes before he hangs up his clubs.

CARTERT TRAPSHOOTING CLUB

Two of the finest traps for that he-man sport known as trap-shooting are located in Carteret under the direction of Charles A. Brady, Jr. The traps are situated off upper Washington avenue. The Carteret Trapshooting Club's five man team is one of the best in the state and their list of cups is steadily growing.

The next registered shoot at Carteret is scheduled for September 14. Shooters who are unparalleled in the state of New Jersey are scheduled to appear here then. Some fancy scores will undoubtedly be handed in. The shoot will be under the regulation of the American Trapshooters' Association.

Portuguese Discovery

Catalina island, off the coast of California, was first mentioned by Capt. Sebastian Viscaino, also in the Spanish service, anchored at the same spot in 1602 and renamed the island.

Highest Railroad Depot

So far as our records go, a 2000 station in the Peruvian Andes, 15,655 feet above the sea level, west of the boundary between Peru and Brazil, is at the highest elevation, 15,655 feet. From Callao to Tollo, a distance of 106 miles, the train takes 9 hours 38 minutes, the average rate of rise being 27 feet a mile. The cost of construction of the railroad is estimated at $62,000,000. Can follow after at its leisure.

Anyway It's Safest

"Whenever I attempt to reason with my wife," complains an argumentative husband to the Columbia Record, "she simply won't listen and I never get anywhere. Please advise me what you'd do." "I wouldn't!" admitted the wise old editor. "The best way, however, to debate with one's wife, is to go out behind the garage and smoke your pipe."

Strange Bedfellows

The cotton seed and bean seed are bedfellows on the Egyptian farm, according to Fortune Magazine. There is here hard and the top often lies and generations of farming have taught that it is wise to plant a bean seed in each hole, for hard and vigorous, the bean stalk has a trouble in emerging. The cotton seed can follow after at its leisure.

FALCONS BEATEN IN DOUBLEHEADER

Lose First Game 8-2 to Manville. Surprised in Second Tilt by Mohawks. Lomax Is Star.

After a winning streak which ran to nine games, the Liberty Falcons were disgracefully submerged in two games at Lehigh's Field, Sunday afternoon. The Manville Falcons began the lowering of the locals' colors by downing them 8-2. The Mohawks, Carteret's only colored team, then made the day a more dreadful one for the Hilamen by coming from behind to tie the score at 3-3 and forging the winning run across the plate in the eleventh inning to win an overtime battle by a 4-3 count. The defeat by the Mohawks came as a surprise as the Falcons had what the smart boys would call "fish" in the colored contingent.

Manville outplayed the Falcons in every stage of the game. They fielded better, ran bases better and also batted better than the Liberty Falcons. Lapotski, the Manville pitcher, allowed but five measily hits in the seven inning setto. The Falcons scored their two tallies in the opening session and for the final six sessions could not get a man past third base. Manville scored twice in the fourth after they countered single runs in the first and third. They shelled George Woodhull from the mound in the fifth when they scored four runs.

Lomax pitched the colored combine to victory in the night-cap. The big right hander let the supposedly heavy Falcon batters down with seven hits. He was touched for two runs in the opening session and for the next ten innings the Falcons could only score one more chukker. Lomax struck out 12 and issued but one base on balls. After pitching such fine ball as this it would virtually be a sin if the lanky colored boy had to lose his game.

F. White the Mohawks catcher, was the star batter of the day. He had a perfect day with the willow smashing out four hits in the same number of times at bat.

Sacred Hearts Conquer Sterlings in Slugfest

The Sacred Hearts outslugged the Newark Sterlings Sunday afternoon at Weequebic Park, in Newark winning by an 18-12 score. The Sacred Hearts led from the start of the game to the end, but the Sterlings were right on their heels until the last frame. The Hearts clinched the contest in that session by scoring five runs.

Base hits rang incessantly all during the entire tilt. The Hearts were credited with 21, while the Sterlings chalked up 15. Neither teams' pitchers were very effective as these figures show.

With the score 13-12 in favor of the locals in the eighth inning, Rudy Galvanek quenched a Newark rally with the bases loaded by making a beautiful bare handed catch of Broden's long fly which was labeled for extra bases. The catch retired the side and if it was not made the Sterlings would have obtained at least a two run lead.

The American Cyanamid victory yesterday at the expense of the Mexpet put the winners in a tie with the A. A. C. for the coveted first place honors of the Industrial league, sending the Oilers to the foot of the ladder.

Cyanamid's game with the Oilers yesterday afternoon did not result in such a one-sided victory as had been looked for, the Mexpet players, with the exception of the first inning, holding their opponents on even terms.

Bowler, the former Connecticut leaguer, who did the mound work for the Oilers, steadied down after the opening round and kept his opponent's hits well scattered. Brown twirled for Cyanamid, and while hit fairly freely throughout tightened up in the pinches and held the Oilers' sluggers safe.

St. Josephs Swamp Carteret Eagles, 12-4

The St. Josephs trailed the Eagles for the first five inning Sunday afternoon at the high school field by 3-2. In the sixth they got 'on to Zilais' shoots for four runs and for the next three innings tallied six scores to drop the Birds 12-4. It was a good contest as long as Zilai was pitching well, but once the Saints became used to the latter's delivery it was all over for the Eagles.

Fred Kubeck handled the mound job for the winners and pitched in direct contrast to the way he hurled the Sunday before. Against the Eagles he improved as the inning rolled by, while against the Sacred Hearts he started masterfully but weakened near the end of the tilt costing the St. Joes the game.

Chappy Thatcher and Emil Kudrak led the Saints' onslaught with three hits. Kubeck was the hardest hitter of the game however, slugging out a triple and double which did not do the Eagles any good.

S. AMBOY MELROSE SETBACK LEGION

Three Home Runs Aid Victor's Cause as They Defeat Locals at South Amboy, 3 - 2.

The South Amboy Melrose evened the series with the American Legion to one game all, by landing the Carteret bunch a 6-3 licking at South Amboy Sunday afternoon. The Melrose were aided greatly by three home runs which accounted for more than half of their scores.

Mickie Miglec was hit unusually hard by the strong Amboyians. He was met for 13 safe hits, which although scattered very well netted the Melrose their six chukkers which were more than enough to bring the home team victory. The winners' score was also kept down to a large degree by virtue of the errorless support given Miglec. The Legion inner and outer works manipulated like machines, everything hit to them was gobbed up perfectly.

Danwitz, Albany and Baranowski were the boys who did the big damage to the Legion with their circuit clouts. Sam Smolenski, the Legion's steady and neat short stopper, was also slammed a Ruthian in an attempt to catch up to the victors. Smolenski slammed a double, too. Bill Casey, who played in his first game with the Legion socked two safeties, one of which went for a double. These were the only two Legion members who could solve the shoots of Baranowski, Melrose's big right hander, however. The only other Legion hit was a single by Tom D'Zurilla.

Baranowski, who was bested by Miglec earlier in the season, turned the tide in this tilt. He struck out seven to Miglec's three and walked only one man while Mickie passed three.

The Legion opened scoring activities by tallying once in the third. The Melrose obtained the lead in the same session by countering two tallies. They added another marker in the fifth. The Legion made the score 3-2 by shoving their second run over the plate in the sixth. Melrose then stowed the ball game away safely by scoring three times in the lucky seventh. The locals countered their last run in the eighth and that concluded scoring activities for the day.

Office Shellacs Yard and Tank House Teams

Beat Tank House Last Thursday Night By Score Of 6-1--Ward Off Last Session Rally By Yard Tuesday, Winning By 4-3

Bryan, a colored boy and former twirler for the Perth Amboy High's nine of '28, pitched the Office to a decisive 6-1 victory over the Tank House, winners of the first half of the United States Metals Refining Co. twilight baseball league. Bryan allowed but four scattered hit in chalking up the victory.

Bill Casey, who started on the mound for the Tank House, was credited for the defeat. The Office leaned on Casey for two tallies in the first and then batted him out of the box in the second by scoring four runs. Lomax replaced Casey in the third and pitched air-tight ball for remainder of the game, but it did no good as his team-mates could not make up the five run lead the Office possessed.

All of the games' scoring was done in the first two sessions. The Tank House scored their lone tally in the second.

Bryan held the losing combine to but one hit for the final four frames. Jogan got this one in the seventh and the drive went for three bases. With none out it seemed as though the Tank House would start some fire-works at this point, but Bryan proved he really was the master of the situation, by fanning the next three men to face him, leaving Jogan stranded on third base.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

There is a faint suspicion in my mind that I must be advancing in years; because I see things in the newspapers which remind me of other things which certainly happened far away and long ago.

These college boys of today, who hop into their planes and drive to a polo match, a boat race or a football game, probably don't remember much about such engines as the Anzani or the Gnome, or about such aviators as Delarange, Paulhan, Rogers Sommer, Lefevre, Ferber, Latham, and Fernandez.

The first real aviation meet was held in France, at Reims. Nobody went very far to see that one. It was felt that this flying business was just a stunt; that it never really would be practical.

tel with Glenn Curtiss and some of the other flyers, but arrived so shortly before the meet that we were given the proprietor's own room. I never have forgotten the family photographs on those walls. They certainly were not taken by Hal Phye or any of these fashionable photographic artists.

That certainly was a great meet. Bleriot was there with the little monoplane in which he had lately flown the channel on that early morning when Hubert Latham, with his larger Antoinette plane, was waiting for the wind to go down. And the Voisins, Henry Farman, Wilbur Wright and, I think, Santos Dumont, all were on hand.

The Wright plane didn't have any wheels then. It had skids, and they had to build a tripod and a track to get it into the air. It couldn't be got off the ground. Most of the planes had bicycle wheels. Glenn Curtiss won the prize for distance flight.

who never had suffered from delirium tremens, we haven't seen anything yet.

Another thing which takes me back through the years is the earthquake in the purple Appennine portion of Italy. They say Vesuvius is growling again. I climbed Vesuvius once with the last crowd up before it blew its bonnet off.

Illustrated books are coming in again. The return of illustrations started with private editions, open reprints with new illustrations. These sold for about $15. But now some of the regular issues of books have pictures illustrating the text.

At least two of the girls netted in the police raid on Earl Carroll's "Vantities" were formerly artists' models. One of them, when dressed for the street, is a quiet, ladylike person happily married, who spends her Sundays with her husband's family in the country.

FINDS MOST COUNTY JAILS BREED CRIME AND DISEASE

Investigator Urges Women to Lead Campaign for Industrial Farms for Convicts.

New York.—"Move the county jails into the country."

In this way, and this way only, can the American people reform an institution which, instead of being a place of correction, is actually a breeding place of both crime and physical disease.

This is the assertion of Helen Buckler, investigator and writer for Good Housekeeping Magazine, who in that monthly reveals the results of her inspection of jails throughout the country. She calls upon women's clubs to take the lead in a movement to eradicate the "moral foulness and physical filth" which she found.

In the typical jail, she says, prisoners are herded together, often three in a cell intended for one, men in cells adjacent to those of women without privacy, unwashed bedding is used by dozens of prisoners in succession, toilet facilities are unsanitary and often out of condition, there is no opportunity for sunlight or exercise, and sanitation usually means spraying disinfectant over accumulating layers of filth.

The food itself is frequently bad enough to promote illness, continues Miss Buckler. But what is more important tubercular, venereal and other diseased persons are pushed into cells with other prisoners without consideration. And hardened criminals are the cellmates of adolescent boys and girls held for their first petty offenses. A great proportion of those thrown into jail are afterwards proved innocent at trial, but they have been subjected to both moral and physical degradation, she shows.

The cure for this condition is to do away with the jail, concludes the investigator, whose idea is supported by such authorities as Dr. George Kirchwey, former warden of Sing Sing, now dean of Columbia university law school; Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, first woman member of the department of federal prisons; Miss Julia K. Jaffray, chairman of the division of correction, General Federation of Women's Clubs, and others. They would substitute in the city a detention station where those awaiting trial could be effectively segregated for the few necessary days.

Convicted prisoners, under the plan, would be sent to a well-regulated correction farm, where they could be put to useful work, getting the benefit of fresh air and exercise, the opportunity to learn a useful trade, and even the chance to go to school. Today most prisoners sentenced for short terms serve their time in idleness in the unhealthy darkness of the county jail, coming out weaker physically and morally than when they entered.

The activities of Mrs. Foster resulted in the establishment of such a farm for Washington (D. C.) prisoners during the Roosevelt administration and several progressive states and cities have already followed the Capital's lead.

YOUTH ATTACKS POLICE OFFICERS

Donoghue Beaten On Head With Nightstick as He Attempts to Prevent Serious Trouble.

Two patrolmen, members of the local police department, were assaulted and severely beaten over the head with a night stick by a man whom they attempted to arrest as a result of a brawl between their prisoner and a group of other men.

Patrolman Thomas Donoghue, of Wheeler avenue, was badly wounded about the scalp and a similar fate fell to Patrolman John Connolly, of Atlantic street.

Under arrest for the crime is Charles Cumba, twenty-three years old, of 21 Union street.

About 1 o'clock Sunday morning Cumba visited a drinking place where he imbibed in a few drinks. A report has it that a strange man sought to have Cumba buy him a drink, which he had refused. A brawl started, followed by a free-for-all fight. Donoghue went to quell the fight and was successful in separating Cumba from an angry mob. After the patrolman left the fighting began once more, which Donoghue checked again.

Fearing a serious disorder Donoghue called police headquarters and asked that the other Chrome officer on the beat join him. Patrolman Connolly came with the police car. More trouble appeared to be brewing in the cafe. Donoghue went to get Cumba out. As he was leading him, his night stick fell to the floor. Cumba, it is alleged, grabbed the club and struck Donoghue over the head several times and fled.

He had gone but a few steps when he saw Connolly coming in his direction. With Donoghue still helpless and dazed, Cumba went back and grabbed Donoghue's club. As Connolly was about to apprehend him, he struck this officer over the head as well.

Donoghue and Connolly quickly revived from the blows and managed to arrest him. He was lodged in the lockup, where efforts for his release on bail failed.

Dr. Samuel Messenger attended Donoghue and Connolly. It took several stitches to close their scalp wounds. Both are resting comfortably in their homes and their condition is not serious. Early reports of the affair had it that their skulls had been fractured.

Cumba is said to have a grudge against Donoghue for previous arrests and he is reported to have freely said that he intended to get even with the officer.

A crowd estimated at more than 300 persons gathered about the Borough hall, Tuesday night in the hope of attending the hearing or getting a glimpse of Charles Cumba.

The corridors leading to the Police Court room were jammed and the entrance to the police station was crowded. Police made lanes through the crowd, announcing as they went that the Cumba case would not come up on that night.

The crowd lingered about while other cases were heard. Finally, most of the gathering dispersed. The court room cleared and the lights were put out. When practically everyone had gone, Cumba was taken into the office of the chief of police and his bail was fixed at $1,000. He furnished bail and was released for a hearing later in the week.

SHOW HOW FORD CARS ARE MADE

By Means of Talking Movie During Ford Show Being Held in New Brunswick This Week.

The movie will be a part of a Ford show to be held beginning Friday and continuing through Saturday in a large tent on the field at Raritan Canal and Albany street bridge, in New Brunswick. The show will be open to the public free of charge from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M., each day.

Those who visit the show will be able to learn not only how the Ford automobile is manufactured in quantity production, but to obtain some idea of the vastness of the Ford enterprises, Mr. Breen of the Roosevelt Motor Sales pointed out. They will see how coal and iron are obtained from Ford owned mines and transported to the plants in Dearborn, Michigan, in Ford owned railroad cars; how lumber is cut in the Ford forests and carried in Ford jake ships; and how in the manufacture of the car various by-products are utilized for making fertilizer, charcoal briquets, chemicals and other things.

Besides the motion picture, the show will include a number of special exhibits revealing step by step how various parts of the car are made, a cut-away-truck chassis, and a Tudor body cut in half to reveal the details of its construction.

A feature of the show will be a display of the full line of Ford passenger and commercial cars. Arrangements for the show were made by the local dealer in cooperation with Ford dealers in nearby towns and the Kearny branch of the Ford Motor Company.

CLERKS WILL TAKE CLAIMS TO COURT

As Board of Education Washes Hands of Entire Dispute. Is- sue Contract for Desks.

The Board of Education washed its hands of the district clerk fight, according to an announcement made Wednesday night by President Theodore A. Bishop at an adjourned meeting of the Board. He said that, so far as the board is concerned, the contest is over. It is now up to the two claimants to carry on until the courts decide who is the legal district clerk. Bishop said that L. N. Bradford, who is the Republican choice for the position, will carry the fight to the Supreme Court. Bishop added that he will give both claimants what aid he can in bringing the issue to a close in order that the question may be settled.

Bills and payrolls are being paid through an arrangement made by the president with the two Clerks but pay vouchers for Coughlin and Bradford are being held up until the case is decided.

The meeting last night was held particularly to receive bids for desks for the addition to the Nathan Hale School. The advertisement called for 336 desks. Identical bids were received from three local dealers, Sol Rosenblum, Roosevelt Furniture House and B. Kahn. They bid on three classes of desks: A—$12.40 each; B—$12.10 each, and C—$11.80 each. The Keystone Seating Company, an out-of-town concern, bid $10.45 flat, or a total of $3,511.20, and was awarded the contract. The bid was presented by John J. Kennedy, a local postal clerk. Bids were received also from the E. H. Grover Co., and the Allied Equipment Corporation, both of Trenton.

On recommendation of Supervising Principal Miss B. V. Hermans, teachers' committee advised that Miss Ethel Snyder, a grammar grade teacher, be transferred to the high school faculty.

Commissioner Albert Welblund, reporting for the repair and supply committee, said that during a recent storm lightning struck the high school building and knocked off a portion of the terra cotta coping on the northwest corner of the roof. The clerk was directed to write to the insurance company to ascertain if the company will assume the liability for the damage. Mr. Welblund also reported that a retaining wall, constructed to keep water from flooding an entrance to the Cleveland School, has been completed, but that it does not answer the purpose for which it was designed. He said survey of the conditions during a rainstorm indicated that a shed would have to be built at the entrance. Bids for this structure will be obtained from local contractors.

A letter was received from the Carteret Trust Company reminding the board that a resolution was adopted in June instructing the Trust Company to honor warrants signed by President Bishop and Clerk L. N. Bradford. As this resolution clashes with the present arrangement for paying bills it was rescinded.

The board arranged to get bids for teachers' desks for the Nathan Hale School from local furniture dealers. The bids will be received in September.

He remained in the employ of the Wheeler Company up until the close of the World War.

HOME AFTER VACATION

Mrs. Harveta Morris has returned to her duties in the office of Charles Conrad, after having spent two pleasant weeks at the New Hotel Monmouth in North Asbury Park. Mrs. Morris entertained some friends from the borough during her stay at the shore.

Admitting the eventual necessity of a new bridge at Perth Amboy for shore traffic, Mr. Bauer cited that inasmuch as the proposed new route would undoubtedly bring additional traffic to an already over-crowded area the committee should consider carefully the alignment of public opinion in favor of the plan.

It was noted that considerable difficulty probably would be encountered at the hands of property-owners in the affected area including several oil companies, unless the new route was accepted.

BORE BRUNT OF EARTH TREMORS

"Apennines of Naples" Is Hardest Hit by Recent Quake in Italy.

Washington, D. C.—"Italy's recent earthquake was confined in its most destructive effects to the mountainous region known as the Apennines of Naples," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"Just north of Naples the mountain range that extends down the middle of the Italian peninsula loses its form of a definite ridge and breaks down into rather distinct mountain groups, joined by cross ranges and elevated saddles. This area of elevated masses and deep defiles, where towns and villages perch on hilltops and cling to mountain slopes, has borne the brunt of the earth tremors. Farther to the east, the tableland of Apulia has been shaken, too, but not so disastrously.

Crowded City in Beautiful Setting.

"Naples, situated where this broken section of the Apennines slopes down to the Tyrrhenian sea, and close to where Vesuvius has belched out cubic miles of lava, has been shaken severely as it has been many times before. The city is largely built of gray lava from Vesuvius and in its old part consists of low houses along dark, narrow streets and alleys. It is Italy's most populous community in one of the world's most beautiful settings.

"Venosa, an inland town of 9,000 population, which suffered damage, was the birthplace in 64 B. C. of Horace, best loved of Roman poets. There is buried Robert Guiscard, great Norman soldier-king, in the Church of St. Trinita, built by him in 1050.

"Melfi, another town in which the toll of life was large, lies near Venosa and under the pyramidal peaks of Monte Volture, which marks the southern extent of the Apennines of Naples. In Melfi, Robert Guiscard set up his capital until he captured Salerno on the coast, and made that town his headquarters. Melfi was practically wiped out of existence by an earthquake in 1851.

"Foggia, farthest east of the towns to feel the marked force of the recent quake, lies near the Adriatic side of the peninsula. It is the capital of the great Apulian tableland that was once a huge sheep pasture, maintaining millions of the animals. The town is large (61,000), and with its low white houses, has a somewhat oriental aspect. It was largely destroyed by an earthquake in 1731. The Apulian tableland that surrounds it has been called Italy's most dreary and barren area.

"Nearby Is Lucera, where Emperor Frederick II planted his famous Saracen mercenaries, 60,000 strong, in the first years of the Thirteenth century. Frederick lived among these Moslems, dressed as 'the sultan of Lucera,' maintained a harem guarded by eunuchs, and used his Mohammedan forces in his struggles against the Christian soldiers of the Papacy.

One of Italy's Oldest Towns.

"Benevento, where property was damaged and lives lost, is a thriving town, capital of the region between Foggia and Naples. It is finely situated on a mountain high above the Apian Way and its two rivers. There stands one of the most imposing of the triumphal arches outside Rome, erected to Trajan. It is one of the oldest of Italian towns and stood out against the Romans successfully until 276 B. C.

"Potenza, base of operations for some of the relief expeditions, was itself struck by the recent tremors. It lies on a low saddle which cuts the Apennines and roughly marks the southwestern limit of destruction. This town of 14,000 inhabitants was almost completely razed by the earthquake of 1837, which devastated the region of the Apennines of Naples."

Twins Stick Together, Call on Same Girls

Memphis, Tenn.—Inseparable since birth, the Harris twins—Jesse and Leslie—look alike, act alike, and even call on the same girls.

Jessie is a few hours older than Leslie. That is, Jesse was born directly before midnight, March 31, 1908, while Leslie arrived very early April 1, 1908. The two were graduated from Southwestern here recently and will enter the same kind of business together next fall, they announced.

In their 22 years the pair has been separated but once, last summer, on a book selling campaign.

Albany, N. Y.—Insurance was written as early as 600 B. C., according to Harry J. Mang, of the Monarch club. This was when boatmen on the Nile river in Egypt united to prosecute their losses in muties used to haul their barges, he said.

BLACK GOLD GONE; INDIANS BANKRUPT

End of Rainbow Stops Playtime of Osages.

Pawhuska, Okla.—The Osage Indians have found the end of the rainbow after traversing a golden lane of oil gushers that have poured millions of dollars into their tribal treasury. Once known as the richest class of people in the world, they face bankruptcy now.

The playtime of the Osages has ended. Within the last three months the tribe has been undergoing a change—back to the ordinary way of living. Paleface neighbors of the Indians speculate on the outcome of this adjustment. Meanwhile, the Osages are not worried particularly except for the constant press of creditors.

Oil wells that gave the Osages a life of ease and provided means for reckless spending orgies no longer hold promise of inexhaustible wealth. When Bacon Rind, Bigheart, and Lookout, tribal chieftains, saw oil magnates fly over from Tulsa in airplanes and drop hundreds of thousands of dollars in single bids for leases, they told their people wealth from their hills was eternal.

They realize now the oil "play" has moved to the south into the land of the Seminoles and the white pioneers around Oklahoma City.

The adjustment has raised two problems—one is social and the other economic.

Prosperity Too Much.

Oil spread its greasy mantle of gold over the broad reservation and poured more than $300,000,000 into the tribal purse. The Osages have been soaked in oil, steeped in gin, and have felt the thrill of power contained in their expensive automobiles.

Many have been the victims of the reign of prosperity which at once released gold and grief upon them. Since 1896, when oil prospecting started in the Osage nation, court records show where scores have been killed for their headright so others might come into possession of it. A gang of four men headed by W. K. Hale, known as the "King of the Osage," is serving terms in connection with the famous Osage headright murder plot. Murders of Indians for their headright became so common that congress finally passed a law providing that any person convicted of killing an Osage should not share the estate.

Innumerable intermarriages with whites and halfbreeds for the purpose of sharing in estate have been effected. The halfbreeds and white relatives are the ones that suffer from the present depression. In 1921 the government gave all Osages with less than one-half pure Indian blood the right to sell the surface of their allotted lands. They are the ones who raised the moan of the redman across the miles of beautiful tree clad hills and wrought sadness in the land of the once mighty people.

Until 1921 every enrolled Osage drew all money credited to him. The government then reduced payments. Then certificates of "competency" were issued, until now there are only about 600 Indians who cannot draw everything that is due them and spend it as they wish.

Carousel Is Ended.

In flush years the lands yielded $20,000,000 annually. Many families drew $100,000 annually. The blanket Indians drew $13,500 each in 1925. Now the unrestricted Indian gets $35 weekly. The full blood gets about $300 monthly.

Now that the Osages have spent more than $225,000,000 and the 9,000 or more oil wells that used to flow from 5,000 to 15,000 barrels daily have settled down to a production often as low as 5 barrels daily, the Indians do not see how they can rise above the quagmire because of fast living and 10 years of general carousal.

Fifteen mixed bloods recently applied for bankruptcy and if a decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals is favorable in a case now pending a tribal attorney has estimated that 1,500 more mixed than full bloods, who own between $250 and $15,000 each, will apply for bankruptcy to save their headrights from attachment. A headright is now worth about $10,000, it formerly was worth $50,000.

Shot as Coyote, Animal Proves to Be Silver Fox

Torrance, Calif.—A sleek little animal shot by Arthur Hodge as a coyote furnished Mrs. Hodge with a handsome neckpiece when it was determined that the intruder was not a coyote but a silver fox. The fox had been making depredations upon the Hodge family chicken pens and had evidently escaped from some fox farm. Value of the pelt has been estimated at $250.

Bald Spot Worth $150, Jury Decides

Denver.—A bald spot on a woman's head is worth $150 in damages, according to a jury in Judge Henry Bray's court. The jury awarded that sum to Mrs. Audra Arnold, who had filed suit for $5,000 damages against Lillian Kretschmar, beauty parlor operator. Mrs. Arnold claimed a permanent wave machine burned the top of her head, causing the bald spot.

Mental Disease Oddities

Among the patients at the Royal Edinburgh hospital for mental and nervous diseases suffering from "stereotypy" is a man who wrote a single word in the same way 2,500 times without stopping. Another spent all his spare time for eighteen years shuffling and reshuffling a pack of cards. A third spent forty-eight years in the institution and never asked for anything except "train fare to Carlisle."

Early American Church

The first Protestant church built in America was the brick church built at Jamestown, Va., by the earliest English colonists, who landed in 1607. The church was dedicated in 1617 and was built of brick brought from England. It was destroyed by fire and rebuilt and was afterward destroyed. At the present time only a part of the original tower remains. The island of Jamestown is preserved for the benefit of the entire American people.

Junks Fit Canals

A boat much larger than the stream in which it floats is a very common sight in certain parts of China. Junks navigate with ease these ribbon-like interior canals. These boats, whose superstructure is strikingly large, often hang over the banks of the canals through which they pass. The bottom of the craft is small enough to "fit into" the stream.

U. S. MUSEUM GIVEN VOODOO COLLECTION

Magic Articles From Nigeria Are Included.

Washington.—From the interior of Nigeria, original home of the voodoo cult, the National museum has received a large collection of native implements and articles of magic presented by C. C. Roberts of Malden, Mass., an oil operator who has built up an extensive business in this little known country.

The section of Africa, where native culture has reached its highest levels, hitherto has been unrepresented in American collections. The most conspicuous objects are the frightsome wooden masks used by the native magicians. These are elaborately carved heads of animals and grotesque human faces employed in the rain-making and fertility rites. All show a highly developed artistic ability. They are used in the weird metamorphosis ceremonies in which men are supposed to change themselves into totem animals.

Brass Work Examples.
The collection also contains many examples of the famous Benin brass work. The Hauser negro tribe, it was explained, apparently progressed directly from copper to iron without going through the bronze era which has been common to other civilizations. Their extremely artistic iron statuary has been one of the wonders of the anthropological world. The use of brass was introduced by the Portuguese during the early explorations of the West African coast.

Among the objects is a model of a safari in brass, with the king being carried through a jungle in a hammock carried by his subjects and with a retinue of attendants. Each little figure is modeled to life in brass. There are also brass models of hunting scenes. Instead of preserving records of notable events in drawing or painting, as did the primitive European, the Nigerian system is to model it in brass.

Slave Trade Recalled.
This collection, it was pointed out, is of special interest since a great majority of the natives brought out of Africa in slave trade days came from this part of the country, although they may have been brought originally from somewhere else by the negro slave traders.

That the artistic ability of the people has declined little since ancient times is shown by the apothecis of the tin can in two samples collected by Mr. Roberts. Cigarette tins, lined neatly with leather and fur, become objects of considerable value with little likeness to their original state.

Among the objects of cultural interest are pottery stoves with grate, firepan and oven formed out of the same lump of clay.

Cattle Thieves Attack Ranches of Canadians

Winnipeg.—The prevalence of cattle rustling and the increase in cattle thefts from ranges in western Canada by rustlers using auto trucks is alarming the ranchers of Saskatchewan. This was revealed at the session of the Saskatchewan Stock Growers' association convention held in Regina, Sask. Edward Evans, secretary, in reading the resolution asking that additions be made to the proposed amendment to the stock inspection act, stated that it was known that rustlers, cornered cattle and placed them in trucks or else shot cattle and hauled the carcasses away in trucks to points as far as 200 miles from the scene of the theft and then sold them.

To stop this practice it was suggested that all hides and carcasses should be marked in designated places by government officials; that ears should be left on hides; that stock be inspected en route and at destination. Further, that bill of sale be presented to all brand inspectors.

Pastor Draws $12,000

Buffalo, N. Y.—Rev. Clinton Churchill, pastor of Churchill Tabernacle, has solved the problem of passing the plate to radio congregations. By appealing to radio listeners to participate in the offering as well as other parts of broadcast services he has found that the Sunday receipts can be materially increased. The collection for the tabernacle's recent tenth anniversary service amounted to $12,000, much of it contributed by persons who have never been within hundreds of miles of Buffalo.

WOMEN HIDE AGE TO RETAIN JOBS

Economical Justification for Usual Reticence.

Washington.—A woman's proverbial reticence where age is concerned has economic if not ethical justification in our modern industrial system, according to officials of the United States women's bureau.

The woman over twenty-eight who tells her employer the truth about her age is likely to find herself out of a job, says Miss Mary V. Robinson, director of the bureau's division of public information.

The bureau finds the term, "older worker," is being applied to all women employees between the ages of twenty-eight and sixty-eight, and that it is "fairly typical" for industrial concerns to employ only women under thirty.

"With the problem of finding work becoming more acute for women in their thirties, naturally to the women of over forty forced to seek a job the situation seems almost hopeless," Miss Robinson said.

"Many women in their fifties, despite years of satisfactory and loyal service, are kept through wrong types of efficiency methods in constant dread of losing their positions; and those who have crossed the sixty mark, even though still hale, fit and useful, generally are regarded as hopelessly beyond the dead line of employment."

The women's bureau recently made a survey of women band workers in the cigar industry, where hundreds have been thrown out of work by factory mergers and installation of automatic cigar making machines.

A number of those questioned frankly admitted prevaricating about their age in their effort to find new work.

Miss Robinson raises the question if it isn't "a shortsighted civilization" that offers wage standards too low to provide savings that would insure against unemployment, and age standards too low to provide jobs for capable applicants.

Widow's Search Finds Reward After 23 Years

Cardiff.—Twenty-three years ago Johan William Tornoe, Norway's vice consul at Cardiff, while walking on the cliffs here, was seized with a heart attack. Miss Jessie Hart, a nurse, who chanced to pass at the moment, went to Mr. Tornoe's assistance. She guided him to the nearest seat and held his head in her lap until he died a few minutes later.

From that time until the present Mrs. Tornoe has yearly visited Cardiff in an effort to find and thank the nurse who went to her husband's assistance. Each time her visit proved fruitless, but she never lost hope of finding Miss Hart.

This year she came again, and as the result of an advertisement in a local paper, she succeeded in getting in touch with the former Miss Hart, who now is Mrs. Jessie Thomas, living in Rhondda valley. The meeting took place here and Mrs. Tornoe expressed her deep appreciation of Mrs. Thomas' kindly act, performed 23 years ago.

Many persons have become acquainted with Mrs. Tornoe's long search for the nurse, and all were gratified that her persistent efforts had at last been rewarded.

$13.50 Sock Worth $100,
So Declares This Lady

Springfield, Mo.—Fined $13.50 for assaulting a neighbor woman, Mrs. Sarah Youngblood Wright declared in Justice court it was "worth a hundred."

"Been wanting to sock that woman for a long time," said Mrs. Wright to Judge Hubbard. "The other day she stepped out in her yard and made signs I didn't appreciate, so I invited her to a vacant lot.

"She put her hands on her hips and snarled at me, 'How close do you want me to come? I was close enough, so I spit on my hands and socked her one. What I mean, she toppled.

"Yesir, it was worth $100.

LAWYER TRIES SUITS FOR 98 CENTS EACH

Bargain Prices Are Achieved in Detroit.

Detroit.—Lawsuits are traditionally expensive, but there is in Detroit one lawyer who was able to report to the Detroit Bar association in its annual meeting recently that he has achieved bargain prices. He has cut his total costs per case to an average of 98 cents each during the last year.

He is Louis C. Miriani, attorney and counselor of the Detroit Community fund and director of the legal aid bureau of the Detroit Bar association.

"Last year we reported a reserve of $35," Mr. Miriani reported. "It was a bad check received as an attorney fee in a divorce case. This item does not appear this year. The trust company reports that it reduced the item by debiting here and crediting there."

Helps Thousands.

The legal aid bureau is the salvation of thousands of persons who find themselves entangled with the law and no money to pay an attorney. It deals in tragedy, major and minor.

"Let me quote a letter from one of our more prosperous clients," Mr. Miriani suggested.

"Dear Sir:
"If a landlord wants me to move, but I won't, how much notice do I get?"

"If there is any charge for this don't send it, because I won't pay."

In quantity of business there isn't a law firm in the city that can compete with the legal aid bureau. How do they get their clients? Let Mr. Miriani tell it.

"During the last year the courts and government officials sent us a total of 2,252 cases; the newspapers, Nancy Brown et al, accounted for 556 more; the social agencies brought in 764, and an army of satisfied customers 3,000 more."

Mistake Its Purpose.

Not long ago a newly admitted lawyer called and requested a job with a reputable law firm at $300 a month. When it was explained that the bureau was to assist poor people, he said, "I thought legal aid meant getting jobs for unemployed lawyers."

"Dear Legal Aid," wrote a trusting mother, "Please send me some cod liver oil for my baby, she needs it bad. Also will I lose my house if I don't pay on the contract. . . her stomach ain't so good, so please take care."

"There's a bit of choice legal terminology and an unmistakable desire for action in the letter from a lawyer in a small eastern village:

"Our client says that she has coming $125 alimony.

"I would say that you should get a writ of arousal to poke him up to pay.

"When you write send some money, or do something."

Home Accidents Still Menace, Report Shows

Chicago.—Home accidents are still a serious hazard in this country, according to the latest monthly reports of the National Safety council.

While much emphasis is laid on our toll of automobile accidents, this report shows that 11 of the 39 cities reporting to the council during a recent month suffered more home accident fatalities than auto deaths.

Among the entire 39 cities, representing a total population of 11,000,000, there were nine home fatalities for every ten accidental auto deaths.

Nearly 50 per cent of these home deaths were caused by falls, proving that this hazard continues into warmer weather. There was, however, a large falling off in deaths from asphyxiation and suffocation, which caused 27 per cent of home deaths in January but only 10 per cent in May.

Among all home fatalities, there are three times as many deaths to children under five years of age as to children from five to fourteen years.

Bethlehem, Conn.—Homer Somers owes his life to two pairs of pants. Homer wore double trousers when he went wood chopping to protect his limbs from the brush. He was accidentally hit on the temple by a golf ball at the Mill Valley Country club. The accident resulted from a sliced drive by Taylor Merriman of Mill Valley.

Billy the Kid's Resting Place Will Be Marked

Fort Sumner, N. M.—The grave of Billy the Kid, most famed of south-western gunmen and outlaws, is to be preserved by this city.

Men who knew the light-haired boy who killed 21 men before reaching his majority have assisted in locating his grave in an old cemetery near here.

The kid is buried next to two other men who helped write the flaming history of the Southwest—Charley Boudrey and Tom O'Phallion.

A concrete curbing has been placed around the graves and a concrete slab over the spot where Billy rests. In time it is planned to erect a marker.

Among the old timers who helped locate the kid's grave was Jesus Silva, seventy-two, who was a member of the coroner's jury that sat over the body of the young outlaw.

The summer night in 1881 when the Kid was killed by Sheriff Pat Garrett is well remembered by Silva. That day he had killed a steer at the ranch of Pete Maxwell, where he was a cowboy. The kid was a visitor at Maxwell's and was on his way to the ranch house to cut a steak from the freshly killed steer when he encountered Garrett.

Suicide Pace Continues Unabated in Germany

Berlin.—The epidemic of suicides which gripped Germany after the war is continuing unabated. Recent statistics show that in Prussia alone an average of 26 persons commit suicide daily.

In 1928 a total of 9,530 persons voluntarily ended their lives in Prussia. Of these 6,690 were men and 2,840 belonged to the female sex. More than two-thirds belonged to the town population and only 3,117 were from rural districts.

Thirty-eight per cent of the suicides were due to mental and nervous diseases, 28 per cent were caused by emotional strain, 12 per cent were due to physical sufferings, and 11 per cent to poverty.

Escort That Must Have Tested Settler's Nerve

A settler in Mombasa, British East Africa, relates a thrilling experience. Returning home along a jungle path from a visit to a neighbor, he suddenly became aware of a soft "padding" by his side. Still swinging his hurricane lantern, and without altering his stride, he glanced to the right out of the corner of his eye, and beheld a fully grown lion keeping pace with him through trees and brush. A moment later he was horrified to discover that the lion's mate was sneaking on the other side of his path!

For a moment he contemplated making a dash for it—but only for a moment. He realized such a step would be almost certainly fatal. So he continued on his way as if nothing untoward was happening, and with heart pounding like a sledgehammer, managed to reach his bungalow without being attacked.

Alloys Make Trouble
Gold rings and necklaces make black marks on the skin of some people because it is necessary to use some alloy with gold in order to make it hard enough to make jewelry. These alloys develop certain sulphides as a result of chemical reaction between the metal and slight amounts of sulphur which may be in the atmosphere or in the perspiration of the skin.

BATTLE OF PROPHETS

Some weeks ago, at the White House conference, Mr. Hoover gave the correspondents to understand that he would make no more predictions about business recovery. Those which he issued last March, and again in May, had rather dismally failed of fulfillment. The upturn in industry and the gain in employment, which he had seen just around the corner, were not there when the country arrived at the place. It was, therefore, wise for the President, as for all economists, to put away the mantle of prophecy. Mr. Hoover did not resume it on Friday when he spoke about the outlook for the Federal Treasury. He indulged in no new prophecies himself, but simply contradicted those made by others. —N. Y. Times

A GREAT MONTH

For three things are we grateful to the month of September. They are Fall, football and oysters. A more popular trio is difficult to imagine and as the good things in life usually come singly we are thrice thankful for the providence of September.

There is an axiom that oysters are in season in the eight months of the year having the letter "R" in their names. We are not informed whether there is an affinity between these months and oysters because the letter "R" is also in the word oyster or it is just a coincidence. Neither do we know the discoverer of the circumstances and the author of the axiom. However, it is neither an axiom nor secret that we are glad September has an "R" somewhere among her nine letters and we are not particular in what style the first oysters are served.

To September also we are indebted for fair autumn. Where the summer is hot and the winter cold there is no season quite so delightful as autumn. It is without the extremes of temperature, is comfortable warm at day and somniferously cool at night, is an aid to efficient work and an irresistible urge to recreation. In all it is a season in which to live to the utmost.

Thirdly, September hears the first thud of the pigskin and the first shrill blast of the referee's whistle. The nation in September turns its eyes away from vacations and baseball to feast them upon the gridiron. Recent development of football in the colleges, universities, public schools and athletic clubs has made it a national sport where once it was strictly a college game. When football seasons opens the whole nation is kin, class barriers erected by education are dropped and player and spectator play the game for all there is in it.

Every month of the year's twelve has something which makes life worth while but September seems most bountifully endowed with the "better attractions."

REFORM AND SOCIAL WORK

By DR. MIRIAM VAN WATERS, Los Angeles Juvenile Court.

Reform or uplift movements are far removed from genuine social work. Reformers commonly have a low opinion of mankind, but the attitude of the social worker is one of respect. Public opinion confuses the two, and is mistaken in this. The social worker finds in those with whom he deals qualities showing regard for others, self-sacrifice and loyalty quite as commonly as poverty, avarice and crime. To attempt by means of legislative and constitutional reform to arrange matters so that the interests of some will not conflict with those of their fellows wholly lacks the concept of personality and relies too much on rewards and punishments.

It is this attitude toward personality which sets the social worker apart from reformers adopting a program of militant warfare. The social worker has built up a concept of the laws which lie at the foundation of behavior. When the idea of causation appears, praise and blame disappear. We hear no more about the "worthy poor." But we hear a great deal about the vital quest of the way of life.

The subject matter of our study is the adjustment of men to their environment as to common, not separate wants; for example, we do not seek to aid a man to become a better mathematician, but a better member of his household and community.

FASCISM BOUND TO FALL

By PROF. NILES CARPENTER, University of Buffalo.

Communism, Fascism and Puritanism fail because coercion breeds resistance and lets loose bigotry, persecutions, self-righteousness and sadistic cruelty. There are four possible ways in which religion may be related to the social order. The first is theory, but may be dismissed as impracticable in the face of Christendom. A second form of religious attitude toward society is otherworldliness or retreat from the actualities of everyday life. A third is to suppress religion, but this, too, has failed in the past.

Fascism is a religion of the state essentially as zealous and bloody as the Moloch worship of the ancient world. A society that is governed by masters who are controlled merely by their own sordid desires and egotistic whims is not likely to survive.

The fourth alternative is a society animated by a regard for ideals and aspirations that are beyond matter-of-fact demonstrations. No man can prove the existence of these ideals or these spiritual forces. It can be said, however, that they are universal to human experience and that today, no less than in remotest antiquity, they give meaning, purpose and strength to human life.

GOOD IN EXAGGERATED EGO

By B. E. SUNNY, Executive Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

It's far better for a young man starting out in the world to have an exaggerated ego than an inferiority complex. If I had to choose between a young man of extraordinary ego and one with an inferiority complex, I should choose the former.

While aggressiveness and conceit may be unpleasant, the aggressive man is likely to make others think. Napoleon and Roosevelt were examples of the egoist. One would not have become emperor of France and the other would not have built the Panama canal if they had been timorous.

I have sympathy for the studious, retiring young man who is afflicted with an inferiority complex, but I urge him to rid himself of it. It will be a heavy burden on his consciousness. If we don't fit into the world as it is, we are failures.

Possibilities of Tung

Oil Production Shown

Experiments conducted in the orange belt of the southern states indicate that it is possible for the United States to grow its own supply of another imported raw material—tung oil. This oil, used extensively in the paint and varnish trade, is at present imported principally from China. In 1927, the last year for which figures are available, $9,650,411 pounds of the oil were imported.

Trees grown in the South will produce upon maturity, between nine and eleven years old, 30 pounds of oil a year. As 60 trees can be grown per acre, the yield of 1,800 pounds would have a value at present market prices of $300 per acre.—Washington Star.

Use for Historic Building

The old court house in St. Louis, in which the Dred Scott case was tried, will be used as an exhibition place for the art of the Mississippi valley, according to plans now being shaped by the St. Louis Art League. The historic building, whose dome once was the giant of the city, now nestled down among clusters of skyscrapers, will be abandoned by the civil courts when the new $4,000,000 civil court-house is ready for occupancy. The exhibits, according to present plans, would be devoted mainly to works of modern art and all are associated with the Midwest and the valley.

ORDERLY MIND DOES BEST KIND OF WORK

Some people have anything but orderly minds, and when you dare to doubt the wisdom of some confused action they are indignant that you should question their manner of doing it. But the fact remains that if they had carried out their task in an orderly way the result would have been much better. They may have reached the end of their job all right, but more often than not the getting there was full of difficulty and anxiety. A mind with no appreciation of orderliness never does the best kind of work. That is impossible. The whole of our life, the universe, the human system are based upon laws which are inexorable in their punishment if we break them.

Besides, there is a great, inexhaustible pleasure in an orderly manner. It adds joy to the job, it saves a lot of wasted effort; which means that, in the general turnover, we can do much more. This saving of time is a very important factor in the development and evolution of the human race.—Exchange.

Giant Beasts of Prey Once Roamed England

In the Pleistocene period an animal known as the cave lion was common in England, south of Yorkshire; this was larger than the African lion, and as remains have been found in nearly every English county it must have been well distributed. But there was a great mammal somewhat similar to the cave lion in appearance, but infinitely stronger; this was the mammoth, and probably represented the carnivorous mammal brought to its most amazing development. Remains of this catlike animal have been found in the eastern counties. At the same period swarms of hyenas were seen. Their remains have been discovered in incredible quantities in caves, and in the same layers bones of the cave lion and other large mammals have been found. Probably these hunters shared the same home, whence they emerged to prey upon the vast herds of deer.

Relics of Bronze Age

Workmen engaged upon an excavating job in a Berlin suburban park dug up several old bronze urns, but because they did not realize their value they were not careful in handling the fragile vessels and most of them were ruined. The curator of a Berlin museum examined the pieces and estimated the age of the urns at more than 3,000 years. Some of the urns were filled with ashes, and in view of this it is believed that the park marks the site of an ancient burial ground. Further excavation under the supervision of scientists is now being undertaken.

Lindbergh peak, named in honor of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, rises from the center of Hell's hole, Colo., a tremendous glacial basin of wild grandeur north of the Arapahoe glacier district, Colorado. Plans are on foot for the building of an automobile road as far as possible from Arapahoe glacier toward the basin and then construction of an easy trail to the bottom of Hell's hole.

Women Race Over Snow, Ice

Women in Sweden had a new thrill in the late winter in long-distance road trials over snow and ice. In one event four Swedes and an English woman competed. The Swedes were able to hold to the roads, but the outsider, after a few "ditchings," had a skid into a telegraph pole, which put her machine out of use.

Prizes for Churchgoers

Prizes are being given by a church near Glasgow, Scotland, to those who attend most regularly. On prize-award day the procession of winners is among the strangest to leave a house of worship. PASSING THOUGHTS

Behavior is a mirror in which every one shows his image.

A man isn't necessarily a failure because he has failed.

Much reading maketh a full man, likewise much feeding.

People aren't necessarily good because they feel that way.

When one devours a book it indicates a taste for literature.

Every rose has its thorn, and the thorn always outlasts the rose.

A man with a bad temper thinks it is mitigated if he admits it.

The man with the largest library usually has the least time to read.

Very often those who have courage are not particularly conscious of it.

If Jonah had been after inside information he certainly would have got it.

There is an unbalanced account between nearly every man and his conscience.

People like to be told they are "human," as if all of that were commendable.

Eloquence is sometimes learned by making one's way through the world by excuses.

Time gets away from an old man almost as quickly as money does from a young one.

The world is full of foolish people who are unable to see things from our point of view.

Who cares what are the words they sing in grand opera? It is the music that tells the story.

Too much of this equality clamor merely means that your neighbor is not to have any more than you have.

When one is old and rich enough to be able to buy expensive flowers he doesn't know so many he'd like to buy them for.

Anyway the Policemen Had Good Intentions

Columbus, Ohio.—Ashby Williams is still pondering over what is the most costly—robbers or police protection. When robbers recently made an attempt to break into his poolroom here, police arrived in time to frighten the invaders away. Arraigned the next day in court, the proprietor was fined $225 on the two charges.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Wandering Jew

There is little mystery to the story of the "Wandering Jew," so far as the personage himself is concerned, but there is a deep and as yet unsolved mystery about the origin of this legend, dealing, according to the Jewish encyclopedia, with a shoemaker who, taunting Jesus on the road to Golgotha, was told by Him to "Go on forever till I return"—or, according to the more popular version, "Tarry thou till I come."

No one seems to know just how this story started. So far as can be learned, the legend first appeared in a pamphlet of four leaves printed at Leyden in 1602 by Christoff Crutzer, but no printer of that name has ever been located and the real place and printer cannot now be ascertained. The legend spread quickly throughout Germany, no less than six different editions of the pamphlet appearing during the year 1602 and forty were extant in Germany before the end of the Eighteenth century, while the story made its way into England in 1625, and to other European countries about the same time, eventually forming the basis of a number of novels and other imaginative works based upon the same idea.

According to Bebauer, one of the recognized authorities upon subjects of this kind, the legend is founded on the words given in Matthew 16:28, which are quoted in the earliest German pamphlets of 1602. Another version of the legend declares that the attendant Malchus, whose ear was cut off by Peter in the garden of Gethsemane, was condemned to wander over the face of the earth until the second coming of Christ.

The action of Malchus is associated by several biblical commentators with the scoffing at Jesus and an actual predecessor of the wandering Jew is recorded in the "Flores Historiarum," by Roger of Wendover, in 1223. Here it is stated that an Armenian bishop, then visiting in England, was asked by the monks of St. Albans about the celebrated Joseph of Arimathea, who had spoken to Jesus and who was popularly supposed still to be alive. The archbishop declared that he had himself seen him in Armenia and that his name was Cartaphilus.

Moncure D. Conway attempts to connect the legend with those of other "immortals"—King Arthur, Frederick Barbarossa, Don Sebastian of Portugal, Thomas the Rhymer and even Rip Van Winkle, claiming that all are founded on the same belief in the immortality of certain prominent personages, some of whom are notable for their praiseworthy exploits and others for crimes which they must expiate by centuries of bodily suffering.

Numbers of persons have presented themselves as the "Wandering Jew" and have gathered varying numbers of believers in their statements during the past three centuries—the most notable of these being Count Cagliostro, the Italian impostor who stopped at nothing in order to attain his ends. In 1542 a man appeared in Hamburg, Germany, who declared that he had been present during the passion of Christ and that since that time he had wandered through many countries and over many lands, as a penance for his voluntary participation in the dragging of Jesus before Pilate.

Another man, representing himself to be the same character, appeared in the Netherlands in 1575, arriving at Strassburg a few years later and, presenting himself before the magistrates, informed them that he had visited their city two centuries before, which is said to be proved to be true by reference to the registers of the town, wherein the stranger pointed out an entry about himself and also called attention to names which he mentioned before they were shown to him.

The "Wandering Jew" was next heard of in the West Indies and, in 1604, he made his appearance in France, where he caused a considerable sensation. On April 22, 1774, the Wanderer, or an individual who impersonated him, appeared in Brussels under the name of Isaac Laquedem and only a few years ago another claimant to the title made himself known in central Germany—but not one of these surrounded himself with the atmosphere and apparent sincerity of Cagliostro, a confessed impostor, who had so grounded himself in history and languages as to be able to speak with apparent authority about every event of importance which had taken place since the beginning of the Christian era.

Cuckoo (the Clock Kind) Always Is in Season

Morehead City, N. C.—It may be illegal to shoot song birds but Jim Kelly got away with shooting the "cuckoo" in the clock. Game Warden Silas Brown said he was not justified in arresting Kelly for picking of the artificial bird. Jim was awakened at 3 a. m. by the cuckoo clock. He reached for a shotgun, fired at the bird and the noise ceased immediately. The bird retired in fragments behind its doors.

route either paralleled the Long Branch Railroad tracks or was carried over a viaduct.

The Elizabeth-Carteret route proposed by the Regional Plan Association, it was said by Mr. Lewis, would connect with Route 25 north of Newark Airport, traverse the Newark and Elizabeth meadows, cross Elizabeth in the vicinity of Fourth street and, after traversing the Bayway section, would parallel the Long Branch Railroad tracks.

The chamber now aims, Mr. Magee said today, to enlist the support of municipalities in the area which would be affected by the proposed highway in favor of the project and seek to bring sufficient pressure to bear on the Legislature to insure inclusion of the project in the first new program adopted by the Highway Commission.

campers repeated the musical production of Alice in Wonderland which they gave for their friends and parents last Sunday. More than 200 guests from all over the county were present.

Among the benefactors who have promoted the camp project during the past season are many local citizens. These include contributors of prizes and money to buy prizes for Field Day.
