COUNCIL ADOPTS 1932 BORO TAX ORDINANCE

No objections were voiced to the 1932 budget when the tax ordinance was taken up for a final reading at the meeting of the borough council Wednesday night. It calls for the raising by taxation the sum of $236,-605.00, which is about $52,000 less than last year.

A letter was received from the Woman's Club asking that some steps be taken to keep the central section of the borough from being littered with paper blown from the dumps. It was suggested by the writer, Mrs. Helen B. Kenyon, that the people burn small pieces of paper instead of putting them with the garbage and ashes, and that large pieces be tied in bundles. The matter was referred to the street and road com-

Conrad, chairman of the streets and roads committee, reported that work on fixing the road has been under way for the past two weeks and will be continued until it is in good shape.

Letters from United States Senator Barbour and Congressman Eaton acknowledged the receipt of resolutions pertaining to the fight on the proposed copner tariff.

Members have delcared they have nothing to do with the budget!

It is even said the finance committee is not provided with an audit of expenditures to date when making up a budget. How can any set of men pretend to make up a budget for hundreds of thousands of dollars of the people's money without knowing exactly what has been spent, how much is on hand and what surplus is available?

It appears no such audit was placed before the finance committee of the Board of Education but they were just handed "budget." Comparing this with the previous year's "budget" meant nothing. They would have to know what was spent, how much was on hand and how much they would be likely to have left at the end of the school year. And they would not have to be very smart to figure that out.

Why should not the members of the Board have access to all expenditures at all times?

It is reported that for one full year no audit was made of the full school year. This would not happen in darkest Africa. Secrecy and silence appears to be the slogan as usual about school expenditures.

The people were told there was to be a real reduction in spending but an examination shows this is not the case. Item after item has more in the new budget than was a ally spent as revealed by the au" for the last full school year-July 1st, 1930 to June 30, 1931.

It is reported that when salary increases for teachers was talked of last January one commissioner was handed a salary list supposed to represent the then present salaries of Board of Edmontion employees.

That list, it appears was two years old. Practically all the teachers were getting $200.00 more a year than that list indicated. Practically all the janitors were getting $100.00 more than the list handed him indicated.

It appears that Aid not represent the 1930-31 salaries and all the employees were really getting more than some were led to believe they would be getting if there was an increase.

Secrecy and silence! This never should happen in the State of New Jersey.

Let the public papers be in a public building. Public records have no place in a private home.

The audit in 1930-31 showed the clerk got $2,200.00. That is plenty of money for a full time job. Place the public papers in a public place where they can be seen all hours of the day.

HARRIET LIVERMORE

A woman tropical, intense, In thought and act, in soul and sense, She blended in a like degree The vixen and the devotee.

THUS Whittier paints into the charmed circle about the New Engtand hearth in "Snowbound" the picture of that "not unfeared, half-welcome guest," the woman evangelist. Nor was the picture an imaginary one. Harriet Livermore was a real woman and a somewhat notorious figure in a day when woman's place was emphatically in the home. She had traveled widely, preached frequently and elo quently of the immanent second coming of the Christ, and once had defied every tradition of her sex by talking before congress, and twice on the same day. For some time she had made her home with Lady Hester Stanhope until the two had quarreled over a horse they both desired to ride when the Messiah should reappear.

On her return to America she talked herself in and out of the good graces of the people of Plymouth, Mass. She offered to give a free lecture in the village church. Three people in suc cession entered while she was speaking, leaving the door open behind them and necessitating a pause in her eloquence and her request to close it. After the third repetition of the offense she became obviously furious and refused to proceed until one of the audience volunteered to act as door keeper. At the lecture's close the speaker announced she had for sale a certain brand of pills, and asked those who had interrupted her to redeem themselves by being the first to

ALICE IN WONDERLAND

NOT many little girls just turned six find themselves suddenly become heroine of a story book destined to be translated into twelve languages, quoted almost as much as Shakespeare and more parodied than any other work in the English language! Nor was Alice Liddell, more familiar to us as Alice in Wonderland, so much different from most children, who find the books without pictures and conversation their elders read so very dull. But she could boast the friendship of Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, professor of mathematics at Oxford university, who could be persuaded on occasion to entertain story-hungry little girls with the most delightful of fairy fan-

Alice first had her adventures in wonderland during an afternoon's boat ride on the river, with Dodgson at the oars and her two little sisters sitting happily in the stern. Then were created those "quaint events," the everlasting tea party with the Mad Hatter and the Sleepy Dormouse; the duchess' crazy garden party; the lobster quadrille, the curious lullaby for the baby who "sneezed because he knew it teased." So delighted was Alice with her adventures that the author printed them out, illustrated them, signed them with his pen name "Lewis Carroll" and presented them to her as "A Christmas Gift to a Dear Child in Memory of a Summer's Day." Just a few years ago Alice, in financial straits, sold the precious manuscript at auction for $77,000, and it was subsequently resold to an American collector for $150,000:

ROBINSON CRUSOE

TT IS because Daniel Defoe was a good newspaper man, able to see the "story" in a current news yarn little house and going out to work concerning the rescue of a marooned every day. I want to stay home like sailor from a desert island that we have today that universal favorite "Robinson Crusoe."

The yarn upon which he based his book was about one Alexander Selkirk, English mariner born at Largo, Fifeshire, who early went into privateering in the South seas and by 1704 had earned promotion to command of the good ship Cinque Ports. As the result of a quarrel with his captain, he was at his own request set ashore at Juan Fernandez, a tiny island some 350 miles west of the coast of Chile, where he lived for four years and four months, much, perhaps, as did the character he inspired. He was finally rescued by Capt. Woodes Rogers and returned to civilization. At the time of his death Selkirk had attained rank of lieutenant on H. M. S. Weymouth.

Not only was it his story upon which Defoe built "Robinson Crusoe." but Juan Fernandez is today frequently known as Crusoe's island, and boasts not only many of the very umbrella trees that figure in the story, the chief started kicking on some orbut a Crusoe's cave, and, near the ders, but if, I can catch that next summit of its highest mountain, Sel- train, I can walk back and tell him kirk's Loskout, a tablet, placed there in 1868 it honor of the original Robingon Crysoe!

Jim was hanging up his coat as she entered the front door.

"Why Madge, darling, are you sick? You look so white-and sort of queer." Hands grasping her shoulders, he started at her anxiously.

The tenderness in his voice, the concern in his usually laughing eyes was more than Madge could stand. With a sob she jerked away from him and running into the dining room, buried | 3 her head in the couch pillows.

Jim followed and sitting dow pulled her into his arms. "What's happened? Are you sick?

"You mean you are tired of the office? I thought you were so sold on the whole bunch down there that you wouldn't give up your job, that you'd give me up first!"

She straightened, bracing herself, expecting one of his bearlike hugs. Instead he whistled, gave her one

"Back to the office." He tried to loosen her frantic hold. "But how can you, if you've quit?"

Somehow he seemed bigger, older; she was almost afraid of this new mood. "You and I are the only ones who know that. I just walked out when I'll shoot them through in fine style and double the company's profits." His arms around her, he gave her a quick, hard kiss.

"We can't both quit, so since you beat me to it-" He smiled, his eyes "Honest, Madge, I'm glad. I'll be Another kiss, which left Madge tingling, and Jim was out of the house, running for his train.

Britain's Dominions Now Free and Independent.

London.-With the passage of the statute of Westminster, each separate member of the British commonwealth is a self-governing nation, free to make its own laws and in no way bound by any law enacted in London, so that the crown alone now links the British empire together.

Britons have been slow to realize the full implications of the statute.

They knew, in a general way, that the dominions have been "free" from the mother country for some time. But the knowledge that this freedom now has the most solemn legal force has come as a shock to those who had not appreciated the profound changes that have been taking place in the em-

Irish State Included.

Each dominion now may enter into any relations with a foreign power that it may desire, quite irrespective of the wishes of Britain or any other member of the commonwealth.

The Irish Free State is expressly included among the dominions in the statute. Ireland's relations with Britain are, however, defined in the treaty signed in 1922 and registered at Geneva, as are all treaties between independent members of the League of Nations.

Opponents of the statute argued in the house of commons that a clause should be inserted saying that Ireland's inclusion gave her no power to denounce the 1922 treaty.

Government spokesmen answered that Ireland could denounce the treaty just as well if she were not included in the statute as if she were, and that in any case she had no wish to go back on her solemn obligations.

This point of view carried the day, and Ireland thus took her place among the free and independent foreign nations forming the British commonwealth.

Life was hard for the early settlers in the foothills of the White mountains away back in 1810 when Reuben Whitten moved his family from the little village of Plymouth and began a pioneer's life on a little farm near Lake Asquam. In the summer time they raised a little grain and a few vegetables but for the most part they depended upon fish and game for their So when the summer of 1816 came and it rained week after week they did not worry even when their grain and vegetables rotted in the ground. The woods still were full of game and the lake was still full of fish that could be taken through the ice. Reuben Whitten was more fortunate than the rest. His corn and vegetables had been a failure but he had raised 40 bushels of wheat and that was carefully harvested.

There was no autumn that year. Winter came in on an icy blast in October and for two weeks it snowed and rained and hailed. The whole country side was deep in snow. Most of the cattle perished, as did much of the wild game. Asquam lake was frozen over deep and the fish congregated deeper in the warmer holes so that fishing was futile. The specter of starvation began to stalk through the settlement.

Then came the word from Reuben Whitten that so long as his little store of wheat lasted, all the others in the settlement should share in it. It was little more than enough to carry his own family safely through the winter and whatever lay beyond, but he would portion it out, a little each week to other families.

The winter increased in severity. In other parts of New Hampshire and Vermont whole families were wiped out; others were so weakened by starfound buried in a Helena street by vation that they fell prey to disease; fathers and mothers went without food to keep the spark of life in their children. But in the Indian Hill settlement Reuben Whitten's wheat with what little fish and game could be secured kept the half-dozen families alive till spring.

Down dred to One stands a monument of native stone which commemorates one of the most remarkable stories of desperate valor in all frontier history. It marks the spot where Pat Hennessy bravely faced odds of 300 to t and true to the frontier code "sold his life dearly."

Pat was an old-time Fort Sill freighter and in the spring of 1876 was on his way from Caldwell, Kan., to the fort with a wagon train. He was accompanied by three other men. When "jumped" by a band of some 300 Cheyenne warriors, his companions became confused and tried to escape north along the trail. Immediately they were surrounded and cut down. In the meantime Hennessy had sought shelter among some rocksa little natural fortress, from which his rifle menaced the savages as they approached. Confident in their overwhelming numbers, the Cheyennes swept forward to within 20 yards of Pat's stronghold. Resting his rifle on the rock in front of him and not taking the trouble to aim, he cocked it with one hand and pulled the lever and trigger with the other. A continuous hail of bullets poured into the mass of savages. They broke and retreated. But they came back again-this time in front and at both sides. Again Pat's deadly fire in front caused them to break and they swirled around to the side where they attempted to climb up the overhanging rocks and get at him from there. Failing in this they tried another frontal attack and surged up to within ten feet of the white man, who fired his revolver pointblank into their faces until he had emptied it. Picking up his rifle again, he continued to fire. And then-the gun jammed!

The rifle had become so hot and dirty from constant firing that a cartridge stuck fast and his desperate efforts to extract it were useless. In another moment the Indians would have been retreating. But when the firing stopped, they believed his ammunition was exhausted and pressed forward. Hennessy met them with clubbed rifle but the surging mass overpowered him. Infuriated by the toll he had extracted, for 30 Cheyennes lay dead on the ground, they scalped him, tied him to the wheel of one of his wagons, emptied sacks of oats around him and set them on fire. For a few minutes there was a writhing figure surrounded by flames and then the spirit of Pat Hennessy passed on to that Valhalla raced into the barn. The building reserved for warriors who know how several battalions of British troops were standing by, and warships of those nations were hurry-

Meanwhile, before the council of the League of Nations in Geneva Dr. W. W. Yen, the Chinese minister to the United States, set forth his country's side of the controversy and demanded that the council enforce the league covenant without delay. In Washington President Hoover and Secretary of State Srimson were considering what America might do in the crisis. They proposed to Great Britain that the two nations apply economic embargoes or boycotts to trade with Japan, but the MacDonald government seemed reluctant to do anything more than to dispatch warships for the protection of the international settlement.

The mayor of Shanghai had yielded to the Japanese demands, but new demands were put forward and immediately thereafter the Japanese marines were landed and proceeded to seize Chapei, the Chinese quarter. As they swept through the district they encountered the desperate resistance of several thousands Chinese troops, whreupon planes were brought into action and Chapei was thoroughly bombed. Conflagrations nearly destroyed the densely populated quarter and the fatalities were undoubtedly heavy. The bloody battle continued for hours and at one time the Chinese defenders had recaptured the important north railroad station. The Japanese had previously made their way across the Whangpoo river to Pootung, site of hig Japanese cotton mills, and evidently intended to advance further into Chinese territory. Also they had shelled and occupied Woosung, the fort at the mouth of the Whangpoo. Their warships at the same time had gone up the Yangtse and three cruisers were lying off Nanking ready to shell that capital city. The Chinese Nationalist government was busily mobilizing all its strength and calling on the League of Nations for help. Chiang Kai-shek, former president, was made premier and apparently was virtually the dictator.

WHAT course the United States government would follow was uncertain, but the stiffening of its policy toward Japanese encroachments was indicated by the sending of four more warships to Chinese waters from Manila. They were destroyers and their presence was requested by Rear Admiral Y. S. Williams, commander of the Yangtse patrol. Secretary Stimson cable to Tokyo asking the intentions of Japan and roceived what was called a reassuring reply, but it was stated in Washington that President Hoover was proceeding on the theory that Japan would be violating international law if she landed troops on Chinese soll for any purpose but the protection of Japanese Nationals and their property.

Russia came into the picture again when Japan asked permission to use the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria to transport troops to Harbin, where Chinese soldiers were marauding. Russia flatly refused the request, stating it intended to observe neutrality.

WHEN the league council had heard both Dr. W. W. Yen and Naotake Sato, the Japanese delegates, Joseph Paul-Boncour, who replaced Briand as chairman, warned Japan to go easy at Shanghal. He admitted that the situation was grave. Yen not only relies on the nine-power treaty and the Kellogg pact, but he also threatened to invoke Article XV of the league covenant, which is followed by Article XVI, and the latter is the one that provides for sanctions against nations that resort to war. Furthermore, "war" might well be made to cover such operations as those of the Japanese against the so-called Chinese bandits. Some of the nations in the league are mighty timid in the matter of sanctions. Yen in his talk took a stronger position than the Chinese have previously taken before the council and his characterization of the acts of Japan was forcible and uncompromising. He complained, too, about the slowness in the formation of the league's commission of inquiry and in Its getting to Manchuria, where it will not arrive until April.

the Manchurian embroglio, and some diplomats accused Sir Eric of trying to force the powers into committing themselves to action in defense of the covenant which might have led to war with Japan.

Sir Eric was evidently disgusted with what he considered the weak action of the league council, especially at the Paris session, and felt that the league had suffered great loss of prestige. The other league officials do not wish to lose his services and it was considered possible they might prevail on him to change his mind about resigning. This, however, seemed likely only if the council would take a sterner attitude toward Japan

The decree dishanding and published by the Houghton Mifflin company, and this book is important, not only because of the interpretation of Washington as a "Republican aristocrat" but because his interpreter is not a fellow-countryman but a foreigner, a Frenchman, therefore a man whose judgments are less likely to be obscured by partisanship one way or the other.

It is doubtful if there has yet been written such an adequate and understanding summary of the greatness of George Washington-without indulging in extravagant language as the admirable essay which forms the introduction to M. Fay's book.

Those who believe in the hand of God in the affairs of man will indorse the idea set forth in this introduction that George Washington came on the stage of history at the precise moment he was most needed. It was the Eighteenth century when all looked forward with joy to the arrival of an "enlightened despot."

"He was a gentleman. He was rich. He was n soldier. There was nothing of the revolutionary about him. And, for the first time, in more than fifteen centuries, he exemplified the type of hero who declined supreme power and wished to command only to serve. The world did not expect this; and it surprised the upper classes more than any other attitude would have done. And throughout the entire world the conservative classes, the middle classes, the enlightened nobility, and the people who, even though most cautious, were desirous of change, beheld the serene, great man with an astonishment which soon turned to enthusiasm. Washington accomplished, by the legend which so immediately surrounded him, more than anyone else had done. By his personality he prepared the extremists and the traditionalists to accept democratic ideas."

"There was nothing of the revolutionary about him." So it is all the more remarkable that this Virginia gentleman, this land-holding aristocrat, should engage in a struggle in behalf of the common people in which he had exerything to lose and but little to gain. If he could have foreseen that he would have to carry on that struggle almost single-handed and then after it was won that he would be reviled by those whom he had served so well and for whom he had suffered so much, one wonders if he would have engaged in it.

For like all great men-even more so than most-he was a lonely man-a lonely man, both in private life and in public office. Throughout his life he carried on his heart the burden of an unrequited love, his love for Sally Cary, who married his best friend and neighbor, George Fairfax, Even when he married "the Widow Custis" he was still a lonely man. While he was busy building up the estate at Mount Vernon, according to M. Fay, "He noted in his diary sometimes during a whole week that he had remained at home alone-although Martha Washington was living under the same roof and in the same house,'

But this was as nothing to the loneliness that was to come to him during the dark hours of the Revolution when he was trying to keep together the wretched little army which congress had given him for winning the independence of the new nation-and then gave him nothing more, certainly not enough supplies or even moral support for carrying on his almost insuperable task. Even when he had been successful, when the new nation had rewarded him with the highest honor in its power by making him its first President, he was also the first to discover what every President since then has learned-that the Presidency is a lonely job, wherein the occupant of that position never knows whom to trust. For no sooner was he made President than he found himself traveling a lonely path between two opposing political ideals—the monarchial tendencies of the Federalists and the democratic theories of the Republicans.

So he followed his tonely course to the end. (@ by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Pure" English Defined as of Elizabethan Era

The oft-quoted saying that the purest English is spoken in Dublin, particularly at Trinity college, is of unknown origin, says the Pathfinder Magazine. Inverness, Scotland and Belfast, Ireland, are often linked with Dublin as places where exceptionally pure and correct English is spoken by the inhabitants. The saying probably means little more than that the common speech in these places contains an unusually large number of Elizabethan words now regarded as "archaic" or "classical" in England and the United States. Speech in small countries or isolated communities seldom changes as rapidly as it guest of honor. does in the more populous centers. Both Dublin and Belfast were settled by colonists from England and the speech of their descendants did not undergo the same development that the lauguage of the parent country did. The English language of the periods of Elizabeth and King James was, as it were, kept in cold storage in Ireland and many words and phrases were retained in everyday speech which became obsolete in England. Thus it happens that the language of

To the stranger who goes there and sees the place it is also a locality of charm and beauty. But the name itself is poetry. Llan is "church." Fair is "of Mary," pull gwyngyll is "the pool of white hazels," goger is "rather near," while chwyran drobwll is "the swift whirlpool" and Tysillo gogo goch is "of Tysillo of the red cave." Is it not, therefore, suggestive of romance and beauty enough to visit the village of the church of St. Mary by the pool of white hazels, near the swift whirlpool of St. Tysilio's church of the red cave?

Fossil Remains Blamed

for Defects in Teeth It is a long call from the mastodons-giant elephants that roamed over North America 50,000 years agoto the teeth of Arizona school children, but there appears to be a clear connection as reported from the Arizona experiment station of the Department of Agriculture.

A large number of the inhabitants of the village of St. David, Ariz., had a peculiar condition of the teeth known as mottled enamel. This was found in every person whose permanent teeth had been erupted in the locality. It was finally traced to the drinking water, mostly obtained from artesian wells.

Analysis showed this water to contain an abnormal amount of the chemical element fluorine. The deeper the wells the less fluorine.

Further research in the vicinity revealed deposits of fossilized mastodon bones and tusks. This contained considerable quantities of the rare element. The conclusion was that the long dead animals constituted at least one source of the Impurity in the water that affected the children's teeth with a presumably incurable defect.-Detroit News.

Masterpiece of Nature

That Defies Puny Man

In 1890 the owners of a tract of redwood timber near Porterville, Calif., attempted to fell a giant redwood tree but falled. The tree was sawed through from both sides at an angle and although cut through was held as in a vise. A little Irish lumberjack used a charge of black powder in the cut, but all that the charge did was to move the sawed end of the tree an inch in its resting place. Had dynamite been available at the time the tree would not have been saved. Men. at that time were engaged in the forests cutting stakes for use in fencing in the valleys. Hitching posts were

Maple Tree Sap

The movement of sap in the maple tree is described generally as follows: It is the watery solution which circulates through the vascular tissue in woody plants. The ascending current consists of the water of imbibition in which are dissolved various salts obtained from the earth. This so-called crude sap passes through the xylem portion of the vascular bundles to the chlorophyll-containing tissues, the leaves in most plants, where the surplus water is transpired into newly formed carbohydrates and proteids through the phloem or sleve tissue to the parts of the plant which may re quire them, the descending current often being called elaborated sap. From this it will be seen that the sap taken In tapping a tree is the type of sap which has already formed the carbohydrates and protelds and is therefore largely from the descending or elaborated sap.

Defense of Hobbies

It was "Tristram Shandy" that made Lawrence Sterne famous, but he had other hobbies than writing novels, ling and fiddling. His excuse for indulging in so many hobbies was framed in words like these: "Have not the wisest men in all ages, not excepting Solomon himself, had their hobbyhorses, their running horses, their coins and their cockle shells, their drums and their trumpets, their fiddles and their butterflies? And so long as a man rides his hobby-horse peaceably and quietly along the king's highway, and neither compels you nor me to get up behind him, pray sir, what have you or I to do with it?"

DIES IN BATTLE WITH PITCHFORKS

Hayfield Quarrel Results in Death of Fighter.

Montreal.-How a hayfield quarrel between brothers-in-law developed into a duel with pitchforks and resulted in death for one of them was narrated in coroner's court here when Paul Lizotte, thirty-five, was held criminally responsible for the killing of Alfred Shepherd, fifty-seven, and was arrested on a charge of murder. The killing, witnessed by Shepherd's wife, occurred on his farm near Couteau Rouge. Mrs. Shepherd, the main witness at the inquest, stated her husband struck one of the horses lightly with the handle of his pitchfork in order to move it on to a new mound of hay for feeding. Lizotte, brother of Mrs. Shepherd, accused the farmer of unnecessary brutality, and heated words passed between the two. The men brandished their pitchforks and then lunged at each other, after the manner of fencers, for a long, agonizing period, while the woman called upon them to stop.

Finally, she testified, her husband drew blood from Lizotte's wrist. At the sight of the blood Shepherd's anger cooled and he dropped his weapon, At this moment Lozotte thrust his fork forward and pierced his adversary's head. Shepherd fell, fatally wounded, and his brother-in-law fled to the bush. Later he was found by Shepherd's son, Paul.

Irate Woman Probably Had Time for Regrets

The bus terminal had been reorganized since the Woman's last trip, but she eventually located her bus, and, having three minutes to spare, paced up and down beside it,

From the waiting room emerged a couple engaged in wordy combat, the husband, as usual, losing in the battle. On and on raged the wife, her spouse meekly following with his arms full of bundles. As she got on the bus, he handed the bundles to her and prepared to turn away.

"Don't you dare be late for supper!" shricked his spouse. The unfortunate male, his downcast gaze roving humbly over the bus, started suddenly.

"Lily-" he began. "Don't you 'Lily' me!" shricked the woman, starting off again. "You-" "Lissen a minute!" begged the hus-

"Lissen to you! Every time I lissen-" She finished an irate monologue and disappeared into the bus. "Lissen," the little man called after her. But she was already seated inside. As the little man made toward the bus it jerked suddenly and drove off, leaving him standing, mouth open. The Woman met his eyes with an involuntary smile. A slow grin spread

"Don't that beat all?" he asked the Woman, shrugging his thin shoulders. "I only wanted to tell her she's on the wrong bus!" He chuckled. "I hope she finds out soon. The first stop for that one is Philadelphia. And we live in Long Island!"-New York Sun.

Banana as a Food

The banana is known to be an alkall-producing food. It is a food which has been founded to be efficient in reducing the acidity of the body. The banana when fully ripe is a most valuable addition to the diet of young children, particularly those for whom a gain in weight is desirable. It can also be given to infants. This truit when unripe consists largely of starch and is, therefore, difficult of digestion. As the ripening process goes on a large part of the starch is converted into sugar.

"Prodigal Son" Parable Marvelous Short Story

The short story has always existed, though it was not until the Nineteenth century that the art of writing it was consciously practiced. As Sophocles said of Aeschylus, these early authors of short stories did the right thing without knowing why. It was only on rare occasions, however, that these appy accidents occurred. Thus Professor Baldwin, after an exhaustive examination of the 100 tales in Boccacelo's "Decameron," decided that only two of them are short stories in the modern critical sense, while three others approach the totality of impression which is the result of conscious unity in expression. The New Testament contains a short story which is a structural masterplece. The parable of the "Prodigal Son," which is only 500 words long in the authorized version, satisfies the modern definition, securing the greatest emphasis possible with a surprising economy of means. In America the short story had its beginning in the "Sketch Book" of Washington Irving.

Naturally

In a lesson in parsing a sentence, the word "courting" came to a young miss of fourteen to parse. She commenced hesitatingly, but got on well enough until she was to tell what it agreed with. Here she stopped short. But the teacher said, "Very well; what does courting agree with?" Ellen blushed and held down her head,

"Ellen, don't you know what courting agrees with?"

"Ye-ye-yes, ma'am," "Well, Ellen, why don't you parse that word? What does it agree

Blushing still more and stammering, Ellen at last replied: "It agrees with all the girls, ma'am."

First Apple Dumpling

It is said to have been George III who asked how the apple got inside the dumpling. Here, then, is the true story of its origin, as related in Norfolk. It goes like this: Once upon a time there was a worthy Norfolk farmer who had a pretty Norfolk wife. He Srulowitz, for window dressing. compared her cheeks with apples. He asserted fondly that he would like to eat them. "So you shall," replied the wife. "Wait until tomorrow." And when the morrow came she set before him the father of all apple dumplings. Jimmy Hayes and his frog, "Muriel," became favorites in the ranger camp. He had an endless store of good nature and was never without his frog. But not once did Jimmy attain full brotherhood with his comrades. He had not been tested.

Jimmy Hayes and Muriel-II

One evening about sundown, the rangers halted for supper after a long ride. Their horses stood panting. Suddenly out of the brush Saldar and his gang burst upon them, blazing away with sixshooters and high-voiced yells.

Drawn by John Hix

The rangers swore and got their Winchesters busy but the raiders galloped away, yelling. The rangers mounted and pursued but their ponies were fagged and they returned to camp, Then it was discovered that Jimmy Hayes was missing. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Youth Perished in Lake When He Returns to Assist Third Girl.

Hopkinsville, Ky .- "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend." Thus taught the man of Galilee.

And for sacrificing their lives for their friends, memorials are being planned to commemorate the herolsm two young college men, Ralph Harned, twenty-four, of Chicago, a student for the ministry, and Hugh Kelly, twenty-five, of Thomaston, Ga., who were drowned trying to save a girl in Lake Morris, near here, after Kelly had already saved two girls from drowning when a boat in which ten couples were riding overturned in the darkness.

Young Harned, son of Dr. J. W. Harned of Lake Shore drive, Chicago, was a dental student at Northwestern university. Kelly was a student for the ministry at Southern Baptist Theological seminary in Louisville, Ky., and a 1930 graduate of Mercer university. Macon.

Memorial Planned.

Friends of the two boys plan to erect memorials at the tombs of the two young beroes, and recommend posthumous citation of bravery from the Carnegie foundation as a tribute to their memories.

Beautiful Miss Marion Gaines, whose betrothal to young Kelly had been recently announced, and Miss Ruquel Rodriguez, of Havana, Cuba, house guest of Miss Gaines, were the two girls saved by Kelly. He drowned while trying to save Miss Betty Duff of Hopkinsville, after he had taken Miss Gaines and Miss Rodrigues to safety. Miss Gaines, eighteen, is the daughter of Dr. A. W. Gaines. president of Bethel Woman's college, Hopkinsville, Ky.

All the others thrown into the water when the boat was overturned reached the shore safely and began frantic searches for the bodies of the two youths who drowned.

"It was hard to see him go." Miss Gaines said, speaking of her sweetheart's drowning after he saved her. "But it was a glorious end to a beautiful life. He saved me after I had sunk several times. Then he saved Miss Rodriques.

Dies in Struggle.

"Betsy Duff had sunk several times and Hugh went to help her. She did not know what she was doing and fought him. There was a terrific struggle after he got to her and then he sank." Young Kelly, a former Georgia Tech student, was a fine swimmer, a man of powerful physique who stood 6 feet 2. The fact that he saved two girls before he went to the rescue of Miss Duff attests to his prowess as a swimmer.

Kelly righted the overturned boat, called to the panic-stricken group of young people to cling to it and calmed some of them before he went to the rescue of Miss Gaines, Miss Rodiquez and Miss Duffy. Miss Duffy was pulled onto the overturned boat by others in the party after Kelly sank

Miss Gaines intends to enter church work, a career for which she had intended to prepare herself in order that she might be a help to young Kelly, whom she had promised to wed. She was educated at Bethel Woman's college, of which her fa ther is the head.

Man Jests at Prison Gate After Guilty Plea.

Waupun, Wis.- Following a trial that lasted but a few minutes Frank Gray, forty-year-old farmhand, who killed a prosperous Burlington (Wis.) farmer and three others "because there were too many cows to milk," is in prison here under four sentences of life imprisonmen

Judge E. B. Belden, following pleas of guilty entered by the defendant at Racine, immediately imposed sentence and within ten minutes the killer was on his way to prison. The judge specifically ordered that the sentences run consecutively, which, it was pointed out, would prevent Gray's eligibility for parole before the expiration of at least half a century.

In court Gray maintained the same unconcerned demeanor that he displayed immediately after the discov-ery of his four victims—Frank Bosthert, sixty; his son, Herbert, thirty; Bobby Boschert, eighteen-month-old child of the latter, and Miss Cecilia Kerkman, a housekeeper. # the Introduction of the 1932 Kelvinators

HERE you will find all the refinements of automatic refrigeration that delight modern peoplethe Frost Chest, the "80 minute freezing tray", the Kelvin Crisper, the dry cold under 50° for general refrigeration-the light that illuminates the inside of the cabinet so that any article is found easily, and the cabinets have in addition:

- 1-Gaskets of live black rubber that permit the doors to close tightly, and tight fitting doors keep heat out.
- 2-Shelves are heavily plated with pure tin-rust proof, and are electrically welded at every intersection.
- 3-Besides adding to the attractiveness of the interior of the cabinet, the new rubber covered shelf supports anchor the shelves in place and prevent the side of the shelf from marring the porcelain.

Seventeen handsome new models, each having built into it the long experience and expert knowledge of Kelvinator manufacturers.

The "Spring opening" for Kelvinators is taking place Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. Come in to see them and to taste the delicious desserts that can be prepared so easily in the Kelvinator,

THEREON MC CAMPBELL

Theron McCampbell, the outspoken Assemblyman from Monmounth County, has broken into the New York newspapers with both feet although this is his first year in the legislature. The reason McCampbell has gotten public attention is that he is not allowing himself to be misled on the question of public expenditures. He is not a pot-bellied politician. He has had to earn his living, not live on others. He is fully alive to the fact that at the rate the politicians are handling expenditures, not fake budget estimates, there will be nothing left with which the individual and business can live or

He appreciates that, if the farmer, the commercial business, the storekeeper, and industry, has less and less with its taxes the same, it means they will only have enough to pay taxes. If there is only enough to pay taxes, insurance and interest on money, of course, business cannot employ. We have, then, more and more unemployment all brought about by pocket politicians who have themselves and their well-fed families planted in the middle of your backs, Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer.

McCampbell is a son of the soil. He knows that with the present expenditures by alleged boards of education and the rest and with reduced income or no income for most of the rest of the world, that there will be little or nothing to take care of the home, to feed the people, provide fuel, clothing, for sickness and for old age.

All these things are vitally more important than alleged public improvements for politicians when people are trying to keep from starvation and evictions, when businesses are trying to keep from closing down completely. Many people employed today may not be employed a few months from now. This is because their employers have been borrowing money on the hope that business would pick up. They cannot continue to borrow under the circumstances. But our pocket politicians they continue to spend as usual. They are the most selfish animals this side of Hades. They have both hands in the taxpayers' pockets all the time. They are the people who brought the situation that exists in the country today. Everyone realizes it now. This is the reason why McCampbell, formerly an obscure farmer down in Monmouth County, breaks into the limelight in the leading New York newspapers.

The Metropolitan press knows that conditions are a lot worse than the average person in the street has any idea of. This situation was brought forcibly home to Mayor Walker a week or so ago by the bankers in New York when he attempted to borrow some money temporarily. They told him no money could be borrowed temporarily or on a long term basis unless there was a changed attitude in the spending of public funds. They pointed out to him that there was no business in America employing individuals in any number that was not only not making money but was borrowing money. Here it was emphasized that this could not go on very much longer unless there was a radical improvement. They emphasized that municipalities must get their income from individuals and businesses. Since they had no such income as they had before, it was pointed out that the public officials could not continue to spend as they had been. The very same thing was brought to the attention of the Mayor of Newark after they thought they had cut down.

McCampbell, being a farmer, naturally views many things from their angle. However, he makes a point that thinking citizens of the state will agree with. He wants the Tax Survey Commission retained until it prepares its bills for correction of existing tax evils. This suggestion is very sensible. It is economic. The state has spent a certain amount of money for a tax survey commission.

Much of it work has received the approval of the press. Much of it has received the approval of public bodies. It certainly would seem that, after carrying on a careful investigation, its recommendations in the form of bills ought to be had by the state. It does not necessarily mean that the legislature has to adopt its recommendations. However, it certainly ought to have its recommendations before it in the form of bills,

If the Tax Survey Commission has found that certain bad practices have grown up in the state, surely the Governor and the Legislature wants to hear from that commission what its recommenda- house? tions are for correction. Regardless of how the legislature is made up or who the Governor may be, it is still supposed to be the State of New Jersey. The State of New Jersey is paying out the money for the Tax Survey Commission and it naturally wants to learn all its house the records where all the people could see them.

long enough at least to have the corrective legislation drafted. The people are entitled to know what their recommendations are. In view of the money spent on the Commission, it would seem wasteful not to have those recommendations now.

HOW IT GOES

In the 1930-31 alleged school budget and appropriation published which is supposed to be voted on by the people, it had District Clerk's Office Expense in at $1300.00. It has got to be assumed in view of the reputation of the local Board of Education for care-free spending that this $1300.00 was a very, very, very generous amount. Yet, we find in the audit for the same year, the Clerks Office Expense as $2,132.51.

It appears that the budget offered to the people and the amount they voted for the Clerk's Office Expense was a joke. Yet the clerk is getting paid a fat salary for his part-time work taking care of "his" office.

If we mistake not, and you know there is a great deal of mystery about your money and the Board of Education expenditures, this part-time clerk gets $2,200.00.

Surely this is sufficient compensation from the people for him. to see that his office expenses do not run wild. Another thing that is reported to come under his immediate jurisdiction, and mind you he is paid to keep the books and know how things stand, is Dental Expense. Dental Expense in 1930-31 was set down in the budget for $1700.00. They actually expended, according to their own audit, $3,270.00. This year, although the public is not told, it is reported that in a few months they spent their whole amount. This was done despite the warning at the beginning of the year by the County Superintendent. Yes, and these are the worse times in the world's history but not for the boys.

Even the budget, which everybody knows is loosely drawn, was overexpended in 17 items in 1930-31. The beautiful item of text books was over-expended $1,646.03.

Our janitors are very, very well paid. There was $500.00 in the budget, which was probably more than plenty, but the boys spent $1,598.21.

In Manual Training for "supplies" they even went $708.61

over their "budget."

Under Evening School it showed under Teachers' Salaries, which is supposed to be definite, they had expended $244.00 more than was put in the budget. How could this be?

Apparently anything goes with the boys.

For the item of School Athletics they spent just a little bit more than twice as much as was in their very elastic budget.

HE IS RIGHT

Assemblyman McCampbell, when interviewed by the New York Evening Sun, intimated that the people are giving all they have to politicians for the privilege of merely living. He says there is a great racket going on. All the people know it. Particularly is this true in regard to the money that goes to the local Board of Assemblyman McCampbell had the following to say to the

New York Evening Sun:

"There's a tax racket, in New Jersey, and it takes more money away from the people every year than these bootleg racketeers could in a hundred years-" and his voice rolled the last words out so that the whole century of depredation passed by in swift review.

We don't own our farms or our homes. The Government has taken possession. We go down and pay down big sums twice a year just to keep title."

WHY, AGAIN?

The average district tax per resident pupil in Middlesex County $90.45 for the last full school year.

The tax in Carteret was $103.31 The district tax per pupil in Woodbridge was $81.87.

The local tax was over 26 per cent more per pupil than in In Perth Amboy it was $85.79 against Carteret's $103.31.

Why? Why again?

In Newark they have 85 schools.

In Carteret we have 5 schools. Janitors Supplies in Newark are in the budget for $14,045. In teret, the new budget calls for $2,500.00. In other words, Newark has seventeen times as many schools yet it plans to spend only five times as much as our "boys" for "janitors Supplies.

Every time the Board of Education spends in its accustomed free and easy way, it is picking the pockets of the taxpayers for Tell the people why $2,145.00 was spent in the last full school year for "legal services." Who got it and why? The audit that the Board did not appear to want to have made shows this amount The audit also shows $2,131.51 spent by the clerk, yet his own generous "budget" had $1,300,00 in for Clerk's "Office Expense." Why was this over-expenditure made? The people are entitled to know. Why Willie, why? For what? To whom?

Pull away the curtain of secrecy, let the people know what is being done with their money!

The boys tried to tell us they are "cutting down" yet they have $8,000.00 in the budget for "fuel." The last full year's audit showed $7,086.45 spent for fuel. So they are putting in the budget, in these times about $1,000.00 more than it really cost them on their own figures. Why?

For Evening Schools they have about 30 per cent MORE in the new budget than they actually spent in a full year, according to

The new "budget" has about 43 per cent MORE in it for "Continuation" than they actually spent in the last full year, yet they claim they are "cutting down." Why the bluff and buncombe? With headquarters at Deptford, says the people know. It is their business. Why 43 per cent MORE? WHY?

They have approximately $500.00 MORE in the new supposedly "reduced' budget than they actually spent for "repairs" in the last full school year. Why $500.00 MORE for repairs?

Another "office expense" item is in the new allegedly "reduced" budget for $2,500.00 yet the actual expenditure in a full year, according to their own budget, was only $960. Yet YOU. Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer, were told they were cutting DOWN! Why the big increase? WHY?

Why should not the people's business be public? WHY? Why keep the books of the Board of Education in a private Masters' flag, the Ensign, the Jack,

Why the mystery and the secrecy?

The people paid plenty and will be paying plenty for years to come for a Borough Hall. It was claimed they wanted a place to

All right, now we have the Borough Hall for the records, why McCampbell is right. Keep the Tax Survey Commission in not put the records of the principal expenditures of the town there? Why should not the public records be in a public place not in a private home? WHY?

Statesmen in Council

The British house of commons, when in session, sits from 2:45 to 11 on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and from 12 to 5 on Friday. It begins with uncontentious private bills and other formal business. Questions to ministers (which are not put on Fridays) occupy, or may occupy, the time till 3:45. As soon as questions have been disposed of the public business of the day begins. Opposed business is not taken after 11, unless it belongs to a special "exempted" class or unless the 11 o'clock rule is suspended.

Old New Jersey Grant Sold An old document in connection with America's early days was sold at auction in London recently. It is a crown grant by George III in May, 1770, for services rendered in connection with the conquest of America of 100,000 acres of land in New Jersey. The document, which consists of four sheets of script in vellum to which the seal of New York is attached, is in an excellent state of preservation. It was found in a pile of rubbish by a Hounslow (England) man more than 40 years ago and until recently it law neglected amongst his household lumber.

A reader is kind enough to remind me, writes "Peter Simple" in the Londen Morning Post, of how Aristotle ones "said a mouthful," which is strangely applicable to the present divides its activities roughly into three main categories-protective, advisory and administrative. The protective function safeguards citizens and their legitimate interests in all privileges and rights provided by treaty or conceded by usage. The advisory functions of the foreign service are designed primarily for the benefit of the government of the United States, which constantly requires information from all parts of the world for its guidance in the conduct of its foreign relations. The third main division of the duties laid upon the foreign service is the administration abroad of American laws.

Ornithologist Honored

The Audubon society was named for John James Audubon, a famous American ornithologist and painter of bird pictures. He was born on the island of Santo Domingo, in the part now known as Haiti, on April 26, 1785. He was taken to France to be educated and emigrated to America when he was eighteen years of age. Nearly his whole life was passed in the United States. He lived in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Louisiana and New York. He died on January 27, 1851, in New York city.

First Wireless Valve Was Edison Discovery

Many years ago Edison was experimenting with electric lamps, trying to discover how the blackening of the Inside of the bulbs came about in those of the old carbon type. He found that if a plate of metal was sealed into the bulb and electrified positively, a current passed through the vacuum from the filament to this plate. He noticed that the current always traveled from the filament to the plate; nothing could make a current pass in the opposite direction,

He thought nothing of the discovery, and no use could be found for it, for it was many years before wireless was to be heard of.

Before we can hear anything of wireless signals the waves must be rectified. Each wave consists of a push of current in one direction followed by a pull in the other. Rectification means straining out the pulls and leaving only the pushes. All early methods of doing this were complicated and unsatisfactory.

Then Prof. J. A. Fleming had an inspiration. He made the first wireless valve in which a filament and a plate were placed in a vacuum inside a glass

The Edison effect was harnessed, for the valve would respond only to the pushes and automatically eliminated the pulls. But for the invention of the valve there would have been no broadcasting today.—London Tit-Bits.

Edison Dragged From Workshop to Wedding

Thomas A. Edison was so preoccupied with his laboratory work that he nearly missed his second wedding. This was recalled by Mrs. Franklin Ives, whose father, the late Benjamin Franklin Card, was associated with the great inventor for more than 30 years, says an article in the Brooklyn

"The story of Edison's second wedding was one of my father's favorite recollections of him," Mrs. Ives said. "Edison was hard at work on a problem in his laboratory just before the wedding. He had become so preoccupied that he had quite forgotten time, "Fifteen minutes before the appointhour his 'best man' found him there tterly absorbed. He begged the inentor to dress and hurry to the wedding. Edison protested that he was on the verge of a great discovery and uldn't possibly leave. Finally, alost by main force, his 'best man' sucerded in dressing him and getting him to the church-a little late and still preoccupied, but at least acquiescent."

Old Society of Mariners

Records seem to indicate that the orporation of Trinity house, London. as originally a society of English maald. There is no doubt that it obtained ils first charter from Henry VII in 1514, and was authorized by Queen Elizabeth about half a century later erect beacons and other marks on coast for the guidance of sailors. Its duties today are concerned with the management and maintenance of lighthouses, lightships, beacons and buoys, and the supervision of pilots. It owns a fleet of 19 vessels. The rporation has four special flags, the and Burgee, all of which hear the four ship's symbol of Trinity house.

Awesome Hjorund Fjord

A short summer cruise among the fjords of Norway will sometimes bring tourist to the Hjorund fjord, twenty-five miles long and two miles wide in parts. Here he will see some of the most impressive scenery in Europe, for the unscaled Soudmore Alps raise their peaks about the rockrimmed waters, Norwegians and English climbed year after year gradually conquering the heights, but the grandeur is not diminished, and at twilight, the effect is awesome. When Norway was visited by the "Black Death" in the Middle ages, the entire population of the flord perished, and the present inhabitants are chiefly descendants of Scotch immigrants who came to fill the houses left vacant.

Taking Chances

The teacher of the history class had been telling her pupils of the ancient Roman custom in which the bridegroom lifted the bride over the threshold to prevent her stumbiling and bringing bad luck. Just at that moment the bell rang

"Gosh!" he exclaimed, "it'd be tough on him if he got a heavy woman!"

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny.

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

CHAPTERI

The Fugitive and the Pocket Eye. That dam on the Racquette so increased the prosperity and size of the small settlements on either shore of the river that a bridge became necessary. It was built. The two communities separated by flowing water had long been at war with each other. The bridge drew them together into one village. Their petty jealousies vanished. It was unregenerate Colonel Spenlow, the miller and local Republican boss, who gave the new place its They're so much easier on clgars truthful and euphonious name. He called it Amity Dam, thus visiting on its inhabitants a certain curious penalty for the sins of their fathers.

> Long after that the little village was the home of a far-famed mystery out of which came a murderer convicted in the face of unexampled difficulties and against the testimony of three eye-witnesses. It was, moreover, for a time the home of a number of remarkable characters related to the mystery, One of them was the boy Shad Morryson whose courage and shrewd intuition served the state and put him on the road to fortune.

They were soon known as Amity Dammers.

Shad was discovered on a bright June day in 1896. He lay asleep on a bed of moss under a group of pine trees. Two fishermen who had come ashore for luncheon found him. Nobody knew exactly when he was born matter of slight importance. Shad's life began the day he was discovered. It is likely that he had been eating and drinking a little more than sixteen years.

The fishermen came upon him suddenly. He lay sprawled on his back with an ancient, long-barreled, muzzle-loading shotgun at his side He was a pale thin lad in ragged clothing. nstructions to the letter. Here's the Both big toes protruded from holes in his boots. The fishermen aroused him. He sat up and rubbed his eyes and stared in confusion at the strangers looking down at him. The odor of fry-Ing bacon came to his nostrils. Kindly faces were before him.

"I guess I must be dead," he wans-

They saw to the heart of the boy when he asked from the lifting cloud of his slumber: "Is God here?"

One of the men put his hand on the boy's shoulder and gave him a gentle shake as he said:

"Wake up, young man. You're still dreaming. You're not dead yet. Come, Lunch is 'most ready."

Still it was a fact that the old Shad "Our business, madam," said the Morryson, shown to a tew people in the forest township of Blair, was dead, Morryson, known to a few people in effect the River Jordan, Moreover, It would seem that God was really there. "Well, I kind o' expected to be dead when I woke up," said the boy as he arose. "If I ain't, I'm glad of it. I want to live

What a pitiful look of drooping discouragement and supplication was in the figure of the lad as he arose! "What's the matter? Are ye lost?"

one of the strangers asked "Run away from home."

"What's your name and where do you live?"

'Don't dast tell ye." "Are you hungry?"

"Starvin'. Ain't had nothin' to eat for days but one pa'tridge an' a chipmuck.

"Well, you're in luck! Here's sandwiches and bacon and eggs and fish. The fish are frying."

As he spoke the fisherman was undoing packages of food from the pack basket.

The boy trembled with eagerness as he saw it. His face quivered.

"Oh, mister, can I have a sandwich now?" he asked.

"You bet. Take two." The boy devoured them. He ate like a hungry dog just returned from the chase. "I feel better already," said the boy, "I'll go an' wash. I'm dirty. I ain't fit to eat with nobody, not even my-

He hurriedly undressed on the river bank. The fishermen observed that the back of his shirt was slashed and bloody, the skin of his back ridged, red and swollen.

"My G-d, boy! What has happened to your back?" one of the men In-

"Does it look bad?" the boy asked. "Bad! I should think that some one "Well, they did. My dad gits mad always so mean. I guess I'm purty mean myself. I don't take no interest in the work. What's the use? it don't do no good. He got home an' ketched me fishin' when I should 'a'

some brass wheels that come out of an old clock, an' four lead bullets, an' three fish-hooks stuck in a cork, an' a glass eye that my uncle give me the day he died."

Shad took the trinkets out of his trousers pocket as he spoke, with a fond look at them.

The men laughed, saying: "No, we only want to get better acquainted with you. You must come to our camp with us, Perhaps we can help you,"

That night he went with the fishermen to their camp at High falls. Three days later the party moved to Lost lake where they put up in the log cabin camp of the famous guide, Philo Scott, familiarly known as Phide.

Now, one of these sportsmen was slim and a bit undersized. He gave the boy a respectable suit of clothes and shoes and stockings, a cap, a flannel shirt, with collar attached, and a necktie. All these fitted fairly well. Shad came out of the camp in which his benefactor was lodging a new human being, his face clean, his hair trimmed and combed and brushed. Those who saw him were astonished.

Shad was well put up, as they used to say in the north country. In spite of his leanness and lankness he was now good to look on. The shapely outlines of his head and face were pleas

The boy took the glass eye from his pocket and held it in the light of the lamp and looked at it.

"My uncle was an awful good man." said Shad. "He told me that this eye would help me to remember that God is a watchin' of me. It's a smart of It can see a long ways ahead, an' It can tell when good luck is Phide Scott blew his whistle. Supper was ready. The old guide came in with a platter of fried bacon and a plate of griddle cakes steaming hot.

"Mr. Scott, this is a boy we found asleep on the shore of the river," sald one of the fishermen, "He was about

The old guide shook the boy's hand and asked:

"Be you Bat Morryson's boy that's run away?" Shad was frightened by this unexpected query. His face changed color. He shook his head and stammered: "If-if I was I-I'd be 'shamed to "His boy has stole some money an' run away," the guide went on. "I was over to Wanakeny today an' Bat was there. He's run on the tracks o' the boy an' is searchin' the woods. Be comin' through here in the mornin'." Then one of the fishermen let go as

"We don't know whom this boy belongs to. If it's Bat Morryson, I want to tell you that Bat can't have him any more. I'd as soon trust a boy in a cage with a tiger."

"Bat Morryson is a tough of wildcat of a man," said the guide. "Had a good womern an' broke her neart. Died years ago. He's drunk half the time. Don't git into no fight with him, He bites like a dog. He'd just as soon take an ear off ye as not,"

"I know how to handle that kind of a cur," said the sport, a big powerful man. "Don't worry." After supper these gentlemen took the boy to their sleeping camp. One of them cut off a piece of an old motheaten buffalo robe that lay on the floor. He trimmed and shaped it neatly with a pair of scissors. Soon he took the measure of Shad's upper lip, "I'm making a mustache for you,"

the man said. Some liquid glue was applied to the skin side of the mustache. Soon it was fast to Shad's lip. It made a surprising change in the look of the lad. "Nobody would know you," said one

You will get a good rest tonight and a good breakfast in the morning. Then you'll take the trail to Bog lake, My camp is there. I'll give you a note to the guide in charge. He will show you across country to the railroad. If you should meet your father, he wouldn't know you. We're going to stake you with twenty dollars. Take a train going west for some point beyond the woods. You'll get a job somewhere. I hope you'll make your fortune. Here is my card. Write me now and then and let me know how you're getting along."

(WNU Service)

The card bore the name and address of the steel magnate:

> "Edmund C. Converse, 17 Wall Street, N. Y."

Shad put the money and card in his trousers pocket with great care.

"I'm much obleeged," he said. "I'm kind o' scairt to have so much money. Hope I don't git robbed."

"Don't show it to anybody or let anybody know that you've got it. Keep your small money in one pocket an' your big money in the other, and don't have much to say to strangers." The boy's heart was full, and these friendly interested men encouraged him to open it. They were interrupted by Phide Scott, who entered, closing the door behind him. He spoke in a whisper. "Bat Morryson is over to the cook house. Just come in with a lantern from Dead Creek floe.'

Mr. Converse turned to the boy and "You sit right over there out of the light and don't say a word whatever happens. You needn't be scared. I'm going to take care of you." Turning to the guide he added: "I want to hire your camp for twentyfour hours. I'll give you a dollar an hour for that period. I want to be the boss here for just twenty-four hours. What has Morryson got to say?" "He wants to spend the night here."

"Tell him you've rented the camp an' he'll have to see me." "Shall I bring him here?"

"Bring him here but say nothing about the boy." The guide vanished, returning presently with Bat Morryson-a hairy, powerful Cyclops of the foothills. His one eye was red, his face flushed. He had been drinking but was not drunk.

"What do you want?" Converse asked bluntly. "I'm lookin' for my boy Shad who run away an' is somewhere in this part o' the woods." Converse stopped him. "Why did he run away? Couldn't you make him happy at home?" "No, you didn't. I know all about you. You abused his mother. When she died you married a strumpet who abuses your children. You go off and get drunk and spend about all you can earn while Shad plants and hoes the potatoes and corn. You come home and get mad and beat him until his back bleeds. I saw the lad. He was a mile or so below High falls on the river bank. I saw his wounds, too. D-n you, Bat Morryson, you care for nothing but that greedy, dirty, hog's belly of yours!" Bat Morryson sat leaning forward on his elbows, looking at the man who thus addressed him, his brow deeply furrowed. His attitude was that of a great cat ready to spring. He knew that he was in the presence of his master. No one had ever talked to him like that. No one had ever dared to. He rose from his chair with a serious look on his face. He turned to the old guide, saying:

"Give me a bite to eat an' I'll go to "Not here," said Converse. "Not on your life. This is my camp. I don't want you anywhere near me. You pike off and take your chances just as the boy has done. There's a camp at

"That's fifteen mile from here, an' it looks like rain," the ruffian muttered. "Good! I wish it was twenty and that it would rain hard enough to wash your dirty soul. For once in your life you're going to do some work.

KIN GIVES DYING ROBBER TO POLICE

Policeman Fails to Recognize Bandit as Brother.

Macon, Ga.-Most of the elements which writers of "dime thrillers" use were found here in the story of George Meredith, alias George Miller.

Meredith lies at the point of death in Macon General hospital, where he was taken after his own brother, member of the Macon police force, turned him over to Chief Ben T. Watkins.

But the brother, Louis Meredith, chauffeur for the chief, didn't recognize George when he rapped falteringly on the door and collapsed.

Shortly before George, who escaped from Maryland house of correction on October 9, had held up C. A. Chaffin, manager of the Macon Retail Credit bureau, trussing him up to a tree and escaping in Chaffin's car.

While Chaffin reported to Chlef Watkins, George was attempting a similar holdup of R. A. McCord, Atlanta manger of the brokerage firm of Fenner & Beane.

McCord, waiting his time as the car swerved around a corner, shot a swift right smash to the bandit's jaw, staggering him. McCord then wrested Meredith's gun from him and began

Almost Colorless Ink

There is no colorless ink. There is, however, a certain form of camouflage In which figures and letters are painted on a background of the same color. This is done by coloring the paints with pigments, or mixtures of pigments, which match one another in color but which are of different chem-Ical composition. They match one an other because the impression made on the retina of the eye is the combined effect of all of the light rays that are transmitted to it from the painted surface. A piece of colored glass partially analyzes the light by absorbing some of the light rays and letting others through. What gets through to the eye is not the same in both cases, hence the background and the design do not appear the same color.

BOARD DON'T CONSIDER ECONOMIC CONDITION

The best thing that could happen for Carteret would be to give its School Board a long vacation. The town will be bankrupt if it has that crowd on its hands much longer. It has no conception of the general situation. It is a shame and a mockery to hear them talking about giving relief in a small way to some children when they are largely responsible through the heavy taxation levied on the people of the community. The people have to cut down their expenditures. So do all the businesses. But it never dawns on the Board of Education to do likewise. The same sloppy methods continue.

At the last meeting it was reported they had bids for wiring some rooms in a few school-rooms and cloak-rooms. The boys always find something new to do. They will find something new to do as long as there is anyone in the community with a dollar left in his pocket. It was reported that two "low" electrical concerns on the bids were just 75c. apart. This may seem "strange" to some who are accustomed to reading bids on contracts. It is now said that the boys will not wire the cloak rooms and "save" that much.

Save it? They never should have had it in their minds to spend it. This cannot be called "saving." That is exactly like dreaming of going around the world, changing your mind and then saying you "saved"

It is now reported that the boys are going to take the two low bidders and look over with them the class rooms for wiring. Why should this

If they were getting total bids on wiring of class rooms and cloak rooms and then decided not to wire the cloak rooms, why not get entirely new bids from everyone for the job they have in Linia II you were going to paint your house and garage and changed your mind and decided only to pain your house, you would ask for new bids on your house. You would not simply get the two low bidders and ask their price on the painting of your house. The purpose of getting bids is supposedly to get the lowest price of a reliable con-

than all this right now. With con- ganization, in appreciation of his ditions the way they are, the Board of Education has no right whatsoever to spend the people's money on anything that is not absolutely essential. It is a grave question whether this is absolutely essential.

There is still another thing. In a scandalous fashion expenditures from time immemorial in Carteret have been kept from the people. It is the public's money. It is coming out of their pocket, when they need it most. No. 2314, Veterans of Foreign Wars, It is time to give the public an accounting of how its money goes and to be held tonight.

to get the lowest price. There is too much winking on the Board of Education and the scratching of each other's backs. The last consideration is the people's pocketbook.

Why wire now?

AT IT AGAIN

In one of the hottest summers on record our business-like president of the Board of Education was reported to have told the boys that they could not wait to bring the question of installing radiators before a regular meeting of the Board passed on it, since there was an "emergency." An "emergency" to install radiators in one of the hottest summers on record with everyone dying for a breath

No one on the Board of Education seems to have any conception of general conditions and what a struggle it is for many individuals and businesses to hang on. They spend as usual.

The Board of Education should not spend one penny that is not absolutely necessary to the schools very existence. According to most of the boys everything is necessary. There should not be a penny spent except those things that go into direct operation. Cut out the emergencies."

Incidentally, 'they had better obey the law on bids and con-

Oppose Motion Planned

For Child Relief Work

There is no one who has lived in this community for a number of years who does not know the despicable, contemptible system of secrecy and silence in regard to the expenditures of school funds that has been in vogue and still seems in a large measure to be in vogue. The same boys seem to be continuously in the saddle. It was against that control, that bossism, that the people voted on school elections whether they accomplished their purposes or not.

SYNOPSIS

Exhausted, ragged, and starving, a boy of about sixteen is found in the woods by a camping party. He has fled from his brutal father, Bat Morryson. Bat comes after him, but his new friends conceal him.

CHAPTER I-Continued

Without a word Bat strode off into the darkness. He went not in the direction of High falls but back on the trail toward Dead Creek floe. He was like a wounded panther growling with rage-a veritable child of the darkness in which he walked.

"He won't be comin' back here," Scott declared. "There's a lumber camp down by Grass pond. He'll head fer that. He ain't goin' to give up lookin' fer the boy. But needs him. The boy could earn many a bottle o' whisky for him this summer."

Bat had not recognized his son. Shad went to bed that night with a deep pity in his heart for the man who was his father, remembering as he did the good days past-of which there were some like starlight in his dark memories. Soon he slept, as only a weary boy can sleep. He awoke refreshed in the morning.

"I'm glad it ain't yesterday no more," he said to Mr. Converse as he was dressing. "I feel better-more like a man."

"You look like a gentleman, and I want you to learn to eat as gentlemen do. Eat slowly and keep your knife away from your face. Use it only to cut your food, and eat with your

"I won't forget your advice," said the boy. "I'd like to be a gentleman." They went to breakfast.

After the meal Mr. Converse turned to the lad saying: I'll send Uncle Phide down the trail with you to my camp. He'll keep you happy till you're beyond the danger point. Uncle Phide, you take a gun with you and see that he gets there.'

"When you get out of the woods, make for St. Lawrence county. It's near Canada. You could jump across the border if necessary and be safe. Take this letter to my friend Colonel Blake. He lives in Canton,"

Then Shad and the famous guide began their journey through that winding green aisle in the deep woods from Big Deer Pond to Mud lake, They had gone about a mile when, at a point where the trail sloped down a hillside, the guide stopped suddenly. "Some one jest crossed the trail away down yender in the valley," he whispered. The guide stood still, looking intently at the point where a moving figure had attracted his attention.

Again he whispered: "It's a man. He's settin' on a log by the side o' the trail. He doesn't see us. Come on. If it's yer father I may stop a minute, but you walk right on as if ye'd never seen him before."

Within five minutes they came upon Bat Morryson sitting at the trail-side. The boy, walking ahead, had assumed a slight limp to disguise his gait. Bat greeted him saying: "Hello, stranger. Shad made no reply.

"He's deef and dumb, an' ye might as well talk to that log yer sittin' on," said Phide Scott as he stopped by the huge Cyclopean Bat.

The boy passed on around a turn in the trail and in a moment was beyond the reach of their vision. In a short time the guide overtook him.

"He mistrusts that you're back at my camp," said Scott. "He's heard at Grass Pond that Converse is over with me. He's made up his mind that the painters and Colonial story writers, the millinery trade.

The cattle began streaming through an open barway into the pasture. When all were entered and the bars put up the man turned to the boy and "Now follow me. We'll tend to Colonel Blake later."

The sun was up. A clear, beautiful summer day had begun. They washed with soap and cold water dipped from a rain barrel at a stand outside the door, and went into the house and sat down at the breakfast table.

They are in silence, the hired girl bringing their food from a stove, "Look here, pard," said the man.

"Be you Colonel Blake?" "Yes. That's what they call me," "Here's a letter for you."

Shad drew the letter from his pocket and put it in the colonel's hands. The latter opened and read it.

"Converse! He knows a good thing when he sees it, and I guess he'd know a good boy."

Blake's wife and daughter entered the room with a cheery greeting, and sat down at the table,

It is hard to distinguish between leg- | who drew upon their imaginations to end and truth about the first American flag, and what Betsy Ross had to do with it. The tradition is that in May, 1777, Washington, accompanied by two of his officers, called upon Mrs. Ross, who operated an upholstering establishment, continuing a business left at the death of her husband, to make a flag of their design, and that this was the first American flag of the official pattern, adopted June 14, 1777. Other pronouncements by Roosevelt were that Europe's debts to America should not be canceled, and that an international trade conference should be called to level tarily barriers.

"A navy equal to our own in the Pacific," Senator Hale went on, "opens up many interesting problems for the future, and is not at all in conformance with our declared needs at the time of the Washington and London conferences, and no one can truthfully say the conditions in the East with the dove of peace in temporary libernation on the China coast warrant any lessenings of those needs."

ENTION the word "oasis" and it conjures up in the mind thoughts of the Sahara desert in Africa, thoughts of a cluster of palms sheltering a bubbling spring, a place of coolness in a region of blinding heat, an exotic and romantic spot in a country ruled over by a picturesque sheik. So it is something of a surprise to learn that there is a genuine oasis in the United States, a scenic spot in our land of many natural wonders that is unique in the New world and that cannot be duplicated except in the Old. That is the easis of Palm Springs on the edge of the colorful Coachella valley in Southern California. Around it stretches the Colorado desert with its ever-shifting sand dunes, enticing mirages, delicate wild flowers, and unique plant life. Throughout the year the sun drenches the land with its warm rays. Directly in back of the village rise the precipitous walls of the mighty, San Jacinto mountains, reaching skyward to a height of almost two miles, and here is where the miracle exists. The peaks of the San Jacintos are covered with snow almost the year 'round. One may stand in the village and gaze on engaging panoramas of desert scenery, feel the vibrant rays of the sun turning his skin to a nut-brown hue, and then look upward to see a mountain covered with snow, appearing almost close enough to touch in the

The desert is a colorful rainbow-like place, dominated by vivid purple hues. When sunset creeps over the sandy-land there is no more beautiful sight in all the world, the sands aglow with varied tints which blend gracefully into the lengthening shadows.

One of the wonder spots of Palm Springs is Palm canyon, whose yawning mouth forms a beautiful "back-door" for the village. Palm canyou is a winding gorge lined on both sides with tall, graceful palms. These palms, native of this locality, are of the Washington Filifera variety, and their origin will probably be forever a mystery. Eminent scientists believe that they date from a previous geologic age as these are the only palms indigenous to the United States. The canyon is filled with thousands of these desert sentinels which rise to surprising heights and extend many miles up the can-

Through this grove of stately palms flows a cool, murmuring stream, bearing out the old Arabian proverb that, "A palm shall grow with its feet in water and its head in the flery furnace of heaven." It is expected that the extrance of this canyon, together with portions of Murray and Andreas canyons, will be made into a national monument, preserving for posterity the virgin splendor of this sub-tropical wonderland, This is but one of the picturesque canyons in this vicinity. The place abounds in beautiful back-country ravines, each with its different scenic attractions and legends that have come down through the ages from the ancestors of the Cahuilla Indians.

Andreas canyon, named after a chieftain of the tribe that inhabited this region in earliest days, still contains relics of forgotten times. It, like Palm canyon, is the home of many gorgeous

One would not expect to find a coral reef in this desert land, but such is the name of a mountain wall on the southwestern side of the valley. There is no real coral deposit here, of course, but the vanishing water of an ancient sea left a quantity of calcium carbonate closely resembling coral, and so the queer appellation was bestowed on the place.

The Devil's Garden is an aptly named mesa a short distance from the village. Here is to be found a concentrated growth of all varieties of cacti, including the plump barrel cacti, those water-filled life savers of the deserts, whose value the government has set at $25 per cactus, Theatergoers, the world over, have thrilled to the sight of a romantic desert chieftain charging over a dune on his trusty-dusty mount. As depicted in the films these dunes look for all the world like the sands of the Sahara, which they represent. The ever-shifting sand dunes near Palm Springs have been the background for many a desert cinema production. The great masses of sand with their wind-ruffled furrows are a memorable sight to see.

Tahquitz canyon, named for the evil spirit of the Cahuilla Indians, has many interesting geological formations. A short distance up the canyon a beautiful waterfall tumbles down. To the weary traveler just off the desert this cool spray of water appears like a mirage.

Other notable spots of interest around Palm Springs are Whitewater canyon, the Vandeventer trail, Two-Bunch Palms, Thousand Palm canyon, Snow Creek canyon, Seven Palms, Painted canyon, Murray canyon, Mission Creek canyon, Magnesia Spring canyon, the Garnet Hills and Hidden Spring canyon.

Actual settlements were not made until during the early 80s, coincident with the opening of regular traffic on the Southern Pacific lines, To Doctor Murray, one of the early settlers, goes the credit of establishing the first hostelry at Palm Springs. Situated opposite the present site of the Desert inn, it attracted many visitors, though it is now vanished,

The year 1909 saw the opening of a tiny wayside inn by Mrs. Nellie Coffman, From this modest beginning was destined to grow the world-famous Desert inn. Palm Springs became known as an ideal place for rest and relaxation, and gradually through the years has grown to its present position as America's foremost desert resort. Now, there are three other fine hotels with the highest type of American plan accommodations. The Oasis, the El Mirador and the Deep Well Guest ranch complete the Palm Springs hotel foursome. The El Mirador, the last of the quartet to be erected, is a colorful gem of Moorish architecture. From its tower, which rears itself skyward like a desert sentinel, one may obtain a most commanding and inspiring view of the desert. The development of Palm Springs from a sleepy little village to its present position as "America's foremost desert resort," has been nothing short of phenomenal. Referred to as the "Village," it is perhaps the most interesting village in the world. From October until June, the fine hotels are the gathering places for the socially elite. Washington,-New regulations gov erning foreign flights in Japan and China have been passed following the Herndon-Pangborn difficulty, which led to a "minor" diplomatic issue.

mer chief of staff of the Mackensen army, is also convinced that America did considerable to help win teh war. General von Seeckt, commander-inchief of the relchswehr for six years after the conflict and mentioned as Presidential candidate next spring,

"In the World war America created, in a relatively short time, a wellequipped army, inspired by a great spirit of attack. The fresh American troops, thrown into line at a front weakened by years of fighting, decided the fate of the war. The heavy losses suffered by the American troops were due to their great spirit of attack and their lack of war experience. As far as the American forces were able to work independently, American generalship was quite up to the mark."

Stresses Lack of Training. General von Einem, former commander of the Third German army, stressed the lack of training which handicapped the American soldier com-

"If the war had lasted longer the Americans would have become real soldiers, and very good ones at that," he said. "Compared to our old veterans, the Americans were mere bearers of arms. What the Americans lacked in war experience they made up by great pluck and devotion to their cause."

"The Americans were great fellows, tremendously plucky-but real children in battle," said Gen. Wilhelm Heye, former commander in chief of the reichswehr.

"I saw the American infantry advancing near Dun, Moselle. Shoulder to shoulder, wave upon wave, a sea of khaki! One wave was mowed down, and a second, third, fourth successively rushed onward over the bodies of their comrades. Ruthlessly, regardless of losses, the attack was carried forward. The moral effect of the American onslaught on our depleted and spent troops was tremendous." "Defiant of death, the American troops did their duty," said Count von der Schulenburg, the former crown prince's chief of staff,

Where the Columbia Will Be Dammed

A vast area of arid land will be put under cultivation as a result of the two dams which Uncle Sam intends to build across the wild Columbia river, harnessing the tremendous water power that is now going to waste. One of the dams will be at Cascade Rapids (above) and the other will be about 7% miles up the river. Instead of answering his questions, they usually told him to sit down that he was only on the Board by appointment and not by wind, the bluff and the bluster.

Again Windy insisted on nominating and his nominee ran a poor sixth.

Incidentally, he had a close tie in to Windy's little mentor, who is given generous credit for the cloak of secrecy and silence that has surrounded the handling of school expenditures for so very many

WHY NOT?

A member of the Board of Education and a prominent member of a previous administration appears quite upset at the suggestion of a thorough-going Supreme Court investigation here.

Smoke screens are being set up about hurting the town. Well, if there is anything that can hurt the town more than having some of those birds in public office, we cannot imagine what is possibly

If nothing wrong has been done a thorough investigation will show it. Those who have nothing to fear, ought to welcome a real investigation.

If there are some who do not welcome an investigation, we ought to find out all about it. Now is the time to do the job.

This town cannot stand much longer what has been going on here. And if you have not just moved in here from South Amboy or some other place, you know what is meant.

Washing dirty clothes is a disagreeable duty. Once having done it you do not usually let the clothes get so dirty again.

NOT HERE!

In another Middlesex County town all the taxpayers were furnished by the school clerk with a printed statement showing exactly how much was spent for each item up to February 1st; how much they expected to spend, and how much would be left in each item at the end of the year.

Can you imagine that happening here?

Even a court order has a hard time getting recognition here from the Clerk.

Here even members of the Board of Education for years have been unable to learn about expenditures.

Put public records in a public place. Let us do away with the heavy curtain of Secrecy and Silence that has hung over the handling of school expenditures.

Why the secrecy? Why the Silence?

Yes, taxpayers are told exactly the situation as to expenditures elsewhere but not HERE.

WHY?

Why do they walk the floor and tear their hair before election when all they might lose is a job that pays "nothing?

STRANGE

If you were to plan for next year ,you would want to know

First, you would want to know what it cost you to keep your business or family last year, how much you actually spent.

You would want to know how much you had on hand now and how much you would be likely to have at the end of this year.

Knowing what it actually cost you for a full year and how much you were likely to have left at the end of the year, you could then plan for next year! You could not plan unless you knew what your expenditures had been and how much you would have to meet like expendi-

Yet it is reported the actual expenditures were not before the Board of Education when the "budget" was made up.

Willie is reported to have handed a committee a drawn up budget and the committee was "allowed" to look it over. "Budgets" are only estimates. They mean nothing.

The boys practically have not touched EXPENDITURES. It appears some did not know what they were, Another reason why the public records should be kept in a public place to let even the Board of Education know as well as the people, whose money it represents, what is being spent and why.

PUBLIC RECORDS

Public records should be in public buildings.

They should be accessible to the public at all hours of the day.

Public records should be in a fire-proof building. It is reported the Board of Education records are kept in a private home in a frame building.

A vast sum of money was spent for a Borough Hall on the theory that there ought to be a central place for keeping public

The Clerk of the Board of Education is reported to be receiving $2,200.00 a year.

Surely this fat sum ought to be enough to keep a clerk on the job for a full day. Being a clerk is not a very tough task, As a matter of fact there never was any excuse for paying $2200.00 to a clerk, who has a meeting once a month at night. Put the public records in a public place where the people, who pay the bill, can see them.

It is reported members of the Board of Education have called a. Willie's home at times only to be told he is out.

If he works at another place in the day time and even board members cannot see the records at night, when can the records

Well the records have been treated as private property.

This should stop.

Let us have the records in a public place open to all the taxpayers during the day.

If there is nothing to hide then why keep them from the public?

WHO?

several hundred more than the regular beginning salary? If so, who was it and why?

WHERE?

Some people we all know are pretty well fixed. They have the reputation of pulling the strings behind the scenes.

They never seemed to have worked at any private business but have plenty of money.

Where did they get it? How did they get it?

by Men of Discernment A book dated A. D. 228 tells of sausages 700 years older still. About 500 B. C. Epicharmus was so entranced with this savory dish that he wrote a play about sausages. He was not a lone prophet crying in a culinary wilderness, either, for the celebrated Aristophanes said in the "Clouds," written about 423 B. C.: "Let them make sausages of me and serve me up to the students," Charles Lamb was another enthusiast. In his "Essays of Elia" he mentions sausages "as the savoriest part you may believe of the entertainment given at the annual feast of Chimney Sweepers, held in Smithfield upon the yearly return of the Fair of St. Bartholomew." Perchance this most succulent variety has migrated to America. By CHERIE NICHOLAS

As HAS been and always will be straw braid will be very fashionable. in midseason, the first gesture which a winter-weary woman makes toward spring is to buy a new hat, Seeking signs of spring, fashlon's followers will find their fondest hopes realized in the realm of new millinery where milady's chapeau has blossomed forth ere snows have melted from the ground, in full regalia of lowers, ribbons and refreshing straws. Which may be taken literally for more flowers are being used than is usual for this time of the year, and straws of every description are flourishing at such a rate as to lead those who watch "which way the wind blows" to prophesy that it is to be a "straw sea-

The new shapes are thrilling. So different! So far as the beret, the sallor and the cloche are concerned. they are staging a sort of all-star performance. All three are in the limelight with, however, startling varia-

High spots on the millinery program are, first of all, the tendency of brims to turn up at the back. Even the familiar cloche makes itself look new by turning its brim up flat to its crown at the back (see the cloche pictured in lower right corner of the illustra-

Then, too, hats must be worn at an angle. As to the jaunty beret, it simply clings to one side of the head, and how it stays on is often a mystery, yet not such a mystery, for, believe it or not, hatpins are "in" again. That is, some of the smartest berets made of black satin (ever so good looking for midseason) are held in place on the head with two pearl-knobbed pins thrust through the crown, Then, again, the popular quill trimming, as the first model in the picture shows, is preferred. So flat are many of these little hats, they are called pancake berets. Many of them are made of satin ribbon, others of fabric, especially black satin, while those of hand-sewed

The toque or beret with a peak is also exploited. In fact, the peaked crown is a favorite topic among designers.

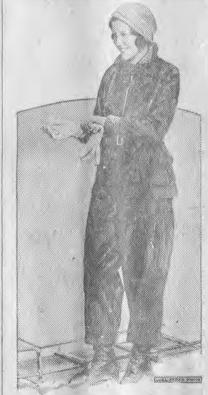

Brims are taken for granted this season. They excite interest in that their contours are so unusual. A favorite among youthful fashions is what is called the "baby brim," which turns up all around in an even cuff. The hat at the top, to the right in this group, is a version of this new mode. This style is very smart in felt, either in pastel coloring or in street shades. Note the upright positioning of the feather trim. High effects like this

As a "last word" hat fashion, w call attention to the pert little shape shown in the lower left corner of the picture. A grewsome discovery has been made in the San Bernardino church in Milan. An underground choir loft was accidentally opened by the workmen. #### "Lucile is the Happiest Girl"

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery. As a matter of fact, for over fifty years, mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties.

It's marvelous to see how bilious, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again. A Western mother, Mrs. H. J. Stoll, Valley P. O., Nebraska, says: "My little daughter, Roma Lucile, was constipated from babyhood. I became worried about her and decided to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constipation quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how rundown she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl in the West." Like all good things, California Fig Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

In days gone by those in whose custody it lay have spent anxious moments. Lord Chancellor Eldon, in the reign of George III, used to sleep with it under his pillow! One night his house caught fire and he buried it in his garden for safety. Next day he had forgotten where he had hidden it and could not recall for some time.

Whenever a new Great Seal is introduced a special ceremony takes place. They new seal is sent from the mint to the king. The lord chancellor, notified of this by writ, takes the old Great Seal to the palace and hands it, in two halves, to the king. The latter taps it three times with a small, eggshaped hammer, thus defacing the seal, which is of very soft metal. The old seal then becomes the perquisite of the chancellor. In modern times it has become customary for him to send one-half to his predecessor in office, as an act of courtesy.-New York Times Magazine

MURDER OF YANK

French Detectives Trace It to an Exiled American Sporting Man.

Paris .- A heap of charred clothing and a wrecked automobile with bloodstained cushions, found in a wood 30 miles from Paris, put police on the trail of a crime which seems likely to develop into a French Arnold Rothstein case, writes Edmond Taylor, in the Chicago Tribune.

The body of the victim has yet to be found, but detectives, police and judiciary, by a piece of spectacular deduction of the kind for which they are famous, have already identified him as Richard Clifton Wall, thirty-year-old American sporting man and associate of confidence men, who is wanted in New York on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

His identification hangs literally on a pants button, but so confident are the French police of their methods of detection that they have announced publicly that there is no doubt but that Wall has been murdered.

The police state positively that he was taken for a ride in American gangster fashion, murdered at some lonely spot and that his body was tossed into the Seine at the Triel bridge near the suburb of Poissy.

Cut Flashy Figure. Wall cut a flashy figure during his brief sojourn abroad and was well known at Montmartre, Montparnasse, and all resorts frequented by Americans of sporting proclivities. He lived at an expensive hotel in Paris until recently and drove a roadster. He flashed enormous rolls of greenbacks with careless gusto.

He jumped into the limelight last summer when his sweetheart, the blond dancer, Connie Terbeck, alias King, deserted him for Jean Barbat.

Since then Wall dropped out of sight. His car and other belongings were sold. He was last seen at Dieppe six weeks ago.

A telephone linesman working near Triel found half of the burned pile of a man's clothing, including a derby hat, a blue suit, an overcoat of expensive material, and one patent leather

Later in the afternoon a forester discovered the wrecked automobile with the blood-stained cushions nearby. The Parish police prefecture was notified and the divisional commissar. Guillaume, accompanied by the inspector commissar, a homicide squad andfinger print experts sped to the scene. Finds Owner of Car.

Guillaume ordered a search for the owner of the car, which had the license plate torn off. The remnants of clothing were scanned for a clew. The car's owner was found. He reported the auto had been stolen.

Later Guillaume established the identification of the victim. He de tected on one of the charred buttons the name "Lidwall, 26 Rue Pepiniere." The tailoring shop proprietor declared that the scrap of cloth taken from the heap was from a suit sold to Wall in June.

Guillaume, likewise, traced the shoe to a fashionable Paris shop. He found several similar models bought and charged by Wall, Guillaume's greatest feat of detection, however, was the discovery that the shoe had been reheeled with an American-made rubber heel. On a hunch he stopped by the American Express company's office, whose negro bootblack is well known to the American colony. The negro remembered having taken a pair of shoes from Wall a few months before. He said he sent them to an American shoe repair shop for new heels.

Finally Jan Lambetini, a peasant. told police he had seen two men drag a long, heavy package from an automobile into the river.
