Great Program Only Ninety Days—Additional Leap Paves Way For More Work and Relief.

Nearly 15 per cent of the registered unemployed in New Jersey have already been helped by the State Emergency Administration, a survey of 21 counties disclosed today.

In the 21 counties where the unemployed were registered for employment, a number 21,630 have been secured through the administration.

While this figure shows the full extent of relief has been effected by the administration, it is significant since the administration formed only 90 days ago. The percentage of the work from the list of the unemployed is expected to be increased during the next few weeks of supplemental legislation. The original relief act provided approximately $10,000,000 for relief. Under the new legislation may be engaged by the extermination commission for employment not included in the original act.

BORO FACES MORE DANGER AT HANDS OF U. S. CONGRESS

Proposed Oil Tariff Has Same Aspect as that on Copper.

The Congress is considering a tariff, or embargo on oil. All the oil that comes into the local plant of the Pan American Petroleum Company comes from outside the country. If we mistake not, it comes largely from Mexico and Venezuela. The company has properties in other parts of New Jersey and distribution stations throughout the State.

As we recall it, not so many years ago, when Mr. Herbert C. Hoover was Secretary of Commerce, he proclaimed that in a comparatively few years at the rate of oil consumption at that time, there would be a famine of oil in this country. The natural thing for oil companies in this country with large refineries, distribution stations and other investments to do was to look elsewhere for oil resources. This had been done by those in other countries. Looking elsewhere towards the future protected them and the country.

Since that time so-called wild-cat wells have been brought in in different parts of the country, mainly in Texas. These wild-cat wells are usually brought in by some who take a long gamble on finding oil. In a number of cases a fairly good amount of oil has been located. It so happened that at the time the oil was brought in there was already an over-supply in the United States due to the falling demand.

The result then is, for the time being at least, that there is an over-supply. The newcomers are howling for "protection." They cite the number of cases employed in their industry, among other things. This is something new with many of them. Of course, there are other oil companies in those states that are not new by any means who would be glad to shut out all incoming oil and keep them entirely from the American market. In normal times they probably would not be so interested.

The philosophy of this is probably a good thing for the country in the long run they are not considering. They were not concerned about the future of America in regard to oil. The nature of their consuming public nor were they concerned about the protection of the country from the standpoint of proper oil resources in time of war. Some of them took long chances in drilling in wells. They did bring the oil when there was already an over-supply of oil in America, with its depressing effect on the market. Continued on Last Page

These Are Times of Clear Thinking and Courage," Says Director Compton in Message To Freeholders

Director Compton, director of the Board of Freeholders of Middlesex County, submits for publication to the freeholders his third annual message. The features of this message are statements as, "These are times of clear thinking and courage", and a plea in the age-old and common-sense principle of not spending more than we have.

71,000

It has just come to light, while the legislature is considering to make it possible to reduce the salaries of all public servants, that there are no less than 71,000 public employees in the little State of New Jersey.

This means in normal times that when all the people are working and gainfully employed and all business going, they are carrying on their backs roughly two per cent of the population.

Of course, in the State of New Jersey there is a tremendous unemployment today. Nevertheless, they have still got to carry on their backs well-paid "public servants"—serving themselves.

What it amounts to is public charity. The best is being passed to all the individuals to take care of so-called "public servants" in bad times as well as good.

The individual not on the public payroll has to suffer the storm as best he can. So has private business. In good times or bad they have to chip in to take care of the other 71,000.

It does seem a little unreasonable that they should have to support the 71,000 in good times and then, when conditions are not so good, still have to support them at the same rate.

What it amounts to is that the public has to chip in to pay the salaries of these people in good times. Now, in bad times, they still have to pay their salaries at the same rate, even though their salaries will buy more than in good times.

In short, the public servants have all had a raise in salary and the public is still asked to pay that raise, although the public itself may have no salary at all.

COUNCIL BUYS 2 TRUCKS FOR THE GARBAGE WORK

Boro Officials Meet in Adjourned Session for Approval.

At an adjourned meeting Monday night the Borough Council decided to purchase two dump trucks for use in collecting garbage under the new plan whereby the collecting is to be done directly by the borough. Four bids for trucks had been received, each for a different make of truck. The Council selected a Ford for $944, and a Chevrolet for $952. The trucks will be delivered by January 1. Unemployed men will be put to work collecting garbage.

About a dozen applications for jobs as truck drivers in the garbage collection department were referred to the street and road committee.

A letter was received from Thomas G. Kenyon, cashier of the Carteret Bank and Trust Company, informing the Council that a bank could not make direct donations to any cause but that it would lend money for use in the emergency relief work at four and a half per cent, instead of the usual interest rate, the difference in the interest rate to be considered the bank's contribution toward the relief work. The letter met with much approval upon the part of the Mayor and members of the Council.

In a letter, former Prosecutor John E. Toolan, who is head of the Middlesex County Recreation Council and the Middle Keep-Well Camp, said the camp served eighteen boys. Continued on Last Page

JOHN E. DONAHUE INSTALLED JAN. 1

On New Year's Day at noon, the borough council will hold its annual organization session. On this occasion, Councilman-elect John E. Donahue will take his seat, replacing Councilman John J. Lyman, who did not run for re-election. This will be the only change in the Councilmanic body for the year of 1932.

A few appointments are scheduled to be made, including an overseer of the poor to succeed Mrs. Carrie A. Drake, whose term expires. Few changes are expected.

A message showing the accomplishments of this year and plans for next year will likely be presented by Mayor Joseph A. Hermann.

Mrs. Emil Stremlau, the local chairman, states that thousands of seals mailed at Thanksgiving time remain to be heard from. "We fear many of the little stage coaches which started their journey so gaily will meet the fate of the old time vehicles which rotted away forgotten in old barns or sheds," she said.

COMBA ACQUITTED ON SELF DEFENSE

Freed of Charge of Assault Made A Few Months Ago By Patrolman Thomas Donoghue.

A jury before Judge Adrian Lyon in the court of quarter sessions last Wednesday acquitted Charles Comba, of Carteret, on two indictments charging him with atrocious assault and battery on Patrolman Thomas Donoghue and Acting Sergeant John Connolly on the morning of August 24, 1930, at Carteret.

On the stand, Comba indicated that any action in the assault on the officers was a self defense measure. He recalled that years ago, Donoghue used a nightstick over his head. When the officer on this occasion beat him and jabbed him with a nightstick, Comba said he saw his chance to defend himself.

The jury was out half an hour.

JANUARY 17 is the anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin and many Americans of many different trades and professions who claim him as one of their own will join in honoring his memory on that date. For "the many-sided Franklin" and "Franklin, the versatile," have become proverbial in referring to this man. But no trade or profession has a better claim on him nor a better reason to celebrate his birthday than the printers and publishers of this country.

Franklin's career as a printer started in 1718 when he was twelve years old. He was apprenticed to his brother, James Franklin, a printer, who was publishing the New England Courant in Boston. Young Ben secretly wrote articles for the Courant and was delighted when his brother, not knowing their authorship, published them until James Franklin discovered the sources of them and severely lectured young Ben for his presumption.

Sir William Keith, the governor of Pennsylvania, to set up in business for himself, Franklin started to go to London to buy equipment for a print shop. The help which Keith had promised to give him was not forthcoming and young Ben found himself stranded in the British capital. But the energetic young colonial was soon employed at Samuel Palmer's printing house in London and after that in the printery of John Watts, one of the leading craftsmen of the time. Franklin spent 14 months in England, then returned to Philadelphia and went to work again in Keimer's shop, this time as foreman. At once he demonstrated the initiative and ingenuity which was to characterize his whole life. Keimer's supply of type was limited and his wants could not be satisfied without sending to England. So Foreman Franklin made a mold for casting letters and supplied his employer with the type which he needed.

which he placed under the management of his grandson, Benjamin Franklin Bache, the son of his beloved daughter, Sarah Franklin Bache. Franklin retained his interest in this printing business to the end of his days, constantly giving his grandson the benefit of his experience and having a sort of general supervision over the enterprise. Then on April 17, 1790, the busy career of Benjamin Franklin ended in the city where he had risen to his first fame—Philadelphia. He was buried in Christ Church Burying Ground there. However much his simple soul wanted to be remembered as "B. Franklin, Printer," his relatives evidently thought that an epitaph befitting his world-wide fame was more appropriate than likening him to an "old book."

ANNUAL MESSAGE TO FREEHOLDERS SPEAKS ECONOMY

dividuals and governing bodies are confronted with at this time, due to the depression, can be, I firmly believe, adequately met by placing our individual and financial structures on a rock foundation by the application of the age-old and common sense principle of not spending beyond our capacity to pay. This principle should not only prevail insofar as the expenditure of current funds is concerned, but it also should not include capital commitments.

In my second annual message to the Board, delivered last year, I urged the adoption of the policy of limiting capital expenditures in any given year to the amount of the bonds retired during that year. The control of the bonded debt, together with the control of the incident debt service costs, is highly essential if there is ever going to be any control over the County tax rate. The people of Middlesex County should give a careful consideration to this principle and not make demands upon the County government for capital expenditures which would cause a violation of this policy. This is going to be particularly true during the year 1932 because the capital construction program was advanced three months to provide work for the unemployed. This advancement of the 1932 program means that practically all of the half million dollars of capital funds available under this policy for this year have been obligated. It should also be borne in mind by those responsible for the expenditure of the public funds in the County government that the County business for the year 1932 will have to be performed on a pared but adequate budget. Eternal vigilance and the exercise of strict economy will be necessary to preclude the possibility of an over-expenditure of the 1932 budget. Carefully thought out financial planning will go a long way toward the establishment of definite control of current and capital funds.

It is my firm conviction that the departmental system of administering County business has proven its worth in the past two years. There are, however, a few changes which I would recommend.

The duties of the Director of the Board as presiding officer and as the coordination of the functions of the various departments are such that I believe it would be in the public interest if the Director of the Board was relieved of the responsibility of a Department Chairmanship. He should, however, serve in an ex-officio capacity in all of the four departments of the Board.

The work of the Department of Highways and Bridges is of such magnitude that it is recommended that three bureaus be established within this Department namely, the Bureau of New Construction; the Bureau of Bridge Maintenance and the Bureau of Road Maintenance. It is further recommended that members of the Board of Freeholders serving on the Road Department either as Chairman or Bureau Chiefs, be relieved of the responsibility of a Department Chairmanship in any other department.

Again, this year, I would earnestly suggest an even further centralization of responsibility and authority in the office of the Supervisor of Roads. The recommendations made last year, concerning the establishment of this office in the County Record Building, and the installation of a centralized system of purchasing were immediately put into effect by the Department of Highways and Bridges. The results obtained have been splendid. However, it is felt that even greater progress can be made if the duties of the County Engineer are extended to include supervisory control over all operations in the field for the Department of Highways and Bridges. The construction and maintenance of Highways and Bridges is a highly technical subject which requires the planning and supervision of an engineer. Due to the advancement of the permanent construction program for 1932, there will only be a limited amount of engineering work required in the Bureau of New Construction. This year, therefore, would seem to be the appropriate time to put this plan to a practical test. The responsibility given the engineer in this connection, of course, would have to be met by an equal amount of authority. Even though the Bureau of Maintenance will operate during the year 1932 with a materially pared budget, I predict that, under this plan, adequate, if not extensive, road maintenance operations can be effected.

Under the direction of this Department, last year, the traffic survey of the County road system was made. A traffic count and other details in connection with this survey have been made the subject of a comprehensive report filed by the former County Engineer. I would earnestly urge that the findings of this report be used by the Department in the distribution of road maintenance money to the various highways in the County system for the year 1932. The data contained in this report should also be used as the basis for the addition to, or the elimination of, mileage in the County highway system.

The Emergency Relief Program of the Board of Freeholders continues to be a function and responsibility of this Department. During the year just past, ten miles of County roads were constructed under force account, using rotated unemployed labor. These roads were constructed at a cost of $321,778.00—$113,030.00 being consumed in payroll for 2,145 men. There are, at present, under construction in conformity with the Emergency Relief Program filed with the State Director of Emergency Relief, 11 and one-fourth miles of road, which constitute the major portion of the permanent road construction program of the Board of Freeholders for 1932. Since October 13th, the day when the Emergency Relief legislation became effective, there have been employed on these projects 4,133 men with a payroll amounting to $109,451.00. The policy of the Department of Highways and Bridges has been to push this program of Emergency Relief to the very utmost during the past three months in order that some measure of relief could be afforded to the unemployed under the State program, until such a time as the Municipalities could perfect their plans and finance their emergency relief payrolls. After this program is completed it will be a very difficult matter for the County to maintain the tremendously excessive payrolls of the past two years without a deviation from the sound financial policies outlined above. The figures quoted in this connection are exclusive of the large amount of relief afforded through the medium of maintenance funds expended from the current budget. It is estimated that 1939 men received employment during the past year from these funds, which provided $145,699.00 payroll dollars. The splendid work done by this Department in this connection has been entirely in the public interest because the work materially relieved human suffering incident to unemployment.

The effect of the general condition of affairs has been materially reflected in the Department of Public Welfare. The normal increase in population is bound to cause some increase in the cost of institutionalizing the indigent sick. This past year, however, has seen an increase in these costs larger than normally would be the case. In excess of $80,000 was required in the 1932 budget to compensate for this increase. The mandatory nature of these social service items does not materially alter the situation, because these items represent a duty and a function of society, as represented by Government, that cannot be shirked. The present Board of Freeholders have recognized this responsibility and have not reduced appropriations, even where not mandatory, which concerned the alleviation of human suffering. The magnitude and importance of this function of the Department of Public Welfare can more easily be realized when it is considered that $856,030.00 or 25 per cent of the total budget was appropriated and expended for the maintenance of indigent County patients in institutions. It is altogether possible that some economies may be effected in these items without impairing their effectiveness.

If an investigator is appointed in accordance with the law establishing Old Age Pensions, it would be my recommendation that the duties of such an investigator be made to include all of the social service activities of the Department of Public Welfare. I would also urge that the selection of this individual be based solely upon the professional training and ability of the applicant. A full time, competent social service investigator operating directly under the Department of Public Welfare, no doubt, permit this Department to exercise some semblance of control over this large annual expenditure to the end that economies may be effected.

A complete investigation of this whole problem has been in progress under the supervision of the Department of Public Welfare by the Welfare Commission, appointed last year. I understand that the studies of this Commission have been wide in scope and thorough in detail. The final report of this Commission will probably be filed with this Board early this year. I am sure their recommenda-

New Chevrolets Now Displayed Aid Employment Throughout U. S.

Chevrolet's new car for 1932, embodying silent Synchro-Mesh transmission in combination with selective free wheeling as standard equipment at no extra cost, and practically every proven automotive advance of recent years, is now displayed at dealer showrooms throughout the country.

While remaining in the price class in which it won world leadership this year, the new 1932 models offer features heretofore considered exclusive to the high price field, as well as a new front end mounting never before shown on any car.

Called "The Great American Value for 1932," the line offers in support of this slogan a twenty per cent increase in power, faster acceleration, top speeds of 65 to 70 miles an hour, new Fisher bodies with a modern streamlined styling, down-draft carburetion, counter-balanced crankshaft, stream-lined front seat adjustment and many other refinements over the 1931 models, which, from the standpoint of public acceptance, were the most successful in the history of the company.

are expected to roll off the assembly lines during the present month.

The new car is the first in the low-price field to offer the combination of silent Synchro-Mesh transmission with selective free wheeling as standard equipment at no extra cost. A control button on the instrument panel enables the driver to use the free wheeling device only when he desires, and he is thus able to utilize the full braking power of the engine when desired.

The front end offers a radically changed appearance, with a new type radiator, a radiator grille built integral on all models, a double tie-bar arching gracefully between the fenders, on which are mounted bullet-shaped headlights and a trumpet-type horn just beneath the left headlamp. All models have adjustable hood ports chrome plated on all the sport and deluxe models, and all have cow ventilators controlled from the driver's seat.

With the new streamlined bodies, the external sun visor has been eliminated, and its purpose is now served by an internal visor adjustable to any position in front of the driver. The left front window also has an equalizer built in so that the driver may adjust the window with little effort. On the top rail of the instrument panel is a removable ash tray for the convenience of front seat passengers.

Robe rails, silk assist cords, window shades, arm rests and ash trays on both sides of the rear seat, dome light, foot rests, large door pockets and many other big car refinements are standard with various models in the new line.

CARTERET WOMAN'S CLUB

ISABEL LEFKOWITZ

The New Year

"Again we greet the dawn of a New Year and we pause as though looking through a half open curtain, wondering what lies beyond. What does 1932 hold for each of us? We may not know beforehand, for we live only one day at a time. Nevertheless, we make our plans, and we should greet the dawn with optimism, with belief that the future is bright. It is an age-old characteristic of human thought to look forward to golden days and to feel that the door is again opened toward fresh and splendid opportunity. There is a sense of adventure, and with confidence we make our plans.

"The work of the coming year should be a continuance of what was left unfinished in the year past. Finish the job; but also keep a keen appreciation of current events.

"Let us pause as the New Year dawns, and with eyes level and full of confidence let us walk forward, believing we shall achieve the ideals our hearts may hold.

"What, specifically, this year of 1932 will bring in the way of achievement and may not, need not be foreseen. We are in the Twentieth Century Unlimited, with the spirit and zest of adventure in our souls. May it be a happy and successful year to us all, bringing us much more than we have yet dreamed or hoped.

"May each and every one work happily and earnestly for better conditions in our communities, for higher ideals in home life, and for a truer administration of justice.

"May all our best wishes, our highest resolves, come true."

The foregoing is an extract from "The Club Woman."

Earliest Form of Spoons

The first form of spoon of which we find American examples was the so-called Puritan spoon that appeared in England about the middle of the Seventeenth century and became very popular with the Roundheads. This represented the change from the pear shaped to the round bowl. But it was not until the middle of the Eighteenth century that the handles of spoons began to bend toward the back instead of the front and the bowls assumed the egg-shaped form common today. The first spoon having these features was known as the Old English pattern.

Wisdom

A most unusual case came up recently in a Detroit court. A woman was sued for damages because, after having weighed herself on some penny-in-the-slot scales, she picked up a chair and smashed the dial all to pieces.

"Those scales said that I weighed 210 pounds and I weigh only 198," declared the woman indignantly. "They were both robbers and liars. They got my penny and then gave the wrong weight."

"Sort of penny wise and pound foolish," remarked the judge as he arranged for a settlement.

Army Air Pilots Make Trip at 20,000 Feet

First Flight of Its Kind in Upper Atmosphere.

Chicago.—Twelve pursuit planes of the Ninety-fourth squadron recently completed a cross country flight from Selfridge field, Michigan, to Washington, D. C., at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

This flight was of exceptional importance, not only from a military point of view, but also because of its significance to commercial operators.

The army air corps has been conducting experiments in high altitude formation flying over a considerable period.

The flight demonstrated one military fact, that if Washington should be endangered by an attack, a squadron could take off from Selfridge field, arrive at Washington, drop the auxiliary gasoline tanks, and have sufficient gasoline left to go right into combat at the ceiling of air combat just two hours after leaving Selfridge field.

The commercial significance of the flight lies in the fact that leaders of the aviation industry expect to see most passenger air transport done at altitudes of 20,000 feet or higher in the near future in hermetically sealed cabin planes, heated and supplied with oxygen from tanks.

The use of too much sugar will prevent ice cream from freezing quickly. Save the juice from canned pineapple and the liquid from maraschino cherries to use when making fruit punch.

The gloss of a rubber plant is greatly increased by dropping about a teaspoonful of sweet oil about its roots once a month.

Minced parsley and onion added to cream soups improve their flavor. Dried celery leaves may also be used to flavor soups.

If pitted prunes are cut in small pieces and added to the last kneading of bread dough you will have a very delicious bread.

To remove water marks on waxed floors, rub the spots with a cloth dipped in turpentine, cover them with a little wax, then polish.

Grandi Fought in Trenches; Now He Is Seeking Peace

'Happy Warrior' Won High Honors at Early Age.

Rome.—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister who recently conferred with President Hoover in Washington on disarmament, is another "happy warrior." Since he enrolled in the Alpine infantry in 1915, when but nineteen, he always has fought—first, on the field of battle, second as a military Fascist, and third as a protagonist of disarmament.

He is loaded with military honors. If he should don a uniform it would be that of a general of the Fascist militia and on his breast would appear the highest distinctions which Italy bestows for military valor.

Now, he is a champion of peace, who has gone through all the danger and suffering of war, for he was in the trenches. He enlisted as a private and within a year was made a second lieutenant.

Returning from the war at twenty-three, he had to go back to his books for he had chosen the law as a career. It was while a student that he was attracted to the Fascist movement.

He enlisted in the new movement, which was being formed by Benito Mussolini in Milan, and was one of the first militant Fascists from the district of Bologna.

POOR MARCELLA

A Story of Persistent Love

By FANNIE HURST

WHEN she was eighteen, the only child of the Honorable Festus Martin had been painted by Delmar, presented at the court of St. James and introduced with formality to the official social life of Washington.

It was a quick transition from the busy, unremarkable life of Marcella Martin's childhood, as daughter of a prosperous manufacturer of radio parts, to the highly complex social plane achieved by Festus Martin after his growing wealth had enabled him to foster political ambitions, and after those ambitions had landed him in congress.

Undoubtedly it was the combination of Marcella's estate of only child, combined with the dotting ambition of parents who could have loved her more wisely, which was accountable for the six years of rigid social disciplining which were imposed upon the protesting Marcella.

It was said of the Martins, laughingly, in certain Washington circles, that the adoring parents of this girl had actually succeeded in making over her face. A rather plain face, too long, with overhanging brow and dull brown hair entirely lacking in lights.

It can readily be imagined that the Martins spared neither time nor the most elaborate expenditures to launch successfully into an estate befitting her father's rank this idolized and only daughter.

The fact that she was diffident, frankly unsocial, unimpressed by wealth or station, unambitious along lines assiduously mapped out for her by her parents whose dreams of ultimate highest realization lay in this girl, only conspired to urge the elder Martins to maximum effort.

"Why, Marcella, another girl with your opportunities would be in her seventh heaven of delight. Doesn't it mean anything to you to have all the things your father's wealth and position can afford for you?"

"Of course it does, mother, only I want them in my way. I'm no good at this social-round kind of thing. I don't like it chiefly, I guess, because I'm a failure at it. Don't force, mother. Can't you reconcile yourself to the fact that I'm not what you want me to be?"

No, neither of the parental Martins could. Festus Martin, as much as his more obvious wife, wanted this daughter a fitting complement to his achievements both official and social. His wife was that. A pretty, pampered-looking woman with small eager ways and deep gold eyes that were brighter than, if not as profound, as her daughter's.

ways skillful efforts met with little success. It is doubtful if in all the times he met Marcella, both in the Martin home and at public occasions, the beautifully gowned, jeweled, caparisoned little lady of longish face, bulging brow, deeply intent eyes and clear brown skin, ever more than passingly snagged his attention. Oh, yes, his reaction, if any, might have been: Martin's daughter! Said to be clever; but a solemn young lady with that dark brown look. Good enough fellow, Martin, if he knew enough to keep out of politics. Pretty little wife with soap-suds for brains.

Player Gives New Note to Usual Golf Alibi

There were two things in George Tweep's life that meant everything to him—his family and his golf. It is really difficult to understand how he managed to find time for both. At any rate, his wife and five children complained of no neglect and his golf score averaged around 78.

George had won the right to represent his club in the state golf tournament. During the period preceding the final matches, Mrs. Tweep presented him with a sixth child.

Another man would either have withdrawn from all sports, or would have deserted his family at such a time. George, however, was prepared for the situation. A putting green had been built on the front lawn of his home. Thus he could practice and be near the newest Tweep at the same time.

One afternoon an appreciative gallery came over to watch George do his putting. From all angles, he tapped the ball into the cup—his skill was little short of amazing. At length he decided to try one more and call it a day. It was a simple six-footer, the kind he had been making all afternoon.

He took his stance, held his breath, drew back his putter slowly and brought it forward smoothly. At the moment of impact, from within the house came the disturbing wail of the Tweep infant. George's wrist jerked—the sphere missed the cup by a good three inches!

Forcing a smile, George looked around at the gallery. "I guess it's that new baby," he said. "I guess it's that new baby," he said. "I guess it's that new baby," he said.

No city in the world has had so much written about it as the Holy City; none is more worthy of description. Fourteen times destroyed, each time has it raised its dignified head in triumph.

Traffic and Shop Contrasts. The Palestinian traffic policemen has learned that in his particular job it is necessary for the left hand to know what the right hand is doing.

The capital of the Land of Three Faiths remains unique, maintaining its position not by towering skyscrapers, Byzantine art, or Roman architecture, but by sheer personality.

Rushing motor cars and heavy, springless carts cannot altogether drown the sound of the bells. Western civilization, in the hands of the Palestinian chauffeur, marks its presence by the screech of electric horns.

Almost as sacred in the eyes of the Moslems as are Mecca and Medina, Jerusalem is a place of pilgrimage for the Moslem world.

Like the traffic, the shops are in a transitional state. It is curious to see a Bedouin from Beersheba or from east of the Jordan, in his sheepskin coat or camel's-hair cloak, standing at the window of a draper's shop.

Jerusalem stands upon two hills, with a slope to the east, facing the sunrise and the desert.

The townsmen are more and more adopting the European style of clothing, but retain the red fez.

In Palestine all roads lead to the capital. The south road, from Beersheba, Hebron and Bethlehem, joins the city at the Jaffa gate.

But for cleverness of maneuver one should study the man who balances on his back 60 empty five-gallon gasoline tins bound together like a wall.

On alighting from a train from Egypt, Jaffa or Haifa, the first thing to arrest the attention is the name of the station, printed in the three official languages—English, Arabic, and Hebrew.

Next, choice must be made of transport, as horse-drawn gharries, saddled donkeys, or, at times, aristocratic camels vie with American automobiles for patronage.

Taking a car, the traveler rides down the Bethlehem road toward the citadel. On the right, high above the Ophthalmic hospital, flies the flag of the Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

Our soda fountains are peripatetic. The vendors vend their way along the street, extolling the virtues of their soft drinks by clanking brass saucers.

But Jerusalem's pride is its cauliflowers, which grow in the Valley of Silwan. They would probably take a prize for size alone, but, unlike most big things, their flavor is delicious.

David street is a series of long, shallow, greasy, cobblestone steps, and a good stick with a sharp point is not to be despised.

When wild geese honk high of nights and when Soapy moves uneasily on his park bench you may know that winter is near at hand. A dead leaf fell in Soapy's lap. That was Jack Frost's card. Jack always gives fair warning of his annual call.

The hibernatorial ambitions of Soapy were not of the highest. In them there were no considerations of Mediterranean cruises or of soporific Southern skies. Three months on the island seemed to Soapy the essence of things desirable.

There were many ways of reaching the island. Soapy left his bench and strolled up Broadway. He halted at a glittering cafe. If he could reach a table inside unsuspected, success would be his. A roasted mallard duck, thought Soapy—

And then Camembert and a demi-tasse. But as Soapy set foot inside the restaurant the head-waiter's eye fell upon his decadent shoes. Strong and ready hands turned him about and conveyed him in silence and haste to the sidewalk.

Perpetuating the Memory of a Strenuous American

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WITH a few notable exceptions, America has usually waited anywhere from two decades to a whole century before paying honor to some of her Presidents with memorials in keeping with the dignity and importance of the office which they held and with their contribution to the history of our nation.

A short time ago James R. Garfield, son of President James A. Garfield and president of the Roosevelt Memorial association, announced that Anolostan Island, in the Potomac river, a tract of 80 acres in the heart of the National Capital, had been purchased by the association as the site for a national memorial to Roosevelt and it will be presented to the nation to be used as a public park and to be incorporated into the park system now being developed along the Potomac by the National Capital Park and Planning commission.

Bridges will connect the island with the mainland on the north at Roslyn and on the south near the Virginia end of the new Washington Memorial bridge. Ultimately the association intends to erect on the island an appropriate monumental structure, which will be designed by John Russell Pope, architect of the association, and built under the supervision of the National Fine Arts commission and the National Capital Park and Planning commission.

Anolostan island lies due west of the White House, between the Francis Scott Key bridge and the new Washington Memorial bridge, within the territorial limits of the District of Columbia. In its location, its physical conformation and its heavy growth of timber it is the most picturesque area in the district which has remained undeveloped.

The Roosevelt Memorial association was founded immediately after Roosevelt's death in January, 1899, and raised a fund of $1,750,000 by popular subscription and in 1920 secured a charter from congress. Its aims are, first, to erect a suitable monumental memorial to Theodore Roosevelt in Washington; second, to establish and maintain a memorial park in Oyster Bay, N. Y.; and, third, to perpetuate Colonel Roosevelt's memory by spreading the knowledge of his character and career.

The purchase of Anolostan Island is the first step in accomplishing the first aim. In fulfillment of the second aim, 25 acres of land were purchased in the town of Oyster Bay and a memorial park has been completed at a cost of $650,000. It was formally dedicated on May, 30, 1928, and is now in use.

In fulfillment of the third aim, $200,000 has been set aside for perpetual maintenance. The further sum of $25,000 has been set aside for the perpetual care of Roosevelt's grave in Young's Memorial cemetery in Oyster Bay.

- 1. Theodore Roosevelt, author, naturalist, explorer, soldier and President of the United States. 2. Anolostan Island in Washington, D. C. Proposed site of a national Roosevelt memorial. It is in the Potomac river between the Francis Scott Key Memorial bridge and the Washington Memorial bridge. In the upper left corner of the picture may be seen the Washington monument and in the center at the top the Lincoln memorial. 3. A lookout point on Anolostan Island with a view across Little Run to the Virginia shore. 4. The Roosevelt Memorial obelisk in Marias pass on the Continental Divide in Montana. 5. The New York Roosevelt memorial, a part of the American Museum of Natural History in New York city.

Under the third aim the association has established certain institutions and carried forward certain activities, as follows:

- 1. Co-operated with the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association in the completion of Roosevelt house, the restored birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt, at 28 East Twentieth street, N. Y., and in its maintenance as a national shrine and point of inspiration for public-spirited citizenship and sound nationalism. 2. Gathered one of the most noteworthy collections in the United States of memorabilia centering about a single individual and established at Roosevelt House a permanent museum for its exhibition. The items, chronologically arranged, cover Roosevelt's entire career. 3. Established, also at Roosevelt House, a Roosevelt library of research and a bureau of information for students, writers, and others desiring information on his career. The library contains approximately 5,300 books and pamphlets, including all the books and articles written by Roosevelt, most of the material written about him, and an extensive collection of books relating to the period (1881-1919) of his public life. It contains, furthermore, 2,500 cartoons, 9,000 pictures, and countless clippings, as well as extensive newspaper files. Every effort has been made to obtain material that is critical of Roosevelt and his policies or adverse to them, as well as material in their favor. 4. A Roosevelt motion picture library has been established, the first biographical motion picture library in the world. Negative and positive films relating to Roosevelt's career and photographed on four continents have been collected and assembled in ten productions. 5. The collected works of Theodore Roosevelt have been prepared for publication in a limited edition and an inexpensive popular edition and published through regular commercial channels. 6. Numerous special publications have been issued, including a collection of Roosevelt's wartime editorials, an account of his life as a ranchman in North Dakota, and a book of selections from his writings for use in schools. 7. For seven years an employee of the association has been engaged in sorting, arranging, and calendaring the Roosevelt correspondence in the Library of Congress for the benefit of future historians. 8. Established Roosevelt awards for distinguished public service in fields associated especially with Roosevelt's career. These fields are: Administration of public office; development of public and international law; promotion of industrial peace; conservation of natural resources; promotion of social justice; the study of natural history; promotion of outdoor life; promotion of the national defense; the field of American literature; the field of international affairs; the expression of the pioneer virtues; the leadership

Forgotten HEROES By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Terror of the Natchez Trace

IN THE early thirties many a traveler over the Nashville and Natchez Trace, the principal highway through the Lower Mississippi valley, failed to reach his destination and to his friends came back the fearful word "The Mystic Clan has got him." The Mystic Clan was the product of the cunning brain of John Murrell, known as "the great western land pirate" and "the wickedest man in American history" who "conducted the most fearful schemes of rapine and murder from New Orleans up to Memphis, St. Louis and Cincinnati." At one time his gang numbered more than a thousand men, many of them prominent and presumably respectable citizens, who profited from his extensive operations in crime.

Not only were travelers robbed and murdered, but slaves were stolen, sold, stolen from their new owners, and then murdered to prevent their betraying the robbers. Counterfeiting was carried on as a side line and Murrell, who was a man of some education as well as considerable natural ability, used the disguise of a traveling preacher to issue the spurious currency. But his greatest scheme was for an insurrection of the slaves, or raising the blacks against the whites. In the midst of the terror spread by the Mystic Clan there was one man who had enough courage to try to end the reign of Murrell, Virgil A. Stewart was his name and under the name of Hues he succeeded in joining the clan and, by playing upon Murrell's vanity, worked his way into his confidence. He became the leader's trusted messenger and thus was able to get full details of the plot for the slave insurrection. The uprising was to take place on Christmas day, 1835. Starting out presumably on a trip to carry the final instructions to the members of the gang scattered all over the South, Stewart took with him two trusted men and crept upon Murrell's hiding place in Arkansas across the river from Memphis early one morning. The first intimation the robber leader had of the downfall of his scheme was when he looked into the mouth of a pistol, behind which he saw the stern face of the trusted "Hues."

Although the arrest was easy, convicting Murrell was more difficult. Sheriffs, magistrates and other officers of the law, either members of the clan themselves or intimidated by Murrell's friends, refused to act. So Stewart marched Murrell to jail in Memphis himself and when members of the clan rallied to rescue their leader, Stewart faced the mob and told them that if a move was made to rescue Murrell he would shoot him dead. Murrell pleaded for his life and the mob dissolved. Finally Stewart succeeded in bringing the land pirate to trial, had him convicted and sentenced to ten years in a Tennessee prison. He came out a broken man to find his clan disorganized. Stewart was repeatedly threatened by the outlaws and several attempts were made on his life. Despite the fact that he had saved the South from the horrors of a slave insurrection, he was an outcast there and eventually he went to Pennsylvania where he ended his days.

He Repaid Our Pulaski Debt

SEVERAL million Americans during the years 1917-18 "repaid our debt to Lafayette" for the services of that gallant Frenchman during the Revolution. But a century ago one lone American took it upon himself to "repay Poland for the heroic Pulaski who died during the siege of Savannah in our Revolutionary War," as he phrased it. His name was Dr. Paul Fitzsimmons Eve of Augusta, Ga., who did post-graduate work in Paris.

In 1831 when the people of northern Poland revolted against Russian rule, Doctor Eve formed a committee in Paris to aid the Poles and went to London to raise funds for them. Then he went to Warsaw "to repay the Pulaski debt," and offered his professional services to the Polish patriots. Commissioned a major, he was with a party that was driven into Germany where he was interned and narrowly escaped death from cholera. Through the efforts of Lafayette he was finally released and returned to America.

Doctor Eve took part as a surgeon in the Mexican war and also served in the war of the French and Italians against Austria in 1859. Returning again to America he entered the Confederate army and held high medical rank under Gen. Joseph E. Johnston. At various times, until his death in Nashville, Tenn., in 1877 he held positions in medical colleges in Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee.

Despite his many sacrifices in the cause of Polish freedom, he refused to take pay for his services but he did accept the Gold Cross of Merit in a Polish order. But aside from this his efforts in the cause of freedom went unrewarded for a hundred years. Then in 1931 a tablet commemorating his services was unveiled at the Military Medical school in Warsaw and a ward in a hospital there was named for him. But it was not until the Poles had taken the initiative in recalling this forgotten hero that his own countrymen set about honoring him with a plan to erect a memorial to him in his native city of Augusta, Ga.

The European Workman

Count Karoly, about to set off on a lecture tour, said in an interview in New York:

"The way Europe works, in comparison with the way America works — well, I'll tell you a story. "A naturalized Frenchman from Chicago was visiting his home town in Normandy. "Aha," he said to the mayor, a boyhood friend — "aha, we have come on. What are those statues on the roof of the town hall?" "Those are not statues," said the mayor. "They are masons."

Denver Mother Tells Story

Nature controls all the functions of our digestive organs except one. We have control over that, and it's the function that causes the most trouble. See that your children form regular bowel habits, and at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or constipation, give them a little California Fig Syrup. It regulates the bowels and stomach and gives these organs tone and strength so you continue to act as Nature intends them to. It helps build up and strengthen pale, listless, underweight children. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it's purely vegetable, so you can give it as often as your child's appetite lags or he seems feverish, cross or fretful.

Leading physicians have endorsed it for 50 years, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows how mothers depend on it. A Western mother, Mrs. E. W. Stewart, 4112 Raritan St., Denver, Colorado, says: "Raymond was terribly pulled down by constipation. He got weak, fretful and cross, had no appetite or energy and food seemed to sour in his stomach. California Fig Syrup had him romping and playing again in just a few days, and soon he was back to normal weight, looking better than he had looked in months."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. The mark of the genuine is the word "California" on the carton.
