

New Venture For Martha

Martha Raye, who has been in all phases of entertainment over the past several years, will have her own series on NBC this fall.

The series is Bugaloos. Miss Raye will portray a woman who threatens the peace of Harmony Hamlet, a fantasy world inhabited by four teenage musicians, The Bugaloos. They will be portrayed by the recently signed British newcomers—Caroline Ellis, John Philpott, John McIndoe and Wayne Laryea.

(An observation: With all the fine rock groups in the U.S., it's difficult to understand why the network signed a British group for the series unless it was to see the series in England.)