tin did "Peter Pan," based on her stage show, live, for NBC in 1955 and 1956. A version was taped in 1960 and rerun in 1963 and 1966. That's all they were allowed under Miss Martin's contract for the show. NBC gets lots of requests for repeats but it takes renegotiating the contracts of the entire cast. It would cost a fortune. Difficulty in repeating "Peter Pan" was one reason NBC grabbed "Oz" when CBS let it go.

Q Tell me about John Philpott of "The Bugaloos." How can I write to him?—J.R.P., Clarkston

A I can see why you're interested, since the name's the same. Like the other Bugaloos, John's a Britisher. He was drummer and singer with several British pop groups before he was

Q Five or six years ago, there was a half-hour comedy series in which the star ran a snack truck on a college campus to help support his sister. I think the series was "Hank" but I'm not sure if Dick Kallman starred?—R.F.C.

A Right down the line. Kallman it was. He played a college "drop-in" who never registered but did try to run the school. The show was on in the 1965-1966 season and then went to that big film rack in the sky to be remembered only by trivia collectors like you.
