

Warren Jeffrey

Warren Jeffrey, 4x PLL and MLL champion with the Utah Archers and the Colorado Mammoth, is a dominant force in professional lacrosse, known for his exceptional defensive skills, leadership, and strategic acumen on the field. A standout player in both the National Lacrosse League (NLL) and the Premier Lacrosse League (PLL), Warren has built a reputation as one of the game's premier defenders, combining physicality, precision, and a deep understanding of the game.

A native of Mimico, Ontario, Warren honed his skills through Canada's storied box lacrosse system, where he developed the grit and tenacity that define his playing style. He played collegiate field lacrosse at the University of Vermont, where he was a standout for the Catamounts and earned numerous accolades for his performance on the field.

Selected in the first round of the NLL Draft, Warren quickly established himself as a cornerstone player for his team. His ability to shut down top offensive threats, win ground ball battles, and lead in transition play has made him an indispensable part of any roster. Off the field, Warren is known for his commitment to growing the game, mentoring young players, and sharing his passion for lacrosse with the next generation.

Whether it's making a game-changing defensive play, setting up his teammates for success, or inspiring future players, Warren Jeffrey embodies the spirit of a true lacrosse professional.
