Day 4

Country Club Castelgandolfo

Rome-Country Club Castelgandolfo •

Country Club Castelgandolfo, 13 Via Santo Spirito, Pavona 00040, Italy

A mansion built in the seventeenth century overlooks the crater of an extinct volcano. The residence, originally commissioned by Cardinal Flavio Chigi, is now considered the most charming club house among golf clubs; the crater, thanks to the creative flair of Robert Trent Jones Sr., has been transformed into a challenging golf course, full of intriguing technical features. The naturally laid ground has been endowed with one hundred and one tricks among centenarian olive trees, oaks and cluster pines. The balcony of the club house offers a fascinating and complete panorama of the course: the 18 holes can be embraced in a single look, giving the feeling of an intimate and evocative atmosphere, while four centuries of history provide protection within the walls of the club house and the seafront shines in the background.

Day 5

Circolo Golf Ugolino Firenze

Florence-Circolo Golf dell'Ugolino •

Circolo del Golf dell'Ugolino, 3 Via Chiantigiana Per Strada 50023, Italy

Besides having many champions among its members, both amateur and professional, Ugolino has hosted numerous international competitions. The one that stands out most among these, was the 40th Italian Open in 1983. This remains probably the most enthralling tournament ever played in Italy. It was won, in the end, by Bernard Langer following a thrilling play-off with Severiano Ballesteros and Ken Brown. In addition to them, the field boasted such greats of the game like Greg Norman, Sam Torrance, Pinero, Canizares, and Lyle; not to mention the leading Italians of the time, Costantino Rocca and Baldovino Dassù. The event is still vivid in the memory of the older members.
