WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN AN ANNUAL PHYSICAL AND AN OFFICE VISIT? We would like to clarify some common misunderstandings regarding when a visit is considered a preventative visit, an office visit, or both. Determining how to bill a visit is not an elective decision by the physician and must be made in compliance with government and insurance billing regulations. Insurance companies sometimes request documentation of the visit and we must adhere to appropriate billing guidelines.

An ANNUAL PHYSICAL (also known as a “preventative” or “wellness” visit) is a yearly visit for the sole purpose of preventative care which includes a review of your general well being, including a physical exam, discussions of risk factors, health screenings, assessments, and counseling regarding alcohol, depression, obesity, cardiovascular risks, tobacco, etc, recommendations for age appropriate immunizations and screenings such as colonoscopies and mammograms, and screening lab work.

Most health plans will pay for one preventative visit per year with no deductible or co-pay. Your plan may consider this to be once per calendar year or one year and one day since the date of your last preventative exam. If you have had any other visit billed as preventative during this time period (including a well-woman gynecologist visit), your plan is likely to deny your preventative exam. It is the patient’s responsibility to check with their plan to ensure they are eligible prior to scheduling an annual preventative exam.

An OFFICE VISIT is an appointment to discuss new or existing problems. This may include addressing new symptoms or follow-ups for managing chronic conditions such as diabetes, hypertension, etc., prescribing medications, discussing treatment options, ordering additional tests such as an EKG or diagnostic labs, and referrals to specialists. All of these things are not included in an annual preventative exam.

We believe in treating the whole person and are happy to address any new concerns, follow-up on all chronic conditions, and refill your medications at the time of your annual preventative exam, which saves you time and eliminates the need for scheduling an extra appointment. However, please be aware that this is considered combining an office visit and a preventative visit and may result in billing for both, and you may have a co-pay and/or deductible responsibility for the portion of the visit that is not preventative. If there is not sufficient time to address both in one visit, the provider may decide to address any new problems and chronic conditions today and ask you to reschedule your preventative visit.

LABS ORDERED AT ANNUAL PHYSICAL: Generally, only a few select “screening” labs are included in the preventative benefit (such as cholesterol screening if you have never been diagnosed with high cholesterol). In the past, many insurance companies would still allow other labs to be processed as screening labs when done with a preventative visit. However, many have begun to strictly apply the preventative guidelines which may result in some of your labs having co-insurance or deductibles applied, depending on your plan. There are too many health plans with different guidelines and exceptions for us to know with 100% certainty how each patient’s benefits will be applied.

Therefore, if you are concerned about getting a lab bill, we can offer you the option of paying for your labs at a reduced self-pay price rather than billing them to your insurance company. Our lab, Lab Corp., offers us a discounted rate that we can pass on to you. The most common set of labs ordered at an annual preventative visit (CBC, CMP, Lipids, and TSH) would cost $29.00 if you elect to self pay (please ask for complete price list). If you choose this option, please let us know prior to having your labs drawn. Once Lab Corp submits the claim to your insurance company, we can no longer make changes.
