

In a national survey

68% of people from Saskatchewan identified their relationship with animals or pets as an important support in their recovery from addiction.

