IMPRESSIONISM

ANGELA REYNOLDS DESIGNS, JUPITER
“The classic Impressionist work The Luncheon, by Claude Monet, was the starting point for this tabletop creation. Pan’s Garden of the Preservation Foundation of Palm Beach provided the perfect setting as we recreated this scene of a quintessentially French breakfast. Fresh white linens added the right layer to highlight the vintage tea set and fine crystal.” angelareynolds.com

POP ART

STEPHEN MOONEY INTERIORS,
PALM BEACH

"Drawing inspiration from Roy Lichtenstein, we used bright, primary colors and focused on the use of Ben-Day dots and bold outlines that are indicative of his work. We used round blue placemats and red polka-dot plates and topped them with striped napkins. Lichtenstein's work was often influenced by popular advertising and comic strips, so we placed Coca-Cola bottles on the table and topped the cupcakes with onomatopoeic words like YUM and POP! to complete our setting." stephenmooneyinteriors.com

SURREALISM

PATRICK KILLIAN INTERIORS, PALM BEACH

"While casting about for inspiration, I was immediately struck by the graphic qualities of René Magritte and realized his color sensibility and visual iconography would lend itself to striking combinations and juxtapositions. After struggling to come up with a table cover that would show off the settings while staying true to Magritte's vision, we decided to scrap a table altogether.... What better way to honor the idea of Surrealism than to have a dinner party floating in space?" patrickkillianinc.com

COLOR FIELD

JENNIFER GARRIGUES
INTERIOR DESIGN, PALM BEACH

"My passion for color is one of the reasons I became a designer. I have always admired the work of Mark Rothko and Helen Frankenthaler; their use of saturated colors in Abstract Expressionism is so appealing. I used the beautiful greens and purples in my dining room as a backdrop and gathered colorful glassware, which really makes a big statement. The square and rectangular placemats remind me so much of Rothko's paintings. And the fuchsia peonies and orange roses look glorious in the center of the table." jennifergarrigues.com
