SHELTER - Survivors are served at one safe shelter in Escambia County and one transitional living facility in Santa Rosa County.

TRANSITIONAL HOUSING – Favor House owns one transitional home, which is available for women and children leaving shelter and in need of long-term housing. Residents may stay up to two years. This allows for a transitional period which grants enough time for families to make life changing decisions, finish a degree or vocational training, establish a career and save money for a home. Several of our families have qualified and have purchased homes built by Habitat for Humanity.

SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM - FavorHouse administers a scholarship program available for domestic violence victims, who are no longer in an abusive relationship, who desire to return to college or train for a vocation. Funding is provided by a private foundation and WISP that believes education is the key to successful economic growth. With a career, survivors have the finances to care for their families and they are not forced to return to the abusive partner.
