Mo-Power UNINTERRUPTED LOCOMOTIVE POWER

ESU LOKSOUND EST. 1999

Introducing the complete Phase III GE 4-axle Dash-7 collection from Rapido! It's a mess, and that is how GE made it. In late 1976, GE introduced the Dash-7 line, which consisted of dozens of internal updates to its Universal series model range. The most obvious external changes are that all Dash-7 models have a wider section of the hood ahead of the radiators, and feature protruding wings for the radiator section.

BN ordered the units in two batches. The first 53 units in 1982 were as if a usual 4-axle Dash-7 forgot to have a cab, with blank space where it would be. Originally, they came with 4 grilles on the rear, which 2 of our numbers will offer. By the late 80's, those grilles had been updated the common 7-grille arrangement, which our other two numbers will offer. The second order for 67 units in 1983 came with some entirely unique features reflecting their late build date. The dynamic brake section was raised to accommodate different equipment, identical to a design on a small, specific batch of NS C36-7's also had. Similarly, the 7-grille arrangement in the rear is also like those late-production C36-7's, two large horizontal stacked panels instead of one.

Despite lacking a cab, bell, and horn, these still have complete lighting and working tri-color class lights!

THE PHASE III B23-7 AND B30-7A LOCOMOTIVES FEATURE:

- NEW FOR HO SCALE! B23-7 Phase III details
- NEW FOR HO SCALE! B30-7A and cabless versions (with and without hump)
