"May the Road Rise Up to Meet You..."

By: Christopher Lane

You may recognize this beginning of a centuries-old Irish blessing that some of us still use as a toast or prayer for the welfare of those fortunate enough to be receiving it. The ancient Gaelic language in which it was written actually translates the word "rise" to mean "succeed", so the original benediction really meant "May you succeed on your road." Then as now, "road" has often been interpreted as one's "journey" or "life's journey", with our wishes for it to be a safe and pleasant one.

The author of the blessing is not known, although some have credited it to Saint Patrick, a 5th-century Christian missionary and the primary patron saint of Ireland. As the luck o' the Irish would have it, we're leading right into the March holiday that celebrates that good saint, otherwise known as Saint Patrick's Day or the Feast of Saint Patrick. Every March 17, the supposed day of his passing, this cultural and religious celebration is observed in numerous countries around the world. It has also been an official Christian feast day since the early 1600s and a national feast day by the Irish in Europe since the ninth century.

In our country, the holiday is often celebrated with parades, festivals and plenty of Irish music. Although the three-leaf shamrock is the traditional symbol of the Holy Trinity that was supposedly used by St. Patrick to explain Christianity to Irish pagans, its four-leaf clover cousin makes a sudden appearance everywhere...which I find exceedingly strange since I've never actually found a real one. It's also the one day of the year when many of you will drag out that one piece of green attire that you keep for just this occasion. After donning your green shirt or pants or jacket, some of you will then venture forth and partake of some green beer and/or a wee bit of Irish Whiskey. Of course, it helps that Lenten restrictions on alcohol consumption are conveniently lifted for that particular day.

While everyone is invited to be Irish on St. Paddy's Day, South Carolina isn't really known for claiming a high percentage of residents with Irish ancestry. That honor belongs primarily to Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. However, Charleston and Columbia do pretty well by claiming 14% and 10% respectively of their population as having Irish in them. And while Greenville County only claims about 3% as being of Irish descent, the holiday is nevertheless celebrated here with much enthusiasm, including a very fine St. Patrick's Day parade held downtown at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday, March 14.

While celebrating Irish culture, St. Patrick's Day is also a pretty fun holiday that encourages us to simply enjoy our life...and that famous blessing seeks to help us do exactly that. Here it is in its entirety:

May the road rise up to meet you.

May the wind be always at your back.

*May the sun shine warm upon your face;
the rains fall soft upon your fields and until we meet again,*

may God hold you in the palm of His hand.

Inexpensively Update Your Bathroom

Thinking about updating your bathroom soon? Whether you're planning to sell soon, or you'd just like to transform your space, renovating your bathroom is no small feat.

According to Remodeling Magazine, a mid-range bathroom remodel runs about $18,981. If that number made your heart skip a beat, don't panic – there's plenty of budget-friendly updates you can make without breaking the bank.

Tile - whether you're using it for floors or walls— can add up pretty quickly. Luckily, there's a couple ways you can have your cake and eat it too with this more expensive material. Try shopping at big-box retailers. Hitting up these supercenters as opposed to shopping for custom tile can save you a pretty penny. If you have to go with custom tile, consider using it just as a border. Beadboard has recently come back and with its classic look, we can't see this going out of style any time soon. Transform your space for cheap, using beadboard to cover most of your walls and then top off the look with custom tile. Also consider installing luxury vinyl tile yourself, as opposed to paying a contractor to lay tile.

Paint - Never underestimate the value of a fresh coat of paint. Stick with warm neutrals like gray, greige, light taupe, or even a soft white etc. to brighten small spaces.

A word of advice: Going the DIY route when it comes to paint can save you hundreds— just make sure you've got patience!

Countertops - Move over granite, marble and quartz are the new countertop superstars, but if you're on a tight budget, these must haves can quickly wreak havoc on your bottom line. Get the best of both worlds when you consider using remnants to up-fit your vanity. This little known secret can easily transform your space for a fraction of the cost of a full slab of stone. Most counter top yards and suppliers offer this, so find suppliers in your area and get some cost estimates.

Mirrors - Replace the frameless mirror over your vanity with a framed mirror. Shop around to find a less expensive, yet modern mirror that fits the bill, or consider framing your current mirror with inexpensive materials found at a local hardware store.

Fixtures - You'll be surprised at what simply replacing the fixtures does to your space. Replace dated brass knobs, towel rods, sink faucets, light fixtures and even light switches and outlets to quickly and inexpensively update the look of your bathroom.

Caulk and grout - Nothing makes a bathroom look more drab than unsightly caulk and grout. If your tile and tub are still in good condition consider redoing the grout and adding a fresh layer of caulk around your tub. You'll be surprised at how quickly this elevates the look of your space. Likewise, consider going over your dingy grout with a grout pen for an expensive pick-me-up.

Redo not replace - Hate that puke green tile lining your tub? Don't replace— redo! Yep, turns out you can even paint tile. Use a product like Rust-Oleum's tile and tub kit to transform the ugly green to a sparkling white.

Use a similar strategy when it comes to your tub. Instead of buying a new tub, consider refinishing your old one. Many times you can have your tub professionally relined for a fraction of what a new one would cost.

Music for Body, Mind & Spirit

By Linda Martin

When was the last time you heard music that took you back in time to a memory, brought you to tears, made you relax, let you tap your toes, clap, sing or dance, and perhaps stir a deep sense of peace and joy? In an often discordant and divided world, music has the power to unite us. The awesome power of music can engage us in ways that lessens pain, relieves anxiety, quiets an overactive mind, enlivens our spirits and even slows time down and lets us be present in a unique way.

Research in the field of neuroscience of music used by trained music therapists in a variety of health and mental health settings has shown profound physical and mental changes through scientific use of music. Indeed, sound healing has been used for centuries in various forms all over the world. New research on sound, vibration and frequencies has developed, becoming a form of natural medicine that actually helps us to be more mindful and positive in our lives.

By connecting with the autonomic nervous system (blood pressure, heartbeat, and brain function) and the limbic system where your emotions are, music can have a positive effect on lowering stress and the many health conditions that can arise from or be made worse by that stress. Music can improve mood, calm the mind and body, stimulate memory, alleviate or lower pain, lessen depression, improve sleep, decrease anxiety in everyday life or in situations such as surgery and other medical procedures, and improve outcomes of treatment such as for cancer, recovery from strokes, and many other conditions. Music can certainly increase our sense of harmony with the earth and with others...and ourselves. What mysterious, magical, miraculous things music does...and yet how simple and available it is to us! Whether you choose music playlists or put on a record or CD, try using music:

- As a mood-picker upper when you're tired or stressed
- As relaxing background to pauses in your day or during meditation
- To improve sleep by tuning out other distractions and falling asleep easier
- In the car to decrease traffic stress and anxiety
- As background to be more productive with work projects
- For positive sound frequencies at home or at work
- While cooking or doing household chores for more enjoyment
- While doing exercise to improve concentration and energy.
- In the morning while getting ready for work
- As a soothing background at home for the whole family

My hope is that we can all be more aware of the incredible benefits of music in our lives through listening, spontaneously singing or dancing, playing an instrument, meditating and going to music events. Take the time to discover what music can do for you. You'll probably be amazed.
