

About Art To Income

Art To Income was founded by award winning media & film producer Daniel Brea.

It is a coaching & mentorship community designed for creative individuals who are mid-career in corporate jobs, or have established a successful but creatively unfulfilling business and are looking to build a second career in media production.

Those blessed with the passion for visual storytelling, producing videos or films, and even performing as actors in their own productions often have found themselves at a crossroads at one point in their lives where a difficult and painful decision had to be made.

To follow one's passion and go all-in?

Or take the financially responsible route and forfeit the dream.

Though success in business and work might have given you what you need to feel safe and stable, the calling to the craft haunts you.
Time passes, and the ever lingering question of "what if I only would have..." keeps your eyes agape, staring at the black ceiling at night.

It need not be this way any longer.

The path to creative fulfillment and financial stability can be one and the same.

Art To Income is the bridge from the island of what if, to the continent of I did it.

Age has no meaning, distance from Hollywood carries no weight, current experience and connections are non-issues.

It's only a decision that stands between you and unlimited creative potential.