A Joint Conference sponsored by the Illinois Political Science Association and the Illinois Sociological Association

GOVERNABILITY
in the Face of Social Conflict

Friday, November 7 and Saturday, November 8, 2014

Martin Luther King, Jr. University Union,
Eastern Illinois University
Charleston, IL

Welcome to the 2014 Joint ISA-IPSA annual meeting. We are glad to offer you two days filled with intellectually stimulating sessions, panels, roundtables, and more.

In our theme, Governability in the Face of Social Conflict, we suggest our shared concern for coming to terms with the myriad ways we achieve society and community. Framing our discussion in this way raises questions fundamental to both disciplines: What is good governance? What is social conflict? Can social conflict be a positive outcome, or is it necessarily a negative? How can we best respond to the various forms of conflict in society?

Many thanks to all who helped us through the complexity of planning a joint conference and much appreciation to the students, professors, and researchers who are so generously sharing their expertise and experience with us all.

Warmly,

Gene Deerman
Associate Professor, Sociology, Women's Studies, and Latin American Studies
President, Illinois Sociological Association
