“Winning the Wrong Game”: Why Working Harder Is Not The Same as Winning Where It Matters

KEY TAKEAWAYS:

- Recognizing when you are winning at the wrong game
- Apply the pro versus amateur framework to work, relationships, and health
- Make one decision this week that your gut has been asking you to make

ABOUT BRETT EATON

Brett Eaton is a keynote speaker, author, and high-performance coach who helps high achievers stop confusing success for fulfillment. Known for his high-energy delivery and the signature framework from his book, Uncomfortable Either Way, Brett challenges leaders to look at the scoreboard they have actually been playing on and decide if it is still the one they want to win. No fluff. No hype. Just the uncomfortable truth that action, not comfort, is what builds real confidence and a life you are proud of.

In this high-energy keynote, Brett Eaton reveals why so many successful leaders are quietly winning games they never meant to play. Through personal stories, live audience interaction, and a signature framework leaders can use the moment they walk out of the room, Brett exposes the real reason high performers still feel behind and shows them how to redefine success on their own terms. Expect humor, honesty, and a decision moment you will feel long after the applause stops.
