

Workforce Ready Solutions FAQ

How does career coaching work?

You will set up a brief appointment to meet and discuss your career goals. After our initial meeting, you will gain access to the DISC personality assessment tool. You will bring the results to our first meeting to discuss the findings and learn how these skills can help you in your job search. Together we will create a personalized job search strategy action plan to assist you with achieving your career goals.

What types of clients do I meet with?

Generally, my clients are mid-career to executive-level professionals. They are well-informed and educated professionals that leverage advisors to help them to develop unique and personalized strategic plans in many areas of their life. They appreciate and understand that working with a professional career coach gives them access to current labor market information, career trends, tools, resources, and will expand their professional networking audience.

What sets us apart from our competitors?

When professionals hire me, they want and expect someone transparent, highly-skilled, and talented that can help them to create and deliver compelling career campaigns to prospective employers. I have helped countless individuals to land jobs over the past 20 years. I also understand the current competitive landscape and can deliver “workforce ready solutions” that yield results. See reviews here.

What are the benefits of working with us?

You will learn about new tools and resources to help you to connect with employers. You will also shorten the length of time it takes to land a job, which is the best return on investment possible.

How often will we meet?

That depends on you. We will create a schedule that meets your needs. Whether it is one simple session, or several sessions once per week over the course of a few weeks.

How long does it take to create a resume?

Typically, your resume will take between 7-10 days, however, if you need a rush on your professional documents, this can be arranged. Review the 10 steps for success here.

Can we help you find a job?

Yes. We can market you to employers and add this into your career coaching job search strategy package.

What if I need a service not currently listed?

We are always looking to assist our clients. Please reach out to charise@wfrsllc.com with your specific requests, and we will connect you to someone in our network.
