

Artist Ku Chi-Chun

An artist who pours incredible skill and beauty into her works . Her artworks have been exhibited On several occasions, both at the Art capital fair in Paris Grand Palais, France, Arizona capital museum in the US, Pusan art fair in Korea, and Tokyo design festival in Japan. Furthermore, Art Bank, part of Taiwan ministry of culture, is also a collector of her artworks.

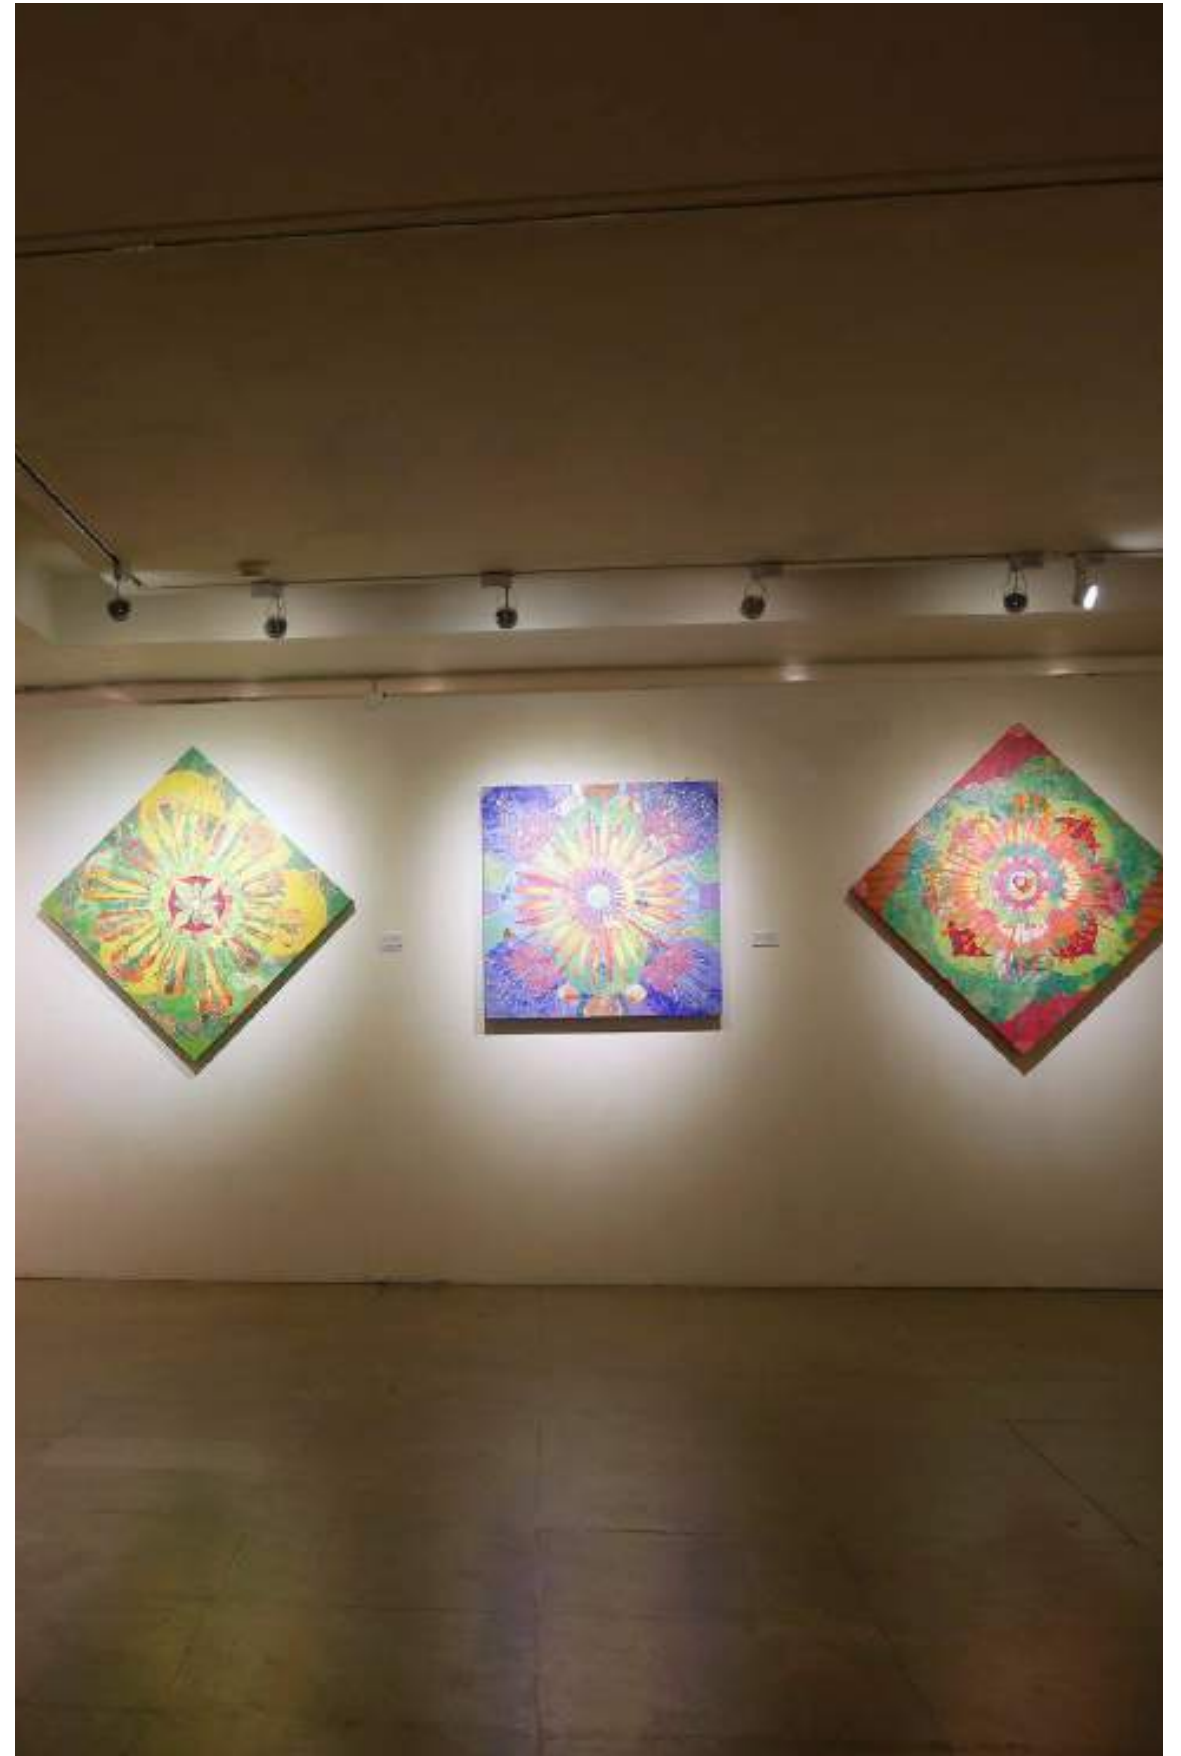

Ku Chi-Chun

Mineral Painting Series

Chi-Chun's artworks combine the techniques of colored painting found in Dunhuang Murals and Thangka paintings from Tibet. All pigment is made from animal gelatin by her studio; Chi-Chun also uses Austrian brand Swarovski as the vendor of the crystals in her paintings, and uses Japanese pure gold foil. These organic elements, combining both modesty and luxury into each art piece, presents concepts of family, happiness, richness, and wealth.

The themes of Chi-Chun's artistic creations are the feminine elements of emotion, music, love, and poetry. To express these concepts, she imagines her paintings as lovers, and her clients as friends. Her paintings and their eventual owners play out a sort of romantic story, filled with passion, appreciation, and love.

Gold in Feng Shui wards off evil spirits.

The gold on the painting functions as a deterrent for evil spirits. It is usually placed on the porch, the entrance and exit of the house, the stairwell, and the aisle opposing the room. Gold paintings are typically based on the traditional Feng Shui principle and apply to figurative landscape paintings. Through the artist's innovation, adding gold and energy totems to contemporary artworks can dispel evil spirits at home and bring prosperity. All the materials used in the artwork are sustainable and environmentally friendly. The white crystals on the painting enhance and purify the space's magnetic field and bring the owner good fortune.

The choice of colors is a personal preference. Pink symbolizes peach blossoms which denote popularity or favorability. Blue promotes calmness, and yellow increases confidence and attracts wealth. Art collectors can select the pieces according to their preferences.

Certificate

This is to certify that the technology has obtained the relevant patent certificate and has been formally included in the patent protection scope of gel painting techniques. The patent certificate fully recognizes the innovation and uniqueness of this technology in the field of gel painting production and grants it the right to patent protection. We are committed to continuously improving and promoting this technology in the spirit of scientific innovation, making greater contributions to the development of gel painting techniques.

The development and application of the novel patented gel painting technique offer new opportunities and challenges for the production and application of gel painting products. We look forward to providing high-quality and creative gel painting products to art enthusiasts and industrial users alike through this technology, while also driving continuous innovation and development in gel painting techniques.
