

The Truth About the Race War.

By Matthew A. Michelangelo

A hard truth I'm unsure of how to tell is regarding the "race war." We are sitting in the intersection of: it's never been about race, and now it is between what people will do for money and power versus centuries of pain for Black and Brown people. The truth is, elitists only cared about money and power. They wanted slaves for the new world, and it just so happened that other African nations were selling people cheaply. Elitists broke African American and Indigenous peoples' spirits by using race and racial abuse. It was always about mind control, much like how we see in the Epstein files. Epstein was and is trying to fracture the mind; that's all they have always been trying to do. Many higher 99%ers and lower 1%ers took racial abuse and ran with it to achieve power and money. Some may believe in racial hierarchy, but it's mostly been for the sake of mind control. It's hard to believe that sometimes, the "winners" of history—so to speak—don't always correct history to favor them. If they did, no one would ever be scared of them. They need the fear. They need the idea of the race war to keep us distracted. The race war has never been for the 1%ers. That's for us 99%ers. They just act as if they care.

Additionally, there are no harmful entities in Appalachia. There are forest protectors, nature protectors, and animal protectors. But if you respect the land and the animals, you will be respected back, that's cosmic law. Just think about it, how silly is it that the rule you've been told is "if it sounds far away, it's close. If it sounds close, it's far away." The way information was spread in Appalachia was primarily word-of-mouth. The government weaponized that, intercepted it with lies, and let the game of telephone spiral out of control. It's plausible deniability. The government may have never explicitly said that there are entities in the forest looking to kill, murder, and eat humans. That they are from the devil, and the government never stopped it, either. Skin walkers and Wendigos are traditionally not what we see them as today—that's what we white people turn them into. Just think about it, if those Skinwalkers and Wendigos were real they way we whites say they are, we'd see Jeffrey Epstein and his friends look like monsters.

This lie was created so that if you heard a slave or indigenous folk trying to escape from being pillaged, murdered, and raped, you would mind your business, or you would die too. It has never been about race to the extent they let us believe, at least. It has always been about money and power for the most part. (I would also like to add that the prohibition helped reinforce these ideas, though it was more so civilians weaponizing it towards the government; however, the government already knew it wasn't true.) There are many other complexities in the intersection of this topic, none of which I can discuss. However, I will say that to heal the land and pay back the karmic debt, we must return the land to the natives.

Remember, the world isn't a lie. The government is the lie, society as we know it is the lie. Life isn't unfair the way we humans think it is. People are unfair. Life wasn't designed to be this hard, and life was never supposed to be easy. There's nothing higher beings can do other than watch and attempt to make sure it never happens again. It is all for the soul's growth; no interference can happen at all, that freewill. Lastly, remember there are some things humans will never know, but the main purpose of life is to live it, not waste in a dead-end matrix.
